4 Officers Returned By Assessing Group

HAMILTON (CP)—Four officers received acclamation at the 12th annual meeting of the Association of Assessing Officers of Ontario today.

They were: M. G. E. Danby of Sault Ste. Marie, president; Ralph Wilson, Welland, and W. W. Green, Windsor, vice-presidents; and J. P. Coomb, Toronto, secretary-treasurer.

Submit Bill To Simplify Customs Rules

WASHINGTON (AP) —One phase of President Eisenhower's broad program to promote foreign trade started through Congress today with sponsors forseeing little if any trouble.

The House of Representatives ways -and -means committee arranged to hear H. Chapman Rose, assistant secretary of the treasury, on a bill aimed at simplifying a maze of United States dures.

Foreign traders have complained for years that one of the chief bars to a free flow of goods into the U.S. has been a cumbersome mass of obsolete and useless customs red tape.

Eisenhower and congressional leaders have included customs simplification on their "must" program for this session of Congress. But obviously the administration will have to hustle to get the measure through the House and Senate before adjournment planned for late July.

The proposed bill would:

Simplify methods of evaluating goods for customs duties, ending a requirement for a mass of constantly - changing information on foreign market prices.

Raise from $1 to $3 the values of goods that can be received by mail in the United States without payment of duty.

Eliminate requirements for detailed marking of foreign goods that have in effect barred some of them from the U.S.

Eliminate heavy penalties imposed now when a shipper's evaluation of goods turns out to be lower than the final customs appraisal.

Eliminate several steps of review and duplication of evaluations by customs agents at various levels.

Dial Exchange At Bridgenorth

Everything is in readiness to inauguarate Bridenorth's new dial telephone exchange about 2 p.m. next Wednesday, William Lettau, Bell Telephone manager for this region, said today.

Because the whole conversion project has been closely co-ordinated since its start several months ago, it will be possible to make the change with virtually no interruption in service. About 225 subscribers in Bridgenorth, Chemong Park and nearby rural areas will be served by the new exchange.

New Bridgenorth telephone numbers, which will go into effect with the opening of the new exchange, are listed in a directory supplement which was mailed to subscribers this week.

Because of the community of interests in Bridgenorth and Peterborough, there will be no long distance charges on calls between the two exchanges.

To call another Bridgenorth number after the change, residents of the community will simply dial the new number as listed in the supplement. To call a Peterborough number, Bridgenorth residents will dial the figure "8" and then the number as listed in the directory. To call Bridgenorth, Peterborough telephone users will need only dial the number listed.

Whole Coronation Enacted By Parkhill Pupils

Those who are unable to attend the Coronation on June 2, certainly got a preview of the procedure which will be followed, at Parkhill School on Monday evening. The classroom was transformed into Westminster Abbey when 36 pupils from units 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10 from Miss Cora Bailey's room and 10 pupils from unit 6 in Mrs. C. Osborne's room entertained their mothers at a Coronation Tea.

The complete coronation program was enacted beginning with the processional into Westminster Abbey. The Duke of Norfolk, well portrayed by Danny Prince, announced each of the notables in a clear, audible voice with an English accent, enunciating each syllable perfectly. The ushers, Gregory Fenn, John Seifried and Donnie Heintzman very slowly and solemnly ushered each notable to his or her place in the Abbey. The processional music was played by Mrs. C. Osborne.

The characters were as follows:

Queen Elizabeth II——Sharon Ferguson, a petite girl who made a delightful little Queen.

Duke of Edinburgh—Alan Williamson in naval attire.

Queen Mother Elizabeth—Betty Ann Hughey.

Prince Charles—Joe Yule.

Princess Anne—Maureen Duncan.

Princess Margaret Rose—Sharelle Seifried.

Duke of Gloucester—Paul Halloway.

Duchess of Gloucester—Barbara Jory and their 2 sons—Warren Ferguson and Kenneth Boyd.

Duke of Kent—Leroy Lake.

Duchess of Kent—Hester Gledhill.

Princess Alexandra — Janice Jones.

Princess Mary—Sharon Hill.

Ladies in Waiting—Joan Lester, Sandra Tilling, Tracey Reynolds, Sylvia Cookman, Karen White, Leslie Parnell.

Sir Winston Churchill—Bernice Montgomery, Lady Churchill—Sharon Whatley.

Premier of Ontario—(Hon. L. Frost) Dickie Garside. Mrs. Frost —Colleen Jarvis.

Mayor Waddell of Peterborough —Michael Vallans, Mrs. Waddell —Charmian Gledhill.

Archbishop of Canterbury — Billie Rowan.

Dean of Westminster—Bobby Gibson.

Five men who wait on the Archbishop and present gifts to the Queen — Garfield Wilson, Grant Weaver, Gregory Fenn, John Seifried, Donnie Heintzman.

When the Queen made her entrance in the Abbey, everyone sang, "God Save the Queen". She wore the cap and gown of estate. The procession was followed by the recognition in each of the four corners of the Abbey. Then the Queen took the oath after which she was clothed in a gold cloak by the Archbishop and Dean. This was followed by the anointing of oil when the Queen sat in St. Edward's chair under a canopy. The children sang, "Holy, Holy, Holy".

Gifts presented to the Queen were the spurs, symbolic of knighthood; the sword (war); ring (vow to the people); orb (king in Heaven); bracelets (queens); glove (bond of fellowship); sceptres (power and mercy). The crowns, orb, sceptres and bracelets were made by the pupils.

Then the Queen was crowned and sat in the crown chair while the Archbishop, the Duke of Edinburgh, Prince Charles, Princess Anne, Duke of Kent and Sir Winston Churchill paid homage to her. The platform for the chair was made by Mr. P. E. Seifried, one of the local fathers.

This was followed by the Communion. The prayer was offered by the Rev. G. S. Maxwell, pastor of Trinity United Church. After the Communion, the Queen retired. During the intermiession, Mr. C. Gledhill, father of two girls taking part, played in his usual, capable style.

The recessional was next, after which the Queen and royal family appeared on the balcony of Buckingham palace. This was the time for the guests to applaud heartily.

Lunch was served by the boys and girls. Miss Evelyn Bailey was in charge of the lunch. Miss C. Bailey moved a vote of thanks to all those who had assisted her. Mrs. R. Parnell moved a vote of thanks and appreciation on behalf of the mothers to Miss C. Bailey for the wonderful portrayal of the coronation, which must have taken many hours of planning, patience and practice. The pupils knew the true significance of the coronation by their solemn manner.

Lions' Ladies Club Buying Slides For Orphanages

Annual meeting of the Lions' Ladies' Club of Peterborough was held at the Empress Hotel Tuesday evening. Three lovely bouquets of lilac and tulips decorated the tables. Retiring president Mrs. Bill Dorrington expressed a hearty welcome. Following dinner a sing song was led by Mrs. Norman Hughes with Mrs. Bun Jackson at the piano.

Mrs. Walter Mortlock introduced the quest speaker, Mrs. Isobel Hughson, who spoke about Canadian handicrafts and brought along many samples of Canadian crafts. Mrs. Vert Reynolds thanked Mrs. Hughson for her interesting talk.

It was decided that the club would purchase two slides, one for the children at the Children's Shelter and one for St. Vincent's Orphanage.

The club picnic will be held in June at Holiday Haven, Bridgenorth. Many of the members will also be attending the meeting of the Bancroft Lionettes shortly.

After the annual reports had been read Mrs. Dorrington turned the meeting over to Mrs. Ron MacGee who presented the incoming president, Mrs. Bus Mitchell, with the gavel and installed the new executive, impressing upon them the importance of their positions in the club.

The new executive is as follows:

President, Mrs. Bus Mitchell; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Bud LaBranche; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Clarence Harloff; secretary, Mrs. Jack Smyth; treasurer, Mrs. Harvey Weidner; 2 year directors—Mrs. Vic Frederick, Mrs. Carmen Foster; 1 year directors— Mrs. Norm Hughes, Mrs. Charles Cumberland.

The booster prize was won by Mrs. Bill Bennett.

Take Beef Order

BRISBANE (Reuters)—The first cargo of chilled beef to leave Australia in 15 years is being shipped to the United States this week. The 10,160-ton freighter Jason sails from Brisbane with the beef, worth about $35,000 on the hoof, and 1,200 tons of frozen beef, rabbits and poultry.

Sea Cadets Praised For Show On Water, Parade Square

Sea cadets of the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps Howe put on a display of parade drill and seamanship that won the praise of inspecting officer Lt.-Commander G. J. Manson, RCN, deputy director of sea cadets, at the corps' annual inspection Tuesday night in the market square.

Lt. Commander Manson who also inspected the cadets last year recalled that the event was rained out and had to be conducted at the Armouries. Eyeing the puddles and drops of rain on his uniform Tuesday night he observed, "This year you just managed to get through it."

"I'd like to congratulate you on your performance under difficult conditions," he said.

He made particular mention of the division of smallest cadets, the Collingwood division, under Midshipman Gerald Willis, whom he said performed very well on the parade square considering their size. The Sea Cadet band also was singled out for particular mention. He praised their performance and their appearance.

"All things considered, you have done well," he said to all the cadets. He mentioned that summer camp offered an opportunity for cadets to increase their nautical knowledge.

STAY IN SCHOOL

The inspecting officer urged the young men who were considering joining the navy to stay in school as long as possible increasing their education. He said it was becoming increasingly difficult for men to join the navy because of higher standards and he added that the men with the best education stood the best chance of promotion.

Assisting him in the inspection was Lt. J. Jeffries (SB). Completing the inspection party was Commanding Officer of the corps, Lt. J. S. Gardiner. The Lieutenant Commander spent considerable time inspecting the cadets speaking briefly to most of them. He mentioned later that he asked them whether they were considering the navy as a career.

After inspection of the ranks, the corps marched past, led by the band, that went through several drills. The inspection then moved across George St. to the corps permanent quarters where training is carried out and the equipment is assembled for the work.

The inspection party went aboard the 35-foot cruiser, Bob-Anne, built by Lt. Gardiner. The cadets aboard were put through seamanship drills. Other drills were carried out with the corps' whaler and double-banked cutter.

Lt. Commander Manson said that in all his years of inspection of cadet corps this was the first time he had been able to carry out part of it afloat.

It is RCSCC Howe's boast that it is the only cadet corps in Canada with a waterfront.

B & PW Club Elects Slate for '53-'54

Annual meeting of the Peterborough Business and Professional Women's Club was held at the YWCA Monday at the dinner hour. Dinner arranged by the west end group was served at small tables decorated with lovely lilacs and tulips.

Following a short business meeting the election of officers took place and installation was by Mrs. Lyda Telford, past president. Officers for the coming year are:

President, Miss Alice Hardwicke (re-elected); 1st vice-president, Miss Margaret Battersby; 2nd vice-president, Miss Florence Hutchinson; recording secretary, Helen Lytle; corresponding secretary, Miss Viola Payton, archivist, Miss Luella Knapp. It was decided to hold a picnic on June 15th, place and time to be decided by the group in charge.

Group Studying City's Parks

The Study Group on Civic Affairs met Tuesday evening in the committee room at City Hall. Observers' reports of the May council meetings were read by Miss C. McCarthy and Mrs. H. Wells and for Board of Education by Mrs. W. E. Fanning. Discussion followed.

After Mrs. J. A. Normabell reported for the committee appointed to investigate park areas. Mrs. Jacob Low presented a very complete review of Dr. Faludi's plan for extending the park areas of the city and Miss McCarthy gave a brief account of plans proposed some 25 years ago.

It was announced that the June meeting will include a tour of the city parks and a picnic supper.

George St. B.B. Celebrate 17th Anniversary

The Baby Band Mothers of George St. United Church were organized 17 years ago and at the regular meeting Monday evening celebrated the anniversary of this occasion.

A brief history of the early meetings told how it was started by Mrs. W. H. Morton with the assistance of Mrs. C. M. Parr, Mrs. James Tinney, Mrs. H. E. Helson and Mrs. Chapman. The first member was Mrs. Alan Ingram.

Nearly all the past presidents were present and were introduced. They are Mrs. A. Fitzgerald, Mrs. D. Munro, Mrs. Ross Davidson, Mrs. W. H. Frise, Mrs. Ada Lavis, Mrs. S. E. Sutton, Mrs. M. Warrilow, Mrs. K. Anderson, Mrs. Robert Hutton, Mrs. S. J. Rowe and Mrs. Ray Parnell. The present president is Mrs. O. Mackie.

The tea table for this occasion featured an anniversary cake topped with 17 candles and the past presidents and charter members blew out the candles. Mrs. Morton then cut the cake and Mrs. Parnell poured the tea. Table arrangements were lovely with a hand-crocheted cloth centred by a basket of tulips and flanked with white tapers.

Mrs. Gordon Mullen's group served the delicious refreshments which included individual cup cakes, each bearing a birthday candle. About 65 members and guests were present.

Guest speaker of the evening was Miss Isabel Connelly who gave an inspiring message on "Spiritual training of the child." She took as an example children of the Bible and how their home life affected their adult life for good and bad.

Soloist Mrs. Nelson Foster chose "Beside Still Waters" and "End of A Perfect Day" as her numbers. She was accompanied by Mrs. Frances Turner.

Opening devotions were led by Mrs. H. Cockerill. Scripture was read by Mrs. D. Metherl and Mrs. A. Clysdale led in prayer.

Mrs. Mackie conducted the business. Very satisfactory proceeds of the bake sale held Saturday at the market hall were reported. Articles made for the bale to be shipped this month were received and new materials for layettes for Korea were distributed to be worked on during the summer. It was arranged to supply extra layette articles on hand to a needy local family.

Final arrangements for the child- [illegible] made by the convener Mrs. [illegible] be at Nicholls Oval on June 9. Conveners for the annual Chrysanthemum tea October 7 are to be Mrs. Gordon Mullen, Mrs. Ray Parnell and Mrs. Donald Douglas.

Russia Reports Executing Spies Sent By US

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet government charged the United States today with parachuting four spies, all apparently of Ukrainian or Russian origin, into the Ukraine a month ago. A communique said the four had been arrested, tried and executed.

The announcement from the ministry of internal affairs said the four admitted they jumped into the Ukraine, one of the republics of the Soviet Union, April 26 from an unmarked American plane.

It said they confessed they were sent in on diversionist, terrorist and espionage assignments.

The communique said the men claimed the American intelligence service had ordered them to settle in Kieve and Odessa and had equipped them with radios for making contact with American spy centres in West Germany. It said they were ordered to murder Soviet citizens, if necessary, in order to obtain identification certificates to replace forged papers they carried when they jumped.

MEN EXECUTED

The men, executed by a firing squad, were identified as Alexander Lakhno, Alexander Makov, Sergi Gurbonov and Dmitri Remigi.

The communique charged they collaborated with German invaders during the Second World War and had fled to Western Germany before advancing Red armies. Arriving there, it said, the four were enrolled at a "special espionage-diversionist school of the American intelligence" near Munich.

Hospital Shows Profit In April

LINDSAY— (ENS) — The Ross Memorial hospital financial statement for April shows for the first time this year, a profit of $1,200 on operations. The deficits for the months of 1953 amount to $10,000.

The largest single item of expense over the four months period, compared with 1952 figures, is salaries, which jumped from $31,000 in 1952 to $54,000 in 1953.

Another meeting of the enlargement committee of the hospital is to be held tonight and representatives of organizations in Lindsay, Victoria, Haliburton and Ontario counties are expected to bring back their reports on what type of hospital their groups desire.

At present, the hospital is a trust institution administered by an appointed Board of Governors self-sustaining.

The Lindsay Rotary Club has instructed its representative to urge formation of a civic hospital handing the responsibility both for capital and current expenditures over to Victoria County and Lindsay councils.

Royal Arch Degree Conferred On Two

P V. Nicholson and William Torrance of Peterborough, two new members of the J. W. Bell Memorial Loyal Orange Lodge 1175 were conferred with the Royal Arch Degree Monday night at their monthly meeting.

Also present at the meeting was the newly elected Grand Master of Ontario East, R. Sanderson. Other lodge officers present were: R.W. Brother H. A Graham, PGM, field secretary and R.W. Brother Morgan Brown, Grand Lecturer of Peterborough; and another new member was received into the lodge by transfer. A large number of visitors represented a wide area of the county.

Baseball Great Jesse Burkett Dies

WORCESTER, Mass. (CP) — Jesse Burkett, 82, one of baseball's all-time greats, died today.

Elected to baseball's Hall of Fame in 1946, he was one of three players to bat more than .400 in three seasons. Others were Rogers Hornsby and Ty Cobb.

He played with Cleveland, the St. Louis Browns and retired in 1905 with Boston Americans.

Arrest Ex-Senator

HAVANA (AP)—Police arrested a former Senator Tuesday night at the end of a television program on which he said only by "utilizing arms" could Cubans oust the regime of President Fulgencio Batista. The former senator and Cuervo Navarro, made the statement on "before the press," a program during which a panel of newspaper men fire questions at guests.

Savoie-King Fight For Two Titles

TORONTO (CP) — Promoter Frank Tunney announced today that the Armand Savoie-Arthur King fight here June 8 will be for the British Empire and Canadian lightweight titles.

King, Toronto-born battler who has been fighting out of Philadelphia the last few years, holds the Empire title and Montreal-born Savoie is reigning Canadian champion.

French Troops Abandon Important Post

HANOI, Indo-China (CP) — French Union troops today pulled out of Yen Vi, a key post guarding one of the main entrances to the Red river delta, 25 miles south of Hanoi.

The only immediate explanation for the withdrawal from one of the string of hundreds of such reinforced concrete posts guarding the access to the delta was that the French intended to hold the defence line on the left bank of the Day river.

Yen Vi was heavily attacked a week ago by the Communist-led Vietminh troops on the right bank of the stream. The French repulsed the assaults.

FOLLOW PLAN

A French Army spokesman said today that the evacuation had been decided upon by Gen. Rene Cogni, commander in north Vietnam, not under enemy pressure but following a tactical plan. The evacuation began Tuesday night and was continuing today.

The French long have claimed as impregnable the series of reinforced concrete forts built up to protect the delta which is the key to the victory in Indo-China.

Yen Vi is the first to be given up.

Seven Soldiers On Casualty List

OTTAWA (CP)—A Korean casualty list today included two men missing in action, believed wounded and captured, and five men missing, believed captured. The last list was issued May 23.

The army list brought to 1,416 total casualties so far suffered by Canadian troops in Korea, including 279 dead, 1,007 wounded, 25 missing, 87 injured and 18 captured.

In addition, the navy has reported three dead and three injured in action and the air force one missing.

The list (No. 188):

Missing in action, believed wounded and prisoners

Deveau, Alvin, L.Cpl.; Royal 22nd; Cedar Lake, N. S.

Dufour, Jean, Pte., Royal 22nd; Rimouski, Que.

Missing in action, believed prisoners

Transport Crashes

AUCKLAND, N. Z. (AP)—Group Capt. R. Webb, commanding officer of the air force base at Whenuapai, near Auckland, and four other airmen were killed today when their Royal New Zealand Air Force Bristol transport crashed in hilly country near Blenheim.

Plans 'Borrowed'

GOETTINGEN, Germany (AP)—Professor Kurt Tank, noted German aircraft designer, said Tuesday Russia's MiG-15 jet fighters "very probably" were built according to plans he completed for the German Air Force at the end of the Second World War. Tank, who designed some of the Luftwaffe's best fighter planes, said the plans apparently were seized by the Russians when they took Berlin

Tanker Breaking Up

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—A Shell Mexican Oil tanker snapped its moorings in a violent wind and rain storm at Valparaiso port and was reported breaking up today on rocks offshore. Shell Mexicana is a subsidiary of the British Shell Oil Company.

High School Holds Yearly Inspection In Norwood

The annual Cadet inspection of the Norwood District High School No. 40 was held Thursday afternoon. Led by the school pipe band, the battalion formed in front of the school and marched to the school grounds for the march-past and inspection which was carried out by Major Wilson. The marking officer was Lt. Done.

In his speech after the inspection, Lt. Done praised the cadets for their steadyness on parade, also their excellent displays of: communications under Cadet Paxton; bren gun under Cadet Millet; map reading under Cadet Thompson; physical training under Cadet Major Stackhouse.

Lt. Done awarded cups to the best officer: Cadet Lt. L. Holdcroft; best NCO, CSM Glen Hubble. He also presented cups to the best cadets in the ranks. These were won by Cadet Glen Simpson and Cadet Bev Horne.

After the inspection, the battalion marched around the village led by CO Bob Wilson. They then returned to the school for refreshments.

Cooking School Director Stresses Meal Atmosphere

"If you have prepared tasty food, it should be served in a happy atmosphere in the home" was a point stressed by Mrs. L. Ballantyne, director of the cooking school which opened a three-night location in the city Tuesday. "Where lunches are prepared they should be tasty and show some originality" Mrs. Ballantyne added.

She has been giving housewives all over the country such advice and suggestions to go with it for the past five years and was here three years ago. She is sponsored in Peterborough this time by St. George's Anglican Church and the school is being held in the Collegiate auditorium each night till Thursday.

An economical salmon dish was prepared last night, followed by the introduction of the new angel food cake mix which contains the equivalent of one dozen egg whites.

Mrs. Ballantyne also described the new automatic washing machine which has the unique property of saving the first suds to be used over again. She also described the Inglis automatic dryer and used the cooking stove by the same maker.

A new, quick oat fruit bread was prepared and a large birthday cake was iced. The foods prepared as well as the dishes they were in were given as draw prizes.

More than 45 large bags filled to the brim with groceries are drawn for each evening and other valuable prizes include a mixmaster and a valuable set of knives.

At the Wednesday evening class Mrs. Ballantyne plans to make a special pork chop dinner, new and various rolls, a weiner dish, and she will prepare a large apple blossom cake using a white cake mix.

The Thursday program consists of pastry, including several kinds of tarts, a ham-pineapple treat, cheese rolls and other new culinary ideas.

Last evening's winner of the mixmaster was Mrs. J. Wesenburg of 220 Caddy St. and the knives were won by Mrs. Ray Jones.

Gilmour Church Is Dedicated

MARMORA (ENS). — The United Church congregation of Gilmour in North Hastings on Sunday were joined by former members, relatives and friends from far and near in witnessing the dedicatory service of the first United Church in the village which is so picturesquely situated two miles east of Highway 62, north of Millbridge.

The church, commanding a fine view of the district, was built on the site occupied for years by the Public School. The school also served as the original place of worship. It overlooks the present attractive new school and has been constructed and furnished to constitute a beautiful house of God.

Long before the hour of service, the church was filled and the basement below, where there was seating accommodation provided for the overflow, was also crowded. Others heard the service in their cars from the loudspeakers set up. Milton C. Wright, pastor of the church, was absent owing to the hospitalization of Mrs. Wright, both of whom were, in course of the service, remembered in prayer.

Rev. K. J. Crawford, BA, BD, of Marmora, supervising pastor, took the duties which had been allotted to the resident pastor in addition to his own. Excellent taste was shown in the floral decorations and a strong choir led in the praises of the afternoon. Rev. K. J. Crawford took the opening portion, and Rev. J. F. Lane of Madoc, convener of Home Missions for Belleville Presbytery, led in responsive reading of Psalm 84. He also assisted Rev. J. I. Mackay, DD, superintendent of the Board of Home Missions, in the dedicatory part of the service. Mrs. Mel. Johnson, a former member of the congregation, as soloist, rendered "Bless This House," accompanied by the organist, Miss Jo-Anne Jenkins.

Rev. Duncan McTavish of Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, convener of the Church Extension Committee of the Belleville Presbytery, gave an address on the meaning of the church, speaking first of it as a building and next as a society of individuals banded together for the worship and serivce of God. He presented the congregation with a gift of $500 on behalf of the Extension Committee.

A very arresting sermon was preached by Dr. Mackay, who asked his hearers to look into their hearts as to their purpose in following the Christ who declared before Pilate: "To this end was I born and for this cause came I into the world."

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. K. J. Crawford.

On Monday evening, to further swell the building fund of the church, the WA served a turkey dinner in the basement.

LAST FREED POW IS HOME—Air Force Capt. Zachary W. Dean, last of the former prisoners of war freed in Korea to arrive in the U.S., stands with his wife, Abagail, after landing at Travis Air Force Base, Calif. "I've had enough of Korea for this war," he said.

Young People Appeal For Camp Funds

OMEMEE (ENS)—The Sunday morning congregation of Trinity United church heard about Quin-Mo-Lac United Church camp from seven interested young people of the Omemee-Bethel charge.

Bill Weir of the Quin-Mo-Lac board told hew, with the sanction of the Bay of Quinte conference, the 300-acre camp site on Moira Lake had been purchased and put under the management of nine directors.

With its one mile lakefront and a beautiful sandy beach, it is believed to be one of the best camp locations in Canada.

Already there are seven cabins, a dining room to accommodate 200, a well-equipped kitchen, a work shop and 10 acres of levelled playground. Water is obtained from springs, hydro and telephone have been installed and a caretaker is to live on the grounds. The young people of Omemee and Bethel built the first cottage.

GIVE FREE LABOR

Altogether, Mr. Weir said 600 days of free labor had been given by young people's groups. With money received from private subscriptions and borrowed money, the work had gone on until the value of the camp is estimated at $35,000. The laymen of the conference have undertaken to remove the $11,000 debt. The young people of Lindsay Presbytery are assisting by speaking in various churches. Nine from this charge have been doing a large share of this.

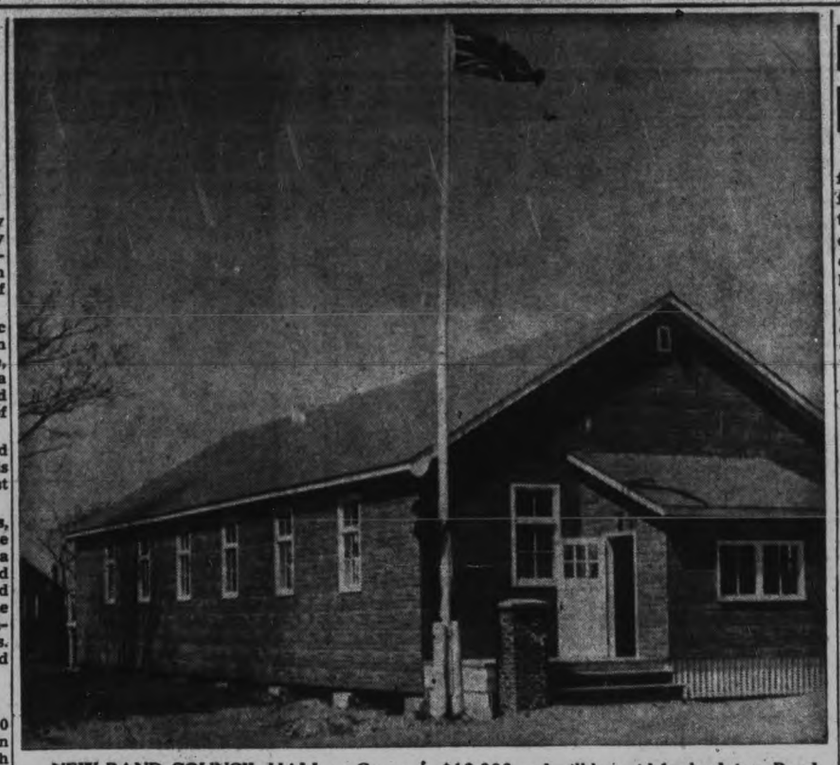
Dean Wellman, past president of Lindsay Presbytery YPU, spoke of what camp life had meant to him and of the far-reaching results of fellowship which had begun there. Mrs. Wellman told how at the age of 11, she had attended her first CGIT camp. At 16 she had gone to the Young People's camp at Oak Lake and remained for leadership camp to which she returned six years in succession. She had qualified to give leadership in CGIT camps and various church activities. Many of the campers of those days held responsible offices in the church today.

Don Raffan and Wilfred Moncrief are young men who, as a result of camp experience, have decided to study for the ministry. Don has been recommended by his church for the United Church ministry and Wilfred proposes serving in the Presbyterian church.

Marion Zufelt, who also intends to give full time service to the work of the church, said in camp the atmosphere was Christian love and all activities were on a Christian level. Young people, felt free to discuss their spiritual problems there and some had been inspired to offer their first real prayer.

Garnet Pogue, president of Omemee YPU and of Lindsay Presbytery YPU also testified to the fellowship and spiritual benefits he had derived from courses taken at camp.

The group presented their appeal again in Bethel United Church in the afternoon.



Sees Moderate Wage Demands

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A trend towards more moderate wage demands likely will see a more stable price structure in the construction industry throughout Canada this year, Don Chutter, manager of the Canadian Construction Association, predicted Tuesday.

The management committee of the association comprising some 50 leaders in the industry from Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal, Hamilton and Windsor, was meeting here for its regular business session.

Speaking on recent wage developments Mr. Chutter said costs in the construction industry this year will probably be more stable than any time since 1946 when price controls were removed.

"Wage demands this year are lower than in 1952 and construction costs generally have remained firm since last year," he said.

NEW BAND COUNCIL HALL at Curve Lake Indian reservation was completed and two monthly councils have already been held in it; the official opening is expected to take place about August 26. The new building, erected by native labour, cost approximately $12,000 and will be paid for back into Band funds at the rate of $800 per year. One of the finest buildings of its kind in Canada, officials say, it has hardwood floor, ample stage, canteen and propane gas heating units. It measures 32 by 70 feet and is covered with insul brick.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

HAVELOCK (ENS)—The Rush Point Community Devotional and Handicraft Club met on Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Edward Keating. The call to worship was given by the president, Miss Helen Cook, with Miss Joan McGowan reading the scripture lesson. A solo, "Have You Counted the Cost," was sung by Mrs. Garfield Newton, with Miss Joan Seeney at the piano. A poem was read by Miss Marie Newton. The interpreattion of the painting "The Presence" was given by Miss Beverley Anderson. Prayer was offered by Miss Dorothy Cook.

It was announced that Nelson Hutchinson, of Albert College, would arrive on June 3 to take charge of the Belmont Lake Area Mission for the summer months.

Miss Dorothy Cook was appointed as assistant secretary.

During the handicraft period, a bazaar to be held in the near future was considered and some articles for sale were on display. An auotograph quilt is under way, the money realized to be used for a new roof on the dining hall of the Rush Point Church.

The men in attendance at the meeting enjoyed crokinole and checkers. Lunch was served.

The next meeting was set for June 5 at the home of Mrs. Archie Menzies.

Hereford Sale Lists 50 Head

Twenty-two breeders of Hereford cattle have listed 50 head for their fifth annual eastern Ontario show and sale at Peterborough exhibition grounds Saturday, May 30, beginning at 12.30 p.m.

The committee in charge of this sale sifted the offerings more carefully than ever, and screened out animals that did not conform with the approved type.

Homer Hawkey of Indian River, president of the Eastern Ontario Hereford Breeders, said to the Examiner: "That is the only way to establish a sale, and we have had fine support from our members. We know that the consigned animals are the best we have ever offered. So, we've done our part, and we feel confident the public will agree with us."

Vice-president is Charles Fisher of Bailieboro, Wm. Mood of Birdsall's is secretary, and the directors: Allan Linton, Cobourg; Dave Kerr, Peterborough; Mervin Cochrane, Archie Clysdale, Harold Elmhirst.

The consignors to this auction are: Lloyd J. Ashmore, Lindsay; J. D. Atkinson, Roseneath; F. E. Birdsall; Milton W. Cornish, Norwood; W. E. Covert, Warkworth; H. Elmhirst, Keene; M. Edwards, Lakefield.

Russ Meeting Not Likely U.S. Indicates

Eisenhower Disagrees With Taft Proposal, Widest Division Yet

WASHINGTON (CP)— President Eisenhower told a press conference today the forthcoming Big Three meeting in Bermuda will not necessarily lead to a Big Four session with Russia.

Developments would have to justify a conference with Soviet leaders, he said.

Eisenhower, Prime Minister Churchill and the French premier plan to meet in Bermuda next month to discuss world conditions. Churchill has said he hopes it will be followed by a top-level meeting with Soviet representatives on East-West tensions.

Eisenhower said the conference may have to be delayed as a result of the difficulties France is having in finding a government to replace the one headed by Rene Mayer which was ousted last Thursday. The conference was expected to be held about June 17.

Replying to another question, Eisenhower said he disagrees with the statement of Senator Robert Taft that the United States "might as well forget the United Nations as far as the Korean war is concerned."

WIDEST DIVERGENCE

Eisenhower's declaration that he disagrees with Taft was the widest divergence of opinion that has developed between the president and the Senate Republican leader since the new administration took office.

Eisenhower, after replying with a single negative to the question, said he wanted to explain his position a bit.

U.S. State Department Confirms Evidence 2 British-Owned Ships Carried Red Troops

WASHINGTON (AP) — The state department confirmed today it has evidence that two ships owned or operated by British Hong Kong firms transported Chinese Communist troops along the China coast during the Korean war.

It named them as the Perico, registered by Wallem and Co. Ltd., and the Miramar, then owned by Wheelock Marden and Co.

The report was made public at a press conference by Senator Karl Mundt, (Rep. S.D.), acting chairman of the Senate investigations sub-committee which had requested it

Mundt said the report leaves "the next step up to the British now." He said it answers their contention that prior testimony concerning the ship incidents was too vague.

The state department report was addressed to the sub-committee chairman, Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.).

Leaving Washington on an investigative mission, McCarthy left release of the report to Mundt.

Robert Kennedy, a sub-committee investigator, testified publicly last week that at least one ship operated by Wheelock Marden, which he described as British-owned, carried Communist Chinese troops along the coast in 1952. The company promptly issued a denial.

Chinese Stage Big Attack Throw 11,000 Men Against Several Fronts

SEOUL (AP)—The Chinese Reds sent 4,500 troops smashing into Allied outposts near Panmunjom tonight after 6,500 Communists seized hills in central Korea. In one of the biggest attacks of the year, the Reds struck behind thunderous artillery fire in the west, hitting outposts Vegas, Carson, Elko, East Berlin, Berlin and the Hook. The Hook and Vegas, two of the most bitterly fought-over hills in the west, took the brunt of the attack.

The Hook, one of the major positions guarding the invasion route to Seoul from the northwest, was hit by three Red battalions—nearly 2,000 men—in three assaults. The main blow was parried but fighting still was going on.

SKIES LIT CONTINUALLY

An officer said the skies over the Hook were lit continually by the fierce artillery barrages.

The attacks began about 8 p. m. Thursday. By midnight the Chinese had overrun one outpost position in front of the Hook.

The chief Red thursts against the main positions were repulsed in hand-to-hand fighting.

Allied soldiers on Vegas counter-attacked before midnight and were fighting with Chinese soldiers who had swarmed into the trenches on one finger of the hill.

The Reds apparently were ready to throw even more men into the swaying struggle.

FIGHTING ON CENTRAL FRONT

Heavy fighting also was in progress on the central front, where early Thursday 6,500 Chinese seized five outposts along a 20-mile sector, and were battling South Koreans for four more. The South Koreans had beaten the Reds back from five other outposts.

The Chinese swarmed across no-man's-land in the wake of a roaring artillery barrage which sent an estimated 10,000 shells screaming into Allied territory.

TWO POSSIBILITIES

"It could have been a limited offensive action to take outposts," an eighth army briefing officer said, "or it could have been a large-scale harassing action.

Allied fighter-bombers streaked across the battle front to bomb and strafe attacking Red troops and Communist artillery and mortar positions.

Other fighter-bombers pounded Red supply centres northwest of Yonan and north of Sinchon in western Korea, the air force said. Pilots reported 13 buildings destroyed.

Sabre jets prowled North Korean skies without finding a Communist MiG willing to fight.

Fourteen B-29 Superforts dumped 140 tons of bombs on three storage areas near Wonsan on Korea's east coast Wednesday night.

South Koreans Charge Sellout

SEOUL (AP) — Bristling with charges of Allied appeasement and sellout in Korea, the South Korean government today spelled out its opposition to the latest Allied truce proposal in a note to the United Nations command.

Maj.-Gen. Choi Duk Shin, South Korean truce delegate, left Seoul late today to deliver the message to Lt.-Gen. William K. Harrison, senior Allied negotiator, at Munsan.

Contents of the note were not made public. But a Republic of Korea spokesman described it as "very important." He said it gave detailed expression of the RoK government's recommendations, but was in no way an ultimatum.

Choi's trip emphasized an increasingly - thunderous drumfire of opposition from leaders of this war-battered republic.

South Korea's foreign minister, Pyun Yung Tai, threatened to resign if his government approved the still-secret Allied proposal for breaking the prisoner-of-war deadlock submitted to the Reds Monday.

Referring to two Red satellites—Poland and Czechoslovakia—nominated for a five-nation commission to handle prisoners who refuse to go home, Pyun said:

"Our country will fight troops from such countries."

Reds Strip E. Germany Of Supplies

New Crackdown Frightens Citizens Cupboard Grows Bare

BERLIN (AP)—The Russians are stripping East Germany bare, in a new kind of scorched-earth policy that has started serious speculation in Allied circles.

Soviet zone Germans who have fled to West Berlin report:

1. The Red army has sharply increased its requisition requirements for food, without increasing the size of its forces.

2. Russian experts have been placed in strategic German industries to expand deliveries of output to the Soviet Union.

3. State ration-free stores are selling only what's on the shelves and are receiving no new shipments.

The air of poverty has frightened the East German population anew. After weeks of slowing down, the flow of refugees to the West has suddenly leaped into big figures again. Four thousand showed up in West Berlin Wednesday. Almost 5,000 came across the border last week-end.

Official Allied quarters contend that East Germany produces enough food to feed its population well and can also take care of the 300,000-man Red army, which it has been feeding in style since 1945.

The purpose of the new Soviet food and materials seizures is not clear. Allied experts surmise that the Soviet powers may be clearing the decks for a quick move in some political direction.

3 Trenton Planes Seek Civil Servant

STONECLIFF, Ont. (CP) — Three RCAF planes from Trenton and two helicopters continued the search today for James F. Russell, 47, an Ottawa civil servant missing in dense bush north of here since Monday.

Russell, a member of the Aberford Fish and Game Club, left the club's lodge on the Quebec side of the Ottawa river Sunday with Morris Honeywell of Ottawa.

Honeywell stumbled out of the bush alone Monday, having become separated from Russell.

Stonecliff is 70 miles east of North Bay on the Ottawa river.

Hear Two Attempts On Everest Failure

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP)—Reliable reports reaching here today said the British Everest expedition failed in two attempts to reach the top of Mount Everest, the world's highest peak. No man ever has scaled it and returned to tell about it.

The expedition now is returning from the Himalayan giant, with plans to make another try after the monsoon season.

Semyenov Becomes Civilian Boss, Like Ambassador

BERLIN (AP)—Russia took its control over East Germany out of the hands of the military today. It could mean withdrawal of troops, eventually. The announcement said the Soviet control commission is abolished, Gen. Vassily Chuikov will handle only troops henceforth, and Vladimir Semyenov returns to Berlin as "supreme commissar" for the Soviet Union. Semyenov thus becomes civilian boss of affairs for 18,000,000 East Germans. He served here before as political adviser to Chuikov.

Gen. Chuikov, hero of Stalingrad and lifter of the Berlin blockade, undoubtedly will not remain here long merely to direct 300,000 occupation troops. It might be, Allied sources said, that his last job in Germany will be to "take Ivan home."

Western circles heard last February that the Russians had fixed June 1 as a target date to withdraw troops.

SEEMS IMITATION

The selection of Semyenov to be top man in East Germany is in some respects an imitation of the Western powers who have chosen "ambassadors" to West Germany.

As soon as the European defence treaties are ratified by all six participating nations, the British, American and French high commissioners will be "ambassadors" to what amounts to a sovereign state.

The Russian action was regarded here as matching that of the West. It could mean that Moscow is convinced the European treaties will be ratified by all, including reluctant France, and therefore it must be ready to recognize the Russian zone of Germany as an autonomous state, too. In so doing, it would be virtually necessary to withdraw the 300,000-man Red army which has lived off the fat of East Germany since 1945.

DECREE ABOLITION

The announcement said the Soviet council of ministers (cabinet) had "decreed the abolition of the Soviet control commission in Germany and the freeing of the supreme commander of Soviet troops from performing duties of control in the German democratic republic."

The Soviet commander's activities in the future will be "limited to the command of Soviet troops in Germany," the broadcast said.

It added:

"The U. S. S. R. council of ministers has decreed that a post of supreme commissar of the U. S.

Safest Place In Parade At Coronation

LONDON (CP)—At least 1,221 Canadians stand a reasonably good chance of surviving the mammoth jam on the day of Coronation. They're in the show, the safest place to be.

Of this number, 461 are in the parade, 336 will help line the parade route, 24 Sabre pilots will take part in the all-jet flypast, and 400 will see the crowning in Westminster Abbey. The 400 in the abbey represent practically every group in Canada, from political parties to trade unions.

Only 11 Canadians will be in the procession from Buckingham Palace to the abbey. Prime Minister and Mrs. St. Laurent will ride in a carriage drawn by two horses. They will have an escort of four mounted RCMP.

Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, aide-de-camp to the Queen, will ride on horseback in the Queen's procession, one of the 10 components of the entire parade. Gen. Crerar has been practising horseback riding for months and his RCMP teacher says he's a crackerjack.

CLOSEST TO COACH

The four Canadians who will be closest to the Queen's state coach are members of the Queen's escort of officers from the Commonwealth contingents.

They are Lt.-Col. E. G. Brooks, Montreal; Maj J. S. Orton, Ottawa and Vancouver; Lieut. H. E. Pepler, Oakville, Ont.; and Lieut. H. McLellan, Sarnia, Ont. The spare, in case of sickness or accident, is Lieut. B. R. Foster, Assiniboia, Sask.

Gen. Crerar is at the three-quarter mark in the Queen's procession. The four escorts, also on horseback, are near the tail-end, a mere eight units ahead of the state coach.

Taft Threat Terrible Blow To U.N. Pearson Fears

VANCOUVER (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson expressed concern Wednesday over the suggestion by Senator Robert Taft that the United States abandon the United Nations in Korean peace talks and conduct them on its own. "If this became U.S. policy it would be deplorable and a terrible blow to the UN," said Mr. Pearson.

Senator Taft, Senate Republican leader, said in a Cincinnati speech Tuesday: "We might as well forget the United Nations as far as the Korean war is concerned."

Mr. Pearson, UN general assembly president, in an address to 400 members of the Canadian Club here warned that the danger of world war would rapidly increase if there were any major splits in the western alliance.

Great efforts were being made to divide the democracies and to convince them there was no threat to their security.

He did not think it would be wise to press for a general Pacific security pact at this time.

The United States was not ready for it, he said, and other countries in the Pacific were reluctant too. Some were not convinced communism was the only danger in the Pacific.

"But," he emphasized, "security—like peace—is indivisible."

Bus Drivers Delay Strike

KITCHENER (CP)—The threatened strike by Kitchener public utilities commission bus drivers and maintainance men was delayed today pending negotiations between the commission and Local 304, Brotherhood of Railway Employees and Other Transport Workers (CIO-CCL).

The strike by 100 members of the local was set for 5 a. m. Friday. The main issue was the refusal by the commission to recognize the union. Employees were also seeking a 10-cent-an-hour wage increase.

Vernon Calkins, the union's regional representative, said today the strike will begin in several days if the PUC and the union fail to reach an agreement in their talks.

The Kitchener PUC bus and Trolley-bus system serves the twin cities of Kitchener and Waterloo, carrying an average of 35,000 passengers a day.

Chrysler Gives New Agreement

DETROIT (AP)—A new agreement with Chrysler Corp. has all but wrapped up the CIO United Auto Workers' drive for wage and pension improvement in the union's five-year contracts with the auto industry's big three producers.

After only nine hours of negotiations, Chrysler and the UAW came to terms Wednesday night on contract amendments matching the best granted within the last five days by General Motors and Ford.

Chrysler, as Ford did on Monday, went beyond the pace-setting General Motors terms of last Friday by boosting maximum pensions to $137.50 a month. The companies pay everything above primary social security benefits of $85 a month.

Details of the contract were opened recently and the award of the contract was recommended to cabinet by the transport department.

Improvements are virtually identical to those made by both GM and Ford.

Plan Airport At Timmins

OTTAWA (CP)—A contract is being awarded for construction of a transport department airport near Timmins, government officials said today.

The field, to be located about 10 miles north of Timmins, will be a 4,000-foot strip costing about $350,000.

It will be for commercial airline use, and it is expected Trans-Canada Air Lines will use it. TCA now lands at Porquis Junction, 40 miles from Timmins.

Officials said tenders for the contract were opened recently and the award of the contract was recommended to cabinet by the transport department.

More Canadian Smuggling

U.S. Customs Lacks Manpower To Crack Down

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—The United States bureau of customs says it hasn't the manpower to send additional men to the northern New York border to crack down on Canadian smuggling.

The Syracuse Post-Standard, in a special story Wednesday from Washington, quotes a spokesman for the bureau of customs as stating that if additional manpower were available, the Mexican border would take priority over the Canadian. The spokesman was not identified.

"But cuts in congressional appropriations for the bureau make it impossible to add new agents to combat the situation," the spokesman was quoted as saying

The statement appeared in connection with a series of stories the newspaper is running about an increase in smuggling on the northern New York-Canadian border.

Gold smuggling, the newspaper says, amounts to about $3,500,000 a year, most of it stolen from mines in Ontario and shipped through the U. S. to foreign ports where higher prices are paid

"The gold smuggling is mainly the problem of Canada, and not our concern," the Washington customs official was quoted.

"The customs bureau is more worried about the illegal export of gold from the U. S., than about the import of the contraband."

The Post-Standard said that abolition of the U. S. border patrol in 1947, and lack of personnel, has resulted in a sharp increase in illicit trade across the U. S.-Canadian boundary.

The newspaper has not disclosed its sources by name, but has stated that all information has been obtained from official sources in the United States and Canada.

St. Laurent Makes Palace Courtesy Call

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent of Canada today made courtesy calls at Buckingham Palace and Clarence House. In diplomatic language, these are known as "signing the book" visits.

The prime minister also recorded a broadcast and made ready to attend the first royal garden party of the season. Tonight he plans to attend a dinner at the residence of Norman Robertson, Canadian high commissioner, for members of the Canadian Coronation delegation.

Three Children Die In Blaze

LA SARRE, Que. (CP)—Three children were burned to death Wednesday in a fire which destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Georges Maltais of Val Paradis, about 20 miles north of here. La Sarre is in northwestern Quebec, near the Quebec-Ontario boundary.

The victims were aged 2, 3 and 4. They were not immediately identified.

Mrs. Maltais and nine other children escaped. Mr. Maltais was away at the time.

Collectivization Fails

Tito Courageously Changes Methods

(This is the ninth of a series of articles by I. Norman Smith of Ottawa, newspaperman, who is touring Europe. He is spending several weeks in Belgrade.)

DUBROVNIK, Yugoslavia, May 25—This is a story about Yugoslavia's agriculture. The ideologists and the planners have failed and the Government has had the courage to admit it and to abandon the compulsory system of co-operative farming.

In the first flush of the revolution the Communist Government in 1946 set out to create co-operative and collectivised farming. It did so because it was then in the Russian pattern and indeed under Russia. It did so also because 80 per cent of the population were on the land and virtually all of them were working such tiny parcels that they could not do it either efficiently or for any reward other than mere sustenance.

The Communist Government looked around and saw Denmark and other small nations getting the most from their land by co-operative work—and the law went forth that certain areas woud be "collectivized." It was to be only 20 per cent of the total agricultural area. What happened was that the peasants who went into the scheme were by and large those with the poorest farms. To belonging to church, capitalists, monarchists, and so on.

IT DIDN'T WORK

But it didn't work. Farmers didn't take to regimentation. The age old philosophy: "It's small but it's my own" still held. For several years the Government frowned on objections, with force. The Government wanted to persist in its effort to increase over-all production. Besides, collectivized farms had been one of the Communist banners, a path to glory. To admit failure of a Communist theory—the theory that most concerned most Yugoslavs—would weaken Communist prestige in all things. But the peasants were rising, production wasn't rising, and Tito called it off. He announced last Summer the scheme would be relaxed and now it is in the throes of change and dissolution—somewhat chaotically so.

For a whole day last week I visited co-operative farms in the very good farming district around Novi Sad, known as Voivodina, north of Belgrade. Farming here is not as in Canada. The farmers live in villages rather than in isolated farmhouses and they go out to the fields each day about [illegible] with their implements and [illegible] with them.

NOT NEW IDEA

The co-operative system hoped to modernize and pool machinery, regiment the working of the land according to ability and hours spent, pool and control marketing and profits. This isn't a new idea even to capitalist countries. Col. Kennedy, Ontario's agriculture minister, once declared "farms must become large for efficient utilization of machinery despite the reluctance of farmers to make such a change."

But somewhere the collectivization bogged down, probably where it minimized the individual's rights and put farmers' councils in charge. The leader of men, perhaps the Communist, was not necessarily the best farmer. But often he and others like him got control.

On the farms I was amazed at the frankness with which the government officer who accompanied me permitted the farmers to answer my questions. We spoke to some who wanted to get out of the collective and who were doing so, to others who were not certain yet, to others who said they had nothing to lose by staying in. It is said that by the time the crop is in this Fall every farmer will be [illegible] as I can find out, from resident diplomats and others, it can be a free choice. The Government's hope is that once offered the free choice many of the grumbling peasants "who never had it so good" will decide to remain in. And the Government is offering better conditions as a lure.

SUGGEST MIDDLE WAY

A further effort by the Government to persist in its beliefs in the efficacy of co-operative effort is to offer a modified type of co-operative wherein equipment is shared and certain marketing facilities. This may provide a middle way between the unproductive individual farm and the compulsory regimentation to which the peasants object.

Canadians would make a mistake to judge this solely as a Tito effort to attain an outright Communist state. It may have been that, and certainly Tito would like to see the Communist theory flourish in his agriculture as in

Royal Family Practises

Mounting Coronation Fever Grips London

LONDON (AP)—Queen Mother Elizabeth and Princess Margaret paused through cheering crowds around Westminster Abbey today and entered the gleaming interior to practise their brief moments in the pageantry of Tuesday's Coronation.

The Queen stayed at home in Buckingham Palace, getting ready to entertain 7,000 guests at a party in the palace gardens later today, her second big Coronation function.

The first took place Wednesday when she was entertained at lunch by Commonwealth representatives in Westminster Hall.

Several hundred Canadians will attend the garden party, led by Prime Minister St. Laurent.

The Queen Mother, Margaret and royal relatives today rehearsed their stately progress up the aisle of the grey old abbey, now transformed by hangings into a splendor of blue and gold.

That procession, shortly before the Queen arrives, will be the only moments when the spotlight rests briefly on the widowed mother and the Queen's younger sister. For the rest of the 2¼-hour ceremoney they will watch quietly from a royal box.

London firemen crept quietly through the abbey during today's rehearsal, checking miles of electric cable to guard against fire hazards.

[illegible] ped the capital. In the flag-bedecked streets for the sixth straight day crowds snarled traffic in central London, threatening to choke some of the city's main streets altogether. The size of the crowds, exceeding all expectations, gave the police one of their biggest traffic-control headaches in years.

But they had a bigger one worrying about Coronation Day. No one knows just how many will turn out to cheer the Queen then. Scotland Yard has issued a plea for public assistance in keeping the procession route open Tuesday.

Nearly all Britain's lesser royalty attended today's abbey practice, including the Duchess of Kent and her children, the young Duke of Kent, Prince Michael and Princess Alexandra.

Today's rehearsals culminated a series of practices in which participants of the elaborate ceremonial have rehearsed their roles as individuals or in small groups. Friday separate parts will be molded into one when all, including the Queen, will go through a full dress rehearsal of the entire service.

Shift TV Channels To Aid Smaller Centres

OTTAWA (CP)—The transport department has cut the number of available television channels in Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa in a move to provide channels for three smaller centres—Kingston and Kitchener in Ontario, and Sherbrooke, Que. The shuffle, annquced Wednesday by Transport Minister Chevrier, also involved Hamilton, which gained one channel and lost another. All the channels involved in the transfers were on the standard VHF (very high frequency) band. In effect, the changes gave a VHF channel to the three smaller centres, which formerly had only channels on the less-used UHF ultra high frequency band.

The transfers were: Channel 11 to Kingston from Ottawa; channel 11 to Hamilton from Toronto; channel 13 to Kitchener from Hamilton; and channel seven to Sherbrooke from Montreal.

"The only television stations now in operation in Canada are single stations in Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa, all operated by the publicly-owned CBC.

Mr. Chevrier's statement indicated the channel switches are designed to ease the establishment of privately-owned TV stations in Kingston, Kitchener and Sherbrooke. The CBC has not planned stations at those points.

ORIGINAL DISTRIBUTION

Under the original government distribution of TV channels, six channels were allocated to Montreal and five each to Toronto and Ottawa.

The minister's statement said these three cities would not suffer by the transfer of one channel from each.

"When the time will have come for additional coverage by private stations in Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa, if there are not sufficient channels in existence . . . I am confident that at that time it will be possible to obtain from the American authorities a further redistribution of channels."

MORE COVERAGE

The transfers were designed to provide television coverage for a greater number of localities, the statement said.

The channel moved from Hamilton to Kitchener was one for which the cabinet has already approved a licence to Niagara Television Ltd. However, a government official said Niagara Television likely will be assigned channel 11 which is being transferred from Toronto.

An application for a television station at Kitchener comes before the CBC board of governors at Ottawa today from Central Ontario Television Ltd. The firm has been seeking use of channel six, and its application has been opposed by radio interests in Toronto where the channel had been allocated.

Canadians Aid Guerrillas Fleeing Reds

OFF KOREA (CP)—The Canadian destroyer Athabaskan recently went to the aid of South Korean guerrillas and got her first blast of enemy fire in this tour of Korean operations for her troubles. But the South Korean patrol was saved and the Canadians suffered no casualties.

The ship is commanded by Capt. J. C. Reed, DSC, of Victoria and Toronto. The South Koreans had raided the mainland near Chodo Island, had captured two prisoners and were withdrawing with the Reds close on their trail.

They needed help to get free and their call brought immediate action from the Canadian warship, standing off Chodo Island.

SILENCE BATTERIES

The navigator, Lieut. James Clapton of Victoria, piloted the ship by radar through treacherous rocks and shoals off shore. As the beach came in range, the Athabaskan opened fire to suppress enemy mortars and troops and to provide a curtain of fire to prevent the raiding party from being harassed during the final stages of withdrawal.

After 40 rounds of four-inch shells the Communists withdrew to what seemed to be a secure position behind a hill, out of sight of the Athabaskan. The ship then shifted her fire to two gun emplacements, silencing them with 10 rounds each.

As the Athabaskan turned seaward she became the target for a concealed enemy shore-battery. But the range was too great. Five shells fell behind her.

Board To Hear Parties' Briefs

A three-man conciliation board will hear briefs presented by garage workers and by the company when the two parties meet with the board on Saturday morning in the Public Library.

Judge J. C. Anderson of Belleville is chairman of the board. The other two members are Donald Pyle, company nominee, and Herbert Orliffe, union nominee.

Issues include rates of pay, union security, hours of work and overtime. The garage workers are looking for settlement of their second annual contract.

Garages include Duffus, Gillespie, Deeth and White, Reuben Wilson, Williamson Bros., Gray, and Lillico.

The union, Local 234, Automotive Workers Union (CIO-CCL), are seeking a master agreement, though all the garages will sign separately.

United Church Praises AA

TORONTO (CP) — Magistrate Harold Groome of Tillsonburg said Wednesday that United Church people should take a tip from Alcoholics Anonymous in their fight against liquor.

He told laymen delegates to the Toronto conference of the United Church of Canada that AA is a miracle of the age.

"Every AA member, when called upon, is ready and willing to help another AA man. No case is hopeless. . . .The church must also be regarded as a hostel where everyone who needs help may get it."

Six-Week Strike Settled At Muncie

DETROIT (AP)—The six-week strike of 4,000 Warner Gear plant workers at Muncie, Ind., was settled today.

Representatives of the United Auto Workers (CIO) and Borg-Warner Corp. reached an agreement with the help of federal mediators. Warner Gear is a division of Borg-Warner.

Details of the agreement were not announced immediately.

The strike led to idleness of nearly 40,000 workers in independent automobile companies, among them Nash, Willys, Kaiser, Frazer and Studebaker.

Members of the Muncie local will vote on ratification of the agreement Monday.

Has Been Reminded In $300 Theft

CRYSTAL BEACH (CP)—Richard Price, 40, of Crystal Beach was convicted Wednesday of breaking, entering and theft of $300 worth of equipment from a garage May 14. He was remanded to June 9 for sentence.

Two others similarly charged, Cecil Larocque, 33, of Crystal Beach, and Thomas Rogers, 27, of Fort Erie, were acquitted. They will be tried on a charge of possession of stolen goods.

Fear Hog Cholera Epidemic Not Over

GUELPH (CP)—Thousands of pigs have been sold through the community sales where the cholera epidemic apparently had its beginning, livestock commissioner W.P. Watson said Wednesday.

He told a meeting of agricultural representatives it is "quite possible" that Ontario has not seen the last of the epidemic.

All sales are quarantined and probably will be for about three months after the last outbreak. Some hogs which may have been exposed to the disease have gone as far away as Quebec and are scattered throughout the province.

Some sources predict that restrictions will be in effect until the fall. At present, movement of hogs outside Ontario is banned from counties west of Hastings.

Slip On Exchange

TORONTO (CP) —Prices in all groups slipped an average of less than a point on the exchange's index in slow early afternoon trading on the stock market.

Volume for the first three hours was 1,226,000 shares—slowest in a week.

Heading the list of losers in industrials were papers, steels, liquors, banks, textiles and manufacturing companies. International Paper and Abitibi slipped a fraction.

A wide majority of Western Oils posted losses ranging to 25-cents for Anglo-Canadian and Federal Petroleum.

Junior golds traded lightly. East Malartic and Campbell led a trend to easier ground.

Uraniums and New Brunswick cooled off and moved at mixed prices. Anacon was busy as it rose 40-cents but International Nickel and Quebec Nickel took small losses.

16,000 Vote On New Contract

SUDBURY (CP)—Some 16,000 members of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) are voting today on the terms of a new contract tentatively reached in direct bargaining between the union and International Nickel Company.

The agreement calls for a five-cent-an-hour increase, a boost in process allowances for contract miners of from $1 to $1.60 a shift, an additional week's holidays for employees with 15 year's service, recognition of Coronation Day as a double-time holiday, improvements in medical insurance coverage, wage increases for employees due for reclassification in jobs and the strengthening of seniority and security clauses.

The new agreement would make the lowest rate for surface work $1.61 and process labor $1.64. Tradesmen's rates would run from $1.95 to $2.09 an hour. Underground workers would begin at $1.74 with regular rates running at $1.84.

Mendes-France Asked To Take Premiership

PARIS (CP)—President Vincent Auriol, still trying to end the crisis in French politics, today asked Pierre Mendes-France of the Radical Socialist party to try to form a government.

Mendes-France, a lawyer, is a deputy from the Eure district. His party has 75 members in Parliament and despite its name is conservative.

France has been without a government since the National Assembly ousted Premier Rene Mayer last Thursday, rejecting his demands for financial reform.

The Assembly this morning turned down former Premier Paul Reynaud's bold bid for the job after he had delivered an ultimatum to the effect that he would take it only on condition that constitutional changes be made to bring stability to the government.

Before Reynaud tried and failed to form a government, Socialist Guy Mollet and right-wing Conservative Andre Diethelm, a follower of Gen. Charles de Gaulle had declined to try.

CONDITIONAL ACCEPTANCE

Reynaud, 74, who was premier just before the surrender to Germany in 1940, put a big "if" on his acceptance of the job. He demanded that the Assembly modify the constitution to guarantee a premier 18 months in office. The postwar average has been four months.

The Socialists told Reynaud they were not disposed "to accord you these powers for 18 months, nor for 18 days, nor for 18 hours."

Reynaud proposed that the fall of a cabinet in its first 18 months in office be followed by the automatic dissolution of the Assembly and new elections. Reynaud said this would give France political stability.

Reynaud received 276 of the 314 votes he needed for confirmation. Most de Gaulle followers abstained and 235 deputies voted against him.

Other factors in his defeat were his support for the proposed European army and his gloomy picture of France's position. He called the country the "sick man of Europe."

Reynaud told the Assembly it must decide between a European army and an independent German army. He said he preferred the integrated European force.

ANSWERS QUESTIONS

Eisenhower also told the press conference:

1. He does not believe Red China should be admitted to the United Nations but it would be a drastic thing to withdraw U. S. [illegible] support from the UN if the Chinese Communist became members. Withdrawal of U. S. money had been suggested by a member of a Senate appropriations sub-committee.

2. International trade is a great influence in the hands of diplomats, and certain kinds of East-West trade, in his opinion, should continue. He added that while there have been instances where Communists have been helped by certain kinds of trade, there also have been instances when the free world has benefited. Eisenhower said this country would be foolish to refuse to trade at all with people it does not happen to like at the moment.

Humiliating Day

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—It was a humiliating day for the firemen of station No. 3. When the Atlanta fire fighters returned from putting out a small blaze Wednesday, they were confronted by triumphant colleagues from stations 1 and 8. The grinning interlopers had just extinguished a fire which gutted the locker room of station No. 3.

Club Exchanges Greetings With W. Virginia

In resognition of Canada and United States goodwill-week the Peterborough Kiwanis club exchanged greetings with the Kiwanis club of Logan, West Virginia for five minutes Thursday by telephone.

The Kiwanis club of Logan sang "God Save the Queen" over the phone in view of the coming Coronation. Both club presidents exchanged the good wishes of their respective clubs; and hoped that they would see one another at the coming Kiwanis convention in New York in June.

Jack Nichols, principal of Confederation Public School, showed a film dealing with the history on which the Coronation is based and with the coronation of the Queen in Westminster Abbey.

Afraid Of Police, Hid In Cruiser

Magistrate W. R. Philp today dismissed a charge of vagrancy against Raymond Marr, 22, 117 Aylmer St.

Police Sgt. Andre Dalton gave evidence that Marr was found hiding behind a bill-board at the CGE parking lot about 1 a.m., May 21. Sgt. Dalton said that when the police cruiser drove up Marr got into an open car and hid in front of the driver's seat.

When asked what he was doing, Marr said he was afraid of the police and didn't want to get caught.

Marr took the stand and said that he had been drinking at a hotel with some friends and had been with them until about 12:30. When the police saw him he was going to get something to eat.

"I'll dismiss the charge," the magistrate told the accused. "But, remember, under the circumstances, the officer had a right to ask you what you were doing on private property. You had no right to be on that parking lot."

Parcel Of Lambs Marketed In Canada

MONTREAL (CP)—A "parcel" of 50,000 lambs now is being marketed in Eastern Canada with a view to sampling the taste of Canadians for this type of meat, J. J. Evans, general manager of the New Zealand Meat Producers Board, said here Wednesday night.

En route to the United Kingdom [illegible] New Zealand hopes to earn dollars by shipping its products to North America. But, he said, every precaution is being taken that the lambs will be disposed of before Canadian lambs are placed on the market.

Third Attempt Works Cracks Theatre Safe

BRANTFORD (CP)—The third attempt in nine days to crack the safe of the Sunset drive-in theatre on Highway 53 not only blasted the safe but blew out the walls of the office and wrecked the interior.

The blast, said by police to have been one of the worst blast damages here in years, left burned and torn money scattered over the floor. It was not known how much money was stolen.

Fear Talk May Torpedo Big 3 Meet

New Proposals Seem To Suggest Change of Direction

WASHINGTON (AP)—Worried Allied diplomats wondered today whether the Republican administration may seriously consider radical changes in Far Eastern policies if Korean truce talks collapse.

Their concern arose from efforts to measure the ultimate impact on future decisions by President Eisenhower of ideas which Senate major leader Robert Taft put forth in a speech read for him at Cincinnati Tuesday night.

Taft said if armistice negotiations fail the U. S. should tell Britain and other Allies: "We are withdrawing from all further peace negotiations in Korea."

He also asserted the U. S. "might as well abandon any idea of working with the United Nations in the East and reserve to ourselves a completely free hand."

CHANGE OF DIRECTION

These and related proposals he made appeared to diplomats here to suggest a change of direction and a severing of ties between the U. S. and its Allies which the Eisenhower administration has so far generally observed and protected.

The proposals come from a powerful figure in the governing party and at a time when truce negotiations are in what may prove to be the showdown stage and the need for new decisions may be almost at hand.

Taft's speech found no endorsement from his colleagues on the Senate foreign relations committee who were willing to comment. One of them, Senator John Sparkman (Dem. Ala.) said it "may have torpedoed chances for a truce in Korea. . .And it may even have thrown a harpoon into the big three talks in Bermuda."

President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Churchill and the French premier are scheduled to meet in Bermuda next month.

Sparkman called the Taft speech "a diametrical contradiction" of Eisenhower's policy.

Two former Canadian governors-general will also be in the procession to the abbey, the Earl of Athlone in the carriage procession of princes and princesses of the blood royal and Field Marshal Earl Alexander, Britain's defence minister, in the Queen's procession.

The lord mayor of London, Sir Rupert de la Bere, gets the show on the road at 7.55 a. m. Following his procession will come the Speaker of the House of Commons, certain members of the Royal Family, and representatives of foreign countries, starting with Afghanistan and ending with Yugoslavia. Andrei Gromyko of Russia will arrive at the abbey just ahead of Gen. George Marshall of the United States.

FIRST TO LEAVE

The first carriage procession to leave Buckingham Palace—at 9.15 a. m. — will be that of the colonial rulers, including the six-foot, three-inch tall queen of Tonga and the sultans of Jehore, Lahej, Selangor and Zanzibar.

St. Laurent and his wife will be in the No. 2 coach of the second carriage procession, that of he Commonwealth prime ministers. They will be immediately behind the coach of Sir Winston and Lady Churchill. Prime Minister and Mrs. Menzies of Australia will follow the Canadian prime minister's coach and behind them will come the leaders of the other Commonwealth nations, New Zealand, South Africa, Pakistan, Ceylon and Northern Ireland, in that order.

The third carriage procession will be that of princes and princesses of the blood royal, the fourth that of the Queen Mother and the fifth that of Queen Elizabeth herself.

On the return to the palace after the Coronation, the order in each carriage procession will be reversed.

AFTER CROWNING

The Canadian Coronation contingent of navy, army, air force and RCMP doesn't get into the act until after the crowning, when the 13-mile parade begins back to the palace.

The procession will be so long that when the Queen's coach leaves the abbey, the head of the parade will be starting off from Marble Arch, halfway round the parade route.

The Canadians will probably jump off from somewhere in Piccadilly street. They will be in this order: 36 RCMP, three-man color party, bearing the colors of the three services, 121 RCAF, 205 army, 85 navy.

The Canadians follow the Australians and immediately precede the RAF.

The 336 troops — 91 RCAF, 202 army and 43 navy—who will help guard the parade route will be stationed in Cockspur street, just off Trafalgar Square and centering on Canada House.

U.S. Dollar At Discount

MONTREAL (CP)—The U. S. dollar was at a discount of 25-32 per cent in terms of Canadian funds at noon today. Wednesday's noon rate was 99 5-16 cents. Pound sterling $2.79¼, against $2.79¼.

Foils Rifling Of Alms Box

HAMILTON (CP) The Rev. W. H. Daw of Blessed Trinity Church arrived there in time to foil the rifling of an alms box Wednesday.

A youth obtained a key to the premises, on the pretext of looking for a lost knife. When the minister walked into the church the boy was hiding in the cloakroom.

After he ordered the boy out of the church the minister discovered the alms box had been removed from its place behind the front door. He found it later with several tools lying beside it.

Detectives today arrested Gary Walker, 16, and charged him with theft of the box. Walker pleaded guilty. A probation officer will have a talk with the lad.

Seek 4-Cent Raise At Oshawa Plant

OSHAWA (CP)—Officials of the United Auto Workers of America (CIO-CCL) said today the union will soon seek a supplementary pay increase of four cents an hour for workers at the General Motors plant here.

The officials denied reports that negotiations with the company had opened earlier this week. The union represents more than 9,000 employees whose average hourly wage now is $1.65.

4.30 P.M. The Queen reaches Buckingham Palace.

5:15 P.M. The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh, from Buckingham Palace balcony, witness aerial parade.

9 P.M. The Queen broadcasts to the Commonwealth.

Funeral Service Held For Drowned Boy, 4

Funeral services were held Wednesday at Nisbett's funeral home for Stephen Thirnbeck, four-year-old son of Mr and Mrs. Jack Thirnbeck, 638 Stormont St. The boy was drowned Monday night at Lock 22 north of Nassau. The Rev. Arnold Mathews, George St. United Church conducted the service.

A large number of friends and relations sent flowers to the funeral home and then attended the service.

Pallbearers were Walter Bucknell, William McKinley, Walter Fisher and Douglas McPhail. Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

Fumigate Baggage From Lands With F-M

MONTREAL (CP)—Immigration officials said today that each ship or plane carrying passengers from countries known to have foot-and-mouth disease among their cattle is being closely checked.

Passengers themselves are not detained but their baggage is fumigated.

"We cannot be too careful," said one official. "So far we have found no trace of the disease but it has been known to be carried on the clothing of people coming from infected zones."

Report 2 New Cases Of Hog Cholera

OTTAWA (CP)—The agriculture department today reported two new cases of hog cholera have been discovered in Waterloo county bringing to 22 the number of premises affected.

The disease, confined so far to eight counties, has resulted in the death or slaughtering of 1,086 hogs.

Employment And Pay Still Rising

The Ontario Bureau of Statistics and Research groups the counties of Durham, Ontario, Peterborough, Victoria and Northumberland for purposes of analysing economic trends. The two chief centres of employment in this district are Oshawa and Peterborough. It is to these cities, therefore, that its figures on employment and payrolls in leading manufacturing industries chiefly refer. The latest figures, as of March 1st last, show that both pay and employment are still increasing in this district.

* * *

Employment in the "Kawartha Region"—in its leading industries—was 232.1 per cent. above the average number employed in 1939—more than twice as many jobs. This figure for March 1st was 13.1 per cent. above the figure for March 1st, 1952. What about pay? The total payrolls of the leading industries in this district on March 1st were 688 per cent. above the payrolls in 1939—nearly seven times as great. This figure, incidentally, was also an increase over March 1st, 1952—24.1 points higher. The weekly wages and salaries paid by these industries as of last March averaged, for every worker, $65.83. This was an increase of $5.78 above the pay a year ago last March.

* * *

These figures compare well with Toronto, and the province as a whole. In fact, wages and employment in this district's chief industries were better than in Toronto, better than in the province generally. The metropolitan area's average weekly industrial wage was $61.97. (That area includes Toronto and York.) The Ontario weekly pay average was $62.36. As we have said, the Kawartha region average was $65.83—a figure based mainly on the wages and salaries in Peterborough and Oshawa industries. Total industrial payrolls in the metropolitan area were 540.4 per cent. higher than in 1939; in Ontario generally 545 per cent. higher; in the Kawartha region they were 688 per cent. higher than the 1939 average.

* * *

The figures show that this is a thriving industrial district, with better than average wages. The figures for Toronto and the province generally include a great variety of industries, some of them requiring little skilled labour and consequently paying lower wages. The proportion of specialized industries requiring many skilled workers in Peterborough and Oshawa is higher than in the Province as a whole. This is one explanation for the higher wage and salary rates in Peterborough. The figures for this district support what our good streets and homes tell: generally high standards of pay and living conditions among employees in our industries.

New And Better Stamps

Criticism of the new postage stamps showing the head of the Queen, has been so severe that the Post Office Department is planning a new set, to take their place.

We are pleased about this not only because it will improve our stamps (which are our daily ambassadors to every part of the world) but because it is a triumph for public opinion in a sphere in which Canadian public opinion has never been very powerful. We are, as a people, neglectful of appearances. We lack that characteristic of showmanship which, for instance, the British possess so markedly and which they are exercising to the full in the present Coronation celebrations. We are inclined to tolerate dowdiness in matters relating to our national life, and we are patient and resigned when other people for congratulation. We hope that in its future plans the Post Office Department will get a few Canadian artists who understand these matters to advise it.

Premier Macdonald Returned

The government of the able, popular Premier Angus L. Macdonald was returned with a clear and comfortable majority by Nova Scotia's electors. Half of all the voters cast their ballots for it, resulting in the election of twenty-two Liberals, seven more seats than the opposition parties together were able to secure. The Macdonald government's majority is less than it was in the last Nova Scotian legislature; the provincial Conservatives increased their representation from seven to thirteen.

As we have frequently remarked, provincial election results are neither an accurate nor reliable gauge of Federal electors' attitudes, the chief reason being, of course, that the Liberals of Nova Scotia or British Columbia or the Conservatives of Ontario or Quebec, or the CCF of Saskatchewan or New Brunswick, are not the same parties as their Federal counterparts. The smaller the electoral field the less magnetic are party names. In Nova Scotia, for instance, people voted on the good record of the Macdonald government, and for their popular premier. They did not vote Liberal because they approved of the St. Laurent government.

The victory of the Liberals in Nova Scotia is not a certain indication of victory for the Liberals in the coming Dominion elections. Nor is the six-seat gain of the Nova Scotian Conservatives a sign of growing approval across Canada for Mr. Drew and his party.

Entertaining The Visiting Firemen

Yesterday 750 Commonwealth statesmen and their wives were the guests of the Queen at a State Luncheon in Westminster Hall. These ladies and gentlemen are, literally, being entertained royally during their visit to the Coronation. But one aspect of their entertainment surprises us: they are to be taken to the theatre to see—what? The American musical show South Pacific!

Now let us make it clear at once that we have nothing against South Pacific. It is a good show, though not perhaps as good as its great publicity has persuaded the public that it is. But why should a group of Commonwealth statesmen who have gone to England for an occasion of tremendous Commonwealth importance be taken to see it, in preference to something more appropriate?

What, the reader may ask? Well, there are operas to be seen at Covent Garden, and there is the Sadler's Wells Ballet at the same great theatre. If the statesmen don't like opera or ballet, a most appropriate play would be The Young Elizabeth, which deals with the Queen's great ancestress and namesake; or, better still, there is Shakespeare's Henry VIII at the Old Vic, with a Canadian actor, Alexander Knox, in the role of Cardinal Wolsey. For statesmen, what better play than Shaw's The Apple Cart, now presented in London with Noel Coward in the lead, and an excellent cast? One of the great plays of English drama, Otway's Venice Preserved, is to be seen with England's finest actor, John Gielgud, at the head of a fine company. The Mermaid Theatre offers Shakespeare's As You Like It, a light comedy, if the statesmen are weary. Oscar Wilde's A Woman of No Importance is being presented with an all-star cast. Or, if a musical comedy is wanted, what better than The Two Bouquets, one of the most tuneful ever presented?

But no. For these Commonwealth statesmen it is to be a play with no possible Commonwealth association and of no great novelty or merit. Somebody has shown a pitiful lack of imagination in preparing the entertainment of the visiting firemen.

An Atomic Shell

The U.S.A. now has an atomic shell which can be fired accurately at targets fifteen or twenty miles distant. In reports on its trial these targets are always spoken of as "enemy troops," but surely we know better than that after the Second Great War. When and if the shell is used in war it will be fired at anybody, soldier or civilian who is unlucky enough to be within range, and it will cause terrible destruction.

The value of such a shell is obvious. It does not need to be dropped from the air, and therefore it can be used with greater accuracy than a bomb. The gun which fires it is as versatile and movable as any big gun; it can travel at 35 m.p.h. The shell itself is 12 inches in diameter and weighs a ton. In the hands of a brilliant commander this a wonderful piece of ordnance.

Atomic warfare has changed greatly since 1945. The U.S.A. now has several atomic weapons—big bombs, small bombs, guided missiles and shells. We all have some notion of the kind of destruction that these things cause. We must be optimistic indeed if we think human [illegible], while the plans for peace proceed spasmodically, the plans for war proceed with such tireless industry and deadly ingenuity.

NOTE AND COMMENT

"The Sacred Cow of Uniformity Should Be Sent to the Abattoir" says a headline in the Toronto Telegram. Why not send it to the pound, that famous Home of Lost Cowses?

The North Bay Nugget is in trouble with some Scots because in an article on the Royal Family it spoke of Balmoral Castle as being located in England! If the Scots cared more about architecture they might be happy to let England have it.

A Schoolboy In Paris

By NORA BELOFF

PARIS—especially Paris in the spring time—is eternally the tourists' delight. But it is less certain at what age in life the description "tourist" begins to apply.

The French, who are generally inclined to look upon children as under-developed adults, like to bring the family to the capital as early as possible: you can see parents with a packet of children, from five years up, doing the rounds of famous pictures, statues and buildings, and urging their progeny to memorise names, dates and places, and so to conceal their indecent intellectual nakedness as quickly as possible.

FOR BRITISH and American parents the primary purpose of a holiday is the pursuit of happiness; but even here for most people the high cost of a Paris trip would hardly be justified unless the child develops affection, respect and interest for the world's cultural capital. I have met parents who shudder at the memory of their first encounter with Paris; under the guidance of a schoolmaster or tutor, pacing down the galleries of the Louvre or marching in crocodile up the aisle of Notre Dame cathedral, listening to an endless lesson, and afterwards automatically linking up the capital city of France with Euclid's theorems, Virgil's epics, and Shakespeare's Macbeth, as work rather than pleasure.

But friends who recently brought over their schoolboy son from England, have convinced me that with a moderate amount of culture, appropriately administered between doses of ice-cream and broken up by thrilling expeditions in the Paris metro or in the open-air rear platforms of Paris buses, a tourist's career can profitably and pleasantly begin at eleven. Their son, John, has gone home now, but he has left behind, besides a baloon and odd items of underclothes, a lined exercise-book, in which he had pencilled a running commentary on "my trip to Paris".

THE NOTEBOOK opens with a salutory reminder to parents that holidays with children rarely go without hitches: John's first experience was a high temperature: "I took off my shirt," he records on the day of his arrival, "and found I was spotted as a giraffe. It didn't take long to discover I had German measles. I've had all the rest not counting small pox . . ." Within two days he was bouncing out, paying his first visit to the Tuileries Gardens, the Champs Elysees and the Arce de Triomphe. Then to the Orangerie, where his mother went to see her favourite French inpressionist picture. "I liked some of the pictures. Others I did not," writes John. "Some were extraordinary, a lemon ! ! ! A naked lady with two gentlemen in city clothes having a picnic ! ! A beef-steak! ! " (the punctuation is his own.)

Next came the visit to the Invalides and Napoleon's tomb: "It was a magnificent affair," says John, "made of marble. There were tombs of Joseph Napoleon, King of Spain, Vauban the architect, Marshal Foch of military fame, Bertrand and Turenne and the heart of the Compte (sic) de Tours was in a vase." Later, Notre Dame, where John loved the rose windows and considered "the grimness of the wall" was "rather impressive". He wonders how they got them up "without cranes, cars or lorries".

THE VISIT to the Luxembourg gardens and palace evoked an appraising comment for the boats on the pond. Then came an expedition in a much-appreciated electric train to Versailles. John says there were "many statues", without indicating whether he liked them or not, but gives very high marks to the subsequent lunch (hot soup, steak and chips, and ice cream). Afterwards inside the palac. he deplores the presence of a guide but notes he liked the hall with seventeen mirrors and a room where seventeen queens were born (the figures seem to have got confused here). "After that", he recalled "we came out in the rain. We made a dash for the cafe, a dash for the station, a dash for the train, a dash for the bus and a dash home. And there we were."

That night John was taken out after supper to get his first glimpse of Paris by night. He remembers walking from the Place de la Concorde to the Opera and notes "the lights were lovely". He was taken to a cafe "to watch the cars go by". He notes he had "chocolat le joi" (There must have been a minor misunderstanding here too; he seems to have had "chocolat liegeois", ice-cream with whipped cream, and mixed up the name of the Belgian city with the French word "la joie"—meaning joy—which the ice evidently brought him.)

THE NEXT DAY his father took him to the Pantheon: "Among the most famous people buried here were Hugo, Voltaire and Rousseau" says John, whose father had not evidently wasted the opportunities for instruction: "I was rather depressed. I had expected it to be more exciting." But he seems to have cheered up later with an expedition to the medieval Cluny museum, where the tap-tries told picture stories. Best of all, he was taken to a famous French toy shop, which specialises in historical statuettes—and allowed to choose his present for his eleventh birthday. John admired the "beautiful soldiers" and said that he chose Saladin and Napoleon "each of which cost £1. I preferred Saladin."

The diary records the "fine view" from the Sacre Coeur and a "very interesting" visit to the Musee de l'Homme" which [illegible] the only flight from his every-day, [illegible] the top of the Eiffel Tower. Jo[illegible]eats the subject with a wealth of exclamation marks in a long paragraph which ends: "After one of the most thrilling experiences of my life, I came home for lunch."

AN EXPEDITION to Fontainebleau, the day after, was recorded with mixed feelings. John loved the park and lake, immensely appreciated another steak-and-chips lunch, but was "bored and tired" by the guided trip round the chateau. Magnanimously, however, he concedes: "There were some interesting bits. Napoleon's bath, a cradle, a bed with a thick canopy, were the best."

The family has gone home now: the parents have written to thank me and express the hope that my work was not inconvenienced by John's presence; but John himself is wondering whether he ought not to come back: "Dear Nora", his bread-and-butter letter begins, "I hope you are not lonely now we are gone . . ."

Letters To The Editor

PROPER POSITION OF FLAG

Sir: The timely article in last Saturday's Examiner by Nancy Cleaver "Let Every Family Fly A Flag To Mark Coronation Day" and addressed "For Parents Only" might to rectify some local errors be extended to people in general, preferably before June second.

Getting the broad white stripe bordering the cross of St. Andrew's on the upper side in the top quarter of the flag next the masthead when flying the Union Jack is important or otherwise as the writer says the flag is upside down.

When the Union Jack and the Canadian Ensign (there not being an official Canadian Flag) are displayed together people almost invariably place them correctly with the Union Jack on the left as one views it, in the same manner as in the Canadian Coat of Arms with relation to the Fleur-de-Lys on the right. The reverse side of a Canadian fifty cent piece shows the same. Strange to say this is reversed in the local Coronation display of a Provincial Government Store and the same reversion has been in the display in the County Court Room since the room was redecorated some time ago.—"Honour the Flag".

Sincerely yours,
W. P. WOODHOUSE

ENFORCE THE CONSERVATION BY-LAW

Sir: Residents of Durham County might well step back and take stock of the inconsistent situation locally where expensive conservation measures and ruthless woodlot destruction are taking place side by side.

The failure to properly enforce the Tree Conservation By-Law has permitted extensive tracts of our needed woodland to be destroyed. The following areas have been seriously depleted by one Durham County lumberman during the past year:

Parts of Lot 35, Concession 9, Clarke Township;

Parts of Lot 7, Concession 2, Cavan Township;

Parts of Lot 12, Concession 3, Manvers Township.

Parts of Lot 15, Concession 4, Manvers Township;

Parts of Lot 24, Concession 5, Manvers Township.

Cutting below the ten inch diameter limit in these woodlots, in many cases, has left only a handful of spindly trees which will die or blow over in a few years. On Lot 35, Concession 9, Clarke Township, livestock grazing will prevent suitable regeneration of trees, thus assuring in time the destruction of remaining tree cover.

In the meantime, the Ganaraska River Conservation Authority and the Province of Ontario have spent, since the war, well over $150,000.00 buying and reforesting wasted and eroded land in an attempt to reduce the flooding, soil erosion, and general land decay, resulting from excessive deforestation. This money is derived, either directly or indirectly, from the taxpayers of Durham County.

Surely, if the taxpayers are interested in the welfare of the County and how effectively their money is being spent, they will seek an adequate enforcement of the Tree Conservation By-law.

Yours sincerely,
M. D. KIRK,
Zone Forester.

Mustn't Let The Spaniards Know!

(Ottawa Journal)

This is from the London Spectator:

"The plucky attempts by the Spanish censorship to prevent General Franco's subjects from hearing anything at all about the Coronation are said to be based partly on the fear that news of this event might stimulate monarchist feelings, and partly on one of those waves of anti-British feeling to which foreigners are periodically—and on the whole, I suppose, very understandably—subject.

"The Spanish Ministry of Information is being extremely thorough. Air-lines and travel agencies are forbidden to allude to the celebrations in their advertisements, and when a Madrid evening paper quoted Mr. Bing Crosby as saying "I shall be going on to London for the Coronation festivities", the sentence was obliterated as the paper went to press.

"Believing as I do that if there must be dictators they should never be discouraged from making themselves ridiculous, I wish the Spanish authorities the best of luck in their exacting and risible enterprise."

There is plenty of evidence, including this bit, that peace-time censorship can be stupid almost beyond belief.

Newspapers Best

(Brantford Expositor)

Newspapers are the "big guns" of advertising; direct mail only the "rifle fire."

This is not the pretentious boast of a newspaper advertising manager (who might be considered prejudiced on the subject) but the considered opinion of the vice president of one of Canada's biggest business establishments and one which appraises keenly and accurately the various advertising media it uses so extensively.

Speaking in Toronto, Howard S. Mark of the Robert Simpson Company declared that newspaper advertising had no substitute when it came to effectiveness. Continuing his figure of speech, he said: "An army which uses rifles when it should bring up its heavy artillery will lose the battle, if not the war. And any merchant who depends upon direct mail when he should be using newspaper advertising will surely lose sales, if not his shirt."

This is not to say that mail advertising is useless; it is not; it has its place and its useful function. So has the rifle. But, to quote Mr. Mark again, "there is no substitute for the daily newspapers."

Most people know that, but it will strengthen their knowledge and conviction to have a man in Mr. Mark's authoritative position offer such strong confirmation.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Then spake Jesus to the multitude, and to his disciples, saying, The scribes and the Pharisees sit in Moses' seat: all therefore whatsoever they bid you observe, that observe and do; but do not ye after their works: for they say, and do not. For they bind heavy burdens and grievous to be borne, and lay them on men's shoulders; but they themselves will not move them with one of their fingers ....

Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye compass sea and land to make one proselyte, and when he is made, ye make him two fold more the child of hell than yourselves. Matt. 23: 1-4, 15.)

But when ye shall see the abomination of desolation, spoken of by Daniel the prophet, standing where it ought not, (let them that readeth understand then let them that be in Judaea flee to the mountains ....

For in those days shall be affliction, such as was not from the beginning of the creation which God created unto this time, neither shall be. And except that the Lord had shortened those days, no flesh should be saved: but for the elect's sake, whom he hath chosen, he hath shortened the days ....

But in those days, after that tribulation, the sun shall be darkened, and the moon shall not give her light, and the stars of heaven shall fall, and the powers that are in heaven shall be shaken. And then shall they see the Son of man coming in the clouds with great power and glory. (Mark 13: 14, 19, 20, 24-26.)

Tommy had spent a lot of time looking at a bookstall, and arrived home very pleased at what he had seen.

"Well, Percy's a good little boy."

"Yes," answered Brian, thoughtfully: "and he'll go to Heaven the first time he falls in."

✧ ✧ ✧

NOW YOU KNOW

Tommy was asked the difference between prose and poetry. He pondered for a while and then said: "There was a young man named Rees, who went into the sea up to his ankles.

"That's prose," he said. "But if the water had been a few inches higher it would have been poetry."

"My dear," announced the man when the moment for parting came, "if your mother asks you where you have been, tell her you were walking on the beach with Oliver Wendell Holmes."

Innocent of the great fame of her erstwhile companion, but not to be outdone by him in politeness, the youngster smiled sedately and rejoined: "And if anyone asks you where you have been, tell them you have been walking on the beach with Mary Susanna Brown."

"'Now let's do it like the Guards would do it,' I think you said, Colonel."

World Oats Champion Dies Suddenly In West

ELMWORTH, Alta. (CP)—Gordon S. Moyer, 58, 1951 Chicago world oats champion and winner of the 1953 Toronto Royal Winter Fair alsike championship, died suddenly Saturday at his farm home here. Elmworth is 265 miles northwest of Edmonton.

Born in Waterloo county, Ont., Mr. Moyer moved to the Peace River district in 1915.

He is survived by his widow, a son and daughter, and his mother, Mrs. Simon Moyer of Elmira, Ont.

Rural Areas Suffer

TORONTO (CP)—Acting premier George Doucett said Wednesday the damage suffered by rural sections around Sarnia from last Thursday's tornado is greater than the havoc created in the city itself.

He said rural residents were in worse plight than Sarnians.

"More than 30 buildings were levelled in one township alone," he said. "Homes, even clothes, have been destroyed."

The province sent work gangs to the Stratford and London areas today to remove wreckage and dead animals.

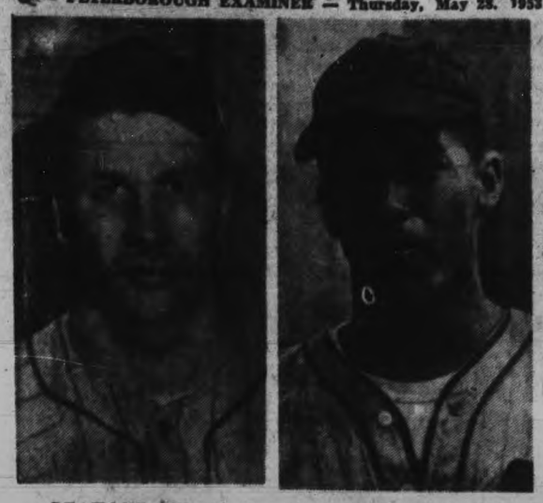
Veterinarians urge...variety for your dog

Feeding your dog for good health and normal growth is easy, veterinary authorities agree, when you remember two important facts: (1) Like humans, dogs are individuals too, and have their likes and dislikes where food is concerned. (2) A balanced diet is just as vital as nutritive food. Both are reasons why "vets" advise you to feed a variety of nourishing food to keep your dog happy, healthy and eating well. The complete "family" of famous Master Dog Foods makes variety easy and economical. For instance here's a daily diet one leading expert recommends:

The Main Meal

—should be composed of either a 50-50 mixture of Master Canned Dog Food and K-9 Meal, or a mixture comprising 25% Master Horse Meat and Gravy and 75% K-9 Meal or Master Kibble.



—for those little tidbits all dogs enjoy so much, keep Master Shapes or Mixed O-B's handy.

BEAT LIFLOCS—Having a lot to do with Lindsay defeating the local Liflocs in lakeshore ball here last night were Joe Stewart, left, who had four hits in five tries, and Doug Loucks, right, who hurled five-hit ball as his mates banged out 15 safe blows for the 9-1 win.

Lindsay Beats The Liflocs In Lakeshore Loop Tilt As Loucks Pitches 5-Hitter

After dropping four straight Lakeshore Baseball League decisions, Lindsay exploded here last night to blast out a 9-1 victory over the junior Liflocs before a slim, shivering crowd in Riverside Park. It was the first win to date of the Scugog squad, whose starting lineup boasted seven former Petes' seniors. They pounded out 15 hits to amass their total of runs, getting 11 bingles for eight markers off Jim McGrath, only four of the runs earned, and four hits for an unearned run off Jerry Frizzelle, who hurled the last four frames for the Dalton crew. Each home hurler walked two, McGrath whiffing one and Frizzelle three. The former also had two wild pitches.

A FIVE-HITTER

Doug Loucks twirled five-hit ball for the winners, sending five down on strikes and issuing two walks. He had good support with but one miscue behind him, while the local team booted four. The visitors left 10 stranded to six for Liflocs. Latters only run came in the fourth when Lingard singled, was sacrificed by MacSporran and tallied on a single by Foley.

Lindsay cashed in on walks and errors, plus some solid base blows to score a run in the first three innings and one in the eighth, as well as shoving three across in the fourth and two more in the fifth.

Joe Stewart led Lindsay at bat with four for five, driving in one run. Hank Debois hit a homer, double and single to score three in five trips. Art Truax had one in two tries. Two for five were gained by Al Menzies and Joe Lowrey, the latter's including a double as he drove in two runs and stole a sack. Bill Huntley banged out a triple in four times up, Fred Garvey had a double in four, and Loucks a single in four appearances. Sacrifices were laid down by Art Truax and Garvey.

LED AT BAT

Frizzelle and MacSporran led Liflocs at bat with one for two each, as Don Bigford, Stu Lingard and Larry Foley each clouted a single in four tries. MacSporran had a sacrifice, and Foley drove in the lone run for the losers, who play Oshawa here Saturday afternoon.

Fielding features included nifty catches by Art Truax and Edger of Lindsay and Murray Byrne of the homesters. Gary Kearns handed eight chances flawlessy for Peterborough. The game lasted two hours and 20 minutes. It was the second loss in three starts for the local juniors. Teams:

Lindsay: Lowrey, cf; Edger, 1b; Garvey, 2b;; Menzies, c; Huntley, lf; Debois, ss; Stewart, 3b; A. Truax, rf; R. Truax, rf; Loucks, p.

Keen Tilts Seen In Openers Of Civic Loop

Civic Softball League, comprising eight teams, officially opened its 1953 schedule Wednesday at the East City Bowl, with Police opposing the Post Office in the curtain-raiser, a 12-11 win for the mailmen, and the Foresters victorious over Bell Telephone, 9-4, in a stirring nightcap.

Cold weather hampered attendance but two keenly-contested struggles were reeled off to send the league away to a flying start.

The opener proved a slugfest with homers fairly evenly divided; but the hero's mantle went to Ron Loucks, hard-hitting second-backer for Eldon Harrison's postmen, who strode to the plate in the last of the ninth with two aboard and drove a long homer over the leftfield fence to settle a torrid struggle.

Foresters staged the game-clinching rally in the final frame also, to edge the Bell boys after nine innings of hectic battle, as hits by Quigley, Murray and Hall, and walks to Jones and Cooper, netted four runs to win behind Ken Hall's eight-hit twirling.

Woollens Win In Fastball Over Norwood

Dominion Woollens defeated Norwood 9-3 last night in an Industrial Fastball League encounter in Quaker Park. Smith for Woollens pitched fur-hit ball while striking out 13 and walking none in a fine flinging chore. Wilford of Norwood accounted for 10 by strikes as he issued four walks, but he was touched for 11 blows. His support was not quite as good as his opponent had.

Maudsley led the winners at bat with three for five. Nokes hit a triple in the second with one aboard for Woollens. Cole of the losers homered with one on in the eighth. Teams:

Norwood — Lockhead c, La-Brash 2b, Rusaw 2b, Cole cf, Rusaw rf, Telford 1b, Perry ss, Miles 3b, Althouse lf, Wilford p.

Woollens— Weichorek ss, Drury 2b lf, Nokes c, Maudsley 1b, Smith p, McIlwain cf, Hughie cf, Crampton ss, McMillan rf, Coughlin lf, Schell 2b.

Ward Edges Stranahan

HOYLAKE, England (AP)—Harvie Ward of Atlanta sank a life-saving eight-foot putt Wednesday to defeat Frank Stranahan one up in the fourth round of the British amateur golf championship.

The spine-tingling match saw Stranahan fight back to within a whisker of defeating the defending champion. Ward's victory put him in the fifth round.

All square coming down the 18th fairway, both hit superb approach shots. Stranahan was 12 feet from the cup. Ward was eight feet away. Stranahan putted and got down on his knees for a second as his ball came within an inch or two of dropping in. Ward sighted his putt and sank it.

Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., joined Ward in the fifth round to give the United States a top-ranking star in each half of the draw.

In his afternoon round, Campbell blazed around this long, waterlogged, wind-racked 7,078-yard Hoylake course for a 6 and 5 victory over Bruce Thompson of England.

In their third round matches, Ward breezed to a 4 and 2 victory over John W. Howard of England and Stranahan was hard pressed to beat Dr. F. W. G. Deighton of Scotland, one up.

Ireland's Joe Carr, the only internationally known Briton left in the meet, won as expected from W. V. Hughes, England, 4 and 2, in a fourthrounder. Carr already has been named to the Walker Cup team which plays the Americans at Marion, Mass., in September.

Queen's Colt Joint Favorite

LONDON (AP)—London bookmakers Wednesday night made the Queen's chestnut colt Aureole joint 4-1 favorite with Sir Victor Sassoon's Pinza to win the Derby at Epsom Downs June 6.

At the call-over at the Victoria Club Aureole and Pinza—which will be ridden by champion jockey Gordon Richards in his annual attempt to capture the one prize which has eluded him so far—were way out in front of Brigadier W. P. Wyatt's Premonition, third favorite at 7-1.

William Humble's Nearula, hot favorite from last November until reported lame recently, slumped in the betting to 100-6 although trainer Capt. Elsey said he is showing signs of improvement and kept him in the final acceptance list published Wednesday. His place as favorite was taken over by Aureole last week.

Final acceptances whittled the field down to 34 starters from the original 446 entries last November.

The prize money will fall short of the record $57,663 picked up last year by the Aga Khan when Tulyar won. This year the winning owner will get $53,530.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Joining the clamor for OLA action to halt Toronto Yorks' raiding of other clubs, the St. Catharines scribe (Jack Gatecliff) says: "Don Holden has contacted practically every player on the Mimico roster and given them cash offers which in lacrosse circles are little less than fabulous. Prior to the opening game in Peterborough two weeks ago, the Toronto man is stated to have spoken to three Mimico players just before they were ready to enter the dressing room at Miller Bowl. His offer so astounded the Mounties' players that they refused to dress for the game and left their team severely handicapped." Gatecliff figures that Mounties may have to fold up and would probably then let up on their productive minor lacrosse system, too.

* * * * * *

He adds: "One other matter has been rumored for three weeks. That is to the effect that Don Holden has financial interest in three OLA senior teams and is seeking to put money into a fourth. The teams mentioned are Orillia-Toronto Yorks, Brampton, Hamilton and Fergus. If it is just a rumor, and we sincerely trust that it is, it should be labelled as such by the OLA executive. If there is any fragment of truth in the claim, the situation must be rectified at once and the Toronto man ordered to give up every team affiliation with the exception of West Yorks." He thinks lacrosse is too good a game to be ruined by one man who never did anything in the way of building it up. Well, Petes argued hotly this spring that Yorks should be made to stay in Toronto and draw players only from their own territory.

* * * * * *

Out To Beat The Petes

The Holden-McPhail strategy is about as subtle as a punch on the nose. They're out to wrest the Mann Cup from Peterborough—that's exactly what all this financing, raiding, etc., is about. But the Petes aren't unduly worried at the moment about that, the locals are worrying (like other clubs) that the whole setup may be ruined and the group wind up with three strong squads and four weak sisters. Or, to put it another way, Petes and St. Kitts and the Combines—meaning Yorks, Hamilton, Brampton, Fergus and Mimico. Not good, eh? Meantime, Brampton Excelsiors (who extended Petes plenty in Brampton last Saturday) play the Thorpe team here Friday night. Locals are off to St. Catharines next night.

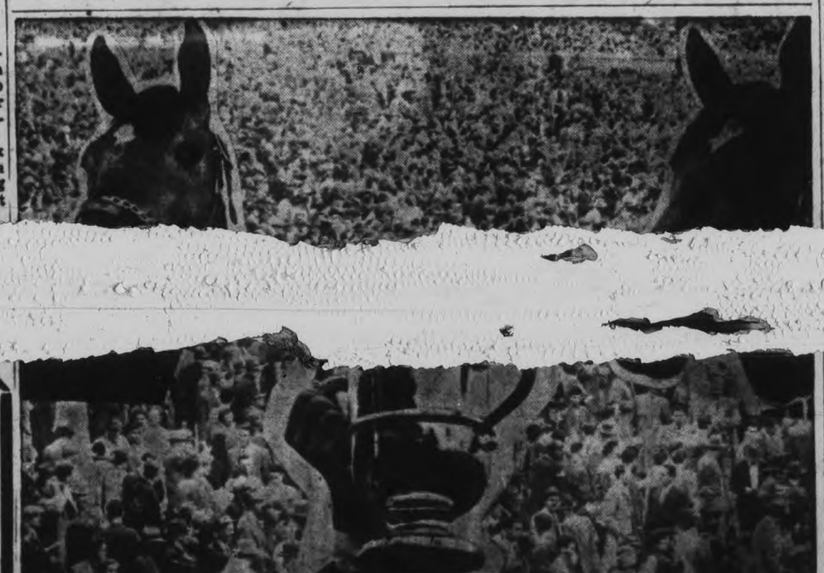
* * * * * *

Many senior lacrosse prospects dot the local lineup of the OLA junior Pats, and that's for sure. You'll see 'em in senior livery with the Petes—or with other clubs in Ontario—within a year or two. The Pats have eight or 10 good Peterborough huskies who have come up through bantam, midget and juvenile ranks to junior "A" and will soon step into senior. And they have five or six good young imports this year. The team, coached by Doug Miller Jr., opens its schedule in Brampton tonight, and opens at home here Saturday eve at 8:45 in a four-point game with St. Catharines. That one will be worth viewing.

* * * * * *

Lindsay Bit Familiar

It was pretty much all-Peterborough night at Riverside as far as players went last cold evening. Lindsay used seven former Petes to defeat the junior Liflocs by a 9-1 count, though the two Lindsay chaps in their lineup did okay, too. Hank Debois hit a homer into the river as well as belting out a double and single in five tries, but Joe Stewart topped the team with four for five. And Art Truax had one in two official trips. Doug Loucks was in good mound form to fling a five-hitter and fan five, getting excellent backing. Jim McGrath went six heats for the locals and allowed four earned runs, though hit pretty freely. Jerry Frizzelle finished strongly. He and Scotty MacSporran had a hit each in two tries. Some good ball seen in spots by the few frostbitten fans. Oshawa is here Saturday aft.



* * * * * *

Because of the game at Riverside we had to pass up a stag dinner thrown for Tony Kotowski at the Aragon by executive and players of the Orfuns' grid club. Sorry to have missed it, as a goodly gathering had a lot of fun, we're told. Last year's coach of the footballers received a present from the bunch; he's marrying a local lass this week. But he still hasn't agreed to coach the club this year, owing to salary differences, and may settle down here as a working man or return to the States. Early action by the executive is indicated in lining up Tony or some other coach in plenty of time for the season ahead. After all, practices do commence in a couple of months. 'Tis reported that Kingston Tanks won't be back in the ORFU wars comes autumn.

Down Sports' Rialto

St. Kitts beat Hamilton to move into a top-place OLA senior tie with the Petes . . . BIG DAY IN RACING—Coronation Day, June 2, is a big day in racing for about 15 or 16 of Canada's best three-year-old thoroughbreds. They will compete in the 94th running of the Queen's Plate, North America's oldest continuously-run stake. Canadiana (upper left), owned by E. P. Taylor, Toronto industrialist, and Avella (upper right), owned by the Addison Stable, Toronto, are among two fillies getting a lot of attention from the experts. The Queen's Plate Trophy is held up as the prize. In the background is a typical Plate day crowd at Toronto's Woodbine Park.

Brooks Clip Giants As Campanella One-Man Team

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

No sling shots for Roy Campanella—when it comes to killing Giants he clubs 'em to death. Going into Wednesday night's game at Ebbets Field, New York Giants knew they had the secret formula for whipping their hated Brooklyn rivals. It was simple-stop Campanella. The formula was right, but the Giants forgot how they were supposed to make it work. The New Yorkers were nursing a 2-1 lead in the 4th inning. Roy promptly planted a Jim Hearn pitch in the left field seats to tie it.

With two out in the last of the ninth the Giants again were ahead, 3-2. A walk and an error gave Campy another chance to bat. A single would have tied the score. A double probably would have scored both men.

Campanella left no doubts. He blasted another one into the midst of the left field customers and the Dodgers won it, 5-3.

The performance was no one-night fluke. The powerfully-built Brooklyn catcher with the deceptive, waddling walk has been belting the cover off the ball all spring. The homers were his 15th and 16th, considerably ahead of the pace Babe Ruth maintained the year he hit 60. The four runs he drove in increased his league leading total in that department to 51. And he raised his batting average to .338. Of his 45 hits, more than half have gone for extra bases.

Campanella's one-man rampage brought the Dodgers' season record against the Giants to .500—four victories in eight games. But it didn't gain them any ground in the hot National League race where Milwaukee Braves kept ahead with a 9-4 decision over Chicago Cubs.

CARDINALS WIN

The second place St. Louis Cardinals also won, 6-3, over Cincinnati for their eighth success in their last 10 starts. The Cards trail the Braves by a 1½ games with the Dodgers another half length behind. Philadelphia, sandwiched between the Dodgers and Giants in fourth place, smothered Pittsburgh, 14-2, in a twilight game but lost a night contest to the Pirates, 8-6.

In the American League Chicago White Sox and Detroit Tigers battled 15 innings to a 2-2 tie and had to quit because of the league curfew. No inning can start after 12:50 a. m., local time. Even without a decision the White Sox took over second place in pursuit of New York Yankees since St. Louis Browns ended a nine-game losing streak to stop Cleveland Indians, 5-1. The loss dropped Cleveland into third.

Philadelphia Athletics edged Boston Red Sox 4-3 on Gus Zernial's eighth-inning home run and the Yankees defeated Washington, 3-1, on Eddie Lopat's three-hit pitching. Lopat held the Senators to a double and two singles.

Athletics Dump Hamilton 15-4

HAMILTON (CP)—St. Catharines Athletics jumped into a first-place tie with Peterborough Petes Wednesday night when they walloped Hamilton Tigers 15-4 in an Ontario Lacrosse Association senior game.

Skip Teal, Norm Corcoran and Al Frick each sniped three for the victors, as the hapless Tigers were able to show little in the way of power. Don Moore and Don Frick, with two apiece, Derry Davies and Emil Uhrynuk were other St. Kitts marksmen.

Ron Brown got two for Lefty Jordan's Tigers, Tony Cupola and playing coach Arnold Smith scoring the others.

Leafs Defeat Syracuse In 9-2 Victory

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Royals dropped Baltimore Orioles again Wednesday night to retain their position atop the International Baseball League, but Toronto Maple Leafs kept on their trail.

The Leafs played beautiful ball in downing Syracuse Chiefs 9-2 to remain a game behind the Royals.

Rochester's double victory over Buffalo Bisons—10-4 and 8-3—dropped the Leafs into third place one percentage point behind the Red Wings, but the Birds are 1½ games behind the Royals.

Montreal's 3-1 victory over the Orioles came on two unearned runs in the eighth inning.

HURLS 3-HITTER

Righthander Gerry Fahr of Toronto hurled a masterful three-hitter as a disappointed Syracuse crowd watched, for his fourth victory against one loss. His teammates pounded three hurlers for 15 safeties, including a two-run homer by left-fielder Lew Morton in the seventh.

At Baltimore, Ben Flowers gave up but three of Montreal's four hits but threw his own game away in the eighth. After Ken Wood got on base and Walter Moryn walked, Ed Roebuck bounced the ball to Flowers. The pitcher threw the ball past Damon Phillips at first, and Wood and Moryn scored.

Rochester's victories at Buffalo were the Bisons' fourth and fifth straight defeats.

SLAM HOMERS

Don Richmond and Lou Ortiz slammed homers to drive in half the Rochester tallies in the abbreviated opener. Cot Deal coasted to his fourth win against two defeats.

The Wings turned out 11 hits in the first four innings of the second contest to assume a commanding lead. Southpaw Fred Hahn went the route to score his fourth triumph.

Springfield Cubs and Ottawa Athletics split a twin-bill at Springfield, the As's taking the opener 8-3 and the Cubs the nightcap 14-6.

Effective relief pitching by Bob Trice, who got credit for his third win, and extra base hits gave Ottawa the opener.

The Cubs broke loose with an eight-run sixth inning rally to take the second game.

Following the fire last February, the Legion has been a hive of activity with carpenters, electricians, plumbers, painters and many other workmen, making a complete and workman-like job of the renovation.

Many new features have been included during the modernization which add to the comfort for members and to overall safety..

The pictures on these pages show a number of the facilities which make the Legion an ideal meeting place for all service men.

Keep in mind the Bingo every Wednesday and the social evening for members and escorts each Friday.

The Legion is open every night except Sunday for cribbage, billiards, darts, ping-pong and other social activities.

SLUMP WORRIES SHANTZ

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—What's happened to Bobby Shantz?

Baseball fans are asking about Philadelphia Athletics southpaw, last year's most valuable player in the American League who won 24 and lost 7. So far this season he has won three and dropped five. Now he's sidelined at least two more weeks. Bobby injured his shoulder in Boston last week.

Bobby says: "It feels like something is loose in my shoulder. I tried to throw yesterday but it wasn't any use. I couldn't get a thing on the ball."

Bobby suffered a fracture on his forearm about three inches above his pitching wrist last September when hit by a pitched ball thrown by Washington's Walter Masterson.

"The wrist hasn't bothered me," he said. "I know a lot of people feel that I have been favoring the wrist, and as a result pulled a muscle in my shoulder. Maybe I have. I don't know.

"One thing is sure, I haven't been getting the same curve on the ball I used to get. The way the batters are hitting my curve worries me plenty."

SCENE ONE WINS FEATURE

TORONTO (CP)—Scene One, a four-year-old chestnut colt which campaigned in Florida during the winter, charged through the muddy lane Wednesday to win the six-furlong Banff Plate, feature event on the Woodbine Park program. Wolf Whistle was 3½ lengths back in second place and Lord North took third, another ¾ lengths back.

BRAVES GET WINDSOR MAN

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec Braves of the Provincial Baseball League announced Wednesday night that Al Dumouchelle, 28-year-old right-hander from Windsor, Ont., is to report to the club today. Business manager Rene Lemyre said Dumouchelle reconsidered his decision to retire from organized baseball and signed a contract with Jacksonville of the class-A Sally League. He was optioned to Quebec

SOCCER TOURISTS SPLIT

SANTIAGO, Chile (Reuters)—England's soccer team is scheduled to play the fourth game of its South American tour against Uruguay at Montevideo this week-end. The team dropped its first match 3-1 to Buenos Aires. An international fixture between England and Argentina was abandoned after 24 minutes because of a heavy thunderstorm. England beat Chile 2-1 in the third game.

NUMBER 300 — Big Ralph Kiner of the Pittsburgh Pirates comes home after banging out the 300th home run of his major league career. Greeting him are two Pirates who scored with his smash into the left field bull-pen—Cal Abrams (18) and Paul Smith (21). Said Kiner: "It feels wonderful to get 300."

England Scores 120 In Trial For Two Wickets

LONDON (Reuters)—Rain affected all but one cricket game in England Wednesday.

In a trial for the forthcoming test international against Australia, England scored 120 for two wickets against The Rest before rain stopped play.

Sussex dismissed Derbyshire for 204 runs in a full day's play at Derby. Medium-pace bowler Ian Thomson took four Derbyshire wickets for 55 runs. John Langridge and Ken Suttle opened for Sussex, hitting 100 not out before the close.

Close-of-play scores:

Lancashire vs Australian tourists, no play, rain.

Marylebone Cricket Club 75 for three vs. Hampshire.

Cambridge University vs. Warwickshire, no play, rain.

Essex 109 for six vs. Northamptonshire.

Glamorgan no runs for no wicket vs. Kent, rain.

England eleven 120 for two, vs. The Rest (test trial, rain restricted play.)

Derbyshire 204, Sussex 100 for no wicket.

Middlesex 241 for seven vs. Oxford University.

Surrey 300, Somerset 74 for three.

Northumberland 273, Yorkshire 97 for two.

Gloucestershire 14 for five vs. Leicestershire, rain.

Toronto May Hold Dual Track Meet

VANCOUVER (CP)—Toronto may be the site in August, 1954, of a dual track meet between outstanding athletes of the British Commonwealth and an all-star American track team.

The meet would follow the British Empire and Commonwealth Games here July 30-Aug. 7.

Support for the Toronto meet was promised to George Duthie, manager of the Canadian National Exhibition sports department, by the B.E.G. committee here.

Duthie will now approach Col. George Machum, president of the Canadian B.E.G. committee, and secretary Jack Davies. Final approval, if present negotiations are successful, would have to come from the B.E.G. games secretary Sandy Duncan, who will come to Canada next month from London.

If approved, the meet would be held at the CNE on the opening day of the 1954 exhibition, Aug. 27.

Attacked By Bird

HILLSIDE, N.J. (AP)—Joseph Marks, 10, went into his backyard Wednesday and immediately found himself under attack by a mother blue jay, who was nesting in a nearby tree. Joseph's mother called the cops. They advised staying out of the backyard till the nesting season is over.

LIVERPOOL WINS, 10-0

MONTREAL (CP)—Playing fine positional soccer, the touring Liverpool team Wednesday night defeated Montreal All Stars 10-0 in an exhibition match. Bill Jones paced the visitors with three goals, Jim Payne, Bill Liddell and Joe Maloney tallied two each with Alan Acourt adding a single.

Queen's Plate Tradition Against Longshot Winning

By JIM BASTABLE

TORONTO (CP)—Bettors who take a flyer on a long-shot winning the Queen's Plate this year may just be tossing their cash into the feed box. The odds—and tradition—are against the big payoff.

In the last 39 years, only four outsiders have gone to the winner's circle in Canada's richest stake race and kicked back more than $8.70 on a $2 ducat.

The plungers can't expect much more this year when a crack field of Canadian-bred three-year-olds goes to the post in the 94th running of the 1⅛-mile plate next Tuesday. Those hoping for a "sleeper" in this one have little to go on from the record books.

The charts all add up to this: Come rain, shine, a record or a handful of touts, the 1953 galloping thoroughbred to win the plate, the top turf event in the country, will be short-priced.

Who will it be?

Well, a bettor might get $2.10—which would equal the shortest price ever paid in recent plate history—on Canadiana if the big bag filly goes in the race. Or he might get anywhere between 8 to 1 and 12 to 1 on Lively Action and Blue Scooter, winners of the two divisions of the Plate Trial last Saturday.

But if he's looking for a big price he might get a lead on the few exceptions down through the years.

The most recent one was Epigram, 1952 Plate winner. Epigram, owned by the Three V's Stable of Toronto, romped over a sloshy course, delighting in the heavy going, and won going away for the cup, a share of the $20,000-added purse and the Queen's 50 guineas. His price: $25.05.

Then there was Moldy in 1947. The bay offspring of Teddy Wrack and Obituary, owned by Col. R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa, returned $36.50 for $2.

Another was Paolita, who won 10 years ago. Jockey Pat Remillard booted her home at odds better than 37-to-1. The filly paid $76.50.

The biggest price was made by Maternal Pride in 1924. He gave his few followers the whopping total of $193.35 in the first and only race he ever ran.

Women Golfers Flying On Tour

TORONTO (CP)—Canada's women's golf team flies to England today. It will make a two-month tour of Britain.

Five members of the team, Ada Mackenzie, captain, Marlene Stewart, Mary Gay, Barbara M. Davies and Mrs. J. H. Todd, accompanied by Mrs. C. A. Stuart, chairman of the selection committee, will be joined at Montreal by the other members, Mrs. Graeme Pyke and Daintry Chisholm.

Miss Mackenzie said at a press reception Wednesday:

"We have a strong team, as far as Canadian golf is concerned. While conditions in the old country are much different from those encountered in Canada, I think we will do all right. We may surprise ourselves."

Miss Mackenzie has won the Canadian Open five times, the Close five times and the Ontario title seven times.

Miss Stewart has won the Canadian Open once, the Close twice and the Ontario once. Miss Gay is the present Ontario champion and was runner-up in last year's open and close.

Both Mrs. Pyke and Miss Davies have won the Close crown as well as provincial titles and Miss Davies is a former British Columbia champion. Miss Chisholm has twice won the Quebec title. Mrs. Todd has been a British Columbia provincial titleholder.

Name Marciano No. 1 Fighter

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Rocky Marciano is Ring Magazine's "fighter of the month" and Jersey Joe Walcott drops to No. 3 challenger in the heavyweight division in the new rankings.

Ezzard Charles, the ex-champ from Cincinnati, who is on a red-hot win streak, gets the No. 1 place behind Marciano, followed by Roland La Starza, of New York.

Although promoter Jim Norris and Al Weill, Marciano's manager, have not reached an agreement on a September fight, it is expected that the champ will defend against La Starza in New York in September.

Walcott is being pressed for third place by Bob Baker of Pittsburgh and Danny Bucceroni of Philadelphia, who has outgrown the light-heavyweight class.

Four Toronto Youths Arrested For Theft

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Four Toronto youths arrested here Monday have been turned over to authorities in Woodstock where they are wanted on two charges of theft.

Later they will be taken to Hamilton where they face a similar charge.

They are: William Seep, 22, John Martin, 24, William MacKeegan, 19, and Roger Roy, 22. An unidentified 17-year-old girl arrested with them has been returned to Toronto where she is wanted for training school parole violation.

Nun Lays Aside Habit For Coronation Of Queen

By SIDNEY WEILAND

LONDON (Reuters) — A grey-haired nun who has made charity her life's work will sit in Westminster Abbey Tuesday to see the crowning of her daughter-in-law, Queen Elizabeth.

Princess Alice of Greece, whose son Philip married Elizabeth five years ago, has turned in old age from the pomp and splendor of her youth to the pious quietude of a sister of mercy in the Greek Orthodox Church.

But Tuesday she will be back in the world she used to know, a world of princes and princesses, of jewels and pageantry.

The simple nun's grey habit she has worn since 1948 will be packed away. In its place she will wear a specially-ordered gown, made by a great fashion house in the glittering world she has forsaken.

The 68-year-old princess, great-granddaughter of Queen Victoria, is due in London from Athens in a few days. She will move into a suite at Buckingham Palace as a guest of the Queen. Then she will fly back to the poor and sick she has tended faithfully in Greece.

Princess Alice abandoned the regal life for the veil in 1948, soon after her son's marriage to Elizabeth. On the Aegean Island of Tinos she founded a nunnery, the order fo Martha and Maria, devoted to religious worship and good works.

Each morning she rises at 3 a.m. for four hours of prayer. Personal comfort she shuns, using a hard wooden chair on which to knit for the poor. She makes her own bed, scrubs her tiny room.

FIND BODY IN POND

TORONTO (CP)—The body of a man about 65 years of age, a heavy stone tied around his waist, was pulled from Grenadier Pond in Toronto's west end Wednesday. Police said the body had been in the water only a matter of hours. Detectives say they think it was suicide.

New Spy Charges Called Fairy Tale

FRANKFURT (Reuters)—A United States Air Force spokesman said Russia has spun another fairy tale in charging that an American plane parachuted four spies into the Ukraine via Greece.

The report is "obviously untrue," the air force European headquarters spokesman said.

The Soviet interior ministry announced that Russia has executed four Soviet citizens who, it charged, had been dropped in the Ukraine by a four-engined American plane which took off from Athens April 25.

Urge Indians Allowed Liquor Privileges

LITTLE CURRENT (CP)—The Ontario Legislature's select committee Wednesday heard churchmen, laymen, Indians and members of the committee itself express approval of opening beverage rooms to Indians and allowing them full liquor privileges.

The committee was on the second day of a tour through the Georgian Bay area reserves.

At a meeting on the Wikwemikong reserve 40 miles from this Manitoulin Island community, Rev. Andrew Oliver, Roman Catholic priest, said Indians should be allowed to buy liquor from government stores.

WANTS TO USE STORE

Chief Andrew Traneau urged his Indians be allowed to buy beer and liquor at stores. He said Indians now obtain liquor illegally and drink it quickly to avoid being caught with it.

Chief Tom Jones of the Cape Croker reserve said the present laws are discriminatory.

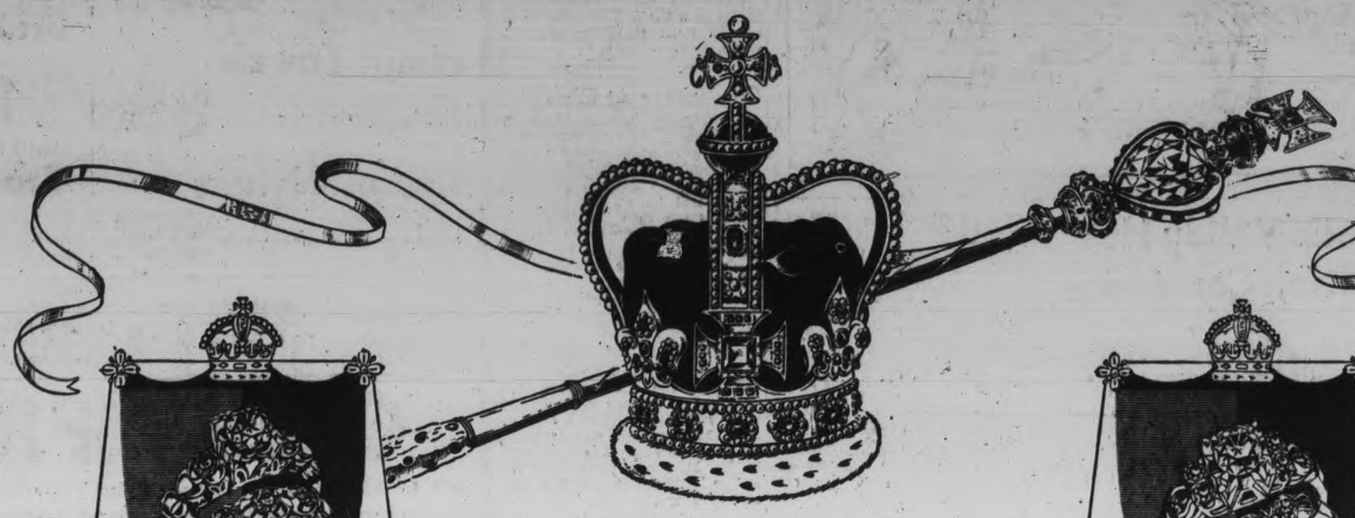
Harry Nixon (L—Brant) said it is better for the Indian to get his liquor legally and councillor Melwyn Stevens of the Saugeen River reserve testified that Indians who want to drink will get it anyway.

Breeding Responsible For Many Faults

GUELPH (CP)—W. P. Watson, Ontario livestock commissioner, said Wednesday that breeding is responsible for many of the faults of artificial insemination.

Speaking at the annual conference of Ontario agricultural representatives, assistants and fieldmen, he said there have been reports of increasing numbers of red and white Holsteins and dwarf beef calves since artificial breeding has been on the increase.

A bull might sire 3,000 to 4,000 calves a year through insemination, many times the number sired by a bull used for natural breeding. Therefore, the faults would have a greater opportunity to show up.



Shorthorn Sale Brisk

LUCKNOW, Ont. (CP)—The annual Scotch Shorthorn sale, consigned by W. T. Culbert and Sons, of RR 1, Dungannon, Andrew C. Grant and Sons, RR 1, Lucknow, and Clifford H. Keys and Sons, Varna, was well attended and buying was brisk.

The 37 cattle offered by auction brought $16,130. Top female sold for $1,000 and was bought by W. H. Merry of Oakville.

$3,000 Bank Holdup

MONTREAL (CP)—An armed man walked into the Peel street branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia Wednesday and took about $3,000 from a badly-frightened girl teller. Bank officials said the holdup took place so quietly that the teller, Jacqueline Julian, was the only person who noticed the man.

Indian Given Seat In Abbey For First Time

VANCOUVER (CP)—They speak in many different tongues, the Indians of British Columbia.

But in this Coronation year the fishermen of the coast and the trappers of the interior plateaus will pay tribute to their new Queen in a common voice.

The 30,000 B. C. natives—the Haidas, Songhees, Metlakatlas and all the others—will have their own representative in Westminster Abbey on the big day.

And, in a way, this man will attend as a symbol of the strides his people are making toward their goal of full citizenship.

To his brothers he is known as Gla-Whay-Algiss, chief of the Kwakiutls. Others know him as a business and family man named William Scow.

Chief Scow—to use a compromise term—has been speaking for the province's natives in many matters for the last nine years as president of the B. C. Native Brotherhood.

DISPLAYS ROBE

He left Vancouver by air early Wednesday, stopped briefly in Montreal Wednesday night and then headed for London to represent them at the Coronation in what will be the first time a Canadian Indian has been honored with a seat in the abbey.

Before leaving, the 51-year-old father of 13—one son is studying law and one daughter is a nurse—gave friends who helped raise expenses for the trip a look at his personal Coronation robe.

It is a robe which has never seen the inside of a fashion salon or known the touch of silken thread. Instead, the ancient ceremonial garment was made painstakingly with the things a man can trap or find—the skin of the ermine and polished shells of the sea.

He displayed, too, a yellow-bordered chilkat robe which he's taking as a present to the Queen. When placed around her shoulders, it will make her spiritual mother of the Pacific Coast Indians. Another gift will be 50 pounds of salmon cured by his people.

"Our tribe is very close to the Royal Family," said Chief Scow. "We received a letter from the late King during his illness."

"FILLIES FAVORED"

N.S. Annapolis Valley Has Own Coronation Ceremony

KENTVILLE, N. S. (CP)—Here in the Annapolis valley, Coronation Day is Saturday.

That's the day Annapolisa XXI starts her reign over a domain of lush fruit-growing country of 100,000 population extending from Windsor roughly 100 miles westward to Digby along the Bay of Fundy.

This coming of age of the Annapolis valley apple blossom festival is significant in that it comes at a crossroads in the life of the once-lucrative apple industry.

There was a time, before the war, when the apple Eden of Canada turned out 3,000,000 barrels of apples a year and easily sold the whole crop.

Festivities started Wednesday with the opening of the four-day blossom bonspiel at Windsor, an invitation event started after Kentville won the Dominion championship in 1951.

CHOOSE QUEEN

Friday the crowds converge on Kentville, where 11 girls chosen as princesses by valley towns and the Greenwood RCAF station are competing for the nomination as queen of the festival.

Once chosen, the queen and her princesses attend the colorful blossom ball, while in halls throughout the valley other dances are held to mark the proclamation.

For the next four days the queen is caught up in a round of activities. And she is expected to attend as many as possible.

Saturday she is star in the Grand Parade as it snakes its way for three miles from New Minas to Kentville's Memorial Park for the coronation.

Sunday, the queen and the other princesses will board the royal car on a train bound for Grand Pre in the land of Evangeline, home of the early Acadians, where a religious ceremony festival is held.

Next day they travel to Windsor, observing its 250th anniversary with the festival program.

After a visit to the western part of the valley, there will be a final ball to conclude the festival.

NATO Post For Collins

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gen. J. Lawton Collins, retiring U.S. Army chief of staff, Wednesday was named as the joint chiefs' liaison officer to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. President Eisenhower, who announced the appointment, has named Gen. Matthew Ridgway, present NATO commander, to replace Collins as the army's chief of staff.

Car Damage $400

STIRLING (ENS)—A three-car accident occurred on Tuesday evening near Foxboro when a car driven by George Runalls of Harold stopped on the highway for a pick-up truck approaching the highway from a side road. A gravel truck crashed into the rear of the Runnalls' car causing damage amounting to $400. No one was injured.

"Juju" Riot

LAGOS, Nigeria (Reuters)—A riotous "juju" (African magic) ceremony Wednesday brought injuries to 38 persons and arrest to 53 others at Okene in Northern Nigeria. Two rival native factions clashed at the ceremony and police were called in to restore order. Seven of those injured were policemen.

FARES 10 PER CENT HIGHER

The average fare on Canada's urban transit systems in 1952 was 8.63 cents, almost 10 per cent higher than 1951.

Need Candidates For Ministry

OSHAWA (CP) — The biggest problem facing the United Church is getting candidates for its ministry, Dr. J. C. Young, of the church's national head office at Toronto, said Wednesday.

He told the Bay of Quinte church conference that some progress had been made in the last two years but there were still not enough men to fill the vacancies.

Ministers and laymen should take a greater interest in getting recruits for full-time church service. New charges were springing up in fringe areas and new communities, and the church "cannot hope to serve them on the basis of the number of candidates coming forward."

While the major responsibility rested with the ministers, he said, laymen must also assume their share.

Conference At Club

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP)—It seemed fairly certain today that the Bermuda meeting of President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Churchill and the French premier next month will be at the Midocean Club. Conference officials and press representatives are arranging accommodations at the Castle Harbour hotel, five minutes' drive from the club.

In Golden Book

GRONINGEN, The Netherlands (AP)—The name of Yehudi Menuhin, American violinist, has been inscribed in Israel's golden book, Israel's envoy to Holland said today. The honor, one of the highest conferred on Jews, was announced by Dr. M. Amir, Israeli minister to The Netherlands, during a concert here by Menuhin.

Canadian Cities Decorate Streets Lavishly

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Main Street across Canada is taking on the appearance of a royal mile as Coronation Day approaches.

Most communities, a Canadian Press survey found today, are hanging out their banners and bunting with a lavishness that in some cases surpasses the decoration for the royal tour of 1951.

The bright finery on civic buildings, business places and citizens' homes is designed to shine in the spring sunshine with all the splendor of the new reign whose commencement it marks.

Many more flags, pennants, coats of arms and illuminated displays are due to be set out before the celebration reaches its climax Tuesday with march-pasts, artillery volleys and fireworks spectacles.

BIGGEST FLAG

The Winnipeg Free Press claims the Union Jack flying on its Carlston street buildings for the Coronation is the largest flag in the Commonwealth. Measuring 27 by 54 feet, it was specially made in Liverpool and flown for the first time on the occasion of Canada's diamond jubilee of nationhood, July 1, 1927.

Floodlights with huge reflectors illuminate Quebec City's main provincial legislative building on the Grand Allee, adding nighttime brilliance to the display of flags and coats of arms.

A giant fireworks display over the historic Plains of Abraham, where Gen. James Wolfe won Canada for Britain in 1759, is scheduled for Coronation night.

NEW STANDARDS

New flags and standards wave from lamp posts along Windsor streets. Department stores and other business places in that western Ontario city opposite Detroit are going all out on patriotic decoration.

In Ottawa, red, white and blue banners have been draped about the Peace Tower on the Parliament Buildings. Gaiety is the keynote of Montreal's decorations. Downtown Toronto is ablaze with flags and bunting on a scale larger than that seen during the royal visit. A Union Jack hangs across three storeys of the Ontario legislature buildings.

Banners and drapes of royal purple and gold appeared this week on Alberta's legislative buildings and on two large government administration buildings in the same area. In a prominent place in the display section of the legislative buildings' rotunda are large portraits of the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh.

Give Queen's Route To Westminster Abbey

By KATHERINE PINKHAM

LONDON (AP)—Slip into the Queen's golden coach, and we'll look over the whole 6½-mile route that Elizabeth II will follow next Tuesday.

The first part of the route is from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Abbey. That's on the way to the Coronation. The second part, after the ceremony, leads from the abbey back to Buckingham Palace—but by a circuitous route. The long way, in other words.

The coach is pulled by eight sleek grey horses. Drive out Buckingham Palace gate and head down the wide, tree-lined Mall towards Admiralty Arch.

You're looking through a vista of slender blue and gold metal arches, topped with gilt lions and unicorns. Suspended from each is a giant, lightweight, gilded crown.

SEE CLARENCE HOUSE

On your left, as you approach St. James's Palace of dingy red brick, you see Clarence House, where Elizabeth and Philip set up housekeeping after ther marriage.

Behind bordering stands on your right is spacious St. James's Park. King Charles II used to stroll there in private and wave up to the apartment where he had installed Nell Gwyn. Through Admiralty Arch, you touch on Trafalgar Square, pass Lord Nelson's 145-foot monument column, and veer down Northumberland avenue to the lip of the sluggish Thames.

Along Victoria embankment 33,000 schoolchildren will be cheering shrilly. You roll on toward Big Ben, world's best-known clock, towering over the Houses of Parliament.

MANY STANDS

Jogging around Parliament Square, you pass a concentration of deep stands. Most of the statuary is boarded up. But Abraham Lincoln stands by his chair as usual and Oliver Cromwell dourly surveys the royalist revelry.

As you turn toward Westminster Abbey's entrance, glance toward the far end of the Houses of Parliament, where a metal overpass has been built for the lords, arrayed in ceremonial glory, to reach their abbey places across a traffic sea.

Now we loop back toward Trafalgar Square, via Whitehall.

You see on your right the building that was once Whitehall Palace. Outside it Charles I was beheaded.

Along Pall Mall some of the famous men's clubs have so far surrendered dignity as to build stands over entrances.

GAPING HOLE

Proceed down Piccadilly toward Apsley House at Hyde Park corner and notice a gaping hole in the right-hand skyline. A German bomb destroyed the home there where Elizabeth once lived when her father was Duke of York. Look sharp to the left, toward Constitution Hill, where lunatics three times tried to kill Queen Victoria.

East Carriage drive in Hyde Park is lined on the right with stands. The soap-box orators are taking a day off from their carping at Speakers' Rostrum, near the Marble Arch. The arch used to stand beside Buckingham Palace, but it was moved in Victoria's time. Now it's a landmark for a grim site indeed—Tyburn Gallows, scene of 10,000 hangings between the 12th and 18th centuries.

STATUE PROTECTED

At Piccadilly Circus the statue of Eros is protected from the crowds by a sparkling gilded cage nearly 50 feet high. There are always crowds in Piccadilly.

Last of all to see the royal procession will be the viewers in Haymarket, where hay was sold once upon a time. You pass along once more to Trafalgar Square, where some will be seeing the golden coach for the third time, before it turns back up the Mall to the palace.

Memorial Prize Winners Announced

CAMPBELLFORD — (ENS) — E. E. Darling, principal of the Campbellford High School has announced the winners of the Dr. Harold A. Horkins memorial prize for public speaking by pupils of grade IX. The prize has a total value of $50 and is divided —$25 for frist, $15 for second and $10 for third.

This year, Sandra McDonald took first prize, Beverley Dunsford second, and Patsy Baush third.

34 Cases of Measles

COBOURG (ENS)—Largest batch of red measles in several months, 34 new cases were reported for the week ending May 23, and every one is in Darlington Township. The Northumberland and Durham Counties Health Unit also reported three cases of chickenpox, all in Port Hope, and five cases of German measles, of which two are in Brighton and three in Murray Township.

To Represent Indians

MONTREAL (CP)—Chief Gla-Whay-Gliss fo the Kwaikiutl nations of Indians left here Wednesday night for London and the Coronation at which he will represent Canada's 130,000 Indians as president of the Native Brotherhood of British Columbia. He carries with him the symbolic Chilkat blanket, which when placed around the shoulders of Queen Elizabeth will make her spiritual mother of the Pacific coast Indians.

John Stenton

The funeral for John Stenton, Canal Rd., Douro township, who died Monday, was held Wednesday from the Comstock funeral home. Archdeacon C. W. Balfour conducted the service.

Pallbearers were Frank Riley, Clinton Young, Jack Curtis, Cliff Curtis, Ray Pammett, Otto Ferris. Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

Start Forest Spraying

CAMPBELLTON, N.B. (CP)—This year's spraying campaign against the spruce budworm in northern New Brunswick forests began Wednesday when 20 aircraft sprayed 14,000 gallons of insecticide in three hours. Only one of six wilderness airstrips was used for the start of the $3,000,000 operation. As it continues, 77 spraying planes will be aloft at various times. About 1,000,000 acres are to be covered.

Cultural Disgrace

GOETTINGEN, Germany (AP)—West German Transport Minister Hans Seebohm has accused the Allies of having committed a "cultural disgrace" by destroying German aviation research centres after the war. Speaking at the annual convention of the German Aviation Society here Wednesday Seebohm said the centres were "senselessly destroyed, private property of researchers was confiscated and their books were burned wantonly."

Alexanders To Entertain Many Canadians In London

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON (CP)—Coronation festivities will have a decided Canadian flavor for Earl and Countess Alexander.

With many well-known personalities converging on London for the Westminster Abbey ceremony, the Alexanders plan several informal gatherings and a dinner party at which transatlantic guests will be present.

Pre-Coronation gatherings included two cocktail parties for overseas visitors. Canadians also will be chief guests at a dinner party early in June.

MEET OLD FRIENDS

At an interview in her London apartment close to Buckingham Palace, Lady Alexander said these are occasions reserved for returning some of the hospitality shown to herself and her husband when Lord Alexander was governor-general of Canada.

She will renew acquaintance with many friends she has not seen since she left Canada early last year. "I couldn't begin to tell you how many Canadians will be our guests for at least a few hours, throughout the Coronation period" she said. "But there will be quite a number."

She said it will seem like old times in Ottawa. Apart from various parties and receptions, there will be one or two Canadian house guests at their country home, Beech Missing, in Surrey.

The Alexanders' daughter, Lady Rose, who returned to London from McGill University recently brought a school friend for a six-week stay. She is Marion Mackenzie, daughter of a Canadian government official.

A school friend of the Alexanders' youngest son, 12-year-old Brian, will also stay for several weeks. He is Eddie Mulkins of Ottawa.

MONTREAL GUESTS

Other guests of Lord and Lady Alexander who will stay for a few days are Mrs. Jack Price and son, Peter, and Mr. and Mrs. J.W. McConnell, all of Montreal.

Canadians staying at Beech Missing will have a close-up of the Canadian kitchen given to Lady Alexander by the women of Canada, and installed early this year in the gabled, Victorian house close to Windsor Great Park.

Asked if the new-fangled kitchen gadgets had resulted in any amusing experiences and cooking faux pas, Lady Alexander said she couldn't think of an occasion on which the equipment had not functioned faultlessly. She has all a Briton's usual amazement that "every button always works."

On Coronation Day, the Alexanders plan to leave early and motor to Westminster Abbey from their flat in London. On the way, they will drop Lady Rose and 17-year-old shane (Baron Rideau), at their seats in Parliament Square. Miss Mackenzie and "Nanny," who takes charge of adopted daughter Susan, 5, at Beech Missing, will sit in another part of the route. Susan will watch the excitement on television in Surrey.

The only young member of the Alexander family to be present in the abbey will be Brian. In a black coat trimmed in silver, wearing white knee-pants, white silk stockings and black shoes with red heels, Brian will follow his father in the Queen's procession — his father's coronet in one hand and a black tricorne hat in the other.

After the Westminster Abbey ceremony, Lord Alexander rides behind the Queen on her drives throughout London. During the ceremony, the former governor-general, wearing the dress uniform of a field marshal, will carry the Queen's orb, part of the Coronation regalia.

Lady Alexander, sitting with the peeresses, will wear the robe and dress worn by her mother, Countess of Lucan, at the last coronation.

Asked what they planned when the day's ceremonial was finished, Lady Alexander said: "We'll be outside the gates of Buckingham Palace with thousands of others, cheering the Queen as she appears on the balcony."

L. H. G. ARISS received his diploma recently as a doctor of chiropractic at the graduation exercises of the Canadian Memorial Chiropractic College, Toronto. He is the son of Dr. W. H. D. Ariss, Charlotte St.

Predict Greater Advances To Come In Peace-Time Atomic Energy Uses

TORONTO (CP)—One of Canada's top atomic scientists said today that Canadian scientists will "make even greater advances" in the peace-time application of atomic energy when a new reactor is built at Chalk River, Ont.

Dr. D. A. Keys of Atomic Energy of Canada Limited, a Crown corporation, said:

"Our NRX reactor (at Chalk River) has been described by leading authorities in the United States and Great Britain as one of the most advanced designs in existence."

Speacking to the 82nd annual convention of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, he said atomic energy offered a challenge to engineers and scientists to develop a new source of fuel. "It has been estimated that if the present rate of consumption of our natural fuel continues, then by the year 2000, most of the oil, gas and economically-recoverable coal will have been consumed."

NOT ONLY ANSWER

Dr. Carroll French, director of Industrial Relations Counsellors, New York, warned that a guaranteed basic annual wage for labor in industry would assure nothing if economic conditions are greatly upset.

Employers should protect their workers' jobs, but they should also make sure the workers understood the effect of wage concessions upon their businesses.

Dr. French said that joint union-management administration of guarantee funds may lead to labor demand for authority in areas of action which have previously been those of management, such as plant location, capital investment and even pricing and purchasing.

English and French trade terms should be taught to immigrants by Canadian industries if they wish to make full use of the immigrants' skill, Col. Laval Fortier, deputy minister of citizenship and immigration, said.

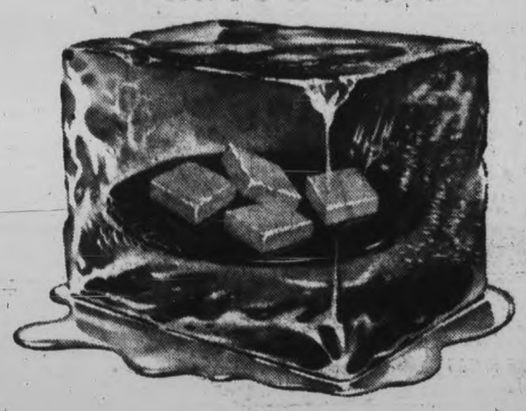
More than 800,000 immigrants had entered Canada since the end of the Second World War, he added, and the government's policy has always been to bring skilled and professional workers to Canada as quickly as they could be absorbed.

NO DIFFERENCE

J. R. White, president of Imperial Oil Limited, said Wednesday industry doesn't want war any more than the individual. "Industry is simply the community at work and there can be no essential difference between the two," he said.

He said it is an "utterly false notion that business prosperity depends on war and preparation for war, hence industry wants war."

War was a restraint not a stimulus to business.



Mr. White said the Second World War showed that what the Canadian economy needed was "a shot of inflation and a large dose of confidence."

In the oil industry, annual consumption rose about five per cent annually between 1939 and 1945, but since then it has risen at an annual rate of about 13 per cent.

The sun's apparent yearly path among the stars is known as the ecliptic.

Blame Red Agitators

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP)—A strike by 60,000 foundry workers threatened today to paralyze Mexico's iron and steel production. Company officials blamed Communist agitators for the strike call. The workers voted Tuesday night to reject a contract their leaders had signed and announced they would quit their jobs at noon. The contract provided a 12-per-cent salary increase and other benefits.

ELIZABETH the Queen

Former Governess to Her Majesty

XX

The Princesses would always get plenty of exercise from our walks, or riding, or cycling. They did not lack fresh air.

One day, while we were at the Royal Lodge, soon after King George had come to the Throne, I took them for a walk through the woods. They loved the woods and went there often. They were always interested in the varieties of wild flowers and the calls of the birds.

We were puzzled by the relics we found. No matter how peaceful or how secluded a wood is, you will always find somewhere in it a very old and rusty tin bath. We would often come upon these domestic relics—and others—quite a mile from the nearest road. The Princesses were puzzled by them.

"But who would cart a bath all this way?" Princess Elizabeth asked me one day. "Why hide it in the middle of a wood?"

As the Princesses and I came back toward the tennis court which at the Royal Lodge is entirely surrounded by a cypress hedge so that only the nets can be seen from the house, we heard the sound of a ball being hit about the court.

Always curious, Princess Margaret pushed her head between two branches and peered through. "It's Mummy and Papa," she told me excitedly, "playing tennis."

After that we all had to see. The gate was on the far side of the court, quite a long way round. The hedge was not too firm so we clambered through.

The King and Queen were playing alone. I thought what a pretty picture she made. She had on a cool print dress and a large shady hat, which, as usual, did not seem to disturb her at all.

Never having seen the Queen playing tennis before, I was amazed at the strength and accuracy of back-hand drive and her grace on the court.

The King was a fine tennis player who had competed at Wimbledon.

The King turned to the Queen and said to her: "Darling, Lilibet and Margaret must learn to play tennis, otherwise they won't be able to enjoy house parties when they grow up."

One Monday, Princess Elizabeth came to me in great excitement. "Papa thinks it's time we were taught tennis," she said. "He's getting a man to coach us."

And so I prepared to join the Princesses to watch while they learned how to play tennis.

The court at Windsor lies below the level of the drive and is pleasantly situated in a sort of grass-covered hollow.

In King George V's time it was available to anyone living in the Castle grounds; but few people had been using it lately. I visualized myself taking a book and deck chair and spending a pleasant time.

At first the coach showed the girls the rhythm of the strokes. He made them practice long sweeps with their racquets, rather as a swimming instructor puts his pupils through dry-land exercises.

Then the coach went to the far end of the court and began lobbing balls over the net toward them.

✧ ✧ ✧

Now my plans for a peaceful afternoon were shattered. Princess Elizabeth had a naturally powerful stroke, but as yet her aim was not so good as her intention. And Princess Margaret would as often as not hit the ball in the opposite direction from the one she intended.

I was quickly roused out of my comfortable chair to become ball boy.

Needless to say if anything was going on out of doors, the dogs could not be left out of it. So the Princesses would come down to the courts complete with the Corgis—three of them and a lion dog named Cracker.

Immediately the whole game began to be enjoyed madly by the dogs, who tore about the court barking and running away with the balls.

In the ensuing chaos it became a wearing tussle for one to get a succession of balls out of "Cracker's" mouth, and eventually I put the leashes on the dogs, anchored the leashes to the legs of a basket chair on which I sat. Even so, I had plenty of exercise.

In all, the coach came about six times. At first the Princesses enjoyed it thoroughly. If this man wanted them to make certain movements with their racquets, they would do their best to oblige him.

As usual, Princess Margaret was tired of it before Princess Elizabeth, who showed a natural eye. But both were loath to run for the ball when it passed anywhere outside easy reach.

The coach was quick to realize this, and perhaps too ready to give in to it. At any rate he lobbed the balls back so that neither of them had far to move to return them. I was amused by his private report to me when the lessons finished.

"Princess Elizabeth," he told me with great solemnity, "has a good natural eye for the game. But I am afraid she'll never succeed at it until she forces herself to run after the ball a bit more."

He was taking it very seriously.

But more important things were coming up for Princess Elizabeth. She was presently to join the Army, and tennis, for the time being, was forgotten.

Deny Prince Charles Will Pay Homage

LONDON (Reuters) — Reports that Prince Charles would pay homage to his mother at her Coronation were vigorously denied today by a Buckingham Palace spokesman.

"He will attend as a spectator only," the official said.

The four-year-old prince will not kneel before the Queen and pay homage like his father and the other royal dukes.

"It would be ridiculous to assume that such a young child could possibly grasp the meaning of the homage ceremony," the palace official said.

"It is completely untrue that Prince Charles asked to be allowed to take part in the ceremony. He will not even be present during the entire Coronation but for only a small part of it."

Convict Michaud Of Manslaughter

MONTREAL (CP)—Pierre Michaud, 46, charged with murder of his wife, was convicted of manslaughter today by a jury in Queen's Bench Court. The jury recommended clemency.

He will be sentenced June 16.

Addressing the jury Tuesday, defence counsel admitted Michaud killed his wife March 16 with a hammer but said the two had argued and the woman first rushed at the husband with the hammer. Michaud then "lost his head," grasped the hammer and struck her over the head.

Crown Attorney Henri Masson-Loranger said medical evidence regarding the blows showed there had been no struggle.

Royal, Princely Families Arrive For Coronation

By MICHAEL NEWMARCH

LONDON (AP)—Princess Margherita of Baden is switching a starched nurse's cap for a ball [illegible] and sipping quietly into Buckingham Palace.

The Sultan of Perak can't decide between his blue robes and his purple.

Sobhuza II of Swaziland is checking on Coronation details.

In a word, royal and princely families from perfumed palaces and mud-hut capitals are [illegible] in for the Coronation of the Queen and they are as much agog as London's east end Cockneys.

Many have urgent problems of dress, diet or protocol. London's officials and hoteliers are taking in their stride menus for Arab potates.

Thirty representatives of the world's royal families—not including British royalty—will drive from Buckingham Palace to the abbey as official guests of Queen Elizabeth. Scores more royal visitors, African chiefs and Oriental princes have seats in the abbey for the ceremony.

AGAINST TRADITION

No kings or queens of sovereign powers will be present, since it's against tradition for an independent monarch to attend the crowning of another. In their stead some of Europe's senior princes will attend.

Some of the royal visitors illustrate how old-fashioned ideas of pomp and circumstance have changed.

Twenty - one - year - old Princess Margherita of Baden, a pretty young German girl with wavy hair and laughing eyes, is a hard-working nurse at London's St. Thomas's hospital. Her uncle, the Duke of Edinburgh, invited her to put her starched uniform aside and move from the uncarpeted wards to a richly-furnished room in the palace. She'll sit in the abbey as his guest.

In one carriage procession will be five Malay sultans—Selangor, Kelantan, Johore, Perak, and Brunei; the sultans of Zanzibar and Lahej, and the only reigning queen beside Elizabeth attending—dusky, six-foot-three Queen Salote Tupou of the Pacific Tonga Islands. All are from British-protected territories.

The Sultan of Selangor's robes for the day are worth $70,000, including a diamond-studded gold belt and a 200-year-old kris, or wavy-bladed Malay knife.

The Sultan of Perak has decided on a headdress with an aigrette of diamonds but still is hesitating between his bright blue and his purple robes of state.

Dark - skinned potentates with strange, resounding titles are arriving from Africa by almost every boat and plane.

RCMP CHANGES — Assistant RCMP Commissioner A. T. Belcher (left), 50, commanding K division, Alberta, has been appointed to Ottawa headquarters as senior assistant commissioner. His successor at K division is Assistant Commissioner G. J. M. Curleigh (centre), 50, a native of England, previously commander of H division, Nova Scotia. At right is Assistant Commissioner J. Howe, 54, of Regina who takes command of H division. He previously commanded O division with headquarters in Toronto.

Long Litigation Over Arena Ends

FORT FRANCES (CP)—Lengthy litigation between this town and a Brantford building company over completion of the community memorial arena here has finally been settled with the town agreeing to pay $6,500. The arena has been in use for several years.

Originally, the agreed price of the building was $228,000. Legal difficulties arose after the arena committee had paid $174,400.

G. C. Frostad of Pyramid Concrete Products company of Brantford sued the town for $81,000 for deferment of contract. The town counterclaimed for about $100,000, charging loss of use and poor construction.

Town council passed a by-law Monday approving the action.

Missions Need More Money For Home Work

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—"We're short of dollars, we can't keep up with Canada's growing population—but we'll keep trying," Dr. J.A. Munro, home missions secretary for the Presbyterian Church in Canada, declared here Wednesday.

Dr. Munro was replying to assertions made by Ellen Douglas, Vancouver, hospital visitor, who spoke at an earlier session of the four-day annual meeting of the Presbyterian Women's Missionary Society Council (western division) at New St. James Presbyterian Church.

Miss Douglas deplored the lack of extension work done by the Presbyterian church in Vancouver.

SURVEY OF MISSIONS

Surveys of the church's missions in Canada and overseas occupied delegates.

Frieda K. Matthews, Toronto, national executive secretary, directed reports of missions, schools and centres in Canada. Muriel Judd of Vancouver outlined the extensive work there with Chinese, as well as in the Chinese mission in Montreal.

Miss Matthews said classes for new Canadians started in both Windsor and Sudbury when it was brought to the church's attention that a little boy in each city wished to learn English.

PILES

All you need is a one bottle trial of the New Pyltone Treatment to show you the difference of this modern way—a liquid medication, compounded from special Gums, Balsams and Plant Extracts, that reaches the internal cause of Piles. Pyltone gives results that satisfy with one bottle or price refunded at once. Try the New Pyltone Treatment and get results you expect. $2.25 at all modern druggists or mailed—Pyltone Co., Vancouver, B.C.

GRAVES REMIND DRIVERS—Police in Kansas City have opened a "graveyard" to remind autoists of the deadly dangers of bad driving. Police Chief Bernard Branon, left, and Lt.-Col. Frank Collins place a white cross, representing the 33rd traffic fatality, on the police station's front lawn. The city's total for the entire year of 1952 was 31 traffic deaths.

Decide Family Died Of Poison

AILSA CRAIG, Ont. (CP)—Death of an Ailsa Craig mother and her two daughters on April 3 was caused by strychnine poisoning, a five-man jury decided here Wednesday following a four-hour inquest. The jury's findings said the husband, Alvin Leslie Lewis, was free of any blame in the triple deaths.

Mrs. Alvin Lewis and her daughters, Shirley May 14, and Mildred Jane, 11, were found dead in their McGillivray township farm home by Mr. Lewis when he returned from work in the bush.

The jury found that strychnine had been purchased by Shirley May from two Parkhill drug stores on the strength of a note written by her mother and bearing the name of her father.

Mr. Lewis said his wife suffered "nervous trouble at various times since we were married in 1938."

KILLED BY LIVE WIRE

DESERONTO (CP)—Larry Roebuck, 23, public utility commission worker, was killed Wednesday when he came into contact with a live 2,000-volt power line here, 20 miles east of Belleville. Roebuck was working on a transformer and was disconnecting fuses at the top of a 30-foot pole.

Lakevale Ladies' Aid Plans Bake Sale

FOWLER'S CORNERS (ENS)—The Lakevale Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. Melville Deyell with a good attendance.

The scripture reading was given by Mrs. R. McAdam with Mrs. M. Moncrief leading in prayer. Mrs. Harold Archer chose as her topic "The Day's Strength" based on Deuteronomy, chapter 33.

The ladies will hold a bake sale May 30. Mrs. Harold Archer offered her home for the June meeting. The meeting was brought to a close be repating the Mizpah benediction.

A social hour was enjoyed with the hostess and committee in charge serving lunch.

JAILED FOR CATTLE THEFT

BRAMPTON (CP)—Stanley Hayes 37, and Melville Butler, 48, both of Toronto, were sentenced Wednesday to six months in reformatory on charges of cattle theft. A third man, John Perdue, 28, of nearby Caledon East, elected to stand trial in higher court on the same charge. Police said Hayes admitted theft of 12 head of cattle from the farm of Elgin Banks last Nov. 9 and 25 head from Murray Nelson Butler was convicted of taking part in the theft from the Banks' farm.

MCCANN NOMINATED

RENFREW (CP)—Revenue Minister McCann Wednesday was nominated Liberal candidate in Renfrew South in the forthcoming federal election. He was not opposed. Dr. McCann has represented the riding in Parliament since the 1935 election.

PAIR OF FRENCH DOLLS

Someone owns a pair of French dolls and they have never claimed them, officials of the Horticultural Society, who sponsored the Variety Fair on Monday night, said today. These two dolls are at the YWCA and the holder of ticket 21 in red can claim them.

WANT ARBITRATION

The union of the city's outside employees has informed the board of works that they wish their wage question to proceed to arbitration. Acting Mayor Miller remarked at the board of works meeting that the sub-committee had offered five cents an hour more than authorized by the board in their final attempt at settlement.

RESERVE DECISION

The Ontario Labor Relations Board have reserved their decision on the application of the International Association of Machinists (AFL-TLC) to be bargaining agents for the DeLaval production workers. The bargaining unit is believed to be 284. Union representatives filed 241 cards from DeLaval employees. The OLRB's decision will likely be announced within the next 10 days.

BANCROFT'S SPIRIT

Of more than 3,000 flags Arnold Deyell had for sale, Bancroft bought 2,300 for distribution among school children of the village and district on Coronation Day. That is an indication of the spirit in which the North Hastings community has been planning its celebration. Every youngster in the Bancroft parade will receive a flag as a souvenir of the historic event.

AFL HELPS CIO

As a gesture of solidarity in the ranks of organized labor, AFL unions in the city are sponsoring a movie that will net the striking Quaker Oats workers a silver collection. The special film show—on a trade union topic—will be shown free of charge to the public at the PCVS Auditorium, 8 p.m. Sunday. A silver collection will be taken up for the strikers who are a local in the CIO-CCL. The movie is being sponsored by the International Association of Machinists (AFL-TLC), now organizing the DeLaval plant, and the Peterborough Trades and Labor Council (TLC).

No Further Action Taken On Site

Alderman Says Land Secondary Choice; Purchase Authorized

Although city council has authorized purchase at $20,000 of the Dominion Woollens and Worsted Co. property that is vacant west of their plant on McDonnel St., no further action of transfer has taken place, according to information at the city hall.

One of the members of the council said: "I hope it isn't used as the site of the Memorial Community Centre", and another: "The intention was to secure it as a secondary choice if we can't get a location at Morrow Park."

Final details of negotiation with the company were left to the Mayor, and that means at present to Acting Mayor T. D. Miller. The company quoted $26,000 for the property and the council affirmed its readiness to purchase at $20,000.

C. B. Merrett, manager of Woollens, said this afternoon that the council's proposal was discussed this morning with representatives of the council.

FINAL DETAILS

"We discussed the final details and the offer from the city, and that's about where the matter stands now," Mr. Merrett said.

Acting Mayor Miller told the Examiner the city is ready to close the purchase whenever the deed is forthcoming from the company.

That is the present position in the conversations between the company and the city.

Salient in the council's action is the fact,—the Dominion Woollens land is not considered solely as the site of the Community Centre.

Both Aldermen Dewart and Anglesey have declared their hope that the Morrow Park project is still a vital consideration in the securing of ground for the Community Centre, and that at the most the Woollens property is regarded at present as only an alternative in the event that no more suitable location turns up.

Health Clinics Start In June

Child Health Clinics will be operated as usual by the Department of Health during June, Dr. J. P. Wells, medical officer of health, said today. This announcement is contrary to previous plans and announcements made by the department which were based on an anticipation of polio in the district.

"Ordinarily polio goes in cycles and it was predicted that this would be a heavy year," Dr. Wells said. "It was expected that it would have started by now. However there have only been occasional cases reported in the province so far."

The medical officer of health explained that June clinics had been cancelled because the department did not want to encourage the congregation of children if polio was existent in the city. Arrangements were made for immunization programs to be completed by special appointment at the department office.

The unexpected absence of polio and relatively few cases elsewhere in the province has caused a reversal of plans and clinics will continue until the end of June, unless there is a sudden outbreak. Clinics will not be held during July, August and September.

9 Teachers Pass Examinations

College of Education results show nine city teachers passed examinations in education and pedagogy. Three of these are recommended for degrees —one bachelor of pedagogy, two bachelors of education.

Two district men are included on the list.

J. D. Telford, principal of King Edward School will receive his B. Paed., J. D. McNabb of PCVS and Norman Erskine of Kenner Collegiate are recommended for Bachelor of Education degrees.

Following are examinations passed: development of modern educational systems: Mr. Erskine, R. K. McKee, principal of Queen Alexandra School; Mr. McNabb, W. L. McNeil of Queen Mary School, who will be principal this fall of the new Armour Heights School. P. J. Moher of St. Alphonsus' Separate School; J. G. Nichols, principal of Confederation School; C. E. Potts of Peterborough Normal School; Mr. Telford.

Development of modern educational thought and practice: Mr. Erskine, Mr. McNabb, Mr. Nichols.

School law and administration of education in Ontario: Mr. McKee, Mr. McNeil, Mr. Potts, C. W. Roberts of Cobourg.

Intelligence and its measurement: John Londerville, Peterborough Normal School.

Mental health and child study: Mr. Londerville.

J. F. Burns of Tweed was recommended for a B.Paed. degree.

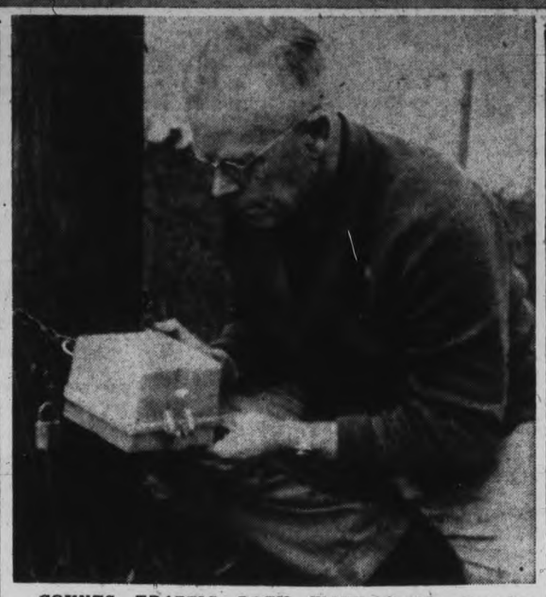
Urges Increased Pay For Clergy

Dr. Gordon R. Langley of Peterborough, a delegate to the Synod of the Anglican diocese of Toronto, said Wednesday that thoughtlessness and lack of knowledge were responsible for the great injustice in remuneration of the church's ministers.

When general wages had risen 64% in a given period, he said, the annual stipend allowed ministers in rural areas had decreased 6½%.

"We are guilty of a great injustice to dedicated men," was his emphatic expression.

The Synod passed a resolution on Dr. Langley's motion that a pamphlet entitled Just Stipend for Our Clergy be distributed to all parishes in the hope that action would be taken locally. It recommends that a starting stipend of $2,500 be allowed each minister on ordination, increased by $100 a year to $4,400 for city clergy and $3,900 for rural clergy.



Interview Applicants For Campbellford Post

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—Five applicants for the position of chief constable of Campbellford will be given personal interviews at the regular meeting of town council Monday night.

The decision to have the interviews was reached Wednesday night at a special meeting of council. They narrowed down the number of applicants from 23 to five and then decided to see each one of them personally.

Acting-Chief Constable Wilfred Cargin resigned a month ago after succeeding Chief Constable George Hardy who died earlier this year.

COUNTS TRAFFIC BOTH WAYS—Orville Spencer, Toronto, traffic department, Department of Highways, experimented Wednesday with a new traffic counter on Highway 7 near Norwood. The new device which requires two wires (top photo) stretched across the highway instead of one, counted the cars and trucks coming easterly and westerly during 24 hours. Mr. Spencer reads the counter (lower photo). It recorded 1,850 vehicles along that stretch between 3 p.m. Tuesday and 3 p.m. Wednesday. The counter helps provide the department with information for the planning of highways. —(Examiner Staff Photos)

Say Substitute Inspector May Be Available For June

As sequel to the city councils' acceptance of the resignation of Sanitary Inspector R. M. MacPreson, as of June 15, the board of health Wednesday afternoon granted his request including the holiday period prior to that date to which his service entitled him. Ald. J. A. Dewart, chairman of the board, presided, with Ald. P. J. Anglesey, Acting-Mayor T. D. Miller and Dr. J. P. Wells, MOH, present.

The only condition in the motion by Ald. Anglesey and Dr. Wells, acceding to the holiday period for Mr. MacPherson until June 15, was a notation asking him to turn in his monthly record for May and generally brings his reports up to date and wind up any unfinished business.

Ald. Dewart asked Dr. Wells what position the department would be in as a result of Mr. MacPherson's resigning. Dr. Wells said that he had been in conversation with the head of the Toronto health department, and was told that a man would be available during June if Peterborough was interested. He had a month's holiday coming, but wished to work at something.

Dr. Wells said that a veterinarian was not available, but he felt that a sanitarian who had been associated with him in another community would be interested in the Peterborough vacancy. He is now employed and would have to give a month's notice there before being free.

"This man was two years with me; he is a senior sanitarian, and I regard him as a friend," Dr. Wells said.

NO SERIOUS DISRUPTION

The promised "loan" from Toronto to appeared to be assurance that the health department's work would not be seriously disrupted.

As to the holiday period for Mr. MacPherson, Dr. Wells said: "He hasn't been to the office Monday and Tuesday this week, and I don't think it should take him more than a day to complete his records before leaving."

It was mentioned [illegible] coming man would be prepared to do farm work, which had gradually devolved to Dr. Harold Worton in the period prior to his promotion to the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Dr. Wells reported that Plumbing Inspector Metheral had offered to help the health department in any way possible by himself and his staff. He suggested that they routine of restrooms and work of that kind.

That offer was accepted in a motion by Acting Mayor Miller and Ald. Anglesey, and with the board's expression of thanks for willingness to co-operate if required.

Acting Mayor Miller said that some citizens had been asking him why were several resignations by employees of long service, up to 15 years, in Peterborough's department.

"One of the things they are asking is whether the employees in that length of service were efficient," he said, and added if he had to bear the brunt of questioning, he would like to have an answer.

Hire Consultant For Industry In Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS).—An English industrial consultant has been hired by the Campbellford Council. His job will be to try and get industries now in the British Isles to settle in this town.

The decision to hire Alexander P. Wales, industrial consultant, to act on the town's behalf was reached during a special meeting of the council Wednesday night. Mr. Wales was granted a retainer fee of $600 and he will get further payment if a British industry does start up business here.

The project is a joint effort by the council and the Campbellford Chamber of Commerce.

NAME DELEGATES

Two delegations were also named:

One consists of Reeve William Nicholls and Councillor G. H. Free who will attend the meeting of the Northumberland High School Area Board in Warkworth tonight.

The other consists of Mayor R. J. Locke, Reeve Nichols, Deputy-Reeve Douglas Maybee, and Councillors Isobel Tatham and G. H. Free, who will attend the next meeting of the Seymour Township Council. They will discuss the possible inclusion of Seymour Township in the Campbellford Arena Board.

There is talk of putting artificial ice in the Campbellford Arena this year and council are seeking district support before going ahead with the project.

Charge Vagrant With 3 Blazes

Ronald Genereau, 23, no fixed address, who was committed to the Ontario Hospital, Kingston, for two months today for examination, faces three charges of arson which have been adjourned until July 27.

He is charged with setting three fires, one at National Grocers warehouse which did $100 damage on January 30, 1951, another at the same place doing $50 damage on March 15, 1952, and a third at Loblaw's on March 26 of this year, which did about $30 damage.

The charges were laid by city police after an investigation by the provincial fire marshal's office.

Arthur Black Heads City Kinsmen Club

Arthur Black was elected president of the Peterborough Kinsmen Club Wednesday at their annual election.

Elected to the office of first vice-president was Howard Powell; William Roche was elected second vice-president.

William Keen, Jack Cummings, Bill Godson, George Ball and V. J. Bud LaPlante were elected to the board of directors.

John Robertson was elected treasurer of the club and by acclamation, Karl MacKay was appointed secretary and Bob Hamilton was elected editor of the Kinsmen Bulletin by acclama-

Youth, 19, Dies After Oshawa Crash

OSHAWA (CP)—Grant Logie, 19, of Toronto was fatally injured Wednesday night when his car collided head-on with another containing four Oshawa teen-agers.

The crash occurred on a country road northeast of Whitby. Logie was taken to hospital at Oshawa and later to Toronto, where he died early today.

The four Oshawa residents suffered shock and cuts. Their condition was reported satisfactory.

Cobourg Minister Ordained At Oshawa

OSHAWA (CP)—Two young men from Kingston presbytery and one from Cobourg presbytery were ordained into the ministry of the United Church of Canada here Wednesday night.

They were David Donald Davidson and Charles Edgar Clarke of Kingston, and Leslie Joseph Hardy of Cobourg. The ordination ceremony, attended by some 400 persons who filled almost every pew in Simcoe Street United Church, was held in connection with the Bay of Quinte conference of the church.

Labor Dept. Intervenes In Quaker Oats Strike, Meeting Called For June 3

Offer To Mediate Dispute Made By Deputy Minister Metzler To Both Company and Union

The Ontario Department of Labor have now intervened directly to try and end the strike at the Quaker Oats Co. plant in Peterborough. Four hundred and thirty five production workers went on strike here on April 22 when the company did not meet their contract proposals and they were followed within a matter of hours by 130 other production workers at the Saskatoon plant. J. B. Metzler, deputy-minister of labor, on Wednesday sent a telegram to both the union and the company, as follows:

"The strike in the Quaker Oats Co., Peterborough, has been going on since April 22. If you feel we can be of any assistance in settling this strike I am giving an invitation to both parties to meet with Dept. of Labor officers on Wednesday, June 3, in Room 6407, East Block of Parliament Buildings, Toronto, at 10 a.m.

"Advise me if you are in accord with this suggestion and that you will have representatives present."

COMPANY ACCEPTS

Lewis H. Ingram, company vice-president, said today that Reginald R. Faryon, company president, had already sent a telegram to Deputy-Minister Metzler saying that they would be pleased to have representatives at the proposed meeting.

Local 293, United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL), have not yet sent a reply. The matter will be discussed tonight at an executive meeting when Charles Borsk of Toronto, UPWA international representative, will be present. It is expected, however, that the union will also send representatives.

William Triggs, president of Local 293, told the Examiner today that so far as the union are concerned it is not just a matter of negotiations between Local 293 and the Quaker Oats Co. When the strike began the decision by union officials was that the strike at Peterborough and Saskatoon were part and parcel of the same thing and must be settled together.

Deputy-Minister Metzler's jurisdiction is limited to Ontario; he has no authority in Saskatchewan where Local 418, UPWA, are also on strike.

The Peterborough employees are striking for a reduction of the work week from 44 to 40 hours, a five-day week from Monday to Friday (no swing shift), and a basic wage of $1.39½ an hour, similar to the Maple Leaf and Robin Hood Mills in Port Colborne. The present basic rate is $1.18½.

They rejected the majority report of a conciliation board signed by Judge J. C. Reynolds of Kingston, chairman, and E. Macauley Dillon, QC, of Toronto, company nominee. The majority report recommended:

An increase of 7½ per cent retroactive to Jan. 1; a further increase of 2½ per cent effective Sept. 1; and a further increase of 2½ per cent effective Jan. 1, 1954, bringing the basic rate up to $1.33½ by Jan. 1, 1954. The report also recommended the 40-hour week after signing the agreement and said the company should be allowed to bring in swing shifts if necessary.

Peterborough management have said that the majority report is acceptable to them.

Saskatoon employees, not involved in the Ontario conciliation board's findings, are asking for a general wage increase of 10 per cent and a 40-hour week, retroactive to Feb. 1. The company agreed to a 40-hour week effective Sept. 1 with no reduction of take-home pay.

POLITE SKIRMISHING

Meanwhile in Peterborough polite skirmishing is going on between the company and the union.

Union President Triggs said today that Local 293 are assembling reports that departmental managers on Wednesday afternoon and night were visiting with strikers and sounding them out. The departmental managers discussed a letter sent to each employee earlier in the week by James G. Wharry, general manager. And they asked the employees on what terms they, personally, would be willing to go back to work, said Mr. Triggs.

Mr. Wharry's letter said in part: "The union executive may object to our directly talking with the employees. Since the interests of the company and the employees are tied together, we believe you should be aware of the company's position.

"The attached replies are those given by the company in response to numerous inquiries by employees including those raised by employees on the picket lines on Thursday last.

Plan $500,000 Drive For New Churches

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto diocese of the Church of England in Canada soon will start a campaign for more than $500,000 to help build new churches in the diocese.

Dean C. E. Riley, chairman of the church extension committee, announced the estimate at the Toronto synod Wednesday, meeting on the church's 150th anniversary.

Richard H. Dawson

The funeral for Richard Henry Dawson, 530 Bonaccord St., who died Saturday, was held Wednesday from the family residence.

Archdeacon C. W. Balfour conducted the service.

Honorary pallbearers were Joseph Detcher, Robert Baker, Gerald Wood, James Harkness, Percy Hooper, Nelson Routley. Active pallbearers were James D. Trotter, Robert Creighton, Milton Lawden, Paul Dawson, William D. Johnston, William Hamilton.

SCOTLAND YARD—More than a century ago one of the houses of Whitehall Palace—the old residence of the Kings of England—was called "Scotland Yard." When the London police force started a detective branch in 1842, it was housed in this yard, and Scotland Yard became associated in the public mind with London police. Thus, when police headquarters moved to more spacious premises near Westminster bridge in 1890, the name went with them. New Scotland Yard now consists of three blocks built in 1890, 1905 and 1940.

Variety Concert Held In Bancroft

BANCROFT (ENS)—A public school variety concert organized by the Home and School Association was presented in the high school auditorium on Friday evening. Each class from the kindergarten tots to grade 8 pupils provided entertainment and several solo items were enjoyed.

Public school inspector Alec Smith was MC.

Pupils Mary Ann Wragg, Ida Auzias, Mary Martin, Janice Barker, Lorraine Watson, Gail Mather, Fern Laundry and David Jenkins played piano solos and recitations were rendered by Joyce Hillis, Donnie Taylor, Annie Gorgerat, Carol Shapiro, Marie Goodkey and Freda Sararas.

Soloists were Judy Stringer, Patsy Montreuil, Lois Ray, Cicile and Jackie White, Marlene Peever and Mavis Caud. Tap dancing was by Donna Turner, Gail Mather, Elizabeth Follis, Thelma Towle and Mary Martin.

Songs by Grade 1, 7 and 8 and a choir from Lake St. Peter school interspersed with short plays made up the balance of the program.

Clergymen Advised To Know Provincial Marriage Laws

TORONTO.—Ministers of the church could get into serious trouble if they did not acquaint themselves with the marriage laws of their province, warned the Rev. G. C. Pidgeon at the 29th annual conference of the United Church of Canada Wednesday.

Marriage laws were different in every province of Canada, said Dr. Pidgeon. In Quebec, he said, the prospective bride and groom were required to furnish two references as well as the licence before they could be married. Easier laws in British Columbia brought many Americans across the border for wedding ceremonies.

"Knowing the laws of the province is as necessary as knowing the order of the ceremony," said Dr. Pidgeon. He criticized ministers who buried their noses in the service book during wedding ceremonies. "A minister should know his order of service well enough to use his book only as a steadying influence for himself and the bridal pair," said Dr. Pidgeon. "The core of every wedding ceremony should be the personality of the minister presiding."

THREE MAIN PROBLEMS

Dr. Pidgeon said he believed the three main problems confronting a minister in dealing with weddings were mixed marriages, runaway weddngs and divorced persons. In the case of mixed marriages, Dr. Pidgeon said he believed the minister should do all he could to prevent the wedding.

"In many cases the couple has no conception of the problems of Protestant-Roman Catholic marriages," he said. "The minister shoud have no hesitation in pointing out the gloomy side of the picture, and to describe the heartache that always accompanies such unions. As in dealing with provincial laws, Protestant ministers should equip themselves thoroughly with information concerning the laws of the Roman Catholic Church."

Dr. Pidgeon said that cases of runaway marriages should be dealth with at the discretion of the minister. He said he had often refused to marry runaways because he had felt the wedding would be a great blow to the families concerned.

Many churches, he said, were still refusing to marry divorced persons. Modern life had somewhat changed the church's attitude toward divorce over the years, said Dr. Pidgeon, but he was still in grave doubt concerning the remarriage of the guilty party in a divorce case. "However, I see no reason why the innocent party should be condemned to live a solitary life," he added.

Dr. Pidgeon said it was time the United Church protested strongly to the government concerning "fixed" divorces. He condemned the practice as revolting, and said requests from both parties for remarriage should be approached warily by the church.

Fifth Victim Of Tornado Dies In London Hospital

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Ida Land, 72, of East Nissouri township, near Kintore, became the fifth victim of last week's tornado when she died in hospital here Wednesday.

She suffered severe shock after seeing the home of her two sons, with whom she lived, and their large barns blown away, and had been in serious condition since.

London's tornado relief fund will go to those who need assistance most, regardless of where they live, officials said as Western Ontario organized on a dozen fronts or more to aid storm-blasted homes and farms.

Mayor W. C. Nelson of Sarnia said that all contributions received by Sarnia would be kept for the city's own relief fund unless donors specified that the money was to be used by the central London fund for general relief purposes.

TO SET UP FUND

Lions Clubs of region 2 decided at Strathroy to set up a fund for financial assistance to the storm victims.

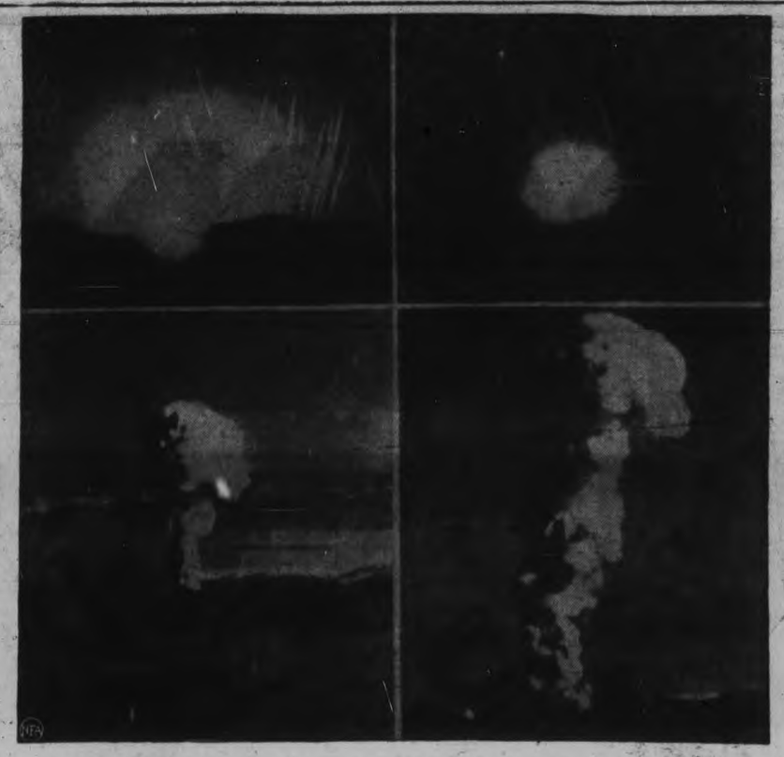
Besides donations from the 15 clubs in the region, money will be sought from other clubs across Canada. While no definite object was set, it was noted that Lions in Canada raised $70,000 for European Food relief.

Cash donations already paid into the Sarnia tornado relief fund have passed the $7,000 mark and pledges have been received for an additional $5,000 it was disclosed at Sarnia.

In the West Zorra area, a house-to-house canvass for funds to help tornado victims started Wednesday.

NEED MILLION

L. E. Cardiff, federal member of Parliament for North Huron, said at Wingham that it will cost at least $1,000,000 to replace wrecked barns and other buildings alone as the result of damage by Monday night's cyclonic wind.



The government of Canada, through acting Prime Minister Brooke Claxton, expressed deep regret at damage suffered by Huron county residents by Monday's storm. Mr. Claxton's message was addressed to A. Y. McLean, MP for Huron-Perth.

Municipal Tax Act Doesn't Benefit All

HAMILTON (CP)—The Municipal Tax Assessment Act benefits some municipalities substantially but many others receive nothing, Hamilton's assessment commissioner Norman Wilkes said Wednesday.

Speaking during a panel discussion on city assessments at the 12th annual meeting of the Association of Assessing Officers of Ontario, Mr. Wilkes said the act superficially appears to be a great boon to municipalities. Actually, he said, while it is a step in the right direction, it is a very small step.

Assessment officers from municipalities in all parts of Ontario are attending the two-day conference.

Mr. Wilkes said the bill permits the province to pay to the municipalities on property owned by the Crown in the right of Ontario or any Crown agency. He emphasized however, the legislation was permissive only, not obligatory.

Gordon K. Fraser Remembers Babies Born On Coronation Day

Peterborough babies born on Coronation Day will be specially honoured by Federal member, Gordon K. Fraser, who has announced he will present each one with a sterling silver spoon. This will be suitably engraved as a keepsake of the Coronation of Her Gracious Majesty.

Every baby born to a resident of Peterborough Federal riding on Coronation Day, June 2, 1953, will be presented with this souvenir.

This follows out the same type of gift presented by Mr. Fraser at the time of the birth of Prince Charles and again Princess Anne.

It is hoped that eligible mothers will write to Mr. Fraser personally at 163 Hunter St. W., Peterborough, for their Coronation spoons, giving baby's name.

"When I'm big I'll lay eggs for the WHOLE-EGG mayonnaise!"

You know how important whole eggs are in baking.

The same holds true for mayonnaise. It's whole eggs, freshly broken, that give Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise its smoother texture, subtle, distinctive flavor.

And Hellmann's gives you more for your money because you can blend it with other ingredients—make it go farther!

Try Hellmann's today! See what a difference its whole-egg smoothness makes in salads and sandwich fillings!

Marvellous Change In London From Drab, Rationed Wartime

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Yippee! Silk stockings again.

That's one of the most marvellous changes in old London town for the visitor who hasn't been here since wartime. Then, a man would walk from Marble Arch to Piccadilly Circus on the chance he might see a pair of legs sheathed in silk stockings. A woman would walk much farther to beg, borrow or steal a pair.

Canadian servicemen used to refer to London as the "big smoke." With Coronation at hand, it now might be called "big glitter."

There's paint for one thing.

And lights, of course. Not as much fun now as in the blackout days, but lots fewer bruises and eyes poked out.

There's food, and it's edible. No more sausages stuffed only with bread crumbs. Fish and chips isn't out of fashion, but there are lots of other things. You can even see a child in the street eating a banana or an orange.

Prices are higher than during the war, when they were controlled. But they compare pretty favorably with Canadian prices, considering what you get. You can buy almost anything, though the housewife still finds it a little tough to make do with her ration books.

You can get more than a beer or a gin and lemon in the pubs. In fact, you can buy any liquor in the pubs, as well as food, such as sandwiches, sausage rolls, cheeses, pickles and so on. The pubs aren't the two-hour floods of wartime, when you had to drink at a rapid clip to get a renewal before the place closed. They are open a half-hour or hour longer and you can buy a scotch right up to closing time.

ALARMING CHANGE

There is one alarming change in the pubs, perhaps due to the American influence. Many publicans do not close up with "time, gentlemen, please," but say, "drink up, drink up."

The underground is as efficient as ever. It is good to see among things missing those steel bunks where thousands slept every night in the tubes. Advertising in the tubes during the war was confined almost entirely to theatres, because they were the only people who had anything to sell. Now there are ads for everything, from silk stockings to soap to razor blades. This is because there's just about anything you'd want in the stores.

The theatres are more active. There now are enough men for song-and-dance numbers in musical revues. During the war, some women had to act as the male partners in such numbers because all the men were off to war.

Whereas there were only taxis during the war, thousands of cars jam the streets now. There are diners on trains, tinfoil on cigarettes, ice cream in restaurants, ketchup on the table and gaiety throughout old London town.

WHAT A FISH! — One-year-old Ronnie Coleman didn't catch that huge fish but its size intrigues him. Graham Cowles, 14, of Winnipeg, landed the 25-pound northern pike in one of the poorest (except for Graham) weekend openings of the fishing season in the memory of Winnipeg fishermen.

Anti-Red Stations Broadcast Coronation

FRANKFURT, Germany (CP)—Powerful anti - Communist radio stations in Munich and Berlin will tell the story of the Coronation to listeners behind the iron curtain in special broadcasts June 2.

Polish, Czech and Hungarian commentators will describe the scene in Westminster Abbey when the Queen is crowned.

Radio Free Europe will also broadcast the Queen's address to the Commonwealth and Prime Minister Churchill's Coronation speech.

The United States High Commission's radio in the American sector, will beam an hour's Coronation coverage into East Germany.

New Jet Fighter

LONDON (AP)—The Vickers Armstrong Aircraft Company said Tuesday it has a new jet fighter with "climb, endurance and manoeuvrability unsurpassed by any fighter in the world." The plane is an improved version of the Supermarine Swift, a one-jet fighter with swept back wings that already has broken the sound barrier. The swift is a direct descendant of the wartime Spitfire.

Uranium Rush

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—A full-scale uranium rush is under way in the big Indian valley area in extreme southeastern Utah, the Deseret News and Telegram says Wednesday. The paper says atomic energy commission officials describe the area as the "hottest" exploration territory on the Colorado Plateau. Scores of prospectors have invaded the remote area.

Many Canadian Cities Prime Atomic Targets

TORONTO (CP) — Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington, Canadian civil-defence co-ordinator, said Wednesday many Canadian cities are "prime targets" for atom bombs.

"The possibility of attack on North America is very real," he said at a fire-protection conference of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association convention.

Gen. Worthington suggested that the possibility of attack would continue for years to come. "If we were to commence the careful location of our industrial sites now, our cities would reshape themselves and, within 50 years, very few suitable atom bomb targets would exist in Canada," he said.

Will Try To Crack Sound Barrier In Jet

DANSVILLE, N. Y. (AP)—Physical culturist Bernarr MacFadden said Wednesday he plans to celebrate his 85th birthday Aug. 16 by trying to crack the sound barrier in a jet aircraft.

MacFadden marked his 81st, 83rd and 84th birthdays with parachute jumps from planes.

The magazine publisher who scoffs at old age said clearance for the faster-than-sound flight is being sought from the U. S. Air Force.

He added that he is asking Jacqueline Cochrane to pilot him on the flight. Miss Cochrane recently became the first woman to fly faster than sound (about 700 miles per hour at sea level).

Says Punishment Fails To Reform Any Criminals

OTTAWA (CP)—Dr. A. W. MacLeod, assistant director of Montreal's mental hygiene institute, said Wednesday that punishment is useless as a deterrent or reformative influence on criminals.

He told the annual meeting of the Canadian Welfare Council that punishment was treating only the symptoms and not the social disease which lay at the root of crime. Crime was not an individual aberration but a group henomenon.

"The group, not the individual, is the source of the crime problem."

There was no evidence that segregation of criminals in large groups achieved either protection for society or reform of the individual. He also said corporal punishment in relation to physical pain had no reformative value at all.

Ronald Grantham, assistant editor of the Ottawa Citizen, described capital punishment as "legalized murder." In a plea for a fresh approach to the problem, he said the facts of capital punishment should be studied in the light of modern criminology, psychiatry and sociology.

Says Ottawa Ruined Export Market

ST. THOMAS (CP)—George Hees, Progressive Conservative member for Toronto Broadview, charged Wednesday night that the federal government has "ruined" Canada's export market by its "short-sighted policies."

"Undoubtedly the reason why the government is planning a summer election for the first time in nearly 100 years is so that the people will not have a chance to realize the seriousness of its blundering export trade policy before they go to the polls," Mr. Hees said.

In a speech prepared for the Elgin County Progressive Conservative Association, he said the government should call for a Commonwealth conference to discuss trade issues specifically to prevent further deterioration in Canada's foreign markets.

Winnipeg Man First Canadian Posted Guard Duty At Palace

WINNIPEG (CP)—Sgt. W. G. Andrews of Winnipeg was the first Canadian soldier in history to be posted to guard duty at Buckingham Palace. He admits it was accidental.

The incident occurred at the time of the coronation of King George VI when Canadians mounted seven guards each at Buckingham Palace and St. James's Palace on May 9, 1937.

CADET INSTRUCTOR

Sergeant Andrews, an instructor with the Royal Canadian Army Cadets of Prairie command, recalled the incident when he learned that next month the Canadian Coronation contingent would mount a full guard at Buckingham Palace for the first time in peacetime.

"It was accidental that I was the first guard to be posted," he said with a broad smile.

"Actually, I was to be the second soldier posted. The guard was being marched alongside the palace fence to the first sentry box. As we reached it the guard commander shouted 'relief halt.'

"All of us were to halt except the soldier next to me. He was supposed to take four or five paces smartly forward and position himself at the box. Well, he halted too and didn't move. I waited a split second watching him out of the corner of my eye. When he still didn't move, I did and took over the first post."

MADE HISTORY

That occasion was the first time in history that Dominion troops took over from the Brigade of Guards one of the most highly prized duties in the British Army. Next month Canada will mount a full guard at the palace.

Sergeant Andrews joined the army in 1929 and served for three years. From 1932 to 1939 he served with the Royal Winnipeg Rifles and rejoined the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry in 1939. During the Second World War he served overseas from December 1939 to December 1943. Married, he lives with his wife and two daughters in Winnipeg. Both daughters are members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps.

PALACE GUARD DUTY—Sgt. W. G. Andrews, of Winnipeg, is the first Canadian soldier in history to have been posted to guard duty at Buckingham Palace. He prizes this photo of the ceremony which occurred during the 1937 Coronation of King George VI. Sgt. Andrews now is an instructor with the Royal Canadian Army Cadets at Prairie Command.

Britain's Millionaire Duke To Establish Canada's Third Industrial Estate In B.C.

By DAVE McINTOSH

LONDON (CP)—The Duke of Westminster, who is worth around £120,000,000—give or take a few millions—is to establish Canada's third industrial estate on Annacis Island in the mouth of the Fraser river.

Slough Estates of England is setting up the first at Ajax, Ont., Canadian millionaire E. P. Taylor the other at Toronto.

The 74-year-old duke, whose fortune was founded nearly 300 years ago, intends to use the British Columbia estate to help British firms tackle North American markets.

The first industrial estate in Britain was established at Trafford Park, Manchester, just before the First World War. Companies leased land along the Manchester ship canal to build factories. The estate supplied roads, water, electricity and so on.

SECOND TYPE

The second type of industrial estate was established after the First World War Slough Estates took over a tract of serviced land 30 miles west of London. It rented warehouses on the land as factory sites, saving the manufacturer both the price of land purchase and erection of a factory.

The Duke of Westminster's Estates, agency for the duke's vast holdings, plans to combine these two types of estates on Annacis Island. It will lease land for factory building and also build factories itself for renting.

The estate will probably press the government for establishment of a free port on the island. A free port is a site where imported goods may be stored or processed until needed and on which duty is not paid until they are moved out of the site and into the country for sale.

During the depression, the British government became alarmed at the depopulation of certain areas, such as northern England, Scotland and the coal valleys of Walts, and the mammoth expansion of London. Twenty-five per cent of all British industry is concentrated in the London area.

20 INDUSTRIAL ESTATES

The government sponsored industrial estates before the Second World War to try to stop the population drift to London, Manchester, Birmingham and Liverpool and give people jobs in their own districts. Today there are around 20 industrial estates in Scotland alone They have attracted thousands of small or secondary industries from the Continent.

Many areas of Canada, including British Columbia, are faced with the problem of attracting secondary industry. Many towns in B. C., for instance, exist on only one crop or industry: apples, lumber or fish.

The duke's plans for 1,200-acre Annacis Island are big. But he does everything like that.

For instance, he "rents" a river in Norway each summer for £3,000 to get in a spot of salmon fishing. One time in the 1930s, he transported 400 guests to his French estate for a boar hunt.

WON'T BE BROKE

Buying an island isn't likely to leave the duke short of cash. The golden 600 acres he owns in London's fashionable West End are valued at £40,000,000. Besides that, he owns another 160,000 acres spread over 10 counties. His £1,000,000 ancestral 100-room home is Eaton Hall, chester. He owns estates in Ireland and southern France.

The duke spends so much money that at one point in 1951 he had 41 building contractors and nine firms of architects working for him. He spent £200,000 to improve dairy herds at his 11,000-acre Eaton Hall estate.

At the same time, he has spent thousands of pounds to build blocks of flats for middle-income families in London's Pimlico.

The duke has been married four times. His first three wives divorced him. His fourth and present wife is a 38-year-old Irishwoman. They were married in 1947.

Says Commies Feel Canada Now "In State of Agitation" IODE Equipped to Combat

EDMONTON (CP)—A national vice-president of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire charged Monday night that the Polish legation in Ottawa has been instrumental in forming new communist centres throughout Canada.

Following her speech to the national IODE convention here, Mrs. J. D. Detwiler, MBE, told reporters she based her claim on an article which appeared recently in the "Intelligence Digest." The monthly publication, edited by Kenneth DeCourcy of London, is published in London and New York.

Mrs. Detwiler, convener of the IODE's special research committee—formerly tagged the "anti-Communist committee" — stated that Communists infiltrating throughout Canada considered the country now to be "in a state of agitation which culminates in revolution."

The strength of the Communist movement in Canada, she said, was increasing through waterfront activities and what she called "front groups." There were now well over 50,000 Communists in Canada.

Referring to a recent issue of the National Affairs Monthly, journal of the Labor-Progressive party, she said Canadian Communists were violently opposed to any amendment to the Criminal Code which would make them liable for prosecution for alleged subversive activity. Such a provision existed during the war.

The first Communist-sponsored school, she said, was not among those exposed recently in Winnipeg areas, but was established in Saskatchewan in 1949. Asked later to explain her statement, she again referred to the National Affairs Monthly.

Mrs. Detwiler said the Labor-Progressive party is the Communist party in Canada. Its procedures were based on those of the Soviet Union and it took its orders from Moscow.

Communists in Canada had openly declared that they are ready to proceed with the "gradual transition" from what they called "socialism" to communism, she said.

The main communistic influences throughout Canada were to be found among Hungarian groups in Toronto, Czechoslovak groups in Montreal and Finnish groups in Winnipeg. However, she wished it declared that these were only generalities.

The vice-president concluded by saying that no Canadian organization was so well equipped to combat communism as the IODE.

In Ottawa, Eugeniusz Markowski, charge d'affaires at the Polish legation, said the statement the legation was forming Communist centres throughout Canada was "completely absurd."

"If there are such centres here, you may know about them but I don't," he said to a reporter.

Police Ladies Gratified By Large Tea Patronage

The Police Ladies were extremely gratified at the large patronage received by the Auxiliary at the tea held Wednesday afternoon in the YWCA Green Room.

It is several years since the ladies held a tea, having been discouraged by bad weather on their day and resulting poor attendance. However, they desire to keep up and increase their welfare work and will use the tea proceeds toward it.

More than 125 guests were welcomed by the president, Mrs. Ernest Beatty, who was assisted by Mrs. Douglas Miller, wife of the acting Mayor. Their tea tickets were taken by Mrs. Robert Menzies.

The policemen's ladies were easily distinguished in the tea room by their floral corsages which were tied with the policemen's colors, double blues.

They had quartette tables laid for the guests with dainty cloths and centre bouquets of lily of the valley. Huge bouquets of lilacs and tulips were around the room, and the tea table, decorated by Mrs. William Scott, featured an interesting silver epergne for which she had chosen variegated tulips in the deeper shades.

The table was covered with a hand-made lace cloth and the centrepiece was highlighted by lighted tapers in silver candelabra. Presiding at the tea urns were Mrs. W. R. Philp, Mrs. John Thompson, Mrs. W. Wigg and Mrs. James Reid.

Tea room conveners were Mrs. Andre Dalton and Mrs. John Morrow and their assistants were Mrs. T. H. Armstrong, Mrs. R. G. Lamb, Mrs. James G. Healey, Mrs. John Cawood, Mrs. J. A. Stringer, Mrs. Grant Gillespie, Mrs. Eldon McDonald, and Mrs. Tilson.

A large supply of home baking was sold out very quickly. Mrs. Garnet Samis, Mrs. Leo Murphy, Mrs. F. E. Lunn and Mrs. Bert Howden were the attendants. The candy table was in charge of Mrs. Douglas Farthing and Mrs. William Amos and Mrs. Gordon Trennum sold the aprons, both tables doing well.

Draw tickets on a hamper of groceries were sold by Mrs. John K. Smith and Mrs. G. S. Gray and the winner of this was Mr. Jack Amos, son of Auxiliary member Mrs. Amos. The draw was made by Mrs. Miller.

Empire Tea Cloth Embodies Emblems Of British Isles

An Empire tea cloth, embodying the rose of England, the thistle of Scotland, the daffodil of Wales and the shamrock of Ireland in its embroidered design, was a feature of much interest at the tea held Wednesday afternon by the WA's of Grace and Stewart Hall at Grace Church.

This cloth has been made by Mrs. E. Partington, a member of the Grace Association, as a souvenir of the time when she was a member of the household of the Palace of Holyrood House, Edinburg, Scotland. The embroidery is done in the natural colors of each emblem on white pure linen, and is so solidly worked that either side can be used.

As well as loaning the cloth for the tea table, Mrs. Partington provided a length of the special coronation ribbon sent her this week from the Old Country and it formed a border for the centre stand on which the decoration was a model of the coronation carriage and eight horses.

Red, white and blue flowers were in two table bouquets and red, white and blue streamers crisscrossed over the heads of guests and decorated the posts in the basement hall.

Mrs. W. H. Gerow was responsible for this effect and was assisted in the arrangement by Mrs. M. Beasley and Mrs. K. Bailey.

Sandwiches for this event were made by the members with Mrs. H. Walker supervising. She was assisted in fixing the plates by Mrs. F. Marsden and Mrs. W. N. Thompson and tea makers were Mrs. J. Ainslie and Mrs. J. Grierson. Others helping in the kitchen were Mrs. G. Sage and Mrs. W. Hargraves.

The tea pourers were Mrs. G. Hanbidge from Stewart Hall and Mrs. M. Ebbitt and Mrs. A. Tripp of Grace. Servers were Mrs. H. Lambert, Mrs. B. L. Hooey, Mrs. J. Wasik, and Mrs. G. Walton of Grace and Mrs. W. Thorn, Miss Gertrude Thompson, Mrs. E. Oliver and Mrs. Willan Hutchinson of Stewart Hall.

Music in the tea room was by Mrs. H. Pickell and Mrs. W. C. Turner.

Mrs. G. Close was hostess in the tea room and in the bazaar room upstairs the president, Mrs. Eric McKintsry, and Mrs. I. G. Pollock received. Tickets were taken by Mrs. J. B. Jackson and Mrs. W. R. Harrison.

The Mission Band had a large booth at which they offered sewn articles, novelties and jewelry, cookies and candy for sale and also had a fish pond for the children. Attendants there were Mrs. J. S. McWilliams, Mrs. D. Smith, Mrs. H. Young, Mrs. H. Porter, Mrs. M. R. Eves and Miss Karen Hooey.

The Grace WA candy table was in charge of Mrs. H. Hosker and Mrs. A. J. Tyler and their home baking was being sold by Mrs. J. Bailey, Mrs. H. Glover, Mrs. H. McMahon and Mrs. F. Sanders.

Stewart Hall had a large home baking table and it was attended by Mrs. E. Thompson, Mrs. D. Chambers and Miss Sarah Armstrong.

Ladies of Grace Church had a wide assortment of bazaar articles including aprons, all of which they had made, and these were sold by Mrs. H. Corner, Mrs. E. Partington, Mrs. E. J. Lovett and Mrs. G. Stewart.

They also had anniversary and special day cards and some books, for sale by Mrs. Walter Page Jr. and Mrs. W. McNutt, and a parcel post sale with Mrs. B. Gash the postmistress.

General convener of this successful event was Mrs. J. Waldie.

Wedding Rings Remain On The Gold Standard

If you're one of the many girls who will trip up the aisle this June, here's what's going on in the wedding ring department. Perhaps you'd like to know what a ring should cost, what the most popular metal is, what the trend is in stones.

Platinum may be the favorite metal for engagement and wedding rings on Park Avenue but the rest of the country prefers yellow gold. That's what young couples are buying in anticipation of June weddings.

These young Canadians are budgeting an average of $150 for diamond engagement - wedding ring combinations, according to the Jewellery Academy. Well over 80 per cent of all engagement and wedding rings are sold in sets.

Both rings are bought at the same time but the wedding ring often is held over on a budget plan until the day draws near.

Few of these couples shop for the enagement ring on a "carat" basis. Many of them don't know the carat size of the ring they buy. But jewellers' reports indicate that the average size of these diamonds is 20 points or one fifth of a carat. ➡

Prospective brides and grooms usually pick an engagement ring in one of the new miracle settings. These settings are planned to place enough white gold or platinum around the stone to build it up and make it look much larger.

Rating next in popularity is the traditional Tiffany setting. This is four-pronged, in white or yellow gold and is preferred by girls who won't want much metal around the stone itself.

Most wedding rings have some stones in them this year. The demand for diamond - encrusted wedding bands has grown steadily, thus replacing the more conventional plain gold or white gold band.

This sentimental survey also reveals that there's a definite upswing in the number of double-ring ceremonies, which became popular during World War II.

THIS PROSPECTIVE BRIDE and groom have just picked out diamond engagement ring-wedding ring combination. They chose gold (most popular this year) in one of the new miracle settings that is planned to place enough gold around the stone to build it up and make it look much larger.

DOROTHY DIX:

Pretends To Be Penitent But Still Receives Gifts

DEAR MISS DIX: Last year my husband had an affair with a married woman. We separated over the liaison, but he soon returned, protesting his love for me and the children. However, the affair isn't entirely ended.

I'm sure they aren't seeing each other, but she sent him cards at Easter and a gift on his birthday. He refuses to write and ask her to stop sending him things. I feel he should return the gifts and cards unopened, but he insists on keeping them. Who is right? Incidentally, I suspect he is receiving other mail from her at the office.

MOLLY D.

THERE'S A WAY

ANSWER: All the facts presented in your rather long letter indicate that your husband's concern is much more for the "other woman" than for you. You are playing second fiddle—and an out-of-tune one at that. You have talked to your husband about the affair, you have spoken to the woman—and all to no avail. Why not try an attack through the woman's husband? A man has little to lose through an extra - marital affair; he can invariably count on his wife waiting around for her penitent husband to come home. An erring wife, on the other hand, risks losing her maintenance and security—which are the prime considerations of a woman who doesn't know what the word "faithful" means. If you get hold of one of her letters to him, re-address it to her husband, at his place of business, if possible. The reaction to this strategy may give the lady quite a shock.

Your husband certainly should have written to the woman breaking up the affair, after he told you he had changed.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 15, and recently have had several dates with a handsome boy who is in several of my classes. For no reason that I know of, he stopped dating me and took another girl out. I was jealous, and wrote him a letter telling him exactly how I felt about it. To my amazement, I have discovered that he showed the letter to several of our mutual friends, who are consequently making fun of me.

DISAPPOINTED

ANSWER: You have learned one valuable lesson, namely, that "handsome is that handsome does"—that good looks sometimes cover an objectionable nature. It was a despicable thing to show your letter to others and thus heap on you the ridicule of your classmates. How you can continue to have any interest in a boy who is so contemptible is more than I can understand. Can't you see him in his true colors, and realize that he is conceited, mean, and incapable of liking anyone but himself? All you can do about the comments of others is to shrug them off with a smile. They'll forget in time about the episode. See that you do the same.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am allowed to date, but must be home by midnight. My boy friend thinks this is too early, so when he leaves me, he goes on to a date with someone else. He wants me to marry him and I do love him. He's 23 and I'm 17.

STELLA A.

ANSWER: If the boy loved you, he wouldn't have the least interest in dating other girls. I'm afraid the "love" is all on your side. A boy closer to your own age would be a much better companion for you.

DEAR MISS DIX: Will you tell me something? If a boy gives a girl his school ring, and they both agree not to go out with anyone else, is that "going steady"? And would it mean that he has the intention of marrying the girl?

MARYANNE L.

ANSWER: You have correctly interpreted the situation as "going steady," but marital intentions are not necessarily implied; that might come up later.

TRADITIONAL RADIANCE of the bride is at least one part calculated. She rehearses many things besides the wedding ceremony—one is her make-up which she has practised until it is perfection. She's sure her colors are right because she has tried different shades for their becomingness with a white dress. On the great day, she applies a colorless lipstick fixative (left) as the last step in her make-up. She won't need to renew her lipstick all day and it won't come off on the groom's face. The bride's hands are much in evidence as she and the groom cut the first slice of wedding cake (centre). A manicure the day before the wedding helped assure their loveliness. A wobbly, insecure walk would detract from the bride's beauty as she goes up the aisle. She practices walking, for days ahead, in a long, full skirt to assure a smooth, graceful, straight carriage. The result: she feels serene in her beauty as she starts up the aisle (right). If you're to be married soon, why not perfect your walk as this girl did?

Head High, Queenly Walk Show Off Wedding Gown

On your wedding day, you'll be the center of attraction from the moment you take your father's arm to the moment you and your groom slip away from the wedding guests.

Many brides are a little nervous just before walking up the aisle, but if you've mastered all your beauty routines well in advance, you'll feel very sure of your lovely appearance.

A beautiful carriage with head held high is essential for showing off your wedding gown to the best advantage. If your balance isn't up to par, you may feel insecure in your walk while all eyes are on you. It may help you to practice these balance steps well before the wedding:

2. From the arch position, take a balance step as follows: Cross the foot that's in the arch position behind the other foot. Your weight should now be evenly distributed on both feet while toes of both feet point straight ahead.

3. Now raise your body up a little on the balls of your feet and simply whirl around, in a half circle.

You'll wind up in reverse position so that you can arch with the other foot and cross and whirl again.

Practice these balance steps many times for graceful movements. If your wedding dress is to be long, wear a long skirt for some of your practice.

Know in advance exactly what make-up you'll wear. It may help to try a make-up with a white dress on to give you proper color values.

On the great day, you won't want to renew your lipstick once it's on. You won't have time for that. To be sure of having it stay on without retouching and to avoid leaving lipstick marks on the groom's and guests' faces, you can wear a colorless fixative over your lipstick.

There's one available which you brush on over any lipstick, indelible or regular. The makers claim that it lasts for hours, even through a meal.

Don't wait for your wedding day to try it for the first time, however. With any cosmetic that you intend to wear on an important occasion, it's best to know well in advance exactly how to use it and what it does for you.

The styling of your hair should also be taken care of well in advance so there'll be no stiffness.

Selwyn W.I. Present Programs

SELWYN (ENS)—The May meeting of the Women's Institute was held in the hall with 17 members present. President Mrs. K. Sweeting was in the chair.

The newly-printed programs for the coming year were distributed. A number of thank-you cards were read from friends who had received gifts from the Institute. Mrs. R. Bell and Mrs. C. Fitzgerald gave a report on the banquet of the Children's Aid Society that they attended in Peterborogh. Mrs. William Elliott had the Tweedsmuir History Book at the meeting for the ladies to see what had been done in it.

Three ladies, Mrs. Bruce Fitzgerald, Mrs. Clayton Fitzgerald and Mrs. Gordon Fitzgerald were named to judge the satin cushions that have been made by some of the members, to be taken to the district annual at Trent River.

Mrs. Irvin Tully, convener of health, was in charge of the program. A paper entitled "Work, Sleep and Play" was read by Mrs. Clifford McIlmoyl and a health quiz was conducted by Mrs. Tully. Mrs. Wilfred Nichols spoke a few words of farewell to Mrs. Carl Wilson who is leaving this community to live in Peterborough, and Mrs. George McIlmoyl presented her with a gift from the Institute. Mrs. Wilson replied graciously.

Lunch was served by the committee in charge.

"Peterborough's Oldest Hardware"
Established 1852

THIS BRIDE HAS PICKED an all-cotton trousseau, easy to care for and pretty to wear. Her going-away suit (left) is in cotton linen. Straw-like braid is couched on in flower-and-leaf scroll design. With jacket off, bride has dinner dress with scoop neckline and short sleeves. Romantic bridal gown (centre) is permanent-finish transparent organdy. It has white over two layers of palest green. Embroidered flowers have sequin dust in centre. White taffeta is used for bustle bows that fall in panels over embroidery-scalloped train. Batiste is used for gown and peignoir (right). Yoke is heavily embroidered.

Lovely To Look At And Cool Is Trousseau In Cotton

The trousseau in cotton is one that is lovely to look at, cool to wear and simple to launder. It can be fothy with lace and ruffles, simple and tailored or an expert combination of both.

This year's bridal gowns are distinguished by masses of sheer foam. This foam includes cotton, taking in the permanent-finish parent organdies.

Cotton can be very formal. Even some of the organdies have trains, lavish embroidery or a hint of sequin dust hidden in flower trim or along ruffles.

Soft batiste from Switzerland makes gowns and peignoirs that are silky to the touch, frilly with lace ruffles, baby ribbons and insertion.

And cotton also takes care of the bride's going-away costume. Here, is appears trim and tailored and is cut into sheaths, pin-neat ensembles and travel suits. Its use extends to separates, play-clothes, swimsuits, hats, bags and gloves.

A bride can build her entire trousseau from cotton and be well dressed all summer long.

Generally, there's indication of a return to the floor-length bridal gown. But youthful brides continue to cherish the waltz-length.

New summer bridal gowns often have trains, these to be removed when the wedding's over if the bride wants to wear her gown again. When worn, veils are often elbow length, very full and sheer.

Pray For Royal Family

Repeating together a prayer for the Royal Family was the fitting opening to the meeting Wednesday afternoon of 18 members of WMS group four of George St. United Church, held at the home of the leader, Mrs. H. J. McMillan, 673 Water St. The prayer was taken from this month's Missionary Monthly. Highlight of the meeting was the address by Mrs. E. H. Brown on "Prayer." She stated "Prayer is the vital thing we need today." Mrs. Brown referred to Queen Elizabeth, head of the realm, as a Christian, God-loving mother. She brought in thoughts on Bible passages relating to prayer and she defined each part of the Lord's Prayer. She concluded with a lovely prayer for the members. Three hymns were sung with Mrs. W. H. Morton as pianist. Roll call was answered with a verse of scripture and a scripture selection was read by Mrs. W. H. Girven, followed by prayer by Mrs. R. C. Boulter. Mrs. J. M. Fanning took up two chapters of the study book on Africa. Refreshments were served by Mrs. McMillan and members of section two. A vote of thanks to the hostess and all who took part was moved by Mrs. W. J. Young.

Speaks On Girls' Training

The Mothers' Auxiliary of 1st St. Andrew's Brownies met at St. Andrew's Church Wednesday afternoon with President Mrs. R. Hayes presiding. Guest speaker, Mrs. Walter Perry, was introduced by Mrs. James King. Mrs. Perry spoke on the wonderful training that the Brownie and Guide movements provide for girls in respect to education, fellowship, dependence and the very important spiritual and moral qualities. She said these organizations are very definite helps in developing character and good citizenship. Mrs. Perry was thanked by Mrs. W. Langan. Mrs. Hayes extended an invitation to all members to attend the first fall meeting at her home on the Chemong Road, Wednesday, September 23. The meeting was closed with singing "God Save the Queen" and refreshments were then served by Mrs. J. Young and her committee.

Picture Books Presented

The Mission Band of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, which has a membership of 22 children between 6 and 9 years, started in February a project to make picture books for the children's ward at the Civic Hospital. The children were directed to select the pictures themselves so that they would be the type that children like, and they were supervised in mounting them by their leader, Mrs. R. G. Huggins, and her assistants, Mrs. W. R. Hughes and Mrs. J. H. Shields. Eleven books have been completed, and on Tuesday afternoon, at the season closing meeting, they were presented to members of the Civic Hospital Women's Auxiliary attending as guests by Elizabeth Toole and Catherine Shields. Mrs. E. Chambers, president, received the books, and in replying told the children just how they will be used and described the benefit that will be derived from them. She also read a letter of thanks to the children from Mr. John Hornal, hospital superintendent. Mrs. W. T. Fanjoy, convener of the hospital library, added words of thanks. Also present were members of the sponsoring WMS, Mrs. H. Eastwood, Mrs. W. Perks and Mrs. D. T. Diplock. A party for the children followed, and after that they had a story hour.

Elect Mrs. Drope To Head IODE

EDMONTON (CP)—Mrs. Kathleen G. Drope of Toronto was elected national president of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire as the 53rd annual convention concluded here Wednesday.

She succeeds Mrs. John H. Chipman of Toronto who held the post for three years. Mrs. Chipman was made honorary first vice-president.

Delegates decided to hold the 1954 convention at Saint John, N.B.

Other vice-presidents include: Mrs. J. D. Detwiler, Paris, Ont.

Fete Bride-Elect

COLDSPRINGS (ENS) — Miss Eunice Minifie of Coldsprings, bride-elect was guest of honor at a kitcehn shower Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Lorene Timlin. The rooms were attractively decorated with white wedding bells, pink and white streamers and many spring flowers.

The bride was seated in a prettily decorated chair, and a corsage was presented to her.

First part of the evening was spent making a bride's book, after which games were conducted by Miss Grace Wilton. The bride then opened her gifts, and all joined in singing "For She's a Jolly Good Lady."

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. C. Timlin and daughters, Lorene and Mrs. R. Willis, assisted by Misses Grace Wilton, Barbara Halligan and Mrs. N. D. McIntosh.

Others present were Misses Viva Minifie, Marlene Turk, Elaine Minifie, Dorothea Bowman, Mary Jibb, Helen Cowper, Jean Willis, Eileen Gibson, Helen Ritchie, Elva Willis, Joyce Buttars, Sheila Ritchie, Joan Du Berges, Norma Lang, Mrs. Marvin Minifie, Mrs. Nixon Timlin, Mrs. E. Linton, Mrs. Wm. Teney, Mrs. Hampton Minifie, Mrs. Graydon McIntosh, Mrs. Everett Jamieson, Mrs. Doug. Erskine, Mrs. Max Dickinson and Mrs. Harold Taylor.

Train Pupils Servants Of Society

COBOURG— (ENS) — R. N. McKenzie, principal of the Cobourg District Collegiate, addressed St. Michael's Parent Teachers Association at its regular monthly meeting on the three-fold aspects of education.

He spoke of the value of core subjects in grade 9, such as English, mathematics, science and social studies. Outlining the courses offered in the collegiate to Grade 10, he pointed out that the old matriculation course teaches Latin and French. Another course teaches industrial arts or home economics and commercial studies, with both courses leading to the secondary school graduation diploma at the end of Grade 12. Both these courses also train for entrance to normal school and both are suitable for those who wish to become nurses. Boys and girls who plan to go college in later years are advised to take Latin and French.

Directing his remarks to the teachers, he said that the purpose of schools in Canada was to develop each individual, to train each to serve society as a whole and to show pupils how to enjoy the democratic way of life.

"In teaching school we must seek improvements. Tradition sometimes holds us back. Old ways of maintaining discipline are disappearing. Examinations should be used more for learning what has to be taught again than for grading pupils. We should not try to make adults of pupils who are in their teens and the best job a teacher can do is to find the strong point in each pupil," said Mr. McKenzie.

The school was not entirely a matter concerning pupil and teacher, he declared. Parents entered into the picture. Parents should see that good teachers were secured and that they received good salaries. Pupils and teachers should be able to do their work in good surroundings. A parent should find out from the teacher where a son or daughter was falling behind in his work and try to assist them to catch up at home. If pupils are behind in their reading, their parents should see to it that they do more reading at home. Parents have a duty to make sure that they set good examples to their own children, that their family life is wholesome and that their surroundings are clean and tidy.

"The best job parents can do is to have faith in their children and not hold up their weaknesses in front of others. The faith shown in them by their parents will strengthen children when they meet temptations in later life," he said.

IODE To Repeat Earlier Resolution Re Broadcasting

EDMONTON (CP)—The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire will ask the Dominion government to reconsider an earlier request that an independent regulatory body be set up with jurisdiction over both privately and publicly-owned broadcasting and telecasting stations in Canada.

Mrs. J. D. Detwiler of Paris, Ont., told the national convention of the IODE Wednesday that this was a repeat of an earlier resolution on which the federal government "has not seen fit to take any action."

The earlier recommendation, in December, 1951, asked the Canadian Broadcasting Act be amended to provide for creation of the independent regulatory body as recommended in the minority report of the Massey commission.

Huge Bouquets Sold At St. Luke's Floral Tea

Huge bouquets of flowers were carried from St. Luke's parish hall Wednesday afternoon as the Floral Tea was concluding and the decorations were being sold. Sweet perfumed lily of the valley was much in demand and there was a profusion of lilacs, white and mauve, and tulips in all colors.

The lily of the valley made a solid bouquet on the tea table, filling a silver basket, and it was flanked by tapers in silver holders. On the small tables it was mixed with other spring flowers to make small bouquets in ornamental holders.

Flower arrangements and the table setting were done by Mrs. C. H. Hamilton and she was assisted by Mrs. James Miller, Mrs. Donald Walker and Miss Marilyn Hamilton.

Mrs. Roland Krant had charge of the tea room and she was assisted by Mrs. Fraser Watson.

Pouring tea was Mrs. Gordon Langley and Mrs. Chris Hughes and Mrs. J. J. Turner and Mrs. Ross Greenley. The servers were Mrs. D. Walker, Mrs. Fred Batten, Mrs. Ken Hamley, Mrs. Harry Willis, Mrs. Wm. Wiltshire, Mrs. Donald Menzies, Mrs. Gordon White, Mrs. Donald Worboy, Mrs. Sidney Pammett, Mrs. Hugh Morrison, Mrs. Jack Watson, Mrs. John Gemmell and Miss Roana Wickenden.

Mrs. Roy Davidson replenished plates, assisted by Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. F. Storey, Mrs. Ernest Lee and Mrs. W. H. Powell. Mrs. B. Crofts made the tea.

Mrs. Gordon Maniece, who was general convener of the tea, and Mrs. W. J. Gilling received. The proceeds, taken at the door by Mrs. Leslie Thomas, will go entirely toward the new organ fund.

Operating a horticulture table with cut flowers and plants for sale were Mrs. F. Biddle, Mrs. F. Legon and Mrs. A. Leach. The home baking was in charge of Mrs. D. Wyatt and she was assisted by Mrs. Wm. King, Mrs. J. Tremnum, Mrs. R. Sanderson and Mrs. Reg. Tuck.

Hostess Tea Held At Centreville

BENSFORT — (ENS) — The Bensfort Group of the Ladies' Aid of Centreville Presbyterian Church held on Tuesday afternoon a hostess tea at which 120 guests attended.

Mrs. Karl Huggins welcomed the guests and presided for a short program. Miss Allie Berry gave a reading and Mrs. James Wood sang accompanied by Mrs. Allen Dawson. The guest speaker was Mrs. Charles Roy of Peterborough who told about the Red Cross.

After the program, a delicious tea was served in the hall. Hostesses included: Mesdames O. Younge, R. Isbister, J. Gaynor, H. Thorne, J. Whittington, N. Willan, F. Wood, W. Morrison, Howard Brackenridge, L. Martin, M. Bradshaw and Mrs. Grace Muspratt.

Mrs. K. Huggins received at the door.

Jones-McIntosh

STIRLING (ENS)—The wedding took place Saturday in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Stirling, of Jean McIntosh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon McIntosh of Stirling to Mr. Jack Jones, son of Mrs. Clifford Jones and the late Mr. Jones of Marmora.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and wore a gown of white chantilly lace and net over white satin. Her headdress was a tiara with seed pearls and fingertip veil.

Miss Margaret McIntosh, Reg. N., of Peterborough Civic Hospital, was her sister's bridesmaid and wore a dress of lime green in the same style and a headdress to match. Little Lynn McIntosh, cousin of the bride, was flower girl, dressed in mauve net over satin and poke bonnet to match. Ross McIntosh, nephew of the bride acted as ring bearer.

Before the ceremony Mrs. Donald McIntosh sang "O Perfect Love" and during the signing of the register "Because".

Mrs. G. A. Coons of Belleville presided at the organ and Rev. W. H. V. Walker, pastor of the church performed the ceremony.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Planning A Graduation Reception

You folks have such handsome ideas. Good gracious, do I have to whip myself up into a froth when Marianne graduates from nursing school and invite seventy-five people?

If things rush along as they have been for the past twenty years she'll be lucky if I make the graduation exercises in time to wink at her as she crosses the platform.

None of this rush dilutes my love for my two bairns though, and I'm tickled to pieces that there are serene mothers in this audience like the writer of the following letter:

Dear Mary Moore: I would like your advice on how much food to serve for about 75 people, for a buffet lunch. My daughter is going to graduate for a nurse . . . and I would like very much to know what kind of salads and things to serve, and if you have any recipes, and also what sort of dishes.—Mrs. John C.

GRADUATION RECEPTION (75 PEOPLE)

Chicken Salad
Tomato Jelly on Lettuce
Buttered Tiny Hot Rolls
Celery Olives
Raspberry Mousse
(or Quality Commercial Ice Cream)
White Graduation Cake
Reception Punch Salted Nuts
Coffee

Directions

CHICKEN SALAD (FOR 75)

Five imperial quarts (25 cups) cooked diced chicken, 5 imperial quarts chopped inner stalks celery, 1½ tablespoons salt, 1½ teaspoons pepper, 3 cups French Dressing, 12 cups (2 quarts plus 2 cups) mayonnaise (or cooked salad dressing), 12 hard-cooked eggs, lettuce. Combine chicken, celery, salt, pepper and French Dressing. Let stand in cold place two hours to marinate. Add salad dressing or mayonnaise. Mix. Serve on delicate lettuce leaves garnished with the egg cut into wedges or slices. If desired some chopped ham or veal may be substituted for some of the chicken.

TOMATO JELLY (FOR 75)

Seven and one-half cups canned condensed tomato soup, 3 cups cold water, 8 tablespoons (½ cup) best quality gelatin, 1½ teaspoons salt, 3 cups lemon juice, drained, cooked new peas or shredded cabbage or chopped green peppers are optional. Heat tomato soup to boiling. Soften gelatin in cold water five minutes, then stir it into the hot soup until dissolved removed from heat. Add salt and lemon juice and pour into shallow oblong pans. Chill until firm then cut into 75 squares. Serve on crisp lettuce with mayonnaise. Peas, cabbage or peppers are good additions, but should be added as dry as possible and sparingly.

If you want to make your own ice cream or a Raspberry Mousse as I have suggested, write to me, Mrs. John C., and enclose stamped envelope and I will mail you the method.

RECEPTION PUNCH (FOR 75)

Six cups sugar, six cups water, ½ cup crushed mint leaves, nine cups orange juice, three cups pineapple grape, or berry juice, three cups lemon juice, six cups freshly brewed tea, five imperial quarts ice water, two large bottles ginger ale, orange and lemon slices and mint sprigs and maraschino cherries, ice. Boil sugar and six cups of water together for five minutes. Add crushed mint. Cool and strain. Add fruit juices, tea, and remaining water. Just before serving add ginger ale, and then pour over ice in punch bowls. Garnish with slices and sprigs and cherries.

From my viewpoint these are what I would call detailed instructions but if anyone who reads this is going to use it for a reception and needs still more detail write to me and enclosed stamped envelope.

Home and School Association News

LANG SCHOOL

The Lang Home and School Association met in the Community Hall, Lang, Monday. Members of the Tillicum Class of Keene were visitors.

President Mrs, Keough was chairman. Guest speaker was Miss Rachel Young of the Children's Aid Society. She spoke of the changed attitude of the public towards the society. About one-third of the parents now apply themselves for help and guidance as compared to a few years ago when all cases were referred by neighbors.

She praised the work done by foster parents, but compared children to young plants, some of which were easily transplanted, others could not stand the shock of change and new environment.

She asked the question, "Could parents be classed as fair-weather friends, or could they be counted on to stand by their children through all their difficulties?"

The chief aim of the society was not to take children away from parents, but rather to work with parents, helping them to iron out their difficulties and create a healthier home atmosphere.

The speaker was thanked by Mrs. Charles Elliott. This was followed by two delightful recitations by Mrs. Ross McIntyre and musical selections by Mrs. W. Drimmie.

Lunch was provided by Mrs. Beatty and her committee, Mrs. S. Manley, Mrs. Vic Edwards, Mrs. W. Lean, Mrs. Stewart Richardson.

CONSTIPATED BABY

Nothing better to help clear out bowels quickly—yet gently. No "sleepy" stuff — no dulling effect. Used for more than 50 years.

Equally good for the restlessness and feverishness resulting from digestive upsets at teething time and other minor baby ills. Get a package today at druggists.

PAINT SERVICE IS OUR MOTTO
DECORATING SATISFACTION OUR AIM

A motto is only a motto until it is applied in actual life. Paint is only paint until it is applied to some surface—then it can be a thing of beauty, colorful, enduring and protecting.

Decorating success depends on more than good paint. Our service is designed to help you choose the right color, to recommend the right paint for a satisfactory job, and to give you value for your money.

Bring your decorating questions to us. With Benjamin Moore's paint, free color and application literature, you get the highest Quality and the best Value—anywhere.

6—In Memoriam

SCRIVER—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Lewis B. Scriver, who passed away May 28, 1952.
He is gone, but not forgotten,
And, as dawns another year,
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of him are always near.
Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within the heart concealed.
—Lovingly remembered by his wife and family.

FRENCH—In loving memory of a dear father who passed away May 28th, 1952.
We have only your memory dear father
To remember our whole life through
But the sweetness will linger forever
As we treasure the image of you.
—Sadly missed by Ruby, Sherm, Jean.

FRENCH—In loving memory of a dear father, James French, who passed away May 28th, 1952.
Your presence is ever near us
Your love remains with us yet
You were the kind of a father
Your loved ones could never forget.
—Ever remembered by Phyllis and Wib.

FRENCH—In loving memory of a dear father, James French, who passed away May 28th, 1952.
God called you without any warning
Farewell was never said
But what a glorious morning
When we say hello instead.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by Florence and Bud.

FRENCH—In loving memory of a dear husband, James French, who passed away May 28th, 1952.
Gone is the face I loved so dear,
Silent the praise I loved to hear,
Too far away for sight or speech
But not too far for thought to reach.
Sweet to remember him who once was here,
And who, though absent, is just as dear.
—Sadly missed by his loving wife, Grace.

WILSON—In loving memory of George Wilson, who passed away three years ago today.
We often sit and think of him
When we are all alone,
For memory is the only friend
That grief can call its own.
Like ivy on the withered oak,
When all other things decay,
Our love for him will keep green
And never fade away.
—Sadly missed by son Ed. and Eileen.

WILSON—In loving memory of George Wilson, who passed away three years ago today.
Gone from us, but leaving memories,
Death can never take away,
Memories that will always linger
While upon this earth we stay.
—Always remembered by Earl and family.

WILSON—In loving memory of George Wilson, who passed away three years ago today.
I have only your memory, dear father,
To remember my whole life through,
But the sweetness will linger forever,
As I treasure the image of you.
—Sadly missed by son George and family.

"We have faith in you reaching your own decision, but do think you should have the whole story and not part only as was indicated by many on the picket line."

Mr. Wharry then listed 10 questions and answers.

The replies said that it was Local 293 that broke off negotiations; that the strike is continuing because the union negotiating committee "refuse to bargain or even discuss any settlement other than the report of the union nominee, plus a number of other points not included in either the report of the Board of Conciliation or the report of the union's nominee"; that the company is willing to negotiate for a settlement "other than the one presented by the union"; and that negotiations are deadlocked because no word has been heard from any union representative, despite the fact they said on April 27 they would get in touch with Mr. Faryon.

Following is a list of other questions and answers in Mr. Wharry's letter:

What about the matter of company earnings?

Just before the strike the union published a bulletin quoting the consolidated earnings of The Quaker Oats Company in Chicago. These figures included the earnings of The Quaker Oats Company in the United States, the Canadian Company, and returns from other foreign operations. As this was deliberately misleading, the Company asked to meet the Union Executive to discuss this misrepresentation.. The Union refused to meet with the Company.

Company Earnings.—So there would be no misunderstanding about the earnings of The Quaker Oats Company of Canada Limited, Mr. Faryon proposed that the Union appoint some competent person whom they could trust, such as a chartered accountant, to come into the office and review the books. The Company promised to show this representative its complete financial operation and give him any information that he requred.

The Union would not accept this offer.

What About Swing Shifts?

Every mill in Canada has a swing shift arrangement. The UPWA have recently signed contracts with other mills with swing shifts.

How do our present wages stack up with other mills?

A current survey of 20 of the larger mills in Canada shows that Quaker's present basic rate of $1.18½ is higher than 85% of these mills. When we say our "present rate" this is the rate that was in effect when the strike was called and without considering the increase offered, which woud make the Quaker rate much higher than general in the industry.

What about Maple Leaf and Robin Hood Rates?

The Union has talked a lot about Maple Leaf and Robin Hood rates. However, the rates which the Union have quoted are only being paid in two out of 14 mills run by these companies. Our present rate of $1.18½ (even without the increases offered) is higher than 11 of these Robin Hood and Maple Leaf operated mills.

How does Quaker stack up with other mills in benefits above wage rates?

There isn't a single mill in Canada in which the employees enoy as many fringe benefits as the Quaker employees.

Quaker is the only company that has a Profit Sharing Plan and a Personal Illness and Accident Plan. Quaker employees are the only employees that enoy a Guaranteed Work Plan. These plans have paid the Quaker employees hundreds and hundreds of thousands of dollars over and above their base rates.

Say Substitute

Dr. Wells said that if there was any criticism of the Department he was willing to accept the "brunt" because of his administration.

"Some people find it difficult to get along with one person, but others don't. There is no doubt that they (PHN Gene Clark and Mr. MacPherson) were satisfied with Dr. (R. A.) Kelly's administration, but evidently not with mine," Dr. Wells said.

"I want to feel confident about the things we do, and that they are in the best interests of the city," Acting Mayor Miller said.

"I feel that they are," Dr. Wells said, and repeated that he accepted any criticism of his administration.

"We are all aware," Ald. Dewart "that some people work better for one person than they do with another. We all regret these things, but the public services must go on. If any individual is happier in one place than another, it is his prerogative to go there."

Ald. Dewart emphasized by repetition his statement that if any member of the staff had any complaint, and grievance, pertaining to his work and relations in the department; all he had to do was to present it to the board.

"That is the proper body for decision with any matters of that kind," the chairman said, "but we have had no complaint from the Inspector."

Acting-Mayor Miller enquired about some proposal for changing and improving the Jackson Park privies. It transpired that Dr. Wells vetoed a MacPherson recommendation on the ground that it was a mattef for reference to the Plumbing Inspector Metheral. Discussion of the noisome topic lacked clarity as to where a Sanitary Inspector's concern ended and a Plumbing Inspector's begin. However, that was the information Acting-Mayor Miller obtained on that query.

Interjection of it by Acting-Mayor Miller left on the table the detail of trying to improve the public privies at the park.

As a preliminary to any action, Ald. Dewart said: "If you leave it to me I'll take it up with the Park authorities."

The board confirmed the appointment of two nurses to the staff: Miss Guinevere Nichol, reporting July 15, and Miss Lois Galpin, Aug. 1.

Agreement embodying the extension of the city's health service to the schools is likely to be ready for the council next week, Dr. Wells said.

Auto Hits Tree, Organizer Hurt

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS). — A 32-year-old Cobourg union organizer all but wrecked his 1953-model car and received a cut on his neck Wednesday night when his car ran off the gravel road north of Hastings and crashed headon into an elm tree.

Pierre Sauve, of 347 Tweed St., Cobourg, told OPP Constable Archie Eady that he pulled over to the right side of the gravel road when he saw a southbound car approaching, just north of the northern outskirts of Hasting on Highway 45. He was travelling to Norwood at the time.

The car struck some loose gravel on the east side of the road and skidded and slewed into the ditch where it ran headon into an elm tree. It remained on its four wheels but flying windshield glass made a small cut on Sauve's neck.

Though not seriously hurt he was unable to get out of the car unassisted because the crash had jammed the doors tight. Passing motorists stopped and pried open the door on the driver's side to let him out.

The vehicle received $900 damage.

Sauve is a union organizer for the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers (AFL-TLC).

Would Stop Sale Of Salacious Literature

OSHAWA (CP)—The Bay of Quinte conference of the United Church of Canada urged Wednesday that steps be taken to stop the sale of salacious literature on bookstands.

Some 500 clergy and laymen are attending a four-day convention. They came from seven presbyteries, from Pickering near Toronto to Renfrew, west of Ottawa.

Good Food Topic At S. Smith W.I.

FAIRVIEW (ENS)—Miss Jean Noble, home economist for this district, was special speaker at the meeting of the South Smith Women's Institute held on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Everett Cockburn.

Miss Noble spoke on the subject: "Good food for good health." Miss Noble said good food is a form of preventive medicine; good health is born of the earth, the sun, and the cooking pot.

Miss Noble illustrated her address to show what foods were valuable for energy, growth and repair, to build bone.

Mrs. Edison Kimball thanked Miss Noble, the hostess and those taking part in the program. The president, Mrs. Clarence Mann, presided.

The treasurer Miss Margaret Milburn reported a balance on hand of $71.22.

The secretary Mrs. Leo Allen read a number of letters, one acknowledgement of $13 which had been sent for mental health work; another requesting any heirloom in clothing and many other articles for use in the mass pageant to be held in Toronto, Aug. 21.

Mrs. Robert Fowler was appointed to remember those who are sick.

Mrs. Harold Lewis was appointed press secretary. Auditors are Mrs. Henry Sharpe and Mrs. George Lockington. The president announced the district annual meeting at Trent River on June 9.

An invitation is to be extended to the Buckhorn and Selwyn Institutes to be South Smith's guests for the August meeting.

Guitar selections were played by Mrs. Bruce Heard.

HASTINGS

HASTINGS (ENS) — The annual meeting of the Home and School Association was held in the senior room of the new four-room school.

The president Mrs. S. Whitred presided. Twenty-three members sang "O Canada" and repeated the Lord's Prayer.

Reports were read on visual aid by D. M. Thurston, programs by Mrs. J. G. Thompson, publicity by Mrs. F. Crate, membership by Mr. William Jones, publications by Mrs. E. Hess, secretary, Mrs. J. Essex.

Nominations convener Mrs. A. E. Warrington presented the following slate of officers for 1953-54: president, Mrs. S. Whitred, vice-president, Mrs. S. Perchaluck; secretary, Mrs. J. Essex; treasurer, W. J. Johnston; corresponding secretary, Miss H. Stapley; executive, Miss M. Webster, Miss D. Watson, the Rev. N. Cole, Mrs. L. Wilson, Mrs. W. F. Jones and D. M. Thurston.

A piano duet was played by Mr. D. M. Thurston and Mrs. J. S. Thompson.

Mrs. Baker announced the official opening of the school would be June 12, at 8 p.m. when the executive will serve lunch to the invited guests. The general public are invited.

The new officers were installed by past president Mrs. J. G. Thompson. The president thanked the retiring officers for their help and co-operation. Roll call shower the winners to be grade 4, with grade 1 leading for the year.

A nature hike is planned for the pupils in September.

Lunch was served by the grade mothers of 7 and 8.

Tito Changes Methods

all else. But together with that was the obvious and great need of improving the health, welfare and productive ability of the majority of his people. Statistics show the Yugoslav to be crowding more than three times as many people as France, for example, on 100 acres of fertile ground.

VERY BACKWARD

This bears no resemblance to Canadian figures or conditions. For though the farms I saw near Novi Sad were probably the best farms in the country, many of them still revealed poverty and backwardness which we would find it hard to believe. The thatch lean-to, the tethered goat, the dirt and the dryness are not our idea of a farm. And from road and train since Novi Sad I have seen the mountain dwellers and their stone huts, clinging to their bits of earth and encircling a space 10 yards square with a rock wall to keep the animals from a patch of grain and to prevent the Spring rains from washing the hillside. I have seen shepherds whole little lot of earth down the tending sheep sleeping outdoors by night and women carrying wood, plowing and working on the roads.

That is the kind of picture plus sickness and disease a Canadian should try to have in his mind when he hears of Yugoslavia's effort to increase its agricultural production by collectivization.

The effort failed and observers now are frankly worried about the confusion that remains. What will happen to the few farmers who decide to remain in a collective if most of those who elected to leave have taken out the greater part of the best land? How much may those who leave take out with them? Will the state of indecision and dualism — independent and co-operative farming—result in even less production than before?

COLLECTIVIZATION SPLURGE

Collectivization was rushed at with a Communist splurge of planning that became confused and contradictory and then ran into the sturdier resistance of human rights. If it weren't so serious a matter you might say that it serves the Communists right. But then you look back over your shoulder and see the way the Turks and then the Austrians kept the peasants as though they were in the Middle Ages. You can see why Tito must want desperately to improve their lot—not only for themselves but to enable his country to maintain the greatest unity and independence it has ever known.

I met a lot of these farmers, drank their wine with them and watched one of their solemn little wedding processions walk sedately down a village sidewalk accompanied by a band of troubadours. I holidayed in a country park with several thousand of them and it was gay and happy. The food was richly uneatable but the guitars twanged and the kids played guerrillas even where the partisans had ousted a group of Germans and sent them tumbling down a hillside.

Every single farmer I saw I liked—for they were natural and honest and hard and fun-loving. I can't celebrate because their effort at collective farming hasn't worked—at least not until I learn that something else has worked in its place. For, as John Donne's bell tolled for all of us, so are these Yugoslav peasants farming for all of us.

Tornado Appeal

SARNIA (CP)—An appeal will be made to all Canadian Lions Clubs to assist tornado-stricken residents of Western Ontario with financial donations. A meeting was held Wednesday night at Strathroy with representatives of Lions Clubs present from Arcona, Zurich, London, Petrolia, Sarnia and St. Thomas. A committee was set up to handle the appeal with Ray Dennis, Lions district deputy, as chairman.

Fenwick Leads Lindsay Group

LINDSAY (ENS)—Contract discussions are being held between representatives of the management of the John McCrae Machine and Foundry Ltd., and M. J. Fenwick, staff representative of the United Steel Workers, and members of the union local in Lindsay. Points still in dispute include wages, in which the union rejected the company offer of increases of 5 to 20 cents for certain jobs; hours, in which the union did not accept the company's proposal for continuing the 48-hour week; overtime and vacations, where the company did not accept the union proposals; union security which the company rejected; vacations and the union health and pension plans.

One question settled by agreement was that during the term of contract, not signed as yet, there would be no lockouts by the management, and no strikes by the union. Talks between the management and the Dominion Brake Shoe and Chatco Steel Products and the union are still pending.

Floral Abundance Seen At Tea St. Andrew's WMS

An abundance of lilacs and tulips filled large baskets decorating the St. Andrew's Church parlor for the annual Lilac Tea of the Women's Missionary Society, held on Wednesday afternoon.

The decorators had carried out a mauve and yellow color scheme using a cream cloth on the tea table and centring it with lilacs and tulips in a silver container, flanked with mauve tapers, and the plates of little cakes had velvety pansies scattered among them.

The general committee in charge was headed by Mrs. T. H. Skinner with Mrs. E. F. Reid, Mrs. E. Hawley and Mrs. F. W. K. Harris and these ladies acted as tea room hostesses.

President Mrs. A. A. Munro was receiving, assisted by Mrs. Henry Cotton, and treasurer Mrs. R. J. Bullock was at the door.

Tea pourers were Mrs. B. Jones, Mrs. F. Gillespie, Mrs. E. F. Reid, and Miss J. Gillespie. Those serving were Mrs. H. R. Davis, Mrs. J. A. McKone, Mrs. B. L. Barns, Mrs. W. T. Alberry, Mrs. G. Whitney, Mrs. W. Mason, Mrs. L. Wood, Mrs. J. Heffernan, Mrs. J. S. Boyd, Mrs. B. L. Fowler and Miss M. Manning.

Plates were replenished by Mrs. E. Puttick and Mrs. A. B. Grandy and Mrs. J. W. Ridyard, Mrs. T. Crozier and Mrs. M. B. Southam assisted in the kitchen.

A table of home cooking was convened by Mrs. D. F. Hillier and she was assisted with the sales by Mrs. J. Labell, Mrs. E. Kitchen, Mrs. P. Johnston and Mrs. F. Nicholls.

Teachers Leaving PCVS Receive Gifts

The teachers of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute who will be on the staff again next year honored the six who are leaving at the end of this term at an afternoon tea following school on Wednesday.

The tea was served in the sewing room and only staff members were present. Delicious refreshments were provided from the home economics department.

Gifts were presented to each of the departing teachers and the presentations were made by heads of the departments in which they have worked.

Miss Audrey Hustwitt who is leaving to be married was given a double decker cake plate of hammered aluminum and Mr. Robert Camm who is transferring to the Public School staff in Peterborough was given a wallet. Mr. V. R. Henry, a senior teacher in the academic department, made these two presentations.

Miss Fern Rahmel who leaves to take a position of a different nature outside of the city was handed two long-playing records by Mr. R. L. Hale of the English department.

Mrs. Eric Toller received a coronation cup and saucer and Mrs. June Collins a crystal dish, presented by Miss Katherine MacDougall of home economics. Mrs. S. J. Graham, who has been on the staff this year, also received a coronation cup and saucer which was presented by Mr. H. A. Toole.

Lindsay Groups Prefer Trust Type Hospital

LINDSAY (ENS)—A meeting of the special Ross Memorial Hospital enlargement committee on Wednesday night produced little more than an individual vote of the members as to their personal preferences for either a civic or trust hospital. This vote was 14 to 1 for a trust type hospital. Two abstentions did not vote.

Representatives of county organizations had been advised to bring to the meeting a report from their groups as to their preferences, but most of the members of the committee had not been able to contact their organizations. The representatives of Lindsay service clubs had been instructed how to vote however. The Rotary Club favored a civic institution and the Kinsmen a trust type hospital registered the preference of the rest of their membership. Two representatives of the Kiwanis club did not vote, since their club members had directed them to vote for a civic hospital, but at the time of direction did not have, in the opinion of the delegates, enough information. The discussion pertaining to the two types of hospital reached a more involved stage, but the committee was unable to agree on a method to present the two plans to the people, through municipal councils.

Some of the delegates favored a civic hospital because the levy of taxes for funds would obtain a more equitable distribution of cost. Others, however, felt this would fail to reach many persons who would be willing to donate large sums to the hospital. Others arguing for the trust type hospital said that a "hospital spirit" could not be achieved if the institution was turned over to the municipalities.

T. H. Stinson, QC, pointed out that the municipalities could be granted controlling interest in the board of governors, if they took over financial responsibility for current debts and helped with the capital expenditures. The committee, he said, could make any recomendations it saw fit as to the revision or enlargement of the governing board.

W. A. Newman, representing Victoria County at large, felt that as much money as possible should be raised by subscription, then the balance obtained from the councils of the country. "The county has had an easy 50 years with the hospital," he said. "They should be willing to help us now, and maintain the hospital on the present basis." Mr. Newman favored a civic hospital, if that would provide the only means of financing enlargement and operation, but said he would not support such an institution if there were any chance of discriminating because of financial status, in admissions.

Opponents of the civic type also cited the argument that it might become a political football if placed in the municipal field with elected representatives to the board of governors.

Some discussion over the amount payable by the county and town, on debentures, if they took over the building as well as maintenance of the hospital, was answered by County Clerk Frank Weldon, who noted that a 15-year-debenture issue for $800,000, after grants, would probably cost four mills a year.

It was finally proposed that, in the event of a vote for the trust hospital in future, an obective be set for public subscription, then ask the local councils if they would through county council, raise the rest by levy. An enlarged board would be created to handle this with the municipalities given control of the financial affairs of the institution.

It was finally decided that further consultation between representatives and their organizations would be necessary and that at the next meeting, A. J. Swanson, Toronto, would advise the board on the organization of their forces for the fund raising drive and the building program.

$75,000 Fire Destroys Plant

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A cotton processing plant located in Sandwich West township near the city's southern boundary was destroyed by fire Wednesday night. Damage was estinted at between $50,000 and $75,000.

The fire is believed to have started in a bailing machine. Two workmen in the plant escaped without injury. The blaze was kept from spreading to an adjoining office section when plant manager Joseph Yedlin closed a metal fire-door separating the two buildings.

Plant officials said the building, a one-storey cement block structure 60 feet by 120 feet, equipment and stock was destroyed. Harry Zekelman, owner of the plant, said he believed part of the loss is covered by insurance.

The plant processed cotton and corrugated paper products.

Say Caterpillars Will Be Bad

GUELPH (CP)—A provincial entomologist here says a serious infestation of tent caterpillars is expected this year in the Georgian Bay and eastern Ontario areas and possibly in some sections farther north.

Prof. H. W. Goble said Wednesday the type expected is the forest tent caterpillar which does not build a tent but moves from tree to tree. He said this type of caterpillar will likely appear in fruit-growing districts.

Prof. Goble said the eastern tent caterpillar, which does build a tent, will be present in large numbers in many sections of southern Ontario this year. He said these tent builders hatch at the end of April and probably will be visible early in June.

Refused Permission For Meeting In School

TORONTO (CP)—Permission for the Labor-Progressive party to hold a meeting in McGregor public school in suburban East York township was withdrawn Wednesday night after police warned the holding of a meeting might lead to bloodshed and property damage.

Earlier, granting the Communists permission to use the school brought a flood of protests from township residents. A service club threatened to picket the meeting.

Interest In Clothes More Evident After Queen's Marriage To Philip

The late '40s brought marriage and motherhood to Elizabeth II, and soon she and Prince Philip were off to Canada. This is the fourth in five articles on the life of the 27-year-old woman who is being crowned next Tuesday.

By JAMES F. KING

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth's grandmother, Queen Mary, once remarked, "thank God, Elizabeth is not one of these modern girls."

But as a bride, Princess Elizabeth and her handsome husband, Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, began married life like thousands of other young moderns in the postwar world.

They moved in with the "old folks"—at Buckingham Palace.

A honeymoon country house had been outfitted for them, but it was destroyed by fire while they were on their wedding trip.

For the young princess, married life brought a new loveliness and some noticeable changes. She became more clothes-conscious, for one thing, and some in Mayfair whispered that she consulted her husband on choosing colors and styles and credited him with the improvement. She began wearing hats that vied for chic with those of her more daring sister, Princess Margaret.

SHOWED LITTLE INTEREST

Norman Hartnell, the royal dressmaker, recalls:

"When I made Her Royal Highness' first party dress just at the end of the war she accepted the fitting as part of her official duties, but one did not feel that she was really interested in clothes . . . Instead, Princess Elizabeth was happiest, one felt, in country tweeds and very simple things, and always would be."

Now, however, as a young matron, the heiress presumptive became a leader in setting stygles. There were indications, too, that Elizabeth, somewhat chubby as a teen-ager, was dieting.

Her self-described role was that of the "wife of a sailor." The Duke was still in the navy and under admiralty orders. During the first months of married life he was assigned to the admiralty in London, but duty kept him at headquarters six days a week.

VISIT TO PARIS

In 1948 the young couple made their first foreign visit to Paris together. The romantically-inclined French greeted Elizabeth as "la Belle Princesse" and gave a warm welcome to the uninhibited Philip.

Some Britons had had qualms as to how Philip would deport himself as a consort. But he quieted these doubts quickly. The young pair made charming ambassadors of goodwill.

It was in Buckingham Palace that their first child, the bonny prince, Charles, was born in the first year. For monarchy-loving Britons this was an event for great rejoicing. Hardly a year elapsed before Prince Charles had a baby sister, Princess Anne.

By this time, Elizabeth and Philip were on their own—moving to Clarence House only a stone's throw from Buckingham Palace.

LONG SEPARATIONS

But there still were long separations in the next few years from Philip who was assigned to sea as commander of the frigate Magpie, based at Malta.

Members of the Royal Family cannot escape the glare of constant scrutiny, and sometimes of criticism. Elizabeth came in for some slight chastisement in one section of the press for leaving the chil dren behind when she sought escape from court routine by flying to Malta on occasion for a holiday with her husband.

Royalty must not answer back, or even explain. But King George, now on a steep decline of failing health, defended his daughter in private talks with friends.

For a girl it was a strain, running her own household, bringing up her two children, and taking on an ever-increasing load of official duties from her father. But her training for the duties of Queen had to go on.

CANADIAN TOUR

It was at the King's insistence that Elizabeth and the Duke in 1951 went through with their official visit to Canada even though their departure had to be delayed by the King's serious lung operation. The tour, begun in a Stratocruiser that flew them across the Atlantic in October, turned into a triumphant tour, and the young princess won the hearts of Canadians who were to become her subjects within a few months.

The Princess addressed the people of Quebec in French, wore a peasant blouse and skirt to a square dance in Ottawa, ate chuckwagon lunch in Calgary, visited a logging camp in British Columbia, rode in a sleigh, met the Dionne Quintuplets, saw a hockey game and threw snowballs at a "Churhill snowman."

Away from the rigid court formality at home, the young couple relaxed and obviously enjoyed the wide open spaces and the easy camaraderie of the crowds.

A characteristic of Elizabeth's since childhood, her thoughtfulness, was shown during a visit to a Toronto hospital. A 16 -year-old crippled boy had lain in bed for hours adjusting his camera to snap the royal visitors, but when they passed his flash-gun failed to work.

She was quick to notice his disappointment and walked over to assure the youngster: "I will stop on my way back."

Ten minutes later she returned and posed.

MADE GOOD IMPRESSION

Philip, being shown off to his wife's future subjects for the first time, made a good impression with his good nature and informal manner.

The royal couple adjusted quickly to the gay mood of the crowds that greeted them during a 45-hour whirl of Washington, too. An American photographer's "Hi princess" when he wanted to catch her attention for another picture set her aback momentarily. But she joked about it later and gave an imitation of the episode

President Truman toasted her as a "fairy princess" and summed up the success of the visit with these words: "Never before have we had such a wonderful young couple that so completely captured the hearts of all of us."

When Elizabeth returned on the Empress of Scotland to London Nov. 17, 1951, after the six-week, 15,000-mile tour, King George's health again was a source of worry.

Another turning point in her eventful young life was nearer than she knew. The day was approaching when she would be called upon to assume the role for which she had spent most of her life preparing.

Got Relief From Weak, Nervous, Upset Stomach

"Am Surprised How Quickly Syntona Helped Me," Says This Woman. Now Also Relieved of Headaches, and Dizzy Spells, "Backache Gone, Sleep Well, More Energy."

"A few weeks ago when I was feeling very miserable a friend advised me to try Syntona and I can't begin to tell you how pleased I am with the way it helped me," said Mrs. Mary Beal, 4 Oak Street, St. Thomas, Ontario, in a recent interview.

Stomach Very Bad

"I was troubled so much with stomach disorders that day after day I didn't care whether I ate or not. In fact after taking even the lightest foods it would sour in my stomach, give me a distressed, full, heavy feeling, shortness of breath and heartburn. I would get awful dizzy spells and sick headaches. Spots danced before my eyes, my tongue was coated and my nerves were so on edge that I couldn't sleep at night. I even had backache and aches and pains in my limbs, joints and muscles.

Syntona Acted Quickly

"After I started using Syntona it wasn't very long until I noticed an improvement and as I kept on taking it, all the upset condition of my stomach gradually cleared up. Now I enjoy my meals, have practically no distress afterwards and I am rid of that terrible headachy, dizzy feeling.

"My nerves are calmed down, too, and the aches and pains have let up, so you can imagine how pleased I am to feel so well again. I have already told several people about Syntona and will recommend it to any one."

May Help You, Too

Syntona has helped so many people in this way that any one suffering from similar troubles would make a mistake not to try it. It is pleasant to take, contains no harmful drugs and many people are completely surprised with the results it gives.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough by Elliott's Drug Store. Advt.

Chinese Drive On Seoul Seize 3 Hills From Allies

MEETING FOR THE FIRST TIME in 48 years this week Albert Reeves of Burleigh Falls (left) and his brother, Cecil of London, England, will spend the next three months talking over old times. They are the only boys left in a family of 14 boys and girls. During the past half-century the Reeves family has become scattered throughout the world, from England to Canada, the United States, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand. After this trip, Cecil plans a third trip (his first was two years ago to South Africa) to visit relatives in Australia and New Zealand.

Nehru Sees Way Of Settling Suez Problem

CAIRO (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru of India, after a 90-minute conference with Egypt's Premier Mohammed Naguib said today there was a "way of settlement" for the bitter Anglo-Egyptian dispute over military control of the Suez canal.

Nehru, who stopped off briefly in Cairo en route by air to the Coronation, did not specify what it was.

Nehru said he believed in the possibility of a solution despite the recent breakoff of talks between Britain and Egypt on the issue.

The meeting at Cairo airport was the first between the two statesmen.

SITUATION BETTER

Nehru told reporters he felt the world situation was "certainly better" and said international tension would ease further if there were an armistice in Korea.

Nehru said that the right of peoples to national independence "generally should" take precedence over considerations of regional security but added:

"The best way of approaching the problem of security should be by pushing out the danger of war. Then the question of security would be largely solved."

Oshawa Woman Dies In Fire

OSHAWA (CP)—Mrs. Jack Harding, 38, was burned to death early today in a blazing apartment in downtown Oshawa. Her husband and 16-year-old son suffered deep cuts when they jumped through a second-storey window.

Six others were forced to flee from the building.

Harding said he awoke to find the bedroom filled with smoke. He made his way to a window, then came back to get his wife However, he could find only the family cat.

Cause of the fire was not known.

Parted 48 Years Ago In UK Brothers Meet Again

"They said I won't be able to know my own but I spotted him when he stepped off the train." So said Albert Reeves of Burleigh Falls today when he described meeting his brother, Cecil Reeves of London, England, this week for the first time in 48 years. Albert was 17, Cecil 20, when Albert decided to "pull up stakes and come to Canada. They had been working together in a photo-engraving plant where Bert (Albert) was a proofer and Cecil a process operator on the camera.

"I couldn't see any prospects in England; there weren't any jobs then for love nor money," said Albert. "I thought I'd try my hand in Canada."

So the boys parted, not to meet again until this week, 48 long years for both men.

ACTIVE LIVES

Through the years both men have led active lives. Albert upon his arrival in Canada first settled near Norwood working on the farm for two years, then moved to Lakefield when he was eight years with the Lakefield Canoe Company.

During those years with the canoe company, Albert began to study engineering. This helped him become an engineer on the old Cavendish tug, pulling logs, then on the Beaver, and then on the tug owned by the John Carew Co. of Lindsay.

Before moving to Peterborough when he worked as an engineer with the Martin-Hewitt Co., Albert was employed by the Stony Lake Navigation Company. Ill health forced an early retirement to the farm near Bureigh Falls.

Meanwhile back in London, Cecil stayed on with the photo-engraving company, the Strand Engraving Co., remaining there for 41 years, except for a few years in the First World War in the Royal Flying Corps.

Since 1940 Cecil has been hopping around to various jobs, the longest at C. and E. Layton Co. for eight years. Then he too retired.

The Reeves family numbered 14, and most of them, like Albert, left England for various parts of the world.

"We're pretty well scattered over the world," said Cecil. He has close relatives in Canada, the United States, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand.

This trip to Canada is Cecil's second long trip since retiring. Two years ago, a year after his wife died, he went to a sister's, Mrs. John Collins (Grace) in Johonnesburg, South Africa. While he feels young enough to travel, Cecil hopes for a third trip to Australia and New Zealand where he will visit with sisters-in-law and a niece.

He'll leave plans for that trip until returning to St. Mawes in Cornwall. Until then he'll just enjoy himself with Bert and his family.

Cholera Spreads To Seven Barns

OTTAWA (CP)—Hog cholera, which has led to the death of 1,420 pigs, has spread to seven community sales barns in southwestern Ontario, the agriculture department reported today.

Originally only one sales barn was reported hit by the infection, but a spokesman said that field men have placed seven barns under quarantine.

The department declined to locate the barns but said all were within the eight counties in which infected cases have been reported and thus well within the quarantine area.

Report of the spread of the infection to seven barns followed an early departmental report of three new outbreaks in Southwestern Ontario, bringing the total number of infected barns to 25.

Number of pigs involved in the seven barns was not disclosed. Originally, the team of veterinarians in the area had to trace only some 6,300 pigs that passed through the barn where the pigs first reported infected were sold.

Now, undoubtedly there will be many thousands more to check. That means a prolonged extension of the embargo on the movement of live hogs from the quarantine area.

Chinese Feint Attack On Canadians

Heavy Artillery Fire Discourages 3 Enemy Attempts

By BILL BOSS

IN KOREA—(CP)—Chinese Communists feinted an attack on Canadian positions Thursday night before opening their current big drive, it was disclosed today.

Before hurling their main thrust at the Duke of Wellington's Regiment on the Hook, they increased their artillery fire on the battalions of the Royal 22nd Regiment and the Royal Canadian Regiment and gave every appearance of preparing an attack.

Censorship prevented disclosure of the feint before today.

Later, company-sized groups moved toward the Van Doo positions.

UNDER HEAVY FIRE

Capt. Jack Dehart of Calgary spotted them and brought down the fire of all guns in the 81st regiment, Royal Canadian Artillery, breaking them up.

The Chinese tried half-heartedly twice more before giving up. They didn't bother the Canadians again except for constant shelling.

Today Brig. Jean Allard, commander of the 25th brigade, checked his entire front, slightly revising the layout to meet any renewed enemy thrust.

Maj.-Gen. Michael West, Commonwealth division commander, today decorated members of the RCR who won medals May 2 in repulsing a heavy Chinese attack.

The men were given the ribbons of their decorations at the battalion's rear headquarters.

Expedition Fails To Make Peak

NEW DELHI (AP) —The British 1953 Mount Everest expedition has failed in its bid to be first to conquer the world's highest peak.

A dispatch from Katmandu, capital of the Himalayan kingdom of Nepal reported the 15-man team, beaten by ferocious winds and blinding snow as 10 other expeditions have been, was returning.

Seasoned Himalayan climbers here were reluctant to accept the sketchy Katmandu report of failure, hoping that this 11th attempt in 32 years to conquer the 29,000-foot peak would still succeed.

The radio continued its weather broadcasts to the expedition, reporting generally clear conditions around Everest for the next 24 hours. It had been expected that the climber, led by Col. John Hunt, 42, would continue in teams of two to try to plant the Union Jack on the giant's unconquered crest until the approaching June-October monsoon drove them back.

Plans Quiet Weekend

LONDON—(Reuters) The Queen will have a quiet weekend before her Coronation Tuesday. Buckingham Palace officials said today she has no official engagement for Saturday or Sunday.

Final Rehearsal Without Hitch At Westminster

LONDON (CP)—The final full-dress rehearsal of the Coronation went off without a hitch today. And Queen Elizabeth II knows her part so well she left it up to a stand-in to play her role.

Crowds outside Westminster Abbey got a good preview of the rich pageantry surrounding next Tuesday's big show, though the trial run was behind closed doors.

More than 1,200 persons took part in the 2½-hour practice, carried out with all the trappings under the watchful eye of the Duke of Norfolk, who as Earl Marshal is directing the Coronation.

The duke's wife played the role of the Queen.

Outfits which the six maids of honor will wear Coronation Day were seen by the crowd for the first time: full-length white satin dresses with gold and silver sequins and tiaras ornamented with pearls.

Extra mounted police had to be called to clear the way for the procession into the abbey and to keep an eye on St. Edward's Crown, which was brought to the church.

Rosenbergs Sentenced Die Week Of June 15

NEW YORK (AP)—Condemned atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg were sentenced today to die in the Sing Sing prison electric chair the week of June 15.

This was the fourth time Judge Irving Kaufman had set the execution date amid a maze of legal defence manoeuvres which are still continuing.

Defence counsel unsuccessfully sought to have Judge Kaufman postpone the setting of the date until next Monday.

Rain Predicted For Coronation Day

LONDON (AP)—Rain is officially predicted for Coronation Day in London.

The air ministry today issued its special long-range forecast:

"Weather is likely to be changeable, with occasional rain or showers at times, particularly in the east and north. But there will also be some bright periods."

Thus the weatherman held out hope that Tuesday may have dry periods during the progress of the Queen"s procession to and from Westminster Abbey.

UN Artillery Lays Down Big Barrage

Report British Troops Have Inflicted Crushing Red Defeat

SEOUL—(CP) United States and Turkish troops withdrew from outposts Vegas and Elko Friday night as a big Chinese drive rose in fury along the ancient invasion road to Seoul, 30 miles to the south.

CRUSHING DEFEAT

A front-line report said Allied artillery at once loosed a furious bombardment on the two scarred heights. Chinese guns replied and the artillery duel raged beneath a full moon.

The Chinese, striking with 8,500 men in the west while mounting a 6,500-man drive in the centre, thus had seized three outpost hills east of the truce town of Panmunjom. The third was Carson, which fell Thursday night.

(In London the war office said British troops inflicted a "crushing defeat" on Red forces attacking the Hook, a key western front strongpoint near Panmunjom. The Communists were thrown back mainly by the Duke of Wellington Regiment, the King's Regiment and the Royal Artillery.)

The Americans and Turks pulled back on orders after more than 24 hours of bloody fighting, often with bayonet.

Savage artillery pounding from both sides ripped up trenches, bunkers and fox holes on Vegas and Elko.

AP correspondent Forrest Edwards reported a five-mile front along the row of hills guarding the road to Seoul was "one big cloud

Comet Jetliner Flies To Canada

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (CP)—A Comet jetliner winged over the Atlantic today on the first jet airliner flight to North America.

The four-jet Comet, first of two purchased by the RCAF, touched down at Keflavik air field here 45 minutes behind schedule after battling headwinds on the first leg of the crossing. Landing time here was 4:35 a. m. EDT, four hours and 12 minutes from London.

It was due at Ottawa at 3 p.m. EDT today after a scheduled stop at Goose Bay, Labrador.

Estimated flying time for the 3,545 miles is 10 hours.

It was the first crossing of the Atlantic by a commercial jet although Sabre jet fighters have made delivery trips to Britain.

Canada will welcome the Comet, first to be seen in North America, by sending up two squadrons of Canadian-built F-86 Sabre jets to "intercept" her 25,000 feet above Ottawa.

Missing Sportsman Found In Bush No Food For 5 Days

RAPIDES DES JOACHIMS, Que.—(CP)—Famished and weary, 47-year-old James F. Russell of Ottawa was found Thursday by two searching guides after he had been lost for five days in rugged bush country 24 miles northwest of here. The Ottawa sportsman, with one foot accidentally burned, said he had eaten no food and drunk only water since he and a fishing companion became lost Sunday. The companion, Morris Honeywell of Ottawa, reached safety late Monday after he had lost touch with Russell.

The missing man was found by 72-year-old Edmond Robitaille of nearby Stonecliffe, Ont., and Ed Chamberlain as they pushed their was through the dense undergrowth, shouting as they went. Russell heard them and replied.

STAYED SOME PLACE

Russell said he had stayed close to the spot where he became lost, knowing search parties would be sent for him and fearing to wander away. He was found 14 miles from the Aberford Fish and Game Club, in the lake country north of this village 40 miles northwest of Pembroke, Ont.

A Laurentian Air Services plane, one of a number of private and RCAF planes sent into the search, picked Russell up at a lake after the two guides signalled he had been found. He was flown here and taken to a hotel to rest.

He talked by phone with his wife in Ottawa. She said he sounded cheerful, and said he thought he had been a little outside the area where the main search, begun Monday, was concentrated Mrs. Russell left by car to join her husband.

Russell, a federal civil servant and son-in-law of Senator J. J. Kinley of Nova Scotia, was found just as searchers' hopes had begun to fade.

Extra men had been sent into the bush Thursday—guides, woods workers, RCAF and police and forest department employees of both Ontario and Quebec, together with a number of Russell's fellow members of the Aberford Fish and Game Club.

Russell and Honeywell became lost while fishing Sunday They wandered all day and lit a signal fire at night, but the fire was not seen. The next day Honeywell left Russell near Big Flat lake and struck out on his own to find a trail back to the camp.

He found the trail, but when he returned to the lake Russell could not be found.

Two helicopters and two RCAF planes from Trenton, Ont., together with special RCAF rescue crews, were thrown into the search.

Mendes-France Tries To Form Government

PARIS (Reuters) — Radical Leader Pierre Mendes-France today accepted the task of trying to form France's 19th post-war government.

Mendez-France, a former minister, visited President Vincent Auriol to accept the offer.

He is the fourth candidate for the premiership in the political crisis which has left the country without a government for eight days.

Koreans Reveal More Details Of Secret Plan

MUNSAN (AP) —A South Korean truce delegate's letter brought to light today several previously undisclosed details of the new United Nations proposal for solving the prisoner deadlock and reaching an armistice in Korea.

The Allied plan, officially still secret, was submitted to the Communists at Panmunjom Monday.

Some general provisions leaked out earlier this week and others were revealed today in a letter from South Korean Maj.-Gen. Choi Duk Shin to the senior Allied delegate, Lt.-Gen. William Harrison.

Based on Choi's letter, the additional details included:

1. India, one of the five members of the neutral nations commission which will take custody of prisoners unwilling to return to North Korea or Red China, would provide an "unknown" number of troops to guard the prisoners.

(The neutral commission would be made up of Poland, Czechoslovakia, Sweden, India and Switzerland.)

2. The other four members of the commission as well as India each would provide staff members and each would send at least 50 assistants.

3. The Communists would be allowed to send, presumably from Red China and North Korea, at least 150 representatives to South Korea to talk with the unwilling captives and give them "explanations" about returning home.

Envoy Denies Ship Charges

WASHINGTON (Reuters)—The British ambassador in Washington, Sir Roger Makins, says there is no evidence that any ship sailing under the British flag and subject to British law has transported Chinese Communist troops in the Far East.

Makins made a last-minute addition to a speech he had prepared for delivery Thursday to a health and welfare conference. He referred to the statement by Senator Karl Mundt (Rep. S. D.) that the state department had confirmed reports that two British-owned ships had carried Communist troops along the China coast in 1951 and 1952.

Makins said he had decided to mention a matter "which threatens to stir up further Anglo-American discord."

Examiner Coronation Reporting

Fly Pictures From Britain To Go With Special Stories

The Coronation coverage which The Peterborough Examiner has arranged for its readers is the most extensive it has ever given to a great national event.

I. Norman Smith, associate editor of The Ottawa Journal, who has been doing a roving assignment in Austria and Yugoslavia for this paper will also cover the Coronation. Not only is Mr. Smith a noted writer, but a competent observer who saw the crowning of George VI.

On Saturday, May 30, The Examiner will have Mr. Smith's story of the feeling of the continent toward the Commonwealth's great event and the mass invasion of the United Kingdom by train and boat. Monday's paper will have a human interest article of what London looks like, compared with a previous coronation. Mr. Smith's story on Tuesday will convey London's mood at Coronation time. On Wednesday he will deal with incidents of the crowning which he will have observed in the Abbey. The last two articles will discuss the reaction of the people and the papers to the event and Canadian personalities, also the role of Prime Minister St. Laurent.

The Examiner will publish wirephotos of the crowning on that same day. They will be picked up in Toronto and flown by Harry Oakman to Peterborough. For Wednesday's paper, an RCAF jet bomber will fly the original photographs of the proceedings to Canada. They will be flown from Malton airport in time for that day's paper.

In addition to these special articles and pictures, this newspaper will have stories describing the actual happenings by four distinguished Canadian press staff men who will be deployed along the procession route and in Westminster Abbey. Their work will dovetail with that of Reuters, British agency which operates on a world-wide basis and of the Associated Press, the United States co-operative which also reports for the world.

The Canadian Press staffers are: Alan Harvey, London Bureau don Bureau; David McIntosh of Chief; Arch MacKenzie of Lon-Ottawa Bureau and Forbes Rhude, CP's business editor.

The Examiner will publish Tuesday and to ensure complete detail, the Canadian Press wire service to the paper will open half an hour after midnight. The actual coronation is at 7:30 a.m. EDT.

Finds It Hard Going

Tito Determined To Industrialize Land

(This is the tenth of a series of articles by I. Norman Smith of Ottawa, newspaperman who is touring Europe. He is spending several weeks in Belgrade.)

By I. NOMAN SMITH

DUBROVNIK, Yugoslavia, May 17.—In a big store window in the main street of Belgrade is a brand new machine for the taking of moving pictures in a movie studio. A little further along is a window full of elaborately-equipped dentists' chairs. Another has a display of machine tools and lathes, and in Zagreb, I think it was, a large window was devoted to parts for the turbine of a hydro plant.

These are odd things to see in a store window, particularly when the people walking by are usually very poor, often clad in rags and some of the time almost illiterate. They are all of them bright looking people, and pleasing, but they don't fit into the window displays of science and machinery.

Thereby hangs a tale. The Communist government of Marshal Tito is bent upon industrializing this rough and rugged land that up until now has been primarily agricultural. The Turks used it and its people for food and wood and labor, and the Austrians did much the same. Even now 75 percent of its 17,000,000 population is on the land.

But the backbone of the Communist theory is for the worker and Tito communism says the worker is the factory worker and builder. He asks, why should Yugoslays remain a race of hewers of wood and carriers of water? They have considerable mineral wealth and unlimited but unharnessed power. The government is set upon a plan to have Yugoslavia make its own things, its own planes and tanks, its own bicycles and trucks.

NOT ENTIRELY HAPPY

The Western allies who are giving Yugoslavia aid are not entirely happy about this industrialization. They think the country is not yet ready for technical work and they would rather their aid be used for improving agriculture and health and perhaps for keeping up defences.

But Tito has been adamant on this, and when you see the light in the eyes of the people looking in the show windows you can imagine why. It is magic to them. They will boast unceasingly but rather pleasingly that their cigarette lighter or their shoes or their fountain pen is made in Yugoslavia.

One of the hardest tasks I have had in three weeks in Yugoslavia is to decline, without seeming rude, the pressing invitations I have had from all sides to visit factories or warehouses. In particular, they are proud of their new power plants. One trip was planned for me into a jungle land of mountain and deep river bed to see a power project. It would have taken the best part of two days. I explained that we had power plants in Canada but we didn't have old cities and that please would they mind if I just stayed in Sarajevo and savored the Turkish and Austrian histories and ways of life. They agreed, after much discussion: but I feel that if I go to jail in Communist Yugoslavia it will be for refusing to go to see that power plant.

TAKE SURPLUS OFF HAND

This industrialization program has the further objective of taking some of the surplus people off the land. In an earlier story I wrote about agriculture and how 75 percent. of the population is on the land and without anything like commensurate production. The Tito government feels that if it can overcome the obvious early hurdles to industrialization it will solve as well the poverty and uneconomic labors of the farmers.

It is worth recalling that one of the reasons Tito broke with Stalin was because Russia wanted to keep Yugoslavia as a peasant country from which it could draw raw materials for cheap prices and to which in return it would send back the finished product at high prices.

After the break with Russia, in 1948, the Tito government accelerated its industrial planning. As a matter of fact plans grew like muhrooms and its combination of inexperience and haste led to grief and confusion. Projects admirable in ambition but uneconomic or even impossible in practice had soon to be replaced by other plans and other planners and they in turn gave way to others.

FREELY ADMIT IT

The Communists themselves admit this most freely. I had a long talk with Svetozar Vukmanovic-Tempo, who is the C. D. Howe of Yugoslavia and who led the partisans against the Germans in Macedonia. "We have made mistakes," he kept saying: but he'd square his big shoulders and proceed to tell me how the fight would go on. He is only 41—most Yugoslav officials are about that age—and he looks like a centre half on the Toronto Argos. They say he's hard as nails when determined to do something and I don't doubt it. But I can also imagine that he could drive his economists and experts to drink. But so did Henry Ford, didn't he?

There is one set of colossal monuments to Yugoslav inexperience,

Korean Casualties Reach 2,303,542 For Reds, U.N.

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Casualties in Korea have reached a total of 2,303,542 for both sides, a survey of official and estimated figures showed today.

The Korean war will reach the end of its third year next June 25 unless truce talks halt the fighting.

Official figures of UN losses furnished by the UN delegation sources, and estimates of the Communist losses made by UN command sources provide the total in the periodic Associated Press casualty survey.

Many UN casualty figures over the fighting through April and early May. Some are six months or more old. Estimates of Communist losses cover fighting through April 20.

Casualty figures for the U. S., Canada, the RoK army of South Korea, and the 14 other UN allies with troops in Korea now total 406,542.

Total Communist casualties are estimated at 1,897,000.

Up to May 7, Canadian casualties were 274 dead, 997 woundd, 42 missing for a total of 1,313.

Figures for other countries:

United States—24,119 dead, 100,665 wounded, 11,345 missing and captured—total 136,129.

South Korea—42,765 dead, 14,988 wounded, 73,174 missing and captured; total 256,901.

Turkey—526 dead, 1,778 wounded, 394 missing; total 2,700.

Australia—240 dead, 684 wounded, 53 missing; total 1,277.

France—218 dead, 815 wounded, 18 missing; total 1,051.

Thailand—103 dead, 732 wounded, four missing; total 839.

Greece—137 dead, 360 wounded, two missing; total 499.

Philippines—91 dead, 298 wounded, 95 missing; total 484.

Netherlands—107 dead, 362 wounded, six missing; total 475.

Ethiopia—80 dead, 347 wounded; total 427.

Belgium-Luxembourg—84 dead, 266 wounded, five missing; total 355.

Colombia—50 dead, 132 wounded, one missing; total 106.

South Africa—(air squadron) 18 dead, 29 missing; total 41.

Communist China—835,000 estimated dead and wounded in battle, 239,000 non-battle casualties, 21,000 prisoners; total 1,095,000.

North Korea—512,000 estimated dead and wounded in battle, 167,000 non-battle casualties, 123,000 prisoners; total 802,000.

Queen Radiant Hostess To 7,000 Guests At Palace Garden Party

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON—(CP)—The Queen was a radiant young hostess Thursday to 7,000 guests from every continent attending an exotic garden party on the lawns of Buckingham Palace. Brilliant sunshine bathed the formal affair, one of the biggest social functions of the Queen's career and an impressive contribution to the quickening pace of Coronation events.

Thousands massed around the palace, struggling for glimpses of the guests. An incredible jam of buses, trucks, taxis and private cars moved under a cloud of blue exhaust fumes.

The Queen, accompanied by the Duke of Edinburgh, mingled with her guests who include sultans and prime ministers, ambassadors and high commissioners.

GRACEFUL PICTURE

The Queen, dainty and graceful and a picture of young vivacity, wore a dress of cyclamen silk patterned in black with a perky chiffon hat of the same blue-red shade and a blue mink cape.

The grounds at the Palace became a swirl of color as the party grew. Uniforms and jewelled saris, exotic colors, turbans and burnooses moved through the crowd.

Many Britons carried rolled umbrellas while one African potentate, in a red and purple robe, strolled sedately under a huge gold and purple parasol held aloft by a muscular attendant.

Many languages were spoke but the gist of the remarks made was: "Isn't she sweet."

A few, including some of the many Canadians there, met the Queen. Most in the gathering jockeyed politely to get a glimpse of the Royal Family in their special tent.

Canada's delegation was headed by Prime Minister St. Laurent and his wife.

Austrian Treaty Talks Rejected

LONDON (CP)—Russia today rejected for the second time a bid by the Big Three western powers to reopen talks for an Austrian treaty.

Jacob Malik, Russian ambassador to Britain, delivered a note reiterating Russia's refusal to rejoin the talks with the United States, British and French foreign ministers' deputies on a treaty to restore Austrian sovereignty, the Soviet official news agency Tass reported.

Three days ago Russia rejected Britain's invitation to a meeting of the deputies here for May 27.

Moscow radio then quoted Malik as declaring on behalf of the Soviet Union "that at present it would be far more reasonable to consider this matter in a diplomatic manner by the corresponding exchange of opinions."

The three western deputies last Tuesday challenged the Soviet view that a deputies' conference could not take place unless each session was specifically convened by the four-power council of foreign ministers.

Damage $10,000,000 In Sarnia Twister

SARNIA (CP)—Of an estimated $10,000,000 damage done in the city by last week's 30-second tornado, over $1,000,000 was in residential areas, it was reported Thursday.

At a meeting of social agencies at city hall, the Salvation Army disaster clearing house reported at least $1,000,000 residential property damage, with some reports still to be received.

The city welfare department reported about 190 persons from 65 families had been made homeless by the twister, and although most had been found emergency accommodation, permanent new homes were still a major problem for many families.

Jersey Sells For $6,500

BRAMPTON (CP)—A purebred Jersey cow was sold Thursday for what James Bremner of the Canadian Jersey Cattle Club said was the highest price paid in North America for a Canadian Jersey cow in 100 years.

Brampton Lady Beacon, of B. H. Bull and Son Farms near here, went to Frank D. Rambo of Oakwood Acres Stables for $6,500 at the Bull farm's 75th anniversary sale.

Lady Beacon, with 53 other head, brought a total of $79,275 for the best Jersey returns on the continent since 1948.

OBITUARIES

MRS. WILLIAM DAVIS

Mrs. William Davis, the former Mary Ann Clements, RR 1 Warsaw, died at her home Friday following a lengthy illness. She was 86.

Born in Dummer township, daughter of the late Jone Clements and Jane Bailey, she lived in that district all her life.

She was an active member of St. Mark's Anglican Church, Warsaw, and a member of the Guild of that church.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Mae Hamblin, Lakefield; Mrs. Fred Clifford (Daisy), and Mrs. Ruby Payne, both of Peterborough; three sons, George Peterborough; Donald and Thomas, both of Warsaw; one brother, Thomas, Warsaw 14 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren. Her husband, William Davis, predeceased her in 1942.

The funeral will be held Monday at 2 p.m. from the family residence to St. Mark's Anglican Church. The Rev. L. J. Delaney of St. Mark's will conduct the service assisted by the Rev. W. A. Filer of St. Peter's Anglican Church, Hamilton. Burial will be in St. Mark's cemetery, Warsaw.

AUSTIN M. WALSH

A lifelong resident of Young's Point, Austin M. Walsh, died Friday at his home after a lengthy illness. He was a retired beekeeper.

Born and educated in Young's Point, he was a son of the late James Walsh and Anne Young. He attended St. Mary's Church and was a member of the Catholic Order of Foresters and of the Holy Name Society.

Requiem mass will be said at 10 a.m. Monday at St. Mary's Church, Young's Point, and burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

U.S. Dollar At Discount

MONTREAL (CP)—The U. S. dollar was at a discount of ⅞ per cent in terms of Canadian funds at noon today. Thursday's noon rate was 99 7-32 cents. Pound sterling $2.78 15-16, against $2.79⅛.

Want Laymen To Perform Sacraments

OSHAWA (CP)—A resolution urging that laymen who occupy United Church pulpits as supply ministers be allowed to perform the sacraments was presented today to the Bay of Quinte conference by Belleville presbytery.

The conference refused to endorse the motion but agreed to send it on to the general council for consideration.

Delegates who supported it said in a resolution:

"The lay supply is here to stay for a long time, and this would not be just an emergency measure.

"It is a fact that the sacraments are neglected. For instance, a man is placed in an awkward position by his inability to baptize."

The Rev. M. C. Fisher, Brooklin, Ont., who opposed the resolution, said some laymen would not wish for an opportunity to administer church sacraments.

Dr. George Telford said such an action "would be a detriment to our church. It may deal a body blow to some of the high standards of the ministry."

The conference also asked for higher pension fund benefits for ministers.

Bank Bandits Get $10,000

MONTREAL (CP)—Two men Thursday held up a branch of the Bank of Toronto in Montreal's east end and escaped with $10,000.

Police said only one man had the money after the pair split up on leaving the bank.

The two men, both armed, entered the bank and while one ordered four employees and a customer to the rear of the bank the other cleaned out a cash drawer.

One man was chased by accountant Leopold Mayer, who grabbed a bank gun and fired three times without success. Then the gun jammed.

Gloucesters Plan Party For Troops

LONDON (Reuters)—The Duke and Duchess of Gloucester will give a party for Commonwealth troops at Marlborough House Saturday afternoon.

They will welcome all ranks of Commonwealth regiments allied to British regiments of which the duke is colonel-in-chief.

Canadian units invited include the Royal Canadian Regiment, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, the British Columbia Regiment, Princess Louise Fusiliers, the Royal Winnipeg Rifles—of which the duke is colonel-in-chief—the 48th Highlanders, the Winnipeg Grenadiers, the New Brunswick Scottish, the Lake Superior Regiment and the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps.

Lady Patricia Ramsay, honorary colonel of the PPCLI, will also attend.

The Duchess of Gloucester, who is air chief commandant of the Women's Royal Air Force, will receive representatives of the RCAF Women's Division.

Thomas H. Rogers

The funeral was held Thursday afternoon of the late Thomas Henry Rogers, 68, of lot 30, concessfon 8, Otonabee township, who died at his residence Monday, after a lengthy illness.

The service was conducted at the late residence of the deceased by the Rev. Arnold A. Mathews of George St. United Church.

Pallbearers were Joseph Courtwright, Charles Williams, Alfred and Donald Fuller, John Baker and James Hall. Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

Mr. Rogers is survived by his wife the former Edith Hayes; two sons: Thomas Samuel and William Henry; one daughter Mrs. Alfred Fuller (Helen Ester) of 70 Robinson St.; two brothers: Fred and Arthur, and three sisters: Mrs. J. Gooden, Mrs. J. Wallington and Mrs. M. Drinkwater, all of England.

Final Rehearsal

FIRST CASUALTY

The long rehearsal brought its first casualty. Sir Thomas Innes, 59, one of the heralds who will precede the Duke of Edinburgh in the procession, collapsed during the ceremony. He was carried from the abbey on a stretcher.

The Queen was busy with affairs of state at Buckingham Palace during the rehearsal.

Early morning crowds looked on excitedly while cars and taxis drove up with Coronation guests in court dress and brilliant medieval uniforms.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, wearing evening dress, took part today.

Throughout the 2½-hour rehearsal, he was in the choir stall, the section reserved for Commonwealth prime ministers. This is about 15 yards from the raised throne where homage will be paid to the Queen.

Rehearsals for Tuesday's ceremony have been going on for two weeks, mostly in workaday clothes. Today the uniforms and the robes were out of their tissue paper and mothballs.

The gold staff officers, who will direct 8,000 abbey guests to their seats, were there with gold sticks tipped in pale blue.

6 CARS A MINUTE

In scarlet, blue and gold, the guests arrived in a stream of cars. They drew up at the door at the rate of six a minute.

With the royal regalia, including the Crown of England, they rehearsed the entire 2½-hour service.

The rehearsal included the playing of 22 pieces of music to be heard on Coronation Day, and a practice march by the 260 persons taking part in the grand procession which will lead the Queen to her crowning seat.

Four hundred men and boys of the choir rehearsed their hymns, with the orchestra of 68 and 22 trumpeters for the fanfares. Fifty guardsmen in scarlet tunics lined the walls of the abbey annex, just as they will on Coronation Day.

CROWN JEWELS THERE

The crown jewels were taken into the abbey in velvet bags. They were delivered in a station wagon under police guard.

Soon afterwards came the Duke of Norfolk and Earl Alexander, who will carry the orb, a golden globe surmounted by a jewelled cross, the symbol of Christ's sovereignty. The Queen will carry it herself when she leaves the abbey.

Viscount Montgomery, bearer of the royal standard, came in a blue lounge suit and hurried to a robing room to make a quick-change into a crimson jacket and deep blue velvet cloak. His page boy carried his coronet on a velvet cushion.

Mingling with the robed and uniformed high state dignitaries were workmen in overalls still putting finishing touches to abbey preparations.

NO DOMINIONS

Meanwhile, it was made official that Elizabeth will be the first crowned British sovereign of modern times to possess no "dominions."

The Privy Council, which advises the Queen in matters of high policy, erased the word "dominion" from the precise description of the sovereign's relationship to various elements of the British Commonwealth of Nations and the Queen signed the proclamation Thursday.

Although everyone has known about the change for months, publication of the order today made Her Majesty officially:

"Elizabeth the Second, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and of her other realms and territories, Queen, Head of the Commonwealth, Defender of the Faith."

The old style was:

"Elizabeth the Second, by the Grace of God of Great Britain, Ireland and the British dominions beyond the seas Queen, Defender of the Faith."

The Queen now reigns over the Commonwealth states separately as the Queen of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Ceylon;

Pakistan regards her as "Queen of the United Kingdom and her other realms and territories." India, a republic, is a full member of the Commonwealth and acknowledges the Queen as "Head of the Commonwealth."

The new styling also makes more precise the relationship to Ireland, specifically stating the Queen's dominion is over "Northern Ireland." The Irish republic is excluded.

See New Setup Strengthening Molotov's Hand

MOSCOW (AP)—Western diplomats here said today they regard replacement of military control by a civilian Soviet high commission in East Germany as considerably strengthening the power of Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov.

He now will have, they said, direct and personal control of German affairs in the Soviet occupied zone. Previously these had been under the defence ministry and, indirectly, the whole Soviet government.

The Kremlin announced Thursday that V. S. Semyonov, one of this country's leading German experts, had been appointed Soviet high commissioner for Germany. He will take over from Gen. Vassily Chuikov, chief of the Soviet control commission, now to be limited to command of Soviet occupation forces.

Western observers here think it possible Chuikov will be recalled even from that post and given a new assignment in the Soviet Union.

MAY SUGGEST TALKS

The diplomats speculated that a reason for the shift might be a possibility that the Soviet Union may propose talks on the reunification of Germany among the civilian high commissioners of Britain, France, the U. S. and their new appointee, Semyonov.

Semyonov's appointment, they said, apparently put him on the same level as the British, U. S. and French representatives.

It is clear, these sources said, that the Western commissioners now will have to deal with Semyonov rather than with Gen. Chuikov as they have in the past.

Semyonov's appointment carries the rank of ambassador and, as a foreign service official, he will report directly to Molotov. It makes the new appointee the top Soviet official in Germany in place of Chuikov whom he served several years as political adviser.

Western diplomats here do not believe there is any simple answer as to whether the shift means a fundamental change in Soviet policies toward Germany, but the possibility is the subject of much discussion.

Prices Weaken On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO (CP) —After a firm openning, prices weakened in heavy early afternoon stock market trading.

Activity in the low-priced mining issues boosted volume for the first three hours to 2,005,000 shares—highest since May 5.

Western oils recovered after a weak start to gain almost a point on the exchange's 1 pm index.

Calvan and Canadian Atlantic sparked the increase with gains of 40 and 35-cents restectively Federated Petroleum slipped 15 cents.

Industrials and base metals were weak in brisk trading. Golds were strong all morning but stalled around noon and prices turned mixed.

In papers, Abitibi slipped another ⅛.

Prices mixed in the higher-priced base metals while the low-priced issues were forced down by losses in key stocks like Eastern Metals, Barvue and Sherritt-Gordon.

Heavy trading and rising prices characterized the uraniums and New Brunswick base metals New Lardar U, New Delhi and Avillabona led the winners.

Communists Turn Down Part Of Secret Truce Plan

MUNSAN—(AP)—The Communists rejected outright at least part of an Allied truce plan submitted in a secret meeting at Panmunjom Monday, it was disclosed today. The plan had been called a "now-or-never" offer by many sources. There was no indication whether the Reds would change their minds at next Monday's meeting, the first after a week-long recess.

The Reds object to release any Red prisoners as civilians in South Korea, or leaving to the United Nations general assembly the ultimate disposition of prisoners unwilling to return to communism.

These "can not be agreed to by our side," North Korean Gen. Nam Il told the Allies. His reply was released in excerpts from the record of Monday's meeting.

Nam said it is "inconceivable" that the Allies propose turning over any Red prisoners to the UN which he labelled "a belligerent itself."

The UN general assembly Dec. 5, 1952, approved an armistice plan drafted by India which provided that final disposition of unwilling prisoners be left to the UN.

EXCERPT REVEALED

The excerpt was revealed in a letter which Maj.-Gen. Choi Duk Shin, South Korean truce delegate, delivered Thursday to the senior Allied delegate, Lt.-Gen. William K. Harrison. Although not made public, the letter was obtained from reliable sources.

The Allied plan, still under official secrecy, has rankled South Koreans. Government officials have threatened to boycott the truce talks and possibly fight on alone unless the plan is killed or revised.

In his letter to Harrison, Choi specifically called on the UN truce delegation to:

1. Transmit to "the policy making authority" the opinion and recommendations in his letter.

2. Withdraw the latest Allied truce proposal and prepare a new proposal after the talks are resumed Monday.

3. Grant "full consultation" well in advance to the Republic of Korea in the preparation of the new proposal.

Choi made clear that the letter represented "my personal point of view." However, it was known that the letter was approved by President Syngman Rhee and was taken by South Korean government leaders to represent the views of the republic.

of dust, smoke and exploding shells."

The U. S. 8th army said the Reds may have committed a division, about 8,500 men, in the assault on the western front.

United States and Turkish troops swarmed up the slopes of outpost Carson today in a drive to oust Red troops which had grabbed the strongpoint Thursday night in the initial 5,000-man assault.

A front-line officer said Britain's Duke of Wellington Regiment, which with the Turks bore the brunt of the Chinese attacks in the west, was holding firm on the Hook, 10 to 12 miles east of Panmunjom.

The Britons pushed back 2,000 Chinese after a bloody six - hour battle on the Hook. Heavy casualties were inflicted on the Chinese.

South Koreans also counter-attacked in the Finger Ridge area where the Reds held two smaller outposts, the army said.

In the west, Edwards reported at mid-afternoon that with the exception of Carson, UN troops were in firm control of all forward positions along the five-mile front east of Panmunjom.

PICTURE CONFUSED

The picture from the front was confused, but apparently Chinese were trying to push through low valleys separating outpost hills guarding the historic invasion route to Seoul.

Marine tanks firing from main line Allied positions poured hundreds of high-velocity shells into the Red ranks, while waves of fighter-bombers streaked over the battle line bombing and strafing Communist troops and gun positions.

Sabre jets probably destroyed one Communist MiG and damaged three in sky battles over North Korea.

The U.S. 25th division forced their way to the peak of Outpost Elko in a bitter hand grenade charge.

The Turks had fought off pressure from three sides of Elko for hours. It was not clear whether the outpost was lost temporarily or whether the Americans broke through Red lines to relieve the Turks.

BIGGEST SINCE OCTOBER

The two-prong attack in the west and on the east-central front is the biggest since the battles for the Kumhwa ridges last October.

Some observers speculated that the Communist attacks were linked with the armistice negotiations, which resume Monday at Panmunjom. They said the Reds could be making a show of strength to indicate they were ready to step up the war if the talks break down.

Avoid Break In Party Over Korea

Eisenhower, Taft Differences Kept Under Control

WASHINGTON — (AP)— President Eisenhower and Senator Robert Taft (Rep. O.) today avoided any party-splitting break in their relations despite some fundamental differences over United States' policies in Korea and the Far East.

The White House took the initiative only a few hours after Eisenhower had said at a press conference that "no," he did not agree with Taft's assertion that the U. S. "might as well forget the United Nations as far as the Korean war is concerned."

Several hours after the press conference the White House granted newspaper men permission to quote directly from Eisenhower's comments on the Taft speech. Normally, the president's remarks at press conferences may not be quoted directly.

Taft was publicly silent about the president's disavowal of the Ohio Republican's proposal that the U. S. withdraw "from all further peace negotiations in Korea" if present truce talks fail. Aides said Taft would not comment for several days, if at all. He is in hospital with an undiagnosed hip pain.

PERSONAL VIEWS

But Robert A. Taft Jr., the senator's son, noted in a telephone interview from Cincinnati that Taft had said in his Tuesday night speech he was giving only his personal views on the Far Eastern situation and had said these views were not intended "as any criticism of what is being done or not done."

The senator's son said he is satisfied the difference of opinion could not be construed as a "break" with the president, nor would it be likely to be reflected in opposition to administration policies.

PUBLICLY AT ODDS

The Eisenhower and Taft statements left the two most powerful men in the Republican party publicly at odds.

Taft has favored a "one-bite" approach to a Korean settlement, wrapping up also the problems of Formosa and Indo-China in a single agreement.

Eisenhower told Thursday's press conference that objectives are not attained in one great sudden agreement that everybody sits down and signs.

AWARDED SCHOLARSHIP

Robert J. Fitzgerald of Peterborough was awarded the First Wallberg Undergraduate Scholarship of $300 as a first year student of the faculty of applied science and engineering at the University of Toronto. He took his first year with honors. Mr. Fitzgerald is a son of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Fizgerald, 522 Homewood Ave., and a graduate of St. Peter's High School.

6 Earthquake Shocks Rock Ethiopia

ADDIS ABABA (AP)—Six heavy earthquake shocks rocked the Ethiopian province of Harar Thursday. Great destruction was reported, mainly in the towns of Harar and Diredawa.

It was not known whether there had been loss of life. Harar, 225 miles east of here, has a population of about 40,000. Diredawa, with a population of 25,000, is 26 miles northwest of Harar.

Double Crisis On Korea Facing Gov't

by JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—South Korea's resistance to an armistice on terms favored by the United States confronted the Eisenhower administration today with a crisis within a crisis. Some officials believe firm measures may be required to resolve the situation.

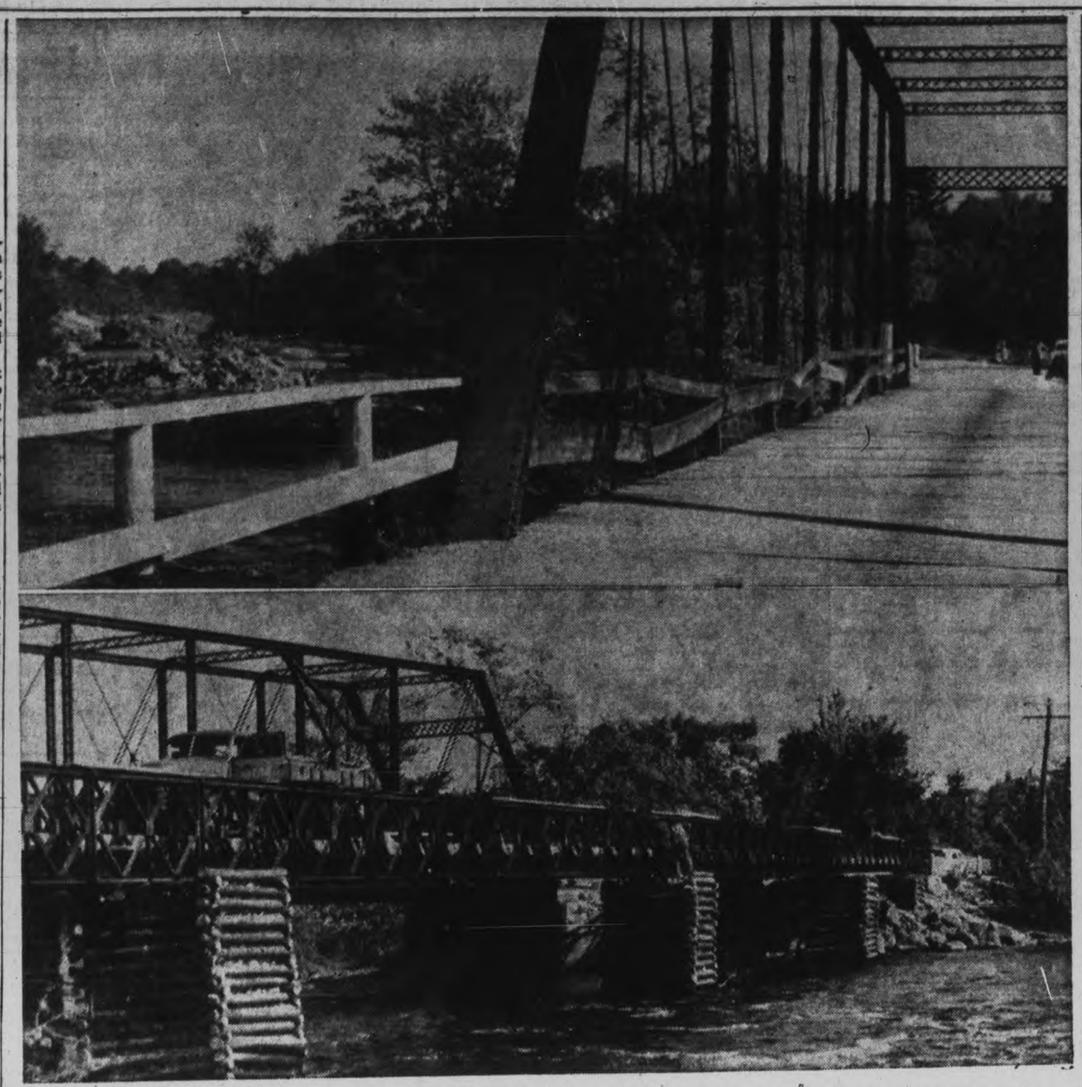
The South Korean government announced it would continue to boycott the truce talks unless the Allies withdraw or change their latest proposals.

Indications are that an exchange of messages is in progress between President Eisenhower and President Syngman Rhee, although officials declined to confirm that.

DOUBLE CRISIS

This is why it is a double crisis: A decisive answer is due from the Communists this week-end to proposals put forward last week-end by the United Nations command, directed by the United States. Thus the government here is primarily concerned with the climactic stage of the prolonged truce negotiations.

Yet at this stage it is compelled to devote considerable time and attention to the threat of resistance to a truce raised by Rhee's government.



If the South Korean regime actually goes through with its declaration of intent to fight on against the Reds for victory throughout all Korea, the result could wreck any chances for reaching an armistice, even if the Communists are willing to accept without further argument the terms most recently laid down in secret by the UN command.

DEPENDENT ON

However, officials here are well aware that the South Korean government is extremely dependent on the UN and, more directly, on the U. S. for its survival.

The government was sponsored by the UN in the first place and has been assisted and supported by the U. S. from the beginning.

In the last year or so, the U. S. has concentrated on building up South Korean forces and these now are sufficiently strong, numbering about 16 divisions, so that if they were ordered to follow a political policy different from that of other Allied forces fighting the Communists, the result would be a disastrous confusion and conflict of operations.

WORK IS PROGRESSING rapidly on the new highway approach to Burleigh Falls and the new bridge crossing the waterway there. The Bailey bridge (lower) which will be used for highway traffic while the new bridge is being erected and the old bridge torn down is almost completed. Meanwhile workers are blasting their way through rock (left of top photo) for the new approach to the bridge. The new bridge will continue on a straight line meeting the north bank at nearly the same positi n as the north end of the old bridge. At Young's Point, where new bridges will be erected, surveyors have been laying out the land.

Confederation Says Church Provokes Trouble

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP)—The Evangelical Confederation of Colombia said Thursday night the Roman Catholic church and pro-government press have intensified a "malicious campaign" here to "place Protestantism in the same category as communism and revolutionary banditry."

A report by the Protestant organization cited 17 alleged incidents of persecution of Protestants in the period of March 1-April 30.

The report said a church and missionary residence was damaged by continual stoning and authorities arrested an Adventist for removing a picture of President Robert Urdanetta Arbelaez from the door of a Protestant church. It was charged the arrested man was beaten, forced to eat a picture of the president and given the "water treatment."

In other cases, Protestants allegedly were arrested, threatened and intimidated.

Catholic authorities have denied any organized persecution of Protestants in this officially Catholic country and have said that "regrettable incidents" have been brought about by the anti-Catholicism or political activity of some Protestants.

Farquharson Named Information Director

PARIS (Reuters)—Robert Alan Farquharson, 53, veteran Canadian newspaper man, has been appointed director of the information service of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, it was announced here Thursday.

Farquharson, who has been carrying out a survey of NATO's information service during the last three months, succeeds Theodore F. M. Newton, another Canadian, who returned to the Canadian department of external affairs in March.

The new director was managing editor of the Toronto Globe and Mail from 1942 to 1950, when he resigned to become editor of the Canadian weekly, Saturday Night.

N. R. Danielian Charges Plot Against Seaway

WASHINGTON (AP)—N. R. Danielian, president of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Association, asserted today a "definite plot" exists "to delay and, if possible, prevent" the House of Representatives from considering a bill to authorize U. S. participation in the St. Lawrence seaway.

Danielian, in letters to all House Republicans from Great Lakes states, said that despite approval of the project by the Eisenhower administration, the House leadership has adopted a "passive attitude" toward its construction.

Noting that the Senate has already held hearings on the bill that would permit U. S. participation with Canada, Danielian said:

"We have come to the conclusion that the only thing which prevents parallel action in the House as a part of the administration program is the reluctance of the House leadership, the Speaker and majority leader in particular, to take a forthright position in favor of the administration's decision."

3 New Outbreaks Of Cholera Reported

OTTAWA (CP)—The agriculture department today reported three new outbreaks of hog cholera in southwestern Ontario, bringing the total number of infected farms to 25.

The new cases—two in Waterloo county and the other in Lincoln—raised the toll of dead hogs by 334 to a total of 1,420. These include animals that have died of the disease and those killed in the eradication program.

Animals examined in the latest outbreaks were traced to the sales barn where the first infected hogs were sold. The disease, first reported May 15, is still being confined to eight counties well within the quarantine area.

Mrs. Robert Greacen

ROSENEATH (ENS)—The funeral service for Mrs. Robert Greacen was held Thursday afternoon at their farm home in the northern part of Alnwick township, where the deceased had come to live as a bride 49 years ago.

The service was conducted by her pastor, the Rev J. R. Wheeler. There was a large gathering of neighbors, friends and relatives.

The pallbearers were her neighbors Messrs. Herbert McCracken, Roy Brown, Earl Braithwaite, Irven Brown, Delbert Varcoe and Ross McCracken. Neighbors also carried the floral tributes. They were Clarence Parker, Ray McCracken, Lloyd Parker, Ray Brown, Cecil Blodgett and Edgar Braithwaite.

Mrs. Greacen, the former Mary Pulfer was born in England 79 years ago, daughter of the late George Pulfer and the former Mary Ann Reid. She came to Canada with her parents at the age of six weeks. They settled on the Pulfer homestead near Hastings, where she resided until her marriage on March 2, 1904, to Robert Greacen

Mrs. Greacen was of a quiet, retiring disposition, a good neighbor and a true friend.

Her death occurred in Cobourg General Hospital on Tuesday where she had been a patient for only a few days, although in failing health for some time.

Surviving are her husband, a daughter, Mrs. Thomas Butcher (Phyllis), Harwood, a son Leslie of Alnwick township. A daughter, Mrs. Albert Parker (Lillian) predeceased her mother some years ago. Also surviving are nine grandchildren and four brothers, William and James Pulfer, Hastings and John and Robert Pulfer of Saskatchewan.

Burial was in Merrill's cemetery, north of Roseneath.

Smaller Places Suffer Through Big Grants To Toronto

Last February the Ontario Government announced with much fanfare a new system of grants to municipalities. They were to replace—on January 1st next year—smaller conditional grants for police and fire protection. The new grants will be made without strings attached, and on the basis of the population of the municipality. The largest centres—metropolitan Toronto, for instance—will get four dollars a head, the smallest $1.50 a head. This disparity, partly understandable because social welfare costs in a large centre are higher per capita than in a village, was not at the time strenuously objected to by small and medium-sized municipalities. Many of the smallest, like Belmont and Metheun townships, have received no police and fire protection grants; next year Belmont and Methuen expect to get about $2,350 under the new system.

* * *

The Examiner claims no special perspicacity in having warned, in an editorial comment at the time, that at the price of a few thousand each for the acquiescence of the small places, Toronto will get the meat of the new grants. Reeves of villages and townships, county officials, and councils of small towns and cities are now realizing how meaty Toronto's share is, how thin the gravy for them. Last week the Ontario Federation of Mayors and Reeves, meeting near Toronto, were highly critical of the new system of unconditional grants, based on the sliding scale according to population. The mayors and reeves have now figured that they are worse off, rather than better, particularly in the face of province-wide cuts being made by Queen's Park in the road and street estimates of municipal councils.

* * *

Let us look at the Peterborough county situation. The road estimates of every township and village in the county, and the road and street estimates of the city, have all been cut; that is, the Department has approved, for purposes of Provincial road grants, in every instance, less than it was asked to approve, and in all but one instance, less than approved in 1952. In other words, the Ontario Government is reducing its grants towards the maintenance of roads in the townships and county.

* * *

In all, the townships and three villages in the county had $35,100 cut from their road estimates. This means a loss of provincial revenue to the townships of more than $20,000. This figure is an estimate. The Province pays half the cost of approved road work, eighty percent. of the cost of culverts and bridges in that road work. The county itself has had $33,000 cut from its estimates—a reduction in Provincial road grants of another $20,000. The county total loss this year on this account is therefore more than $40,000. What will the county gain next year from the new system of unconditional grants in lieu of police and fire protection grants? The total —this is an estimate based on present populations and the government's announced scale of grants — will be $28,645. Net loss to the townships and villages of Peterborough county is in the neighbourhood of $10,000—perhaps as much as $12,000. The loss is actually greater—for the road grants have been cut this year, the new unconditional grants replacing the small fire and police protection grants, do not come into effect until next year.

* * *

We have studied the figures pretty carefully, and believe this estimate of the situation is fairly accurate: that the small municipalities, instead of getting larger grants from the Provincial Government, are getting smaller ones. It was a suspicion of this situation which agitated the mayors and reeves at their meeting last week. Peterborough county is only a sample of the effect the grants are having and will have on township and county finances throughout southern Ontario.

* * *

Yet Premier Frost said in his budget address that grants to all municipalities and associated bodies will amount in the fiscal year 1953-54 to $4,700,000 more than last year. If the majority of the municipalities are getting less, where is the extra money going? It is going to the big cities, specifically to Toronto. That is one reason that there has been no cry of consternation from big city mouths about the new per capita unconditional grants to municipalities. The new system, to start in 1954, will give municipalities nine million dollars increase in grants, Mr. Frost said last February in announcing the scheme. He did not say, if we recollect properly, that metropolitan Toronto would get five millions at least of the grant. But that is what the per capita basis of the scheme works out to be. Thus it seems that all the smaller municipalities in Ontario are to suffer, and are now suffering because of the cuts in road appropriations, at the expense of the big municipality, Toronto.

* * *

Is this only the beginning of a general policy to feed Toronto and starve other communities? Village and township councils are already worried about the prospect of devious reduction in grants an account of school costs. And meanwhile, this very year, what happens to township and county roads, full appropriations for which have not been approved by Queen's Park? Will they fall into disrepair? Will necessary work be put off? And, here in this county, will the Buckhorn road be paved? Local people, with an intense interest in tourist business, must view with alarm the so-called economies of the Provincial Government—not really economies, but a policy of robbing country Peter to pay Toronto Paul.

Another Setback For Columbus?

Fifty years ago the statement that Columbus discovered America in 1492 was accepted as a fact in Canadian schools. But since then the evidence that some earlier Scandinavian explorers preceded Columbus in their discovery of this continent has become so powerful that the glory of Columbus has been diminished; the Vikings are thought to have reached the east coast of what is now the U.S.A. about 1000 A.D. But now an American historian, A. Hyatt Verrill, has published a book in which he presents some evidence to suggest that explorers from the valleys of the Tigris and Euphrates journeyed to South America between 3000 and 2500 B.C.

Most of us have heard or read a little about the great civilization of the Incas of Peru, but not many of us know that there was a great civilization even before their time; it is to this pre-Inca civilization that Mr. Verrill relates the visitors from Mesopotamia.

It is fruitless for us to offer an opinion for or against Mr. Verrill's theory, for we know nothing about the matter. At present several archaeologists are working hard to discredit him, but archaeologists, like other people, hate to have their fixed ideas interfered with. But whether his theory is correct or not, it is not impossible. When we consider the vast movements of population in Asia and Europe during the course of history, we find it difficult to believe that such adventurous people were content to leave the great oceans unexplored. And of course we know that the astronomers and mathematicians of the ancient world were well aware that the earth was round—or at least not flat. So we must be grateful to Mr. Verrill for an extremely interesting suggestion, the proof of which may be forthcoming at some later date. Meanwhile, the prestige of Columbus as sole discoverer of the Western Hemisphere suffers some further deflation. Great as the Admiral of the Ocean Sea was, he was not the only man to voyage far across the Atlantic.

Two Women Senators

Mr. St. Laurent has enlarged the practice of his two predecessors in Senate appointments. He has named two women, thus doubling the female membership of the Senate. The Hon. Cairine Wilson was nominated to the Upper Chamber by Mr. King in 1930. Peterborough's Senator Iva Fallis received her call in 1935, from Mr. R. B. Bennett.

The two new women senators are Mrs. Maria B. Jodoin of Montreal and Mrs. Muriel McQueen Fergusson of Fredericton. Whether or not the two new senators will add largely to the debate in the Upper House, their appointments are recognition both of their personal achievements in public life and the increasing part the women of Canada are taking in business and public affairs.

Two other persons were named to the Senate on the same day, both prominent Liberals. Senator Walter Jones retired from the premiership of Prince Edward Island to accept his seat. Senator Allan Woodrow, a Toronto businessman, has been honorary treasurer of the National Liberal Federation.

Nineteen vacancies in the Senate still remain. It is customary to fill these before a general election. There is much speculation about the nineteen who may be summoned. The Conservative press, somewhat oddly, is asking for non-partisan appointments as if it had no hope of the Conservative Party's winning the next elections and thereby the opportunity to name its own faithful to the Senate.

Here in Peterborough there is no hot interest in the matter at all. Peterborough already has two senators, and the only Peterborough parliamentarian who might qualify for appointment by virtue of long service in the House of Commons is a Conservative. Mr. Fraser, we expect, does not anticipate being named to the Upper House by Mr. St. Laurent, for he has announced his candidacy for re-election to the Commons.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

DEAR SIR: What is the meaning and origin of the term "Blue Stocking" used with the context "She was a blue stocking"? I believe that it has something to do with intellectual ability.

ANSWER: For some reason beyond my knowledge, blue is one of the oldest colour words, and certainly the one with the most variable meanings, especially in combinations. One reason for the variations is that blue, though a primary colour, is not as definite as red or yellow. There are more blues under the sun and in people's minds than description can tabulate. So we have pale blue, bright blue, cornflower blue, dark blue, blue black. So we look blue, are in a blue funk, have blue blood, do things once in a blue moon, belong to the blue water school (insist on a strong navy), are true blue, or even drink blue ruin (bad gin).

There are bolts from the blue, rowing blues (an Oxford undergraduate who makes the University eight), a person can have the blues, or even belong to The Blues (Royal Horse Guards).

A Bluebeard makes away with several wives. A blue-book is an official report, published by authority of Parliament. A blue-bonnet is a Highlander, a blue-coat boy is a pupil of the Blue-Coat School (Christ's Hospital, London). Blue gum is a Eucalyptus tree. A blue jacket is a seaman belonging to the R.N.

BLUE STOCKINGS are not Victorian variants of black stockings. They go way back to the eighteenth century, but for many years since have meant owl-eyed, cramminded and assertively asexual ladies; specifically a pedantic, learned lady. Unkind Oxford undergraduates refer to earnest, drab and bright-minded culture-hounds in the few Oxford collegiate societies of women students as blue stockings.

The name was given in the eighteenth century to clubs of learned and literary ladies and a few men, which met to enjoy improving conversation. Some of the male members wore blue stockings instead of the customary black silk, to show their contempt for convention.

Now, are you in the blue as regards blue?

MR. A. G. BUCHANAN of Lakefield brought in for my inspection a copy of "Eos: An Epic of the Dawn, and Other Poems" by Nicholas Flood Davin, M.P., published in Regina "N.W.T." (North-West Territories) in 1889. The fly-leaf is inscribed in the holograph of the author to 'Harold D. Buchanan, Esq. With the Compliments and kind regards of the author, March 1901." Harold D. Buchanan was Mr. A. G. Buchanan's father.

I shall not here attempt a critical estimate of Davin's poetry, except to say that it is better than most other fleeting Canadian stuff written at the time, because Davin was a literate as well as intelligent man.

I do not intend thus to elevate Nicholas Flood Davin to the heights of Wordsworth or Bliss Carman or Archibald Lampman. His verse, on the quick examination I have given it so far, is pedestrian, academic and rather artfully contrived. But there are passages that bear repeating. In time some of them may achieve a niche in Canadian anthologies. If they do, Mr. Buchanan's copy will be more than a family memento of a notable poetaster.

Davin was a man acquainted with the classics and German literature. I like this bit from the introduction: "Why do I publish these things? . . . I am a North-West man, and I think the cultivation of taste and imagination as important as the raising of grain."

NICHOLAS FLOOD DAVIN was born in County Limerick, Ireland, in 1843, the son of a doctor. He was educated at Queen's College, Cork, and the University of London, and was called to the English bar in 1868. He became a journalist and was a war correspondent during the Franco-Prussian war. In 1872 he came to Canada and worked on the Toronto "Globe" and then the Toronto "Mail." In 1874 he was called to the Ontario Bar. In 1878 he was unsuccessful Conservative candidate in Haldimand for the House of Commons.

In 1883 Davin went to the North-West and established the Regina "Leader," the first newspaper issued in the Assiniboine country. In 1887 he was elected to the House of Commons and held this seat until 1900. In 1897 he was elected President of the Liberal-Conservative Association for the North-West Territories. He committed suicide in Winnipeg in 1901. He was considered a brilliant but erratic and uneven man. He had a wide Canadian reputation.

DEAR ALPHA: Those buggies which tourists to Montreal are tempted to take for a trip up to the Look-out on Mount Royal are referred to as caleches. Are they caleches? What is a caleche?

ANWER: I delight in the Montreal horse-drawn carriages (and in winter the sleighs) and hope that Mount Royal's crest will never be opened to cars. The carriages are not caleches. A caleche is properly a two-wheeled gig. It was the first public conveyance in Canada. T. C. Keefer in "Travel and Transportation" (1863) describes the Quebec caleche thus: "A gig upon grasshopper springs with a seat for two passengers; the driver occupies the site of the dashboard, with his feet on the shafts and in close proximity to the horse, with which he maintains a confidential conversation throughout the journey, alternately complimenting and upbraiding him, and not failing to impress him with the many virtues of his master." J. J. Bigsby (1850) refers to "the high, creaking, shaking calashes of Lower Canada, invented in the Sixteenth Century."

COUNTRY NOTE: Drove down an unfrequented township road along which are two or three solid brick deserted farmhouses probably 75 years old. What delightful summer properties they would seem to make, with their old orchards, lilacs and rather pleasing country architecture of Victorian days. I did not examine their dilapidation. The way was redolent with apple and hawthorn blossoms. Hawthorns seem to be in unusually profuse bloom this year.

Gamma looked at a loose board on the barn yesterday and said: "There's a starling's nest there. Starlings are bad for a barn. They chip away at it." He reached in his arm for the nest but his reach was not long enough (he's only eleven).. So I put in my arm and pulled out a nest. It had three new starlings and one actually just emerging from the egg. There they and nest lay on the ground. Gamma is tender-hearted; he may even be a member of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Anyway he took each tiny bird and threw it again the barn wall, thus ending any suffering my removal of the nest had caused.

A big moon, last night, full and round, making the night landscape bright as winter. The temperature completed the illusion—about forty . . . The lambs are doing fine. One came up and nuzzled me this morning. Too bad he, the friendliest, is the biggest and thus due to be first eaten.

An American View: BIG WHEEL

No Easement In Satellites

By RICHARD LOWENTHAL

HOW ARE WE to explain the fact that the political, economic and ideological trends in the Communist satellite regimes of Eastern Europe have since Stalin's death showed a marked divergence from developments in the Soviet Union? How is it possible that the cult of Stalin and of the single local Communist boss, the purge of leaders with a non-Muscovite past, the campaign to 'unmask" American imperialism as well as the drive to eliminate home grown ideas and national traditions, and the concentration of economic efforts on armaments and agricutural collectivisation, seem to go on unchanging in the outer bastions of the Soviet empire even while there are signs of relaxation in its fatherland?

Two possible interpretations suggest themselves. One is that the Soviet leaders, feeling less sure of their control of the outer bastions, have deliberately decided they can afford less relaxation there than at home. The other possible explanation is that even inside Russia the attempt to inaugurate a less rigid foreign policy and a moderate degree of internal relaxation is still opposed by a powerful group of advocates of unchanging orthodoxy, and that this group is still in contral of the satellite States, or at least of some of them. The truth may well be a mixture of the two — in a sense that the geographically more exposed and socially less stable situation of the satellite States favours the more intransigeant school, both within the local Parties and among their Soviet advisers and controllers.

To begin with, it is obviously more risky to raise hopes of peace and of better relations with the West in the satellite States than in Russia. To the Russian people such hopes would chiefly mean less fear of war, perhaps also a prospect of being at last allowed to enjoy some of the fruits of their efforts. To the Czechs and Poles, the Hungarians and the Germans, the end of the cold war still means above all the end of the Iron Curtain — open frontiers, more trade with the West, personal contacts without fear. And for that very reason, the end of the Iron Curtain would in each of these countries bring immediate and mortal danger to the Communist regimes, and their rulers know it. To allow East Germans, Poles, Czechs and Hungarians to think that the end of the cold war may be round the corner, to allow them to think that the Americans may perhaps turn out to be not imperialist warmongers but partners in a lasting peace settlement, means to encourage them to hope for a change of regime. The trumpets of the peace campaign must be muted in the satellite countries if they are not to shake the walls of fear in which their peoples are kept imprisoned.

NOR is the precariousness of the Communist hold on these peoples due to the mere geographical fact that they have common frontiers with the free world. The satellite regimes are still young. They have had time enough to build up the whole apparatus of totalitarian one-Party rule and police oppression, but not time enough to destroy the social roots of resistance.

There still exists in all these States an independent peasantry, desperately opposed to collectivisation — in Poland and Eastern Germany the solid majority, in Czechoslovakia and Hungary still more than half of the agricultural populations. There still exist remnants of the urban middle classes, small traders, craftsmen, independent men in the professions. In Communist language, the "building of Socialism" has not yet been completed — the Communist regime is still engaged in a protracted struggle to destroy those groups who do not live by the State. Inevitably, any relaxation of the regime now would strengthen the resistance of these groups, would allow them to recover from the prolonged terror, and get their breath again, would make them hope that the threat of the Communist revolution from above could be reversed. The natural tendency of all the satellite Communist leaders is, therefore, to insist that there must be no pause before the job of destroying the old classes is finished.

Vancouver Smog

(Vancouver Sun).

Superfine weather is showing Vancouver how thoroughly ashamed it should be of its neglected smoke menace.

Shakespeare probably had the smoke and fog of Elizabethan London in mind when he set his witches chanting about "foul and filthy air." He could just as well have meant downtown Vancouver in this very-warm-for-May week.

It's a Woman's World

(Victoria Times.)

There are cynical folk who will say that Dr. Norman Goodwin, Esquimalt Progressive Conservative candidate, was making a barefaced bid for the women's vote when he advocated legal allocation of two-thirds of a man's pay cheque to his wife.

With that harsh criticism we cannot agree. Such a charge is at once an assault on the doctor's chivalry and on his political acumen.

If Dr. Goodwin can win back one-third of a man's pay cheque for the man, a large number of his fellow males will call him blessed. Obviously this is the way to go about the redistribution of wealth. Household-managing wives are growing too niggardly in the allowances they gave back to husbands from the pay cheques turned over to them.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every disease among the people. But when he saw the multitudes, he was moved with compassion on them, because they fainted, and were scattered abroad, as sheep having no shepherd. (Matt. 9 35, 36.)

After these things the Lord appointed other seventy also, and sent them two and two before his face into every city and place, whither he himself would come. Therefore said he unto them, The harvest truly is great, but the labourers are few: pray ye therofre the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth labourers into his harvest ....

And the seventy returned again with joy, saying, Lord, even the devils are subject unto us through thy name. And he said unto them, I beheld Satan as lighting fall from heaven. Behold, I give unto you power to tread on serpents and scorpions, and over all the power of the enemy and nothing shall by any means hurt you. Notwithstanding in this rejoice not, that the spirits are subject unto you; but rather rejoice, because your names are written in heaven. (Luke 10 1, 2, 17-20.)

Island-Buying Duke

(Ottawa Citizen)

The inhabitants of Vancouver are excited over the announcement that the wealthy Duke of Westminster has bought an island in the Fraser River with the intention of transforming it into a big industral community. As the Vancouver Province sees it, this is "tremendous news for all British Columbia."

The purchase of Annacis Island just south of New Westminster is important by almost any standards. It is a reflection of the faith of overseas investors in the future of Canada's Pacific Coast. British capital has played a prominent part already in such ventures as the Lion's Gate bridge and in residential developments on the North Shore, but the Annacis purchase seems to eclipse all previous episodes.

Among factors in the Duke's decision, it is suggested, were good rail and water transportation, abundant electrical power, and the prospects of a supply of both natural gas and crude oil from Alberta by pipeline. Other Canadian communities able to offer similar advantages can expect equal interest on the part of outside investors.

"They said, 'Anything on board there shouldn't be?' and for a joke I said, 'Only the Crown Jewels,' so for a joke they said, 'O.K. there's five minutes before your ship leaves—let's have her down to make sure'."

Taking No Chances

Queen Unidentified Person On Arrival

By ALVIN STEINKOPF

LONDON (AP)—When the Queen walks into Westminster Abbey for her Coronation, she will, in theory, be an unidentified person coming in to claim the throne.

There is no popular doubt that she is the right girl, but the Church of England is being careful not to crown the wrong person.

That is the symbolism of the beginning of the ceremony. The Queen will come in through the west doors of the church, walk a hundred yards down the nave and up a few steps in the direction of the high altar at the eastern end.

She will walk past the throne she is to occupy. She will pass, next, the chair of King Edward I, in which she will sit when the archbishop of Canterbury places on her head the crown of St. Edward. Beneath the seat is the Stone of Scone.

But at this point Elizabeth will not approach King Edward's chair. Instead she turns slightly to the right and goes to a humbler seat known as the Chair of Estate. She is an uncrowned queen who has not yet taken a sovereign's oath.

The Queen will arrive wearing a crimson gown, fit and adequate to open Parliaments, which she already is qualified to do. She will not yet be authorized to wear the golden gown of the Coronation service, or the royal purple in which she will appear in the Coronation procession.

The Coronation service will give her the proper authority, and the first task of the archbishop of Canterbury will be to establish that she is the proper person.

High officers who come in with the Queen will carry the various objects of her regalia, but to the church the anointing with holy oil is the heart of the ceremony.

KNEELS IN PRAYER

On entering, the Queen first kneels at the Chair of Estate and says private prayers—as private as they may be in the presence of 7,500 persons.

Rising, she then stands near King Edward's chair in the view of all. The archbishop proclaims that she is, in his view, "your undoubted queen."

"Wherefore," he continues, "all you who are come this day to do your homage and service, are you willing to do the same?"

It is a question which stirs history, and goes back to ancient times when kings were acclaimed, or even elected. It is the moment, theoretically, for anyone to challenge the Queen's identity, or her right to reign.

There isn't likely to be any objection Tuesday. Elizabeth will resume her seat and the archbishop will ask her whether she is prepared to take the sovereign's oath and keep it. Having answered his questions satisfactorily, she will go to the altar, lay her right hand on a Bible, say that she will observe her promises, and sign the oath.

RECEIVE BIBLE

Back in the Chair of Estate, the Queen will receive a Bible from the moderator of the general assembly of the Church of Scotland.

Then a communion service will be started, and interrupted for resumption later. The Queen will be assisted out of her crimson robe, and in the white gown she will wear beneath will sit down at last in King Edward's chair. While Knights of the Garter hold a canopy over her, suggesting rather than achieving privacy, she will be anointed, on the hands, breast and head.

Next the Queen will receive fresh robes, and be given swords, ring, bracelets, orb and other insignia.

Finally, the crowning—with the archbishop standing before her as she sits in King Edward's chair. At the precise moment peers and peeresses will put on their coronets, trumpets will sound and at distant places artillery will fire salutes.

The Queen will be escorted to the throne to receive homage of the lords spiritual and temporal, and she will be a queen indeed.

THE QUEEN PRESIDES AT HER EMPIRE—Queen Elizabeth II (centre) presides at a luncheon of 750 representatives of the British Commonwealth as the first formal pre-Coronation occasion begins. At the Queen's left is Sir Winston Churchill. The Queen's chair stands on the exact spot where King Charles I of England was condemned to death for high treason 304 years ago in the history of the British Empire.

"I want to ask you all, whatever your religion may be, to pray for me . . ."—Her Majesty the Queen.

Bible Society Unable To Meet World's Demand

Every 4½ seconds, day and night, the year round, a Bible comes off the presses of the Bible Societies somewhere in the wo rl. 23,000,000 copies were published by the Bible Socieites last year and at least 20,000,000 more are required for the millions of readers who are learning to read by the Dr. Frank Laubach method in over 250 languages and dialects.

Almost all denominations depend upon the Bible Society for the translations used in their missionary work everywhere in the world. 1,059 different languages and dialects now have all or part of the Bible in writing. There are still over 900 to be translated and published.

Only 20% of the world's demand can be met with present resources and publishing costs have increased 35% over pre-war figures.

The Society sustains a loss of 60% on the average on each volume published around the world. Therefore churches and communities across Canada contribute towards the subsidizing of the sale of scripture through the Society.

In 1952 the Peterborough Branch of the Bible Society contributed $1,581.90 to this great work. It is a service of real significance in times like these, for the Bible is the greatest force for overcoming man-made divisions.

Stirling High School Holds Opens House

"Open House" was held Wednesnesday evening at the Stirling High School. A large crowd of parents and citizens were present. The visitors totalling 300 were welcomed by Principal J. L. Good.

Displays of shop work and home economics were the centre of attraction and films were shown on agricultural projects carried out by the pupils.

Members of the staff were present and assisted in displaying the students' work.

Through the courtesy of the Stirling Legion, the citizens of Stirling will be able to view the Coronation by televison at the Legon Hall between 3 p.m. and 9 p.m. on Tuesday next.

Mounties Have Best Spot Protected By Wire Fence

By DAVE McINTOSH

LONDON (CP)—Canada's Mounties probably have the best spot of all in fevered London—inside a wire enclosure in Hyde Park where the public can't get at them.

All week, the local citizenry and the tougher tourists have packed in thousands around Buckingham Palace, Westminster Abbey, or any other place where the Queen or some lesser notable might show up. Hordes wait for hours for a glimpse of Princess Margaret leaving a ball or the Queen Mother going to a luncheon.

In fact, any handful of men in strange uniforms, such as the Mounties practising their musical ride for the Coronation or the Australians mounting guard at the palace, is apt to draw a multitude. So many descended on the RCMP in Hyde Park's Knightsbridge barracks that the Redcoats had to withdraw behind a high wire fence. Hundreds still gather outside to watch the Mounties exercising their horses, giving them maine haircuts with an outsize electric razor or polishing harness.

NOT DISCOURAGED

Londoners don't just stand around for an hour or so and then leave if the dignitary doesn't appear. They stay and stay, rain or shine, night or day. They bring lunches and eat them standing or sitting on the curb. The ones who tend to break under the strain—only momentarily, or course—may sit or lie for a few minutes in the Coronation stands until they catch their breath.

Another favorite, gruelling pastime is walking around the 5½-mile parade route for the greatest show on earth to see the decorations, gaudy streamers and banners, flags galore, massive cardboard crowns and pictures of the Queen.

There is the constant sound of hundreds of thousands of shoes shuffling on hot pavement.

COME ANYWAY

Thursday the Queen threw a garden party: As the royal family were all at the party, there was no hope of catching a glimpse of any of them. But the mobs assembled anyway.

The traffic pile-up was prodigious. Bus and taxi riders found walking faster.

Admirals, archbishops, baronets in grey toppers and richly-gowned women had to elbow their way through the throngs heaped in the Mall.

London is holding its breath. It has to. There's no room to let it out.

Dalton Pitches UEW To Victory Over Revoy Nine

Reg Leether's strong UEW softball nine defeated Revoy Motors 5-2 Thursday night, in the opener of the men's senior twin bill at the East City Bowl; it was a thrilling duel throughout reasonably close and hard fought.

Howie Dalton, veteran star of many softball years took the mound for UE and hurled a fine game limiting the motor squad to eight scattered hits while walking but two; he fanned eight. Dalton, slightly heavier than in former years, hit well to aid his own cause; he belted three hits, one a triple, drove in three runs and scored a pair.

Dick West pitched a fine game for the losers allowing but seven bingles. He also struck out eight rival hitters and walked a pair, thus technically bettering his rival from a purely statistical standpoint; but a walk an error and hits by Tony Kotowsky and Dalton netted three runs in the fifth to settle a fairly close issue in the shop lads' favor. UE took a first-inning lead of two runs but the teams battled closely with neither scoring until the fifth, when the Leether lads extended their margin as above. But Cam Wasson's men pecked away and Red Wasson tallied one in the sixth on some neat base-running following an error. Revoys rallied further in the eighth as Dean Wasson hit safely and was forced by brother Red; Grafstein singled sharply to left, followed by another clout by Ray Craig to score Wasson. Perc. Elmhirst was safe on a fielder's choice but hope died as Cowie sized to Bernie Robson to end the inning; but the Wasson lads went down fighting.

Bernie Robson swung a mean bat for UE as he poked two for three while hard-hitting Jack White had one for three, a hard double in the fourth. Kotowski snared the other safety. For Revoys, Ray Craig and Boyd Cowie each hit two for four; and Gord Henry, Dean Wasson, Neil Wasson and Harold Grafstein each hit safely, the last named driving in a run. Red Wasson's fielding featured.

Revoys — Henry 2b, D. Wasson rf, R. Wasson 3b, Grafstein lf, Craig c, Elmhirst 1b, Cowie cf, N. Wasson ss, West p, C. Wasson.

UE Plays Soccer By The Book, Whip Merchants

UE romped to a 5-2 victory over the Peterborough Merchants Thursday night in a soccer game played at Morrow Park.

UE were first to attack and forced a corner kick which was cleared up field. Holroyd shot just over the bar with a nice effort. The Merchants rallied and Harold Payne came back, just missing the upright with a hard shot.

The Merchants were given a corner kick and the ball went out to G. Downer and he hit the cross bar. Minutes later Downer received a pass from Payne and he sank the opener. But minutes later Hoyle missed from out-front and Holroyd took the rebound to score. Hoyle followed up with another overhead kick to put UE up 2-1.

The Merchants playing hard, pressed again and were rewarded when Hodgins scored, tying the score. Ryan promptly put the UE ahead once more with a 30-yard kick into the corner of the net. The UE kept pressing, Hoyle scored from a pass from Smith and then after Murray tested the Merchants' goalie from close in, Hoyle notched another.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Though Toronto West Yorks are packing to the hilt in a determined bid to wrest the Mann Cup from the Petes this year, they're not drawing well in Orillia, their adopted "home" arena. Getting from 600 to 800, whereas they drew around 1,200 last year in Toronto and looked for crowds up to 2,000 in the Orillia arena. Scribe there remarks "Orillia has been providing the support and Toronto taking much of the sponsorship credit, though Don Holden and others have done their best to avoid this situation. Local fans have shown by lack of attendance they feel a grievance. Since five of the best players hail from St. Catharines the team might as well be called St. Catharines as Toronto West Yorks." He also thinks more of the players shoud take up residence in Orillia.

* * * * * * *

That was not the case of the Petes when they sought to build up a contending senior lacrosse club. Their imports moved into the city and took up work and residence. Most of them became year-around citizens and intend to stay in Peterborough. A few leave in the winter for pro hockey and a couple attended college. But they weren't living in Toronto and commuting to this centre for lacrosse games, so the local fans took to them as Peterborough players. By the way, don't forget it's Brampton Excelsiors here tonight and these teams dished up a rugged and close tilt recently in Brampton. Petes got to St. Kitts tomorrow and to Fergus on Coronation Day.

Seeking The Minto Cup

Results of the Pats' opening OLA junior joust last eve in Brampton should be in elsewhere. Didn't have it at this writing. Those Brampton boys swept it all last season to capture the Canadian junior title and Minto Cup. St. Catharines comes here for an 8.45 touch tomorrow night against the Pats, opening the locals' home season. Along with about 10 first-rate Peterborough players, Doug Miller Jr. has half a dozen or so promising young imports to make the Pats a Minto Cup contender this semester. These include Gary Smith and Ivan Thomas of Oswego, Dave Russell of Long Branch, George Kapasky of Mimico, and Gary Feltham, Al McGary and Ray Ward of Huntsville. The Pats will be good and they deserve fan support.

They call it the scientific game, baseball. Hasn't the speed or rugged action of some sports but it has its widespread appeal for many fans on this continent who like to relax at a game and try to figure out the strategy unfolding before them. It's full of secret signs and signals, peculiar pitches, dusters, pitchouts, faking, sacrifices, and so on. With plenty of skill required and perfect timing. It can and should be speeded up with umpires and players showing hustle to make for more fan appeal. Jake Solomon was a colorful character as manager here years ago and later Knotty Lee was a fighting, hustling pilot. They had teams which won games and drew big crowds. Yes, a good hustling manager and keen umps can sure keep the game moving along.

They Know The Answers

Our junior Liflocs of the Lakeshore League are lucky in having Shockey Mein as manager and Howie Dalton as coach. Both capable players in their day, and smart diamond strategists with hustle. These men are lucky, too, in having a flock of young fellows with which to work. It should add up to a crowd-pleasing club in short order. The Liflocs tackle Oshawa Transporters here Saturday aft in loop play, and should feel no awe toward the ex-seniors aboard the Motor City lineup. After all, the locals are on the way up toward senior ranks — within a year or so — while the veterans are coming back down. Bill Gingerich may get the mound assignment for Oshawa as the ex-college star hasn't hurled for a week. Promises to be an interesting contest.

COSSA winners of this district strut their stuff Saturday at the provincial track and field meet at Lake Couchiching, some 250 of the best high schoolers in Ontario competing. Which leads Mike Rodden of Kingston to write: "George Goulding, the English star who in behalf of Toronto, set records at will, walked a mile in six minutes and 25 and 4/5 seconds on September 30, 1912, in Montreal. And now, 41 years later, a runner gets there first in 11 minutes, 25 and 3/5 seconds." Bev Gouding's dad sure must have been able to reel off the mileage heel-and-toe style, eh? Speaking of field days, Doug Valsey advises that the postponed meet of May 18 will start at one p.m. Coronation Day in Morrow Park for junior boys, and junior, intermediate and senior girls. Under the Recreation Commission and the Jaycees, with trophies by the latter for the winners. A big district will be represented.

Remember When

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vancouver's fighting Irishman Jimmy McLarnin won the world's welterweight championship 20 years ago tonight by knocking out Young Corbett in 2:37 of the first round in a scheduled 10-rounder at Los Angeles. He lost the title to Barney Ross and regained it in 1934, before giving way again to Ross in 1935.

Petes Win 15-10 Over Seabrookes For Four-Way Tie

TPT Petes unleashed a potent offensive in the nightcap of Thursday's men's softball doubleheader at the Bowl, to outslug Seabrooke Motors to the tune of 15-0.

The Petes' victory created a four way tie in the city league standing as each team has now tasted both victory and defeat once, since the season began.

Bill Sullivan elected to throw his veteran hurler, Terry Woods, against the powerful hockey crew under Buck Legrow; and Messrs. Crowe, Leonard, West, Fryia, Collins, Mackness and Castle took an early liking to the big boy's slants for two scores in the first and three more in the third. However, the East City band took kindly to Haddy Eakens' speed balls on the opposing hill and a ding-dong slugging bee ensued.

Seabrooke's combed Haddy for four in the first and added a single in the third. With the score tied at five-all, Sullivan yanked Woods in favor of lefty Doris who held Petes scoreless for three innings after a put-out at third and a double play, engineered by Speed Currie, had halted Petes' dangerous rally in the third. Meanwhile the Sullivan pack added singles in the fifth, sixth and seventh to take what appeared a fairly safe lead. But TPT sluggers suddenly fell on Doris in the home half of the seventh, for a sparkling—and as it turned out—a winning rally.

A single by Leonard, his fourth hit, was followed by booming homers in succession by Mackness and West; then Chum Fryia doubled for his fourth hit, Collins singled, Castle waked, Eakins got a life, and Crowe doubled to score a pair. Petes continued the power attack in the eighth as five hits, a walk and a fielder's choice netted four more tallies. Seabrooke's staged a small final rally in the ninth frame as Skeeter O'Heron singled and scored ahead of Neil Thompson, who hit his second homer of the game to deep centre and circled the sacks like lightning; but Eakins weathered the storm to deserve victory in a real slugfest. Three doube plays featured the thrilling nightcap.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

All schedule games for Tuesday, June 2, have been postponed. Our club will celebrate Coronation Day by holding a mixed rink tournament—one game at 10:00 in the morning and 2 in the afternoon. No bowling at night. Draw drow the board, and the fee is 50 cents.

The ladies will play their postponed games on June 4, and the men's postponed games will be called by the committee.

The winners in the ladies' tournament held on Thursday afternoon were skipped by Mrs. H. Wilson, Mrs. F. Hall, and Mrs. L Bearne.

Our club is pleased to congratulate one of its members, Mrs. S. O. Shields, who was recently honored with a "Badge of Service" for long, faithful and outstanding service to the Red Cross.

No bowling this evening for men, but the ladies have games scheduled.

Canoe Racing Regatta Held August 16

MONTREAL (CP)—Howard Radford, secretary of the Canadian Canoe Association, said Thursday the first North American canoe racing championship regatta will be held Aug. 16 at the Toronto Island Canoe Club course.

Agreement on the title meet was reached recently in Syracuse at a meeting of the CCA and the North American Canoe Racing Association.

The decision follows close association between the groups of both countries following the Olympic Games. The purpose, said Radford, is to foster international competition between the two countries.

WOMAN TRAINER—Olive R. Armstrong, of Toronto, former secretary-bookkeeper, is the only woman owner-trainer on Ontario race-tracks. She is shown with Winter Lady, a filly she bred herself and which is well-fancied in the Queen's Plate to be raced at Toronto June 2. Winter Lady is a daughter of Bunty Lawless, one of Canada's all-time champion thoroughbreds.

Believe Winter Lady Has Good Chance In Plate Race

By JOHN PATERSON

TORONTO (CP)—Want a hunch bet for the 94th running of the Queen's Plate next Tuesday?

Consider Winter Lady, a long-striding bay filly. She was born unattended on a bitter January day in 1950—Friday, the 13th, to be exact. She is from the small stable of Ontario's only woman owner-trainer, Olive Armstrong of Toronto, and she will be ridden by Jockey Herbie Lindberg who piloted another filly, Sally Fuller, to victory in the 1935 King's Plate.

And, incidentally, the $20,000-added 1¼-mile classic will be held Coronation Day when the Queen, donor of the 50 guineas to the winning owner, will be crowned.

On the practical side, Winter Lady is all thoroughbred. She is the daughter of Bunty Lawless, 1938 plate winner and one of Canada's greatest racehorses who has sired two previous plate winners—Epic in 1949 and McGill the following year. Winter Lady is the only Bunty foal in this year's classic.

LEADING SIRE

Bunty, owned by Willie Morrissey, Toronto hotel proprietor, was Canada's leading sire four years and the first sire in Canada whose get earned $100,000 a year, again for four years. After his plate victory the bay went on to smashing victories in racing's "big league," at Saratoga, N. Y., where he won three handicaps against Americanbreds.

It was natural that Miss Armstrong should get into the horse-racing business. She was Morrissey's secretary-bookkeeper for 17 years at his hotel but her job mainly was keeping books at her employer's breeding farm and, says Miss Armstrong, "helping out around the farm, even assisting at many of the births."

"A few years ago Mr. Morrissey gave me a mare, Nomal-Intent, a Kentucky-bred which I had mated to Bunty Lawless," Miss Armstrong said in an interview at Woodbine. "Naturally we watched the mare in foal but despite our care Winter Lady had a natural birth unattended on that cold January Friday. That's how she got her name."

"Winter Lady did well right from the first," she said. "She outran the other yearlings at the farm and we raced her lightly last year. She developed a slight nervous condition in the fall and we eased up on her but when winter training started in January she did everything asked of her."

Winter Lady did okay in the six-furlong plate trial last Saturday. She placed third in her division, nosing out E. P. Taylor's highly-favored Canadiana for the show slot.

Port Hope Gets Soccer Tilt Over The Scots

Port Hope defeated the local Canadian Scottish Club in their City Soccer League fixture by a 3-2 score in a keen contest. Port Hope showed lots of drive in the opening stages, their changes making for open play, while the Scots took more time to settle down. Kowalzyk got the first goal on a hard-driving shot which gave the goalie no chance. The second came in a mixup by the Scots' defence. Dunn tallied next as he timed a shot from 25 yards out. It was 2-1 at the half for Port Hope.

After the interval, the Scots began to click better and kept much of the play in enemy territory. Dunn counted another neat one from a header to even the score. The Scots had some tough luck as nifty shots by Gilchrist, Boyd and Caldwell were blocked. Port Hope ended with a burst as Kowalzyk scored again to finish up the fast, clean game.

Port Hope: Archibald, Philips, Robinson, Miller, Kozak, Watkins, Curton, Hengg, Majewski, Kowalzyk, Kretek.

Scots: Woodstock, Rice, Downer, Peters, Burnett, Daly, Ballantine, Boyd, Attard, Dunn, Gilchrist, Caldwell.

Brooklyn Edges Giants 7-6; Yankees Win 7-2

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

Flushed with gifts from an unexpected source, Brooklyn Dodgers face a busy holiday weekend which may well lead them into first place in the National League. At least the door will be wide open. The Dodgers begin a five-game set today with some of their favorite playmates, Pittsburgh Pirates. The Brooks have beaten Pittsburgh three straight this year and 19 out of 22 last year. After leading almost all the way, New York Giants Thursday gave Brooklyn the winning run in the 10th on a missed third strike, a fielder's choice, an intentional walk and a passed ball. Brooklyn won 7-6.

The Dodgers now are in third place, 1½ games back of the first-place Braves. Milwaukee was idle Thursday while the second-place Cardinals were held to a 10-10 tie in 10 innings at Cincinnati. The game was called because St. Louis had to catch a train home.

WHIP WASHINGTON

In the American League New York Yankees moved three games in front of Chicago White Sox by whipping Washington 7-2 while the White Sox took the day off. Philadelphia licked Boston 6-1 and St. Louis Browns won their second in a row from Cleveland Indians 7-5.

Whitey Ford of the Yankees extended his record of never having lost as a starting pitcher as he set down the Senators on five hits. Ford, a 24-year-old lefthander, has been beaten only once in 14 decisions in the majors and that came in a relief role.

Another winning streak by a pitcher was broken in the Philadelphia-Boston game where the Athletics finally beat Mel Parnell for the first time in more than two seasons.

LEAGUE TOTAL

In St. Louis veteran Bob Elliott drove in six runs with a bases-loaded homer and a single. The two hits ran his lifetime major league total to 1,998.

Pittsburgh Pirates slammed 15 hits off the offerings of Jim Konstanty but the 36-year-old Philadelphia righthander stayed the distance to pick up his fourth victory 9-8.

The Cincinnati-St. Louis tie was a wild affair with the Redlegs scoring two runs in the eighth on Grady Hatton's pinch homer, two more in the ninth on a homer by Andy Seminick and a final pair in the 10th on a single with the bases loaded by Jim Greengrass. The game will be replayed from the start at some later date.

Grandma Burright Quits Harness Racing

CHICAGO (AP) — "Grandma" Burright, who will be 70 June 10, has decided to quit as a harness race driver after a 57-year career in which she reined more than 2,000 winners.

But she is only quitting the sulky, as far as the harness sport is concerned. Thursday night she took over as a timer in Maywood Park's judging stand.

The wiry mother of seven children, who raced with her grey hair tightly pinched under her driver's cap, drove her last competitive race Monday night at Maywood. She finished fourth with her trotter, Kinny Wynn.

Battling Nelson Ex-Champ Poor And Sick

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP) — You trudge down the dim, battered hall in the ancient near-northside hotel and you come to the home and castle of Battling Nelson, onetime king of the lightweights.

It's a drab room in which a shrunken little man huddles in a chair by a window. He sits, and waits, and wonders if the latest move to give him a helping hand will end his hard times.

Poverty has done to Nelson, who will be 71 June 5, what Joe Gans, Young Corbett, Jimmy Britt, Abe Attel and Terry McGovern couldn't do with battering fists.

The Bat is sick, and old and tired—but hoping somehow things will brighten so he can get a "real" home in California.

Nelson nearly died a few months ago with flu. That's why he weighs about 100 pounds and the cheek bones protrude from his gaunt face.

IN DAZED CONDITION

Almost in a dazed recitation, Nelson tells you how he was the only man who knocked out Gans twice. How he never drank, smoke or chewed tobacco. And how his ring earnings of about $300,000 vanished in a real estate venture.

"If I was fighting now, I'd make more money in one fight than I made in my entire career." The Bat mused. "I'd be a millionaire."

For several years, ever since his small-salaried job at the parcel post division of Chicago's main post office ended, Nelson has been getting handouts from friends. Just enough to cover his hotel rent and groceries.

Now the Battling Nelson Benefit Committee is working on an annuity fund which will give him $100 a month for life. The project centres around a testimonial dinner Sept. 28.

ALS SIGN McGILL PLAYER

MONTREAL P)(C — Montreal Alouettes announced Thursday the signing of Jim Miller, an outside wing, who played four years of football at McGill University Miller is 21 years old and weighs 195 pounds. He recently made sport headlines by winning the provincial golden gloves boxing title.

Deny Title Fight With Savoie Been Sanctioned

QUEBEC (CP)—Gene Letourneau acting national commissioner of the Canadian Boxing Federation, denied Thursday that sanction has been given to a Canadian lightweight championship in Toronto, June 8, between Armand Savoie and Arthur King.

Letourneau also said the fight could not be for the British Empire title. The British boxing board of control some time ago took the title away from King because he had failed to defend it.

The British Empire lightweight crown now is held by another fighter, Letourneau added, but he did not name him.

Promoter Frank Tunney announced in Toronto Wednesday night that the 12-round bout between King, a native of Toronto, and Savoie, the Canadian lightweight champion from Montreal, would be for both titles.

NOT ELIGIBLE

Letourneau said King, who has been fighting out of Philadelphia, is reported to have taken out American citizenship papers and therefore is not eligible to fight for any Canadian crown.

Tunney said in Toronto that he and Jack (Deacon) Allen, Toronto matchmaker, were asked by the CBF to stage the bout for the Canadian lightweight championship fight. He said that Allen had received a letter to that effect from the CBF.

Tunney said, however, that official sanction was not asked by him or Allen.

As for the British Empire title, Tunney said as far as he knew King still held it.

SANTIAGO (AP)—Most of Chile was battered by gales and heavy rain Thursday for the second consecutive day. Nine persons died. The government newspaper La Nacion reported 10,000 persons were homeless.

Ward And Carr Make Quarter-Finals

HOYLAKE, England (CP)—Defending champion Harvie Ward of Atlanta, Ga., and Dublin-born Joe Carr, both rated high in international golf, advanced Thursday into the quarter-final round of the British amateur championship.

Ward, only American left in the last eight, blasted his way past two Britons in easy fashion—7 and 6 over Alan Turner in the fifth round and 5 and 3 over Guy Wolstenholme in the sixth.

Carr, lanky Irishman, had it easy in the morning round with a 6 and 5 victory over Sydney Ball of England and was extended in the sixth to advance with a one up decision over Maj. Melville Bucher of Scotland in the sixth round.

Americans went down like tenpins in the fifth round.

Advancing to the last eight with Ward and Carr were J. T. Lambie of England, Dixon Rawlinson of England, Cecil Beamish of Ireland, Arthur Perowne of England, J. W. Draper of Scotland, and C. F. Windrow of England.

Beamish pulled the upset of the day with an extra-hole one-up victory over big Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., one of the tournament's best golfers, in the fifth round. He followed with another one-up decision over Ian Caldwell of England.

Buffalo Trims Indians 4-2 Behind Jordan

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Righthander Milt Jordan, obtained by Buffalo a short time ago from Detroit Tigers of the American Baseball League, has proved he can handle starting roles as well as he does relief jobs.

Manager Jack Tighe of Bisons Thursday night pressed Jordan into service as a starter against Syracuse Chiefs, and the 26-year-old hurler came through with flying colors—hailing Buffalo out of a five-game International League losing streak by trimming the Indians 4-2.

Jordan, with Buffalo last year, has two relief victories to his credit since coming to the Bisons this season.

The Bisons are in fourth place, four percentage points ahead of Ottawa Athletics, who went 14 innings at Springfield to defeat the tail-end Cubs 4-3.

ROYALS LEAD LEAGUE

Montreal Royals continue to lead the league, finishing a four-game sweep at Baltimore with a 6-3 victory over the Orioles. The Orioles handed it to the Royals on unearned runs.

Jack Sanford, Baltimore starter, allowed only three hits in seven innings he pitched but was charged with his fourth loss against five victories. A pair of errors by his team-mates in the second inning resulted in four unearned runs.

The second-place Red Wings defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 3-2 at Rochester to remain 1½ games behind Montreal. The loss leaves the Leafs in third place, two games behind.

George Condrick and reliefer Jack Crimian, both righthanders, shared the five-hit triumph, with Condrick notching his third win.

At Springfield, a long triple by Billy Shantz, coupled with a throwing error by Jack Wallaesa, gave Ottawa the marathon win. The Athletics' run broke a string of nine consecutive scoreless innings.

KITCHENER WANTS IN ORFU

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo will apply to join the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union this season, it was announced Thursday night.

The new club would be the fifth team in the league. The others are Sarnia Imperials, Toronto Balmy Beach, Brantford Redskins and Windsor Royals.

"We're delighted to have Kitchener-Waterloo in the league," secretary Harold Bailey of the ORFU said in Toronto. "For some time we've thought of that centre as an ideal location for an ORFU team."

The Kitchener-Waterloo application to join the league will be discussed, along with the schedule, at a league meeting in mid-June.

"I can't think of any reason that the application won't be accepted," Bailey said.

Have 22 Horses Entered For Queen's Plate

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Twenty-two horses have been entered for the 94th running of the Queen's Plate —the biggest field since 1933 when King O'Connor, owned by the famous Seagram stable from Waterloo, Ont., won the 50 guineas and cash.

The Ontario Jockey club announced that figure Thursday but it is likely this will be trimmed before the thoroughbreds canter to the starting gate around 3:30 p.m. EDT Tuesday. A fickle filly probably will have a lot to do about the final starting line-up.

Canadiana, three-year-old filly owned by Toronto millionaire Edward P. Taylor, prohibitive 8-to-5 winter book favorite and a flop in the six-furlong Plate Trial last Saturday, still isn't a certain starter in the $20,000-added stake.

That is to be decided today in a one-mile workout. If the verdict is "yes" it is probable a few will be scared off before final $250 starting fee is due a few hours before post time.

BIG LEAGUE COMBINATION

If Canadiana impresses in her workout, the field will be up against a big-league combination of the strapping bay filly and Eddie Arcaro, one of the world's top jockeys who has been commissioned by Taylor to make his first Plate appearance. The odds then would shorten to about 1 to 10, with the rest of the horses running the nine-furlong classic hoping for second- or third-place money.

Canadiana's last-minute workout was decided upon after she finished fourth in the trial, behind J. R. McIntyre's Blue Scooter.

Herbie Lindbergh will be astride Winter Lady, owned by Olive Armstrong, Ontario's only owner-trainer. Winter Lady impressed in the trials with a third place, a nose in front of Canadiana.

Denny Birley will take Briarcrest owned by Vince Sheridan of Toronto and Gil Robillard has Loursiete, owned by H. J. Carmichael of St. Catharines.

Ted Johnson, Canada's leading jockey in 1952 with 135 winners and whose riding has been as hot as a pistol at Suffolk Downs this season, will be on hand to ride Blue Scooter.

ELIZABETH the Queen

By Marion Crawford
Former Governess to Her Majesty

© 1952 BY PRENTICE HALL, INC.
DISTRIBUTED BY NEA SERVICE

XXI

Always the spotlight of public interest follows Queen Elizabeth, exploring her most private and personal moments in a way which few of her subjects would stand.

It is right, with the Constitution formed as it is, that Royal Grants should be discussed by the Parliament which passes them. But it cannot be pleasant to have your income, needs, and expenses attacked by the House of Commons and the result of their debate published all over the world.

I well remember the embarrassed air which hung over Buckingham Palace while the allowances paid yearly to Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip were being debated.

From the age of 11 the Princess received a yearly income of 6,000 pounds—granted her out of the King's Civil List of 410,000 pounds.

At 21 this income was raised to 15,000 pounds annually, and at the time of her marriage to 30,000 pounds with extra grants for the upkeep of Clarence House.

To those who think these figures large, I would point out what inflated expenses Royalty have to bear. Princess Elizabeth had to furnish her home literally "fit for a king" to live in.

It would not have been in the country's interests for the Heiress Presumptive to live in a suburban bungalow.

Just as, when she went abroad, the Princess was our No. 1 Ambassadress, so, at home, hers was the home which typified the country.

To maintain it she had to employ a staff far larger than her private tastes dictated. She had to have a Comptroller to handle the complex problems of her household and manage her finances; a secretary to handle the huge mail which came to her daily and deal with her appointments and those callers who needed her assistance; there were the kitchen, the backstairs staff needed to support the house in the style which Parliament felt would make it a credit to the country, and there were pensioners grown old in Royal service who had to be provided for in their retirement.

Another expense was the major outlay of entertaining foreign dignitaries who visit the country nad cannot be entertained by a sandwich and a cup of tea. They must be met with the pomp and ceremony suitable to their rank.

Banquets and garden parties sometimes cost the King as much as 3,000 pounds each. All this had to come out of his grant. And, similarly, the Princess's smaller-scale entertaining came out of hers.

This they accepted as part of their duty. But it could not be pleasant for them to have to face, on the top of that burden, criticism of the monies they are allowed, so little of which remains for their private needs.

✧ ✧ ✧

No girl in love and yet not publicly joined by engagement to the man she loves welcomes prying into her private feelings.

Princess Elizabeth wore her first fur coat at the age of 18 when she attended Irving Berlin's all-soldier show, "This Is the Army," at the Palladium.

Yet that is what Princess Elizabeth had to put up with all through that long, trying time before she and Prince Philip could face the world as future man and wife.

Although that sense of duty I have stressed so often in these pages is one which made her destiny of the highest importance in the Queen's life, do not think that public curiosity did not cost her dear.

I saw her shaken by the sometimes coarse but no doubt kindly meant interest in her affairs taken by some of the public she saw on her day's duty.

I felt the strain she was under, watched the way her eyes would sometimes stray to Prince Philip, knowing that in her heart she must be saying, "Why can't I marry the man I love? Why must there be this pitiless delay?"

It does not require great depths of imagination to visualize the struggle which must have taken place inside here; the desire of every girl in love to be with the man she loves, conditioned by her training which taught her that Royalty are not as other people—not in any superior way, but only in the disciplined position imposed on them.

How often she must have longed to throw it all up, to leave the court which turned her private life into a public discussion and run away.

TYPICAL OF THE EXCITEMENT and anticipation gripping all Londoners as Coronation Day approaches is this scene near Westminster Abbey as a cheering crowd surges forward outside the old church for a glimpse of Queen Elizabeth leaving for Buckingham Palace following a rehearsal for the June 2 ceremonies. London is being converted into a gay and colorful city as thousands of visitors are arriving for the Coronation.

Grant Bertrand 11th Hour Execution Stay

OTTAWA (CP)—Rheal Leo Bertrand, scheduled to be hanged today for the murder of his 33-year-old wife, has been granted an 11th-hour stay of execution to June 12 for a mental examination.

A statement issued Thursday by Justice Minister Garson said:

"Within the past 48 hours representations have been made to me that Rheal L. Bertrand is insane and has been insane for some time past.

"These representations have been made by one who is of unquestioned integrity and standing in the community. The question of Bertrand's possible insanity was not raised in either of the two trials.

TILL JUNE 12

"In these circumstances a stay of execution until June 12 next has been granted in order that the prisoner may be examined by a competent alienist. . . ."

Bertrand, 37-year-old self-styled psychologist, was to have been hanged in Montreal last Friday for killing his bride of two months, whose body was found in a hunting cabin at Lac Ste. Marie, Que., 60 miles north of Ottawa, in December, 1951.

He was granted a week's postponement to seek leave to appeal before the Supreme Court of Canada on the ground that the trial jury was allowed to go to confession.

Mr. Justice Robert Taschereau refused leave.

Says Citizens Fail Rate Parliament High

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—James M. Macdonnell, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Toronto Greenwood, said Thursday Parliament belongs to the citizens but they don't "rate it very high."

Addressing a Chamber of Commerce luncheon, he said he believed "the western civilization reached its peak in 1913" when the world lived and believed in peace.

"We thought peace was normal, but it wasn't. We think democracy is normal, but it isn't. Our only hope is that we may get back to tolerance and Christian virtues."

Queen Chooses Special Makeup

LONDON (Reuters)—The Queen has chosen the makeup she'll wear Coronation Day, after more than six months of trial-and-error experiment.

Mrs. Thelma Holland, her beauty consultant for nine years, says it will comprise:

1. Peach-tinted liquid foundation.
2. A touch of red-blue powder rouge over the foundation to enhance her own healthy coloring.
3. A new red-blue lipstick specially created to tone with the vivid red parliamentary robe the Queen will don travelling to Westminster Abbey, where she will be crowned, and with the purple robe of state she will wear during the state drive afterwards through London's festive streets.
4. Peach-tinted face powder.

Mrs. Holland explained that a model with coloring similar to the Queen's was guinea pig in the experiments.

Floral Clock To Have Coronation Look

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Ontario hydro's 38-foot floral clock at Queenston will have a Coronation look next week.

Twenty thousand carpet plants with gold and red foliage will be arranged in the shape of the imperial state crown with jewels of cacti in white, gold, brown and yellow. Also in the display will be the initials E.R. and the numerals 1953, in red and yellow.

NORWOOD (ENS)—The Norwood Speedy Weeders met at the home of Audrey Gardner on Monday evening. The leader, Mrs. John Knox, had charge of the lesson period with the main topic being "Weeds, Insects and Disease."

A group discussion was held on flowers, successful crops and vegetable eating habits.

Lunch was served.

To Roast Ox With Gadgets

DEEP RIVER (CP)—Some scientific gadgets and a handful of experts on atomic energy and engineering will gather June 2 to show the housewife just how beef should be roasted.

The experts, working at the atomic energy centre here, 110 miles east of North Bay, wanted to do something different for the coronation.

Dr. I. L. Fowler suggested roasting an ox over an open fire. Some 60 university graduates will do the cooking. Among other things, they will use 10 thermacouples, which are something civil engineer Dave Wallace calls "glorified meat thermometers," and a motor with a reverse switch.

The ox will be lashed on to the spit—a heavy pipe—and the motor will be run to turn the steer as each side gets roasted. Every couple of hours, the thermacouples, thrust into various parts of the animal will be taken out to see how the beast is coming.

Let your engine tell the story
MAKE THE "15 to 50" Test

Have your tank filled with Esso if you use a regular grade gasoline . . . Esso Extra if you use a premium grade. Take your car out on the level highway and accelerate from 15 to 50 miles an hour. Let your engine prove the new Esso or Esso Extra can give you livelier pick-up, smoother blowing power . . . better all-round, all-year performance.

MORE CANADIANS USE ESSO AND ESSO EXTRA THAN ANY OTHER GASOLINES

P.E.I. PREMIER — Alex M. heson, 50, has been named p e ier of Prince Edward Island following the appointment to the Senate of J. Walter Jones, former premier. Mr. Matheson, former P.E.I. health minister, is believed Canada's tallest legislator. He is six feet, six inches tall.

Ladies Present Lamp To Minister's Wife

LAKEFIELD (ENS) — Mrs. W. H. Tonge was guest of honor when the Missionary and Service Club of the United Church met at the home of Mrs. A. W. Newson.

A tri-light floor lamp was presented to her by Mrs. Lloyd Bailey, who expressed the regret of the members at losing such a valued member and wished her and her husband the Rev. W. H. Tonge happiness and success in their new home in London. The Tonge family will leave Lakefield on Monday.

Mrs. Edison Foster was in charge of the program and the scripture reading was given by Mrs. Carmen Payne. Mrs. William Whetung gave a reading by Dr. Charles Taylor, "Is the Church Necessary?" The study book was taken by Mrs. Robert McCracken who gave a comprehensive talk on the Christian Church in Africa.

The business period was in charge of the president Mrs. W. H. Fife, who reviewed briefly the work done so far this year by the club. Miss Irene Madill, literature secretary reported on books read and urged the members to bring the second quarter reading report at the next meeting, June 23, at the home of Mrs Clarence Coons.

Final plans were completed for the Coronation Tea and bake sale Friday. Mrs. R. McCracken is general convener and tea will be poured by the presidents of the Home and School Association, the Women's Institute, the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion and the regent of the Catherine Parr Traill Chapter IODE.

Mrs. George Tanner, group convener, announced a bake sale June 13 in the park at Memorial Hall. It was decided since the club is holding one event in June, not to have the strawberry festival. The secretary was asked to write the Women's Association of this decision.

Conveners for the Christmas bazaar are: Handicraft, Mrs. J. Keller; home baking, Mrs. Alex Graham; aprons, Mrs. Clare Chittick; fish pond, Mrs. T. Payton; white elephant table, Mrs. A. W. Newson; Mission Band table, Mrs. Leslie Poole. Other conveners will be named later.

Assisting the hostess in serving tea to the 39 members present were Mrs George Carey, Mrs. Payton and Mrs. William Whetung.

Trinity Ladies Meet At Mrs. Metcalfe's

HASTINGS (ENS)—Mrs. Leonard Metcalfe was hostess to the Evening Auxiliary of Trinity United Church. Fourteen members and five visitors were present.

Mrs. R. Burnham presided and opened the meeting with a short story followed by prayer. Mrs. A. Thompson and Mrs. A. Orr gave the secretary's and treasurer's reports.

The stewardship secretary, Mrs. Harvey Young gave a reading entitled "Happiness". Supply secretary Mrs. C. Lockhart asked the members to have their donations for the layette in by June 1. Mrs. Burnham presided for the business. Mrs. S. Fisher will be hostess for the June meeting. The committee in charge will be Miss M. Webster, Mrs. H. Young, Mrs. M. Baker and Mrs. I. Bonds Jr.

Mrs. Clifford Scriver took charge of the worship and program, assisted by Miss J. Lamb, Mrs. W. Thomas and Mrs. A. Thompson. The worship closed with prayer. The hostess, assisted by Mrs. C. Scriver and her committee, served refreshments. A social half-hour was enjoyed.

Curtain Falls

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (CP) —The annual performance of Hamlet at Elsinore, where Hamlet lived and died, has been cancelled. The theatre company said it lacked sufficient cash and government subsidies.

Couple Honored On 30th Anniversary

HARWOOD (ENS).—Relatives, neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Johnston gathered in the community hall on Monday evening to celebrate with them their 30th wedding anniversary.

H. C. Hayward was MC for the occasion, William Baker read the presentation card and Alex Johnston made the presentation of a pop-up toaster. Mrs. A. Sandercock, also on behalf of the community, presented the couple with two large baskets of tulips.

Mrs. Clarence Cooke and Mrs. Jack Fowlie, Port Hope, sisters of Mr. Johnston, were both present.

C. E. Burrison, reeve, spoke briefly, congratulating the couple.

The following won prizes for the euchre: Ladies' first, Mrs. H. Hayward; ladies' second, Mrs. L. Payne; gentleman's first, Mr. Harry Young; gentlemen's second, Mr. C. Cooke; and lone hands Mrs. T. Chadwick.

MORE ABOUT—

Tito Determined

in the form of two vast unfinished buildings erected a few years ago just across the Sava river from Belgrade. They were to be the new capital and the last word in efficiency—but they were built upon shifting sands despite the advice of Dutch experts and now that they are up they are tombs to inefficiency that will likely have to be brought down again to save face.

MAKING PROGRESS

I gather there are similar evidences of ill-planned construction and industry all across the country. But—and it is a big but—observers here a long time say that by and large the industrialization is making progress, and as one American characteristically put it, "these guys are rushing all over like wild horses, but I'll be damned if they aren't getting somewhere". He said they were inefficient and they often bogged down in theory, "but you gotta hand it to them for getting the thing going". "Why", he went on—and he was a trained observer— "just look in their shops; not so long ago there was nothing in 'em but slogans; now you can buy clothes or processed foods or machinery that this country never thought of making."

All this industrialization is being done thanks considerably to American, British and French aid, something like $200,000,000 since 1951. But Marshal Tito himself told me that he hoped the country would be self-sustaining in two years and some observers here don't find that too tall a story However, in granting such "aid" to Yugoslavia the Western countries are in effect aiding themselves and probably spending money against Russian imperialism where it is most useful. That aid figure, incidentally, is abnormally large because of a devastating drought in 1950 and 1952. It was the drought, and the consequent shortage of wheat, that brought Canada into the picture. We loaned them $8,200,000 quickly on condition they would buy our fifth grade wheat with it. (Which seems like the kind of Canadian generosity I ran into in India a couple of years ago. We are a pretty sharp crew of traders, considering we are about the best blessed land in the world.)

HEAR ONLY THANKS

But I heard only thanks for that Canadian loan. Apparently they appreciated getting it at all, and so quickly. Come to think of it in all my talks with a dozen or more government officials and numerous others I don't think I have heard any criticism of Western countries. They don't want to give up Communism to join our bloc, but they admire our bloc and our defences and are ready to fight by us.

Actually it was Vukmanovic who came closest to ribbing the United States. He had been giving me a veritable hymn to Yugoslavia's mineral and natural wealth: all kinds of power, coal, copper, lead, zinc, forests, aluminum, bauxite, steel, fertilizer. And yet the Americans suggested that a country with all that natural wealth should leave it untouched and concentrate on agriculture! Mr. Vukmanovic observed with a twinkle that he noted that the United States used only 16 per cent of its population on agriculture and yet criticized Yugoslavia for trying to cut theirs from 75 percent.

To close this piece on Yugoslav industry let me tell of a visit to one of their proudest factories. It is at Zagreb and is called Rade Koncar, which was the name of a young mechanic who worked in the small German repair shop that was there before the war. Koncar fought with the Tito guerrillas and his name honors the large industry that now stands where his repair shop once stood.

Rade Koncar makes heavy equipment for hydro development, turbines and such, and is the joy of the country. It comprises four huge buildings each about 200 yards long, employs 3,200 people of whom 450 are women. As are all Yugoslav industries or businesses, this is run by its Workers Council, a body elected by secret ballot by all employees, which in turn elects a Management Board. All members of the Workers Council are workers in the factory, but the Board of Management may include experts from outside.

QUITE FRANK

The president of the Workers Council, Josip Mihl, a keen young man of 39 whom you'd probably be glad to employ in any business, told me happily that he was a Communist. He said he was certainly not the best engineer in the place but was pretty good. His general popularity and leadership qualities probably accounted for his election as president. He earns 48 dinars an hour, whereas the highest paid expert engineer in the place earns 63 and the lowest skilled worker gets 43. He was proud to say that many experts earned more than he, and added with further pride that he and his council had appointed the experts.

WORK HARD AT PLANT

They work hard at Rade Koncar, from 6 a.m. until 2 p.m. with a half-hour stop for lunch. He adds, "we work really hard", and Saturday is a full work day. His 48 dinars an hous bring him about $7.68 a week, but to that he may add health insurance and baby allowances and other social benefits paid by the state (which I will report on in a later article). Rent for a two-room flat costs him only 700 dinars or not quite the equivalent of two days' work.

They told me that for a year now it has not been at all necessary for a man to be a Communist to get ahead. Thirty of the 90 in the council are Communists, only one of three department heads is a Communist, and only one of five foremen. It used to be different, they say, but now a man's ideology isn't allowed to impair his usefulness or gain him undue promotion.More experienced observers here tell me this is about the truth, though they doubt that a non-Communist would get right to the top.

WALKED MILES

I walked miles through the factory, still adorned with May Day leaves and pennants. I can't say it looked either as busy or as efficient as a new Canadian or American factory. There was certainly an easy camaraderie around the place, but perhaps to the point of being casual. Were it not that wages are so low it would seem that a Yugoslav factory product would be pretty expensive. I suspect an American efficiency man with graphs and statistics and slide rules would come up with a low man-hour-production-rate, which of course doesn't necessarily prove the Yugoslavs are wrong. But still, I'm told by observers that the Communist ideal of letting the workers run the factories and decide the policies is proving better propaganda than production.

IRRITATES EXPERTS

Similarly, the Alice-in-Wonderland of ideological planning that is trying to link factory with community, community with province, province with state but still without giving any one person or body full control and responsibility—this, similarly, is making Western experts tear their hair.

It all reminds me of when Grant Dexter took a look at the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan early in the war and ruefully remarked: "'If this thing works it will be the greatest coincidence of all time." The air training plan worked, but I have a hunch there are going to be a lot of new headaches, a lot of new five-year plans, a lot of ideological face-saving, before Yugoslavia attains her laudable ambition. But by golly they're trying, and they're working, and they've already come a long way.

SPANISH AMBASSADOR — Mariano de Yturraide y Orbegoso, Spain's first ambassador to Canada, has presented his letter of credence to Governor-General Vincent Massey. A 49-year-old law graduate, he has represented Spain in Panama, Venezuela, Ireland and the United States and served as consul-general of Spain at Montreal from 1950 to 1952.

Sample Of Fabric For Westminster On Show Here

Of the many store windows in the city's business section which have been specially decorated for the Coronation, one containing a unique feature is that of Cherney Bros. on the south-west corner of George and King Sts.

Alongside a large portrait photograph of Queen Elizabeth II by Karsh of Ottawa is a generous sample of the original fabric woven for the frontals to the balconies and various curtains in Westminster Abbey for the Coronation service.

BLUE SILK

The fabric, a blue silk warp tissue, is known as "The Queensway." On a blue silk background, the centre of the design appears in gold, enriched with a metallic thread. It consists of the national emblems of the British Isles—the rose, thistle, leek and shamrock—below a royal crown composed of ivy leaves, fleur de lis, pinks and other flowers. Between each group, enclosed by branches of oak leaves, are the letters ER in the form of an elaborate scroll.

The design was drawn by Prof. Robert Goodden, RDI, FSIA, and the fabric was produced after many trials and experiments in the sample rooms and studio of Warner and Sons of London, England.

A gold tissue in the same design, "The Quensway," is being woven for the frontal of the royal boxes and for the covering of the regalia table in the vestibule of the abbey.

The sample in Cherney Bros.' window cost $22.50 a yard, but, however desirable it might be for home furnishing, none of this beautiful fabric is for sale.

Leaves Residue Of Estate To Hospital

ST. THOMAS (CP)—Under terms of the will of the late Hon. Mitchell F. Hepburn, former Ontario premier who died last Jan. 5, the St. Thomas and Elgin General Hospital is to receive the residue of his estate 23 years after his death, after providing for payments and distributions specifically set out in the testament.

Filed for probate here, the will of the former Ontario Liberal leader sets the Hepburn estate at $276,483, including real estate valued at $138,000.

In conjunction with specific bequests to his widow, Mrs. Eva Hepburn, executors are to retain and keep invested the residue of the estate for three years, carrying on the farming, cattle raising and sand and gravel business, paying the net income to Mrs. Hepburn.

Will Accept Queen

COPENHAGEN (Reuters)—The Danish people in a referendum Thursday approved a new constitution which will enable a Queen to mount the throne of this country again after 4½ centuries of male monarchs. As a result, Princess Margrethe, 13-year-old daughter of King Frederik, is next in line for the throne instead of the king's brother, Prince Knud.

Britain's Pubs Could Sell Ice Cream, Beer

LONDON (AP)—TV is raising havoc with one of Britain's haughtiest and most respected institutions the pub.

Things have really reached an alarming state, sufficient to bring horror to the historians of such pub habitants of by-gone years as Dr. Samuel Johnson, Bobby Burns and G. K. Chesterton.

Business is getting so bad that a pub in Beaconsfield recently applied for a licence to sell ice cream along with beer. Its application was rejected with indignation.

Publicans are rapidly reaching a crisis, however, in dealing with television, which is going through growing pains in Britain.

The Englishman still patronizes the pub for lunch and a few mild-and-bitters. But after nightfall the pubs aren't the same—no longer the favorite club for small talk and intellectual philosophy.

More and more the beer-drinkers are going straight home, and staying there, to watch TV.

There are 4,468 pubs in London alone. So far they have resisted the introduction of TV.

Along with competition from TV, there's a general tightening of money with higher living costs.

One pub owner says he is planning an innovation—a mobile pub. "If people won't come to me," he says, "I'll have to go to them—at football matches, big fights and race meetings. The pub as we used to know it is dead."

Record Plantings

LONDON (CP)—Britain's reforestation campaign will be aided by the report of forestry commission expert R. F. Wood who spent several months studying forestry on Canada's Pacific slopes. Last year a record 61,632 acres were reforested in the United Kingdom.

CENTRE OF INTEREST IN LONDON—This view of Buckingham Palace, one of the focal points of interest in the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth on June 2, looks at the massive square building from the front, a part of the old structure seldom seen by the public. Constructed in 1703, the palace has more than 600 rooms, the main ones being indicated above. It is a four-storied building with an interior court and is centrally located in London.

Patricias Have Regained Mastery Of No Man's Land

By BILL BOSS

IN KOREA (CP)—The Patricias have regained for the Canadian brigade mastery over no man's land in their sector.

The job was done in six weeks of steady, increasingly aggressive, patrolling after their return to the Korean line April 6.

The battalion was relieved by the 3rd battalion, Royal 22nd Rregiment, May 15.

Completion of its second tour on the Korean front means that the 3rd Patricias so far have had front-line duty during only 10 weeks of their almost seven months in Korea. They now are more than half-way through their stint here.

Their first four weeks in the line were last December. Then, just as the unit was to return in January, the Commonwealth division went into reserve for two months.

CONTROL LOST

Control of no man's land was lost during the reserve period, and the Patricias returned to find Chinese accustomed to visiting United Nations barbed wire nightly, even nipping off outposts.

The Chinese learned better sharply.

Although the occasional enemy soldier still slips in to throw stones in attempts to draw Canadian fire—thereby finding out weapons locations—by May 15 the Patricias were roaming no man's land at will.

Their last patrol, accomplished the night of their relief, proved that.

Under Lieut. Frank Dorsey of Calgary, 16 men left the Patricia positions, crossed a stream that marks a rough half-way dividing line, and reached the base of the enemy's ride-top positions.

The patrol stalked about a mile down the enemy's front, recrossed the stream and regained Canadian territory without incident.

Highlight of the six weeks was the night of May 2-3 when the Chinese were surprised while forming up to attack the 3rd battalion, the Royal Canadian Regiment. Some enemy made a diversionary feint onto the Patricias when the main attack went in on the RCR.

Three groups of Patricias had dealings with them.

CALL ARTILLERY FIRE

One, led by Sgt. Leonard Stedman of Toronto, and comprising Ptes. F. W. Gardiner of McCord, Sask., and V. T. Scott of Harcourt, N. B., was even fired upon by Canadian artillery in deliberate shoots to break up Chinese milling around them. Stedman had to turn off his wireless set lest Chinese, within 10 feet of his patrol, detect them from the headset's whistling.

Several times Stedman's men spotted new batches of Chinese, pouring out of their positions and heading for the battle, and called for artillery fire. One round landed so close that Gardiner was lifted bodily by the blast and spun around. None of the three was hurt.

Another standing patrol under Pte. R. W. J. Poisson of Bryson, Que., was between the Patricias and the RCR. Early in the battle the Chinese crumped in 10 mortar bombs, killing Pte. Ken Crompton of Portage La Prairie, Man., and badly wounding Poisson, who bandaged himself and applied a tourniquet to his leg.

HIDES COMRADE

A second crump wounded Pte. Donald Bateman of Vancouver, third man on the patrol, and sent more fragments into Poisson. Bateman dressed his own wounds and Poisson's new ones, then hid his comrade in a paddy dyke before going back to report. He wasn't strong enough to carry Poisson.

S. Sgt. V. D. Cole of Toronto asked permission to rescue Poisson. When the artillery and mortar fire died sufficiently permission was given. Cole went out, accompanied by Pte. Murray Schofield of Portage La Prairie, a friend of Crompton's.

First they brought in Poisson, under shelling, and then they retrieved Crompton's body.

The regiment's machine-gunners, under Capt. Scott Campbell of Calgary, fired 93,000 rounds that night in support of the RCR, thickened up by the battalion's mortars under Lieut. Maurice Barnett of Nanaimo, B. C.

Two days after leaving the line the battalion acquired a new commanding officer, Lt.-Col. M. F. (Tony) Maclachlan of Halifax, formerly second-in-command of the 1st Canadian highland battalion in Germany.

Barr Colonists Founders Of Lloydminster

LLOYDMINSTER, Sask. (CP)—This town lying astride the Saskatchewan-Alberta boundary is planning ceremonies beginning July 19 to commemorate the 50th aniversary of its founding by the Barr colonists. Two thousand British settlers travelled 5,000 miles to set up new homes on the bleak Canadian Prairies.

One of those who made the ocean voyage, the long train trip and then wagon trek was Cyril Ellis of Edmonton who came with his father and a brother, Edw

A Canadian steamship designed to carry not more than 700 passengers was loaded with the 2,000 British emigrants for the ocean voyage. Then five special trains carried them from Halifax to Saskatoon, the end of the railway. The group then went 200 miles by wagon to the Lloydminster and Battleford districts.

"The trains brought us as far west as there were tracks," said Mr. Ellis, recalling the historic days in 1903. "Saskatoon had a population of 113 persons before we arrived and we were a week on the train getting there."

The Canadian government had promised persons over 18 among the immigrants a quarter-section of land, 160 acres, in what is now the Lloydminster area.

The trek was organized by Rev. I. M. Barr who had been to Canada earlier. The followers later found that supplies, organization and facilities promised were only a dream. Mr. Barr left the group and Rev. George Exton Lloyd became the leader.

Mr. Lloyd later became Anglican bishop of Saskatchewan and Lloydminster was named after him.

There are stories that Barr was forced to return some of the settlers' money at gunpoint along the trail to Battleford.

Dr. W. W. Amos, a graduate of the Montreal Medical College who was enlisted after the desertion of the original two English doctors, has told of his dealings with Barr.

"One evening at Battleford," said Dr. Amos, "Mr. Barr handed me a revolver and asked me to act as a sort of bodyguard. I believed he also carried one himself. He carried a large sum of money.

"Each pocket was unloaded into a large handkerchief every night, while we were in the hotel. and stored under the head of Mr. Barr's mattress.

"I understood Mr. Barr had received several threats of various kinds as well as severe criticism but what I would have done with the revolver, should he have been attacked, I do not know. Fortunately, perhaps, the occasion did not arise."

Today, the pioneers are inclined to forget Barr and prefer to feel pride in the fact that they made good despite such a poor start.

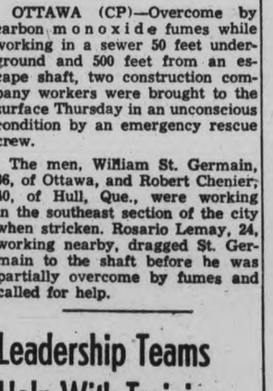
One Trainman Hurt In Derailment

OTTAWA (CP)—One trainman was injured and about 10 boxcars derailed or damaged Thursday when a fast Canadian National Railways freight train plowed into the rear of a stopped way-freight at Woodlawn, 18 miles northwest of here.

Engineer James A. Murdock of Ottawa, engineer of the fast freight was injured when his locomotive turned on its side and slid into a 10-foot ditch after ramming the standing boxcars. He was taken to hospital here with scalp wounds and other undetermined injuries.

The fast freight's locomotive plowed through four boxcars "like matchwood," said R. A. Vance of Woodlawn, a bystander.

Two Sewer Workers Overcome By Gas



OTTAWA (CP)—Overcome by carbon monoxide fumes while working in a sewer 50 feet underground and 500 feet from an escape shaft, two construction company workers were brought to the surface Thursday in an unconscious condition by an emergency rescue crew.

The men, William St. Germain, 36, of Ottawa, and Robert Chenier, 40, of Hull, Que., were working in the southeast section of the city when stricken. Rosario Lemay, 24, working nearby, dragged St. Germain to the shaft before he was partially overcome by fumes and called for help.

Leadership Teams Help With Training

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—This fall will see teams of Presbyterian leadership training groups fan out across British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario and part of Quebec.

Announcing the proposed "training institutes" Thursday during sessions of the annual meeting of Presbyterian Women's Missionary Society Council (western division) at New St. James Presbyterian Church, Margaret Webster, director of organization, explained the teams would answer the need for help to leaders. The schools are the first such training centres to be planned on such a national scale.

DERAILMENT IN CITY—Two crew members were injured but the engineer leaped to safety when the lead locomotive of a two-engine freight was derailed and toppled over almost in the heart of the city of Hamilton. Escaping steam partially obscures the scene as firemen pour water into the fire box. The tender of the lead locomotive split a switch and the pusher engine caused them to jack-knife.

Communist Satellites Met 1952 Industrial Targets

By DON COOK
New York Herald Tribune News Service

GENEVA — All the Communist satellite countries of Eastern Europe met or exceeded their 1952 industrial production targets within two or three index points, the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe has reported. But on the agricultural side the satellites can on longer be considered a potential "European bread-basket".

The commission maintains a considerable reasearch staff at work on analysis of Iron Curtain statistics, but regards its findings with mild uncertainty as to whether they show what is really going on. The latest findings were published in the quarterly bulletin survey of developments in Eastern Europe.

Bulgaria, Czechslovakia and Poland were all at 98.0 index points or above on their 1952 industrial targets. East Germany, in a limited way, showed the same sort of hard-working rise in industrial output that West Germany has been showing, and beat her Communist targets by 3 points. Hungary came out at 100.7 and Romania at 101.7.

The source for the figures was given as "plan fulfilment reports for 1952," which presumably originated from the countries.

AWAY FROM FARM

Agriculturally, however, the industrial increase in costing by taking manpower and investment money off the farms.

Grain output was up in Bulgaria, in comparison with post-war ravages, but other crops were short. Poland and Czechslovakia showed declines. In all cases, agriculture no longer offers the economic base it once did.

The ECE experts, in their analysis of the returns from Eastern Europe, said that the rate of industrial expansion was lower than in 1951, and that the figures suggested that targets had been set much closer to probabilities.

As to the future, the ECE report said: "In many industries reserves of industrial capacity have now been exhausted, so that further increases in production are more closely dependent upon the progress of investment. This factor would help to explain the general tendency for better fulfilment of targets for light than for heavy industry."

REDUCING RATIONING

In general the report also noted that in Eastern Europe "Excess consumer pressure appears to have been allowed to spend itself in the classical fashion through rising prices whether planned or unplanned."

It pointed to progressive disappearance of rationing in Eastern Germany, abolishing of rationing in Poland, plans for reductions in Czechoslovakia, and a cut in state expenditures in Romania as designed to reduce consumer inflation.

One curious side-light turned up in the report was that the East German Communists evidently underestimated how hard Germans work. In the field of East German engineering, more than half of all wage-earners surpassed the norm for their piecework jobs by more than 50 per cent during 1952, before the norms were adjusted to cut their wages back.

Missing are Edmund Hockridge, Vancouver, and Jean Watson, Toronto.

Board Probes RR Crossings Death Toll

OTTAWA (CP)—The board of transport commissioners is investigating railway crossings and what should be done to eliminate accidents.

A panel headed by Mr. Justice John D. Kearney now is discussing the matter with provincial and municipal officials in meetings across Canada. Their findings and recommendations will be presented to the government for action.

During the last session of Parliament George Murray, Liberal member for Cariboo in British Columbia, introduced a private bill making it compulsory to eliminate level crossings for any new railway construction. The bill was not considered before Parliament prorogued.

Explaining the bill, Mr. Murray said in an interview:

"Why spend money to create death traps?"

RURAL TOLL RISES

A report prepared for the transport board on railway-crossing accidents shows that the rate appears to follow the increase in automobile registrations. Until 1920 killed and injured at urban crossings were almost equal to those in rural areas. But as more automobiles moved into the country with the coming of better roads accidents at rural crossings began to exceed those in urban districts.

Since 1925, 2,253 persons have been killed at rural crossings; 809 at urban crossings. In 1950, the last year for which figures are available, there were 54 killed and 254 injured at urban crossings; 87 killed and 224 injured at suburban.

Board figures show that 93.9 per cent of all rural crossings were not protected in 1950 compared with 71.1 per cent of urban crossings.

"Thus," said Mr. Murray, "there is a mounting public awareness of crossings dangers realized by communities."

POSITION NOT CLEAR

Where existing protection is no longer adequate due to changed conditions, no clear-cut obligation lies with any party to start improvements. This is one problem the board is trying to overcome.

There now are approximately 32,000 railway crossings in Canada. The board, in its meetings, seeks suggestions on protection, methods of financing, means of co-ordinating efforts and a long-term plan of control.

Under the Railway Act, the board must approve all plans and crossings and determine how the cost shall be borne by the railway concerned, the municipality or other parties. The grade crossing fund, established years ago, provides for federal participating in crossing costs together with the railways and municipalities.

The fund this year is $1,000,000.

Recent projects to eliminate crossing risks have been installation of flashing lights, gates and similar warning signs. Others include bridges, subways, bells and automatic signals and watchmen.

Only Two Weeks Left To Protest Seaway

TORONTO (CP)—General A.G.L. McNaughton said Thursday night that just 14 days remain for those opposed to the St. Lawrence seaway and power development to take action.

In a review of Canada-United States boundary water problems, the chairman of the Canadian section of the international joint commission said that "special interests opposed to the project" have only two weeks left in which to contest the decision approving a joint power project.

He told the annual dinner meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association that the present agreement followed a "long series of still-born treaties and unratified agreements" between Canada and the U.S.

60-Year-Old State Coach Will Be Used By Massey

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's 60-year-old state coach has come off the blocks for the first time in 14 years. It is being driven around Parliament Hill driveways in preparation for Coronation celebrations June 2.

The coach, a "posting landau," is a replica of those used by royalty and has carried kings and princes during its 49 years in Ottawa. It will convey Governor-General Massey along the capital's flag-bedecked streets from his home to the Peace Tower for Coronation Day observances.

For days the RCMP have been practising with the carriage which has carried such dignitaries as Edward VII, George V, George VI, the now Queen Elizabeth, the King of Siam and the crown prince of Japan.

CAME FROM AUSTRALIA

In charge of the landau since it came from Scotland in 1904 is 78-year-old Alfred Seaby, an old-time coachman who lives near the governor-general's home, Rideau Hall.

In an interview, Mr. Seaby recalled the coach came originally from Melbourne, Australia, and was taken to Scotland by the Marquis of Linlithgow on retiring as Australia's governor-general. It was brought from Scotland by Earl Grey, Canada's governor-general from 1904 to 1911.

The coach is in excellent condition, he said. It had a major repair job in 1939 at the time of the late king's visit when it was last used. In preparation for the Coronation repairs have been made on the "springs," actually leather loops from which the oak body of the coach is suspended between rubber-tired wheels. This cradle effect makes comfortable riding.

The posting landau—the correct term for the carriage—is similar in style and construction to royal coaches of past years. Mr. Seaby said it is the only correct coach ever to have been used in Canada for government purposes.

RCMP AND FOOTMEN

It will be drawn by four horses, with two RCMP constables in the livery of Government House riding wheel and lead postillion positions. This means one will ride the left front horse and the other will be astride the left rear animal.

The landau seats four persons with comfort. Standing at the rear of the coach will be two footmen, also RCMP constables in livery. They will assist the governor-general and his party in mounting and dismounting from the vehicle which has the gold and maroon royal coat-of-arms emblazoned on the sides.

The carriage was last used during the royal visit of 1939. Prior to that it had often carried the governor-general to the opening of Parliament, though as an open vehicle use depended on the weather. On such occasions the governor-general would be escorted by plumed Princess Louise Dragoon Guards.

On June 2 at approximately 3 p.m. Mr. Massey will step into the coach for the half-hour ride to the Peace Tower under a mounted escort of 19 RCMP.

In charge will be superintendant C. N. K. Kirk, an honorary ADC of the governor-general and officer commanding the RCMP training depot in Ottawa. He will ride at the right of the carriage while inspector W. G. Fraser will ride at the left.

MOUNTIE ESCORT

The horses in the escort have undergone no special training for the event, as such functions are considered routine for the well-trained animals. The escort will consist of members of the RCMP riding staff here and from Regina.

Two riders will be in advance of the party; then will come six escorts riding in pairs ahead of the coach; next will be the two officers, followed by a trumpeter riding centre behind the carriage. Another section of six riders will follow with two outriders behind them.

When the coach halts in front of the Peace Tower the RCMP escort will form up at right angles to the Governor-General's Foot Guards who will be inspected by the governor-general.

The escort retires following the inspection to return when the national ceremonies have ended to escort the governor-general back to Rideau HAll.

Singapore Spends $658,000 On Coronation Procession

By WILLIAM FARROTT

SINGAPORE (Reuters) — Singapore is preparing to celebrate with dragons and fireworks the Coronation of the Queen.

Loyalty and goodwill will be the serious theme of services in the city's churches, mosques, temples and synagogues. But there will be laughter and fun, too.

For this historic week, Singapore's more than 1,000,000 Chinese, Malays, Indians, Cingalese, Eurasians and Europeans are planning the greatest, and the most expensive, celebration in the settlement's history.

It is so expensive that voices were raised in alarm at the cost of one item alone—2,000,000 straits dollars ($658,000) for a street procession of decorated vehicles.

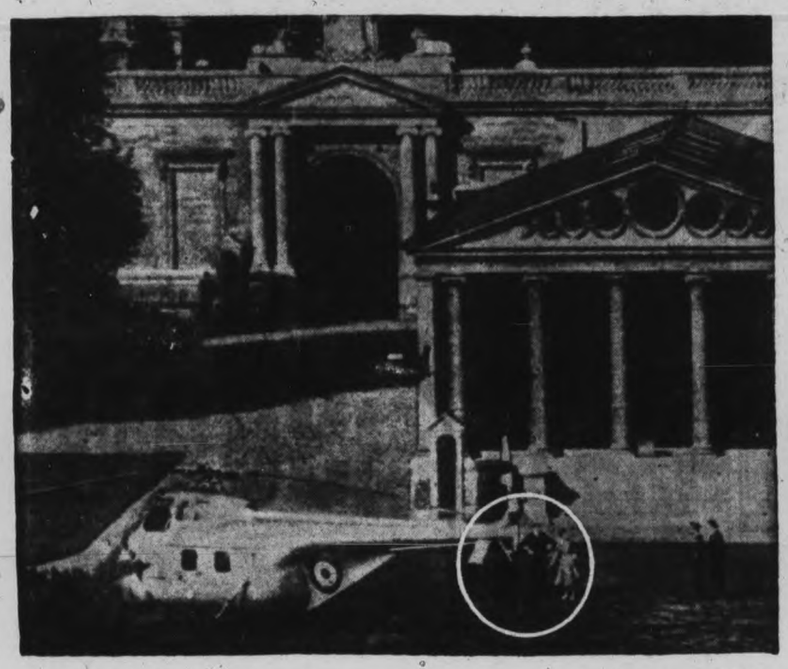
The voices were stilled when it was explained that public moneys were not involved but that the cost was being met privately by the hundreds of Chinese participating.

This procession, composed of more than 300 decorated vehicles, will stretch two miles through the gaily-festooned city streets. There will be Chinese dragons whose long, writhing silken bodies will be borne on the backs of innumerable coolies.

Out in the sea each night, snaking along the waterfront, will be another dragon, a 400-foot monster in the western sea-serpent tradition. Its skin will be made from thousands of yards of colored cloth covered with tiny pieces of metal. Some 8,000 electric bulbs will make its body glow and its 10-foot head will throw out darting tongues of flame and rings of fire.

Coronation Day there will be a vast military parade of all services on the city's padang—town green—lying between the sea and the principal city buildings. Free meals will be given to the poor.

At night, rivalling the Chinese procession, will be a great waterfront firework display provided by the Indian Chettiar community, many of whom in Singapore are money-lenders.



Japanese fireworks will be set off by a Japanese at this display because, despite a regulation requiring Coronation materials to be of Commonwealth origin, the fireworks were only available in Japan.

The celebrations will conclude with a feast of color June 8, the Queen's official birthday. Malays in their brilliant national dress will move in procession through crowded city streets.

Chettiars will hold their traditional silver car procession. Twenty men will draw the car over a route beginning and ending at the temple of Soubramanian, son of Siva. Ensconced in the car will be a solid gold statue of the temple god.

MAYOR TO CONTEST SEAT

SARNIA (CP)—Mayor W. C. Nelson, for the last eight years chief magistrate of this city, Thursday night was elected Liberal party candidate for the riding of Lambton West in the forthcoming federal election. The mayor was defeated at the last general election by the sitting member, J. W. Murphy, Progressive Conservative.

DIRECT ROUTE — A news camera equipped with a telescopic lens catches a welcoming scene on the spacious lawn at Buckingham Palace as Queen Elizabeth (circled with group) greets her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, on his return flight by helicopter from Pirbright Camp in Surrey where he inspected the Commonwealth Contingent to the June 2 Coronation ceremonies. The pressure of pre-Coronation duties has forced the Duke to move from place to place with as little delay as possible and a spokesman said the Queen gave her permission for the flights and the use of the Palace lawn as a landing field.

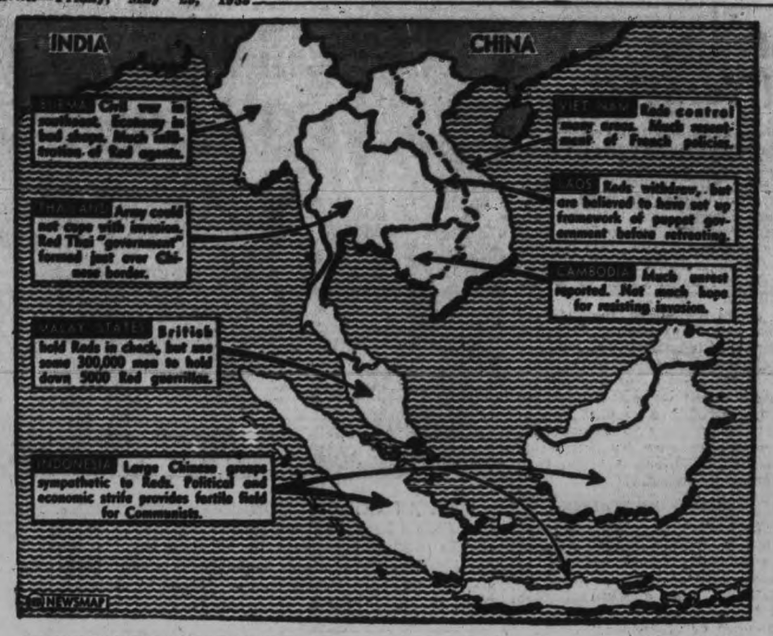
Cattle Receipts Much Higher At Stockyards

TORONTO (CP)—Cattle receipts were much higher this week at the Ontario stockyards. Prices were 50 cents higher on best steers and cows and up to $1 on middle class steers. Calves, hogs, lambs and sheep were steady. No holdover at the close.

A sizable run of 7,362 cattle was well cleared at advanced prices. Choice light and weighty steers $20-21; good steers $19-20; common to medium $16-18.50; good heifers $19.50-20; good cows closed at $14-15 with heifery cows at $16; good heavy bulls $14-15; good light up to $16; good to choice fed yearlings $20-21.50, a few tops at $22; medium $18-19.50; good light stockers $20-22.50; plainer stockers $17-19.50.

Calves totalled 1,417 head. Prices were unchanged at $24-26 for choice vealers; medium to good $18-23; plain $12-14.

Hogs were 3,307 head. Prices were steady for grade A at $34; dressed sows up $1 at $24.



Sheep and lambs totalled 383 head. Good choice spring lambs $28-32; western lambs $26.75; culls $23; common to medium sheep were $5-9; good light ewes $10-12.

Career Of Ministry Opposed By Families

TORONTO (CP)—The attitude of parents towards their sons entering the ministry was blamed Thursday by a joint committee at the Toronto conference of the United Church for the present shortage of clergymen in the United Church.

The committee said it is the most acute problem in the church today and that many families are actively opposed to their children following a church career.

Several delegates said they frequently are approached by parents and asked to discourage young men from entering the ministry.

PROBLEM SPOT FOR WEST—Georgi Malenkov and Co. in the Kremlin and Mao Tse-tung in Peking may be preparing to embark on the historic master plan for the conquest of Southeast Asia as laid down by Lenin and Stalin. The plan is based less on outright military conquest, such as the Japs tried, than on utilization of native nationalism and anticolonialism under the guise of "defending" potential victim countries. Map above illustrates some of the conditions upon which the Kremlin and Peking Communists may try to capitalize.

OAC Cancels Farm Week

GUELPH (CP)—Farm and home week, a traditional function of the Ontario Agricultural College, along with all livestock field days planned on the campus this summer, have been cancelled due to the outbreak of hog cholera in southwestern Ontario.

The announcement was made Thursday night by C. D. Graham, provincial deputy minister of agriculture, in an address to the annual dinner of the agricultural representatives conference at OAC.

Farm and home week had been scheduled for the second week in June.

Mr. Graham said the decision was made following consultations with Hon. George Doucett, acting minister of agriculture. Mr. Doucett was concurring in the recommendation of the health of animals branch of the federal department of agriculture.

Melchior Fights Swing Music In Night Club

By MEL SUFRIN

NEW YORK (CP) — Lauritz Melchior, who hasn't high regard for most of modern swing music, is trying to fight it on its own level—the night club.

The Danish-born heroic tenor, currently on a North American night club tour that will take him to three Canadian cities, deplores the fact that such novelty tunes as "Open the Door Richard" make millions while good serious music struggles along with little financial encouragement.

Melchior, who opened the Canadian section of his tour in Montreal then moved on to Ottawa and Cornwall, Ont., poured out his musical laments in an interview during a New York stopover.

Melchior emphasized that he doesn't dislike all swing. His offerings include everything from grand opera (La Boheme, Wagner and Pagliacci in costume) to what he considers the best of modern music —such things as "La Vie en Rose." The light classics are included as well.

"A musical dinner," is the way he describes it. One of his aims is to "get youth to realize that crooning isn't all the music there is."

Melchior claims a degree of success to date. In Las Vegas, Nev., where his press agent says he outdrew such attractions as Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis, a large part of his audience was made up of younger persons. Melchior said he was encouraged by their reaction.

The present tour is something rather unique, not only because it brings opera in costume to night clubs but also by its staging Melchior insists that his audience be seated only in front or beside him, no one behind him. This necessitates a night club set up in the concert hall style rather than having a dance floor surrounded by the audience serve as the stage.

On tour with him is a cast of nine including baritones, tenors, sopranos and a dual piano team. Melchior is particularly proud of the tenor who sings in 16 languages and offered some French songs in Canada. (Melchior says "my French is appalling.")

Melchior has some other strong ideas on musical education. He complains that while musical appreciation is taught in schools, students are led up a dead-end street. Once they leave school they're on their own as far as music is concerned.

"The government should subsidize music," he says. The days when wealthy European royalty paid to have operas and symphonies written have gone and there has been no reliable source of money to replace those 19th century angels.

BLACKMAILED — V. C. Georgescu, a naturalzed American of Romanian descent, has become the focus of an international espionage plot. According to U. S. authorities, Georgescu was being blackmailed into spying for Communist Romania by Romanian Legate Cristache Zambeti who has been odered out of the U.S. The price of treason was to have been the welfare of Georgescu's two teen-age sons who are still in Romania.

MINOR REPAIRS

Plasterers were repairing this morning several superficial cracks in interior walls at the city hall which had presumably been caused by some slight settling of the building. Flags have been placed along the row of light wells at the ground floor.

INVITED TO CONDUCT BANDS

Albert Croasdale, bandmaster of the PCVS and public school concert bands, has been invited to be guest conductor of massed bands at a military tattoo in Kingston Saturday. During the Second World War he was senior Canadian Army bandmaster.

HOLD BAND CONCERT

Public School junior and senior concert bands will hold their annual band concert tonight at 8:15 in the Queen Mary School auditorium under Albert Croasdale. The PCVS concert band will also take part in the concert. Admission is free.

JUNIOR CONDUCTOR

The junior "conductor" in the panel of three pictures on Thursday's front page is eight-months-old Bobby Franner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Franner, 451 Water St. The Examiner photographer caught Bobby's poses through the front window of the Franner home.

RETURNING HOME

Pte. K. R. Toms, RCASC of Madoc is among 300 officers and men scheduled to arrive at a west coast port Monday, following a year or more service in the Far East. The draft is a representation of every unit in the 25th Canadian Infanty Brigade, and consists of personnel rotated on a man-for-man basis.

CAR'S WINDOW SMASHED

When Kenneth Gibson, 34, 605 Beverly St., left work at CGE at 2:30 a.m. today he found the right rear window of his car smashed. He had left the car standing in the CGE parking lot when he went on shift at about 4:50 p.m. Thursday. There was no other damage to the car.

ARCHES WERE FEATURE

The late Frank Dobbin used to say that in his youth and later Peterborough never considered its festive appearance complete without several arches of evergreens. No doubt trees were abundant around the city in those days, but there are still thousands of them available at Christmas.

CORONATION LIGHTS

The city's business section assumed the appearance of a festive fairyland Thursday night as the strings of colored lights put up by PUC workmen mingled with the flashing neon signs of George St. and the adjacent thoroughfares. Stringing of the lights and colored pennants was completed Thursday giving the downtown district a gala aspect as the city prepares to celebrate the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth II.

Vacation Guide For District Now On Sale

A guide to the best resorts and fishing spots of five resort areas near Peterborough, the Canadian Vacation Guide, is on sale today at your news dealers.

It records in its 128 pages—16 in rotogravure—the beauty spots of this part of the province and some of the finest fish taken in the province. The five resort areas covered are: the Trent Valley, the Kawarthas, Haliburton Highlands, the hills of Hastings and the Land o' Lakes area.

From the bridge across the Trent at Hastings—a veritable gallery for fishermen in pickerel season—to beautiful Redstone Lake in the Haliburton highlands, are dotted resorts that appeal to anything the tourist or holidayer wants for his vacation.

ANSWER TO NEEDS

Whether the vacationist wants fishing, sailing or any of the summer sports including taking it easy, these resorts can answer his needs.

Tips on fishing, articles on conservation answer some of the sportsmen's questions. Points of historical interest and geographical oddities dot the holidayer's way to his personal summer haunt; many of these are described and located for the interested summer visitor.

The Canadian Vacation Guide reports each year on an area roughly circular and roughly 120 miles in diameter, one of the province's largest resort districts. Heart of this summer paradise is Peterborough.

Presbytery Asked To Raise $43,000

OSHAWA (CP)—The Bay of Quinte conference of the United Church of Canada Thursday approved an allocation of $326,000 for the conference's missionary and maintenance fund for 1954.

The figure represents an increase of 3.2 per cent over the $315,000 allocation for 1953, and 13.8 per cent over the 1952 allocation.

The allocation was divided among the seven presbyteries in the conference: Belleville, $57,000; Cobourg, $30,600; Kingston, $52,828; Lindsay, $29,620; Peterborough, $43,000; Oshawa, $63,000; and Renfrew $50,100.

During the 1953 season the conference has raised $286,283 for the missionary and maintenance fund. This is $283 above its allocation to date, and $6,292 more than its givings to the fund up to the same date a year ago.

Clung To Car Hits Fence Woman Dies

Helping Push Auto To Start It; Rolls Back Against Fence

LINDSAY (ENS). — Mrs. John Freeman, 58, Toronto, was instantly killed on Thursday in a strange accident near the home of her daughter, two miles north of Minden.

According to Provincial Police, Mrs. Freeman, who is living with her daughter, Mrs. Bradley, was helping a neighbor, William Reynolds, push his pick-up truck out of his garage, as the battery was dead. They were intending to go to Minden to do some shopping. As they pushed the car from the garage, which stands on a grade leading to the highway, it started to go back. Mrs. Freeman was standing behind the vehicle when it started. She held on to the tail gate as the truck rolled down the driveway grade and across the road. On the other side of the highway, the truck hit a wire fence, caught and pulled her to the ground yanking off her shoes. There were no bones broken and few bruises. Dr. Lou Carroll said she apparently died instantly of shock. The truck rolled another 50 feet down the enbankment, then turned over.

Dr. Carroll of Haliburton pronounced the woman dead, and Constable Alex Edwards, Minden OPP, investigated. There will be no inquest.

Most Of City To Be Closed Coronation Day

A few places of business will remain open Coronation Day, but for the most part, the city will be closed down from the standpoint of work.

All major industries will be shut down, and all retail stores will take the holiday. Some restaurants will be open, and hotel beverage rooms will be open as well.

Following the precedent set on the Wednesday after the May 18 weekend, stores will be closed Wednesday afternoon, with the exception of food stores.

Federal government offices, banks, and most provincial government offices will be shut. Schools are taking the holiday, as well.

Girl 9 Admits Setting 3 Fires In Church

HAMILTON (CP)—Police said today a nine-year-old girl admitted starting three small blazes in a church because she was "crazy about fires."

Rev. Thomas Traynor of St. John the Baptist Roman Catholic Church said he found a hymn book blazing on the organ March 4, a tapestry curtain on fire March 14 and a communion cloth burning May 2.

Police said the girl told them "I love to hear the fire trucks coming."

BEHIND IN SEEDING

Wheat was up seven inches in Manitoba this week and three in Saskatchewan, as reported by the C.P.R. Saskatchewan has completed 66% of the seeding of wheat as compared with 98% at this time a year ago; and Alberta is 65% completed as against 96% in the last week of May 1952. Seeding progress in quite satisfactory.

Canadian Navy In Korea Small, But Potent—Mainguy

The force that the Royal Canadian Navy has in Korean waters may be small bu the morale of the men is high and they were using on a side aisle in Murray Street Baptist units under the UN command.

Canada's chief of the naval staff, Vice-Admiral E. R. Mainguy, OBE, CD, gave this assurance when he addressed the Peterborough United Services Institute on Thursday night. It was the first visit of a chief of the naval staff to the Institute.

Vice-Admiral Mainguy gave a detailed account of his late winter trip to Korea and Japan that lasted from Feb. 13 to March 5. In that period of time he inspected and sailed with the three Canadian destroyers in Korean waters: Athabascan, Haida and Crusader.

DUEL WITH SHORE

The Canadian destroyers main activity is working in conjunction with larger naval units. From time to time they duel with Communist-based shore batteries. Vice-Admiral Mainguy was on the Crusader during one of these bombardments.

"A very good show," was his terse comment.

"There's a lot of talk about morale," he told the Examiner. "Of course the morale of the men is high. They feel they're as good as anybody else out there. That's their opinion.

"Another point I'd like to emphasize is the team spirit," said Vice-Admiral Mainguy. "It's a real United Nations show. If a job is to be done everybody is willing to co-operate. There's no question of nationality in making decisions. United States, Britain, New Zealand, Canada — even Thailand is represented."

Questioned briefly on Canada's role in the NATO partnership, Vice-Admiral Mainguy said that the RCN was specializing in anti-submarine escort work. This work requires small, fast naval craft which can be built in Canada.

He said this automatically included aircraft as well as surface craft.

The Institute dinner was attended by 100 officers and former officers in the Peterborough district. As usual the speaker's address included military matters that are considered secret and the meeting was closed to the public.

In the afternoon Vice-Admiral Mainguy made a plainclothes inspection of the Lakefield Preparatory School. While there he saw the annual turtle race and he described it jovially as "one of the most unusual things I've ever seen".

Lack Of Training In Skilled Trades Brings Criticism

TORONTO (CP)—Representatives of the construction and manufacturing industries Thursday condemned the shortage of skilled artisans.

J. L. Sparrow, supervisor of apprenticeship training for the Canadian General Electric Co. in Peterborough, said only 88 of 709 factories surveyed had training programs to ensure a future crop of skilled workers.

Joseph Piggott, president of Piggott Construction Co., Hamilton, said the high cost of housing in Canada is partly a result of the shortage of skilled labor.

SHOW NO INTEREST

He blamed contractors for their lack of interest in apprenticeship training. They were indifferent to training plants, although there were enough young men willing to undertake them.

Therefore, when an insufficient force of skilled labor was available for post-war construction, new designs, materials and processes had to be used—at greater expense.

Mr. Sparrow said that in three industries employing 300,000 workers, only 3,000 were receiving organized trade training.

J. D. Ferguson, president-elect of the association, said at a press conference he believes Canada will be self-sufficient in steel by the end of 1955. Canada now produces 75 per cent. of its needs.

G. K. Sheils, retiring president, criticized the United States for not carrying out its promises under the General Agreements on Tariffs and Trade.

He told the press conference: "To date we have not seen a very large measure of implementation of these promises."

Royal Acorns To Be Planted

A royal acorn and a Canadian maple will be planted side by side on Monday at each of the city schools.

The 35 acorns arrived today from England at Malton Airport, complete with a certificate of pedigree. They were picked up by James Fraser, manager of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce, and brought to Peterborough by car.

Secretary-general of the Association of British Chambers of Commerce, Arthur R. Knowles, CBE, arranged for the shipment of acorns by air on behalf of the Peterborough chamber.

John McCarney and Stanley Adamson, chairman of the Separate School Board and Board of Education, have agreed that the planting ceremony should be part of the schools' celebration of the Coronation.

Mr. Fraser said today that representatives of the federal department of agriculture would be present at Malton airport to clear the acorns should there be any difficulty about bringing them into the country.

Decide Duguid To Stand Trial

WELLAND (CP)—Bank bandit Harry Duguid, 38, once on the RCMP's list of 10 most-wanted men, today was committed for trial on a charge of escaping custody six years ago.

Duguid, former Toronto plastics manufacturer, will be defended by a former magistrate—John B. Hopkins—who committed him for trial on an armed robbery charge in 1947. Mr. Hopkins, of Niagara Falls, retired from the bench in 1951.

Duguid was awaiting trial on a bank robbery charge in Welland county jail when he sawed his way out.

Earlier this month, he was sentenced in Toronto to eight years for the $14,500 armed holdup of a Toronto bank in 1943. He still faces an armed robbery charge in connection with the $19,000 holdup of an Imperial Bank branch at Stamford in 1947.

WITH VICE-ADMIRAL

Flag Lieutenant Gordon Wales, son of the late Harold Wales who for some years was manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia in Peterborough, was a visitor here Thursday. He was attending Vice-Admiral E. R. Mainguy, Chief of the Naval Staff, who was guest speaker at the United Services Institute dinner at the Empress Hotel. The naval rank of Flag Lieutenant is equivalent to an aide-de-camp in the army.

McGinness Lets Arnold Steele Building Contract

Arnold Steele of Peterborough has been awarded the contract for the construction of the new manufacturing plant of H. B. McGinness Ltd., Lansdowne St. east.

In confirming the report today Mr McGinness said that present plans contemplate the turning of the first sod on Thursday June 4. Some details of that beginning of the work which will transfer the company's operations from McDonnel St were not quite settled this morning. However, the customary ceremony of breaking ground for a new industry will likely be that day.

The announcement by Mr. McGinness substantiates the schedule of change and progress which he submitted to the manufacturers committee of the council when the company's intention of looking for a new industrial site had reached the stage of taking the council into their confidence.

OUTGREW SPACE

The McGinness industry in the manufacture of automobile trailers has outgrown the space limits on the McDonnel St. property, at Bethune St., where the business has steadily expanded in its establishment from an enterprise whose future was unforseeable. Its new location on the south side of Lansdowne St., immediately east of the Belleville line of the CNR is bound to attract more attention to that southeastern section of the city, and will be of special interest to the property owners and residents of that area in the neighborhood of the old landmark of Downer's Corners.

Cleaning Fluid Ignites Three Men Burned In Murray Street Church

Short Circuit In Machine Sparks Blaze
Worker's Trousers Catch
Man Most Seriously Burned Striker

Three men are in St. Joseph's Hospital with burns that they received at 11:15 a.m. today when some cleaning fluid they were using on a saide aisle in Murray Street Baptist Church ignited and flames caught on their clothing. Most seriously burned is Cameron Trude, 25, of 273 Simcoe St., who had his boots and trouser bottoms enveloped in flames. His legs were burned below the knees and it is expected that he will have to remain in hospital for several months.

Shortly before 2 p.m. today hospital authorities said Trude's condition is fair. He is suffering also from shock.

Otello Roncalgia, 25, of 315 Bethune St., had both hands burned when he tried to beat out the flames on the clothing of his companions. He is being discharged from hospital later today.

Steve Scarsella, 26, of 493 Albert St., was burned on the left leg and his condition is good.

The three men—all employees of Hunt Bros. cleaning service—were starting to polish the floor in the east aisle of Murray Street Church. They switched on the polishing machine and it immediately shorted causing a spark to ignite a quantity of cleaning fluid on the floor.

Within a matter of seconds the flames sprang up. They caught on the trouser legs of Trude and Scarsella and the two men were unable to put them out. Roncalgia burned his hands in trying to help his two workmates.

The trouser bottoms and the boots were finally torn off Trude who was in agony from the flames.

SHIPPER AT QUAKER

Trude had only been working at the job for a week. He is a shipper at the Quaker Oats Co. and since the production went out on strike he had worked briefly at the Canadian General Electric Co. and then for Hunt Bros.

On Saturday he and his wife, the former Shirley Buller, were going to take advantage of the day off to start building their home on the Lakefield Highway, just north of the Drive-In Theatre.

The fire did little material damage to the church. The end of a couple of pews were scorched and so were severel spots on the floor of the side aisle.

Painters who were also in the church, which is being redecorated and rewired, put out the fire. City firemen later mopped up the water that had been spilled and cleaned up the mess.

Both Sides Agree To Gov't Meeting In Quaker Strike

Both union and management at the Quaker Oats Co. plant have accepted an invitation from Deputy Minister of Labor J. B. Metzler to meet in Toronto June 3 and try to end the strike of the production workers. The work stoppage, a legal strike, is now in its fifth week.

Mr. Metzler volunteered the services of his department in telegrams sent Wednesday to both parties.

Lewis H. Ingram, company vice-president, said Thursday that Reginald R. Faryon, company president, had already accepted the offer.

At an executive meeting Thursday night Local 293, United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL), bargaining agents for 435 striking Quaker Oats employees, also agreed to send representatives to the meeting.

The deputy-minister's offer is the most hopeful sign of a move to break the deadlock between the company and the union since the strike began April 22.

O.A.C. GRADUATES

Peterborough had several personalities of interest in this week's convocation at Ontario Agricultural College. Receiving the degree of Bachelor of Agricultural Science were G. Cameron Clark of Smith township, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Clark; J. R. Wright of Keene, son of Dr. H. Wright; W. M. Rutherford of Colborne; and Miss Mary Milburn of Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Milburn who has finished her four-year course with the degree of Bachelor of Household Science. Miss Joan T. Bale of Campbellford also received that degree, B.H.Sc.

County Farm Notes

By HARRY THEOBALD

Shorthorn Breeders' Field Day Monday, June 13 at Shaw Brothers' Farm in Otonabee . . . Amberdeen-Angus Auction at Peterborough Exhibition Park June 6 . . . No Graduates at Ontario Veterinary College This Year . . . Frank C. Paterson Summarizes Year's Affairs.

"We have some good club Leaders in the county, and they have helped tremendously in developing 4-H Clubs during the last three years," is a grateful acknowledgement in Frank C. Paterson's report, as agricultural representative, for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1953.

"We hope to find a few more young men who are willing to take on this task. Club work has been stimulated and improved since we have had an assistant in the county. . . Junior Farmers are sponsoring all our 4-H Clubs, and we feel we have something worth while in a joint Achievement Day, usually held on the last Saturday of September at the Exhibition Grounds, Peterborough.

"A bus tour for 4-H Club members including 136 boys and girls (four bus loads) was made to O.A.C. and Leitcheroft Farms on July 15. This trip was supported financially by the County Federation of Agriculture, the Kiwanis Club of Peterborough, and the Peterborough Hog Producers Association."

Reference is made to the work of the Junior Farmers, and—"A new Junior Farmer Association has been recently organized in the Norwood district. It is undertaking to support 4-H Clubs in that district. The membership is 50, and President is George Shoniker an dsecretary Miss Ruth Cuthbertson"

This report is the annual summary to the Department.

SUPPORT TO JUNIORS

The report embraces details of Junior work, including Girls' Homemaking Club affairs and the junior section of the Peterborough Exhibition. Its prize money amounted to $864.90.

"The Junior Section of Peterborough Exhibition has received excellent support from the Peterborough Exhibition. Canada Packers have continued to entertain the young people at dinner at a local hotel on the evening of their competition."

A few comments are selected from the 22 pages of Mr. Paterson's report to his department.

Dairy herd improvement association—26 herds on test; number of cows 472. "A good supervisor has kept the association operating throughout the year."

Number of cattle treated for warble fly control last year was 22,576 in the first spray and 22,929 in the second. The seven townships doing this work are: Asphodel, Dummer, Douro, Ennismore, Harvey, Otonabee and Smith.

"Many cattle owners have expressed satisfaction with the program which was stimulated to begin with by the County Council. The organization was arranged through township councils."

T.B. eradication: Peterborough county is now within a fully accredited area.

TWO CATTLE SHOWS

Breed Shows refer to the county Black and White Day; District Black and White Championships and Eastern Ontario Hereford Club show and auction.

Prize money distributed at the Black and White championship show was $2323 40.

"Some assistance was given each of these shows, but it can be rated a minimum amount. The Holstein and Hereford cattle breeders have considerable talent in their ranks, and they have been encouraged to operate these shows with very little help from the Agriculture Representative's office. The Hereford breeders are rather pleased with their results, and may now be on a firm basis for continuing a good sale."

Calfhood vaccination: According to the Ontario Veterinary College 2454 cattle were vaccinated last year. "There is a general interest in the control of Brucellosis, and we believe the cattle owners would soon be willing to accept an improved organized plan for making calfhood vaccination more general."

Peterborough members of Maple Cattle Breeders Association totalled 533 at Jan. 1 last, and has been gradually increasing since then. Number of cows inseminated was approximately 5080.

"Most of the members are interested and pleased, and their number is increasing steadily. We give this organization all the assistance we can, because we believe it is helping the ordinary cattle owners. There is a noticeable improvement of commercial herds. We feel there is improvement in the overall administraion, and also on the part of the individual members in their interest in the problems of the association."

Sheep—"The latest Dominion census report shows that Peterborough has a sheep population of 5,516. Excepting attention given the individual enquirer, little has been done during recent years on a community basis in connection with sheep."

The swine section recounts club work. "A few years ago Rhinitis was talked of a good deal. Recently not so much has been heard about the disease."

No O.V.C. Graduates

Dr. J. P. Wells, M.O.H., Peterborough. told the city's board of health this week he did not expect that the vacancy on his staff caused by the resignation of Dr. Harold Worton could be filled at present.

Dr. Worton accepted a position with the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Dr. Wells said there was a scarcity of veterinary surgeons in the county, a circumstance that is mentioned in the monthly bulletin of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

The bulletin says: "One unfortunate fact is that there will be no graduates this year from the Ontario Veterinary College, there being no graduating class. It is also learned that the enrolment at Guelph this year has not been up to the capacity of the college."

On that point, Dr. George R. Penhall, V.S., Peterborough, district supervisor for the health of animals branch of the federal Department of Agriculture, explained to the Examiner that the extension of the O.V.C. course from four to five years has left the college without a graduating class this year.

"The last of the four-year students were graduated in 1952," Dr. Fenhall said, "and that means the first graduated class in the five-year course will not be ready until 1954."

That greatly reduces one aspect of apprehension in the Federation of Agriculture article. Dr. Thos. Childs, Veterinary Director-General for Canada, in his report of last year, also said:-

"There is a definite shortage of suitable veterinarians to make the desired progress with such urgent work as the eradication of bovine tuberculosis and brucelosis, and to maintain proper veterinary supervision of packing plant operations. In addition, there is an inadequate number of suitable veterinarians to properly take care of protective duties at various quarantine stations and ports of entry.

It is extremely difficult to induce new veterinary appointees to undertake duties in connection with meat inspection. On the other hand there are at present 60 veterinarians in the service who are more than 60 years of age, and 20 or more who are beyond 65 years."

Dr. Childs says it is difficult to get replacements for these men, and it may be necessary either drastically to curtail inspection service, or to accept lower standards, which would be very detrimental to our export trade.

At McDonald Farms

Norman McConkey of Peterborough was one of the 30 Guernsey breeders from Ontario who attended the McDonald Farms sale at Cortland, N.Y., last Saturday. He was interested in the get of McDonald Farms "S. Leader", the sire of his Guernsey herd sire, and also the sire of the highest priced bull in the sale.

Top price was $11,750 paid by Edward B. Henslee, Kingston Springs, Tennessee, for S. Marguerite, daughter of Steadfast that was sold privately in 1951 for $21,000

Jack Fraser of Fraserdale Farm, Concord, Ont., bought the top selling bred heifer at $4,000. The high priced bull was a son of the 20-year-old Douglas Lady Augusta by her grandson McDonald Farms S. Leader. He brought $10,200.

The sale averaged $2,080, the highest average for a consignments sale in the last two years. B. B. Hodgins, Ontario Guernsey Association field secretary, writes that it indicated renewed confidence in the breed and in the future of agriculture generally.

Medical Directors

Kawartha Co-operative Medical Services elected four directors for two years at their meeting Thursday night in the Public Library.

They are: W. W. Dawson, Harry Garnett, Mrs. Morris Telford and Charles English. The other directors, whose term of office con-

These are some of the 40 heifer calves from the McIntyre Ranch in Alberta that were distributed last Friday among the 40 boys and girls of East Peterborough comprising a Hereford Calf Club sponsored by the Norwood Agricultural Society.

G. A. Brethen, president of Norwood Fair, told the assembled farmers that these yearling heifers, from the McIntyre range herd, arrived here looking their worst, after their long trip and their wintering on the range. They were bought in Alberta as the only available source of 40 young animals for uniform size and age for Club purposes.

The boys and girls, from 10 to 20 years, thereby set out on this Club project on as even terms as the Fair Board could provide. East Peterborough sentiment will wish them every success in their undertaking of gradually fitting the calves for show at the Norwood Fair on Thanksgiving Day.

The combined investment of parents must amount to around $5,000, a fact that is eloquent of the spirit of East Peterborough in its interest in the young people of that community, and also of loyalty to the Norwood Fair.

The enterprise of Norwood district deserves the development of these calves into show condition during the summer months. That is the practical phase of the Club project, and more important is the development of the young members in the handling, feeding and care of their calves. That is the ideal side, and it is to be hoped that no disappointments arise on both those objectives.

After the dispersal of the calves from the stockyard at Norwood, Mr. Brethen had some enquiries from other youngsters in the possibility that a few of the original Club recruits might have dropped out in the last stage of decision.

That is evidence of the active, embarking spirit within the area outlined by Havelock, Norwood, Warsaw, Indian River, Keene and Hastings. Meanwhile, Norwood Fair directors have some responsibility of supervision and enquiry during the summer among the Club mebers who are now their youngest associates, representing the promise of the future.

Young 'Cow Hands' Advised On Domesticating Calves

Milton Cornish of Asphodel township, formerly with MacAlpine Farm, near Fenelon Falls, briefed the 40 boys and girls who received the Hereford range heifer yearlings at Norwood last Friday. He has already become an acquisition to the Hereford fraternity in this county.

These calves were unaccustomed to handling, having been delivered directly to East Peterborough from the McIntyre Ranch in Alberta. The new owners met Mr. Cornish in the waiting room of the CPR station at Norwood prior to the drawing of the calves' numbers from a hat, the method of distributing them from the stockyard.

Mr. Cornish told the young folks the cattle had to be domesticated, and gradually introduced to their new homes, absence from their herd, and generally to their new way of bovine life.

"First thing to do after you get the calves home is to have a halter made to lead from the left side of the calf, having the right hand nearest to it. Tie her up and let her have a good pull. Do this for a few days. Then try turning her around the pen. Do a little patting and cleaning. This helps to make the calf less afraid of you.

When you feel you can handle her outside, try it, but don't let her away if you can help it as this is hard to overcome.

As to feeding, start off slowly with a little rolled or whole oats. Gradually increase as the calf gets used to the grain. Keep lots of clean water on hand. By the time a month is up, the calf should be on full feed, and should be eating two pounds of grain for each 100 pounds of animal."

Mr. Cornish suggested equal parts of ground oats and corn or barley. Another ration: seven parts of ground corn or barley, two parts of ground oats and one part of linseed meal.

Still another: three parts ground oats, three parts ground barley, three parts ground corn, one of linseed meal. He said a prepared fitting ration could be used.

"To pick up appetite, you can add two or three pounds of dried beet pulp that has been dampened, also a half pint of molasses diluted in a pint of water. Give the calf a good quantity of hay, but don't put in the hay until grain is finished. Don't leave feed in the manager.

The calf should have plenty of exercise. Do your halter-breaking and training the first month, so as not to give the calf a setback when she is on full feed. Salt and mineral should be available at all times.

Keep her in a box stall if possible. Supply lots of straw, and a stall mate, also if possible. Or, have calves in a pen nearby. It will do much better with company."

Mr. Cornish urged the boys and girls to keep exact records of feed. "The calf will be weighed when you get it, and it is good practice to weigh every month. Then you can keep better control of how it is doing. Your calf should gain two or three pounds a day after it is on full feed."

New Freezers to Fit Every Need

International Harvester Freezers for 1953 are designed to fit every family need, with four models ranging in capacity from seven to 20 cubic feet. The seven cubic foot freezer, above, takes up a minimum of space, yet stores 245 pounds of food. This model, the L-7, features Spring-fresh green interiors. Salute To Summer

In these new Elizabethan days when the English speaking world is preoccupied in the traditional rites and ceremonies of the Coronation of the fair and young daughter of George VI, a verse from an old Cornish song saluting summer seems appropriate in all the lore of the nation and its ancient customs.

At least it has a lyric ring, jubilant and seasonal, in tune with the spirit of this coming week.

This refrain is from a song associated with the choric celebration of The Padstow Horse by the people of the village of Padstow, Cornwall.

"And now the merry ring,
adieu the merry Spring,
For Summer is icomen in to-day;
How happy is the little bird that merrily doth sing
In the merry morning of May."

U.S. Buyers Take Big Share Of Holsteins At Oakville

United States buyers took more than half the 61 head of cattle for sale at the national Holstein sale Monday at Oakville.

The sale, the first big one since the lifting of the embargo following the foot-and-mouth outbreak in Western Canada, brought a total of $4",160.

Highest price paid during the sale was $1,950 by Craig Reid of Norval for Juan Shiavon of Mexico City, for a six-month-old bull calf consigned by J. J. E. McCague of Alliston.

TOP FEMALE $1,625

McCague also sold the top female at $1,625 to H. J. Szold of Washingtonville, N.Y. Second highest price for a bull was $1,650 received by Albert Selling of Elmira. Buyers were Eldon and Cecil Ballantyne and J. Allen Bain of Stratford.

G. W. Fraser of Streetsville sold a bred-heifer for $1,575 to Massey-Harris farms of Milliken and another for $1,200 to Fred Baer of Fort Plain, N.Y. Baer paid $1,025 to J. M. Fraser, also of Streetsville, for a bred heifer.

C. J. Cerseli of Betteon received $1,000 for a milking female, the highest price at the sale for one. David Stevens of St. Marys sold an eight-month-old heifer calf for $1,450.

PETERBOROUGH BUYER

Four bulls averaged $1,137, 15 milking females $558, 38 bred heifers $643, two open yearlings $587 and two heifer calves $1,150.

K. A. Hammond of Moorefield sold a bull calf with its mother to Cephas Bolton of Peterborough for $400. The calf was born just three hours before the cow went on the auction block.

AN UNOFFICIAL VISIT was paid the Lakefield Preparatory School (Grove) Thursday by Canada's chief of naval staff, Vice-Admiral E. R. Mainguy, OBE, CD. He was just in time to see the school's annual turtle race. Some years ago the boys' main pets were turtles. In fact there were so many turtles throughout the school the headmaster decreed that turtles would be allowed in the school only once a year—for a race. Pokey Pete, the winner, is shown to Vice-Admiral Mainguy (centre, above) by the turtle's owner, Ralph Curtis, of Cobourg (left), and trainer, Douglas Murray, of Toronto. Later, Vice-Admiral Mainguy spoke to the Peterborough United Services Institute.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Calgary Man Builds TV Set

CALGARY (CP)—It's a simple chore to build your own television transmitter and receiver—if you have a thorough knowledge of electronics, the necessary expensive equipment and a few hundred hours to spare.

Although William K. Allan of Calgary refuses to admit that he has achieved anything unusual, he has built what is believed the first amateur television receiver and transmitter in Alberta. Mr. Allan, 47-year-old electricity teacher at Calgary's Western Canada High School, is a recognized top-flight expert on electronics.

While he regards the construction of a normal TV receiver as child's play, Mr. Allan admits that the transmitting equipment was more difficult. The problem he faced was that of adapting a 16 mm. movie projector into a TV "camera" to transmit the film.

When first results were not satisfactory, some hard calculations produced the compromise that it was necessary to synchronize the actual movement of the film to coincide with the so-called "blanks" between signals on the TV screen.

Mr. Allan explains that the film travelling at 24 frames a second must be made to synchronize with the cathode ray on the receiver, which operates at 60 fields a second.

The rest of the family is long-suffreing and patient while Mr. Allan spends long evening hours at his work, even though that shrine of children's playgrounds, the basement, has become a laboratory.

MAKES TV SET—After months of research, William K. Allan, 47, Calgary electronics expert, built a television receiver and transmitter in his own workshop, the basement in his house. He regards construction of a normal TV receiver as child's play, but admits building a transmitter is more difficult.

Rush Hour Traffic Proves Reason For Metropolitan Council

TORONTO (CP) — Horse cars used to go as fast along Toronto's main Yonge street as do modern electric street-cars in rush hours today.

This six-mile-an-hour transportation was one of the bugs that stung various authorities into action and produced the municipality of Metropolitan Toronto.

The "super mayor" of the new municipality in a prepared address told the Canadian Manufacturers' Association convention here what the "super government" hopes to achieve.

Frederick G. Gardiner told the closing meeting the provincial legislation which set up the metropolitan council over Toronto and 12 suburban municipalities is being studied as a possible model for the solution of a similar situation in which New York City finds itself.

After the Second World War, the Toronto area—about 25 miles long by 10 miles deep—found itself with 1,250,000 people. But they were divided into 13 separate, jealous municipalities.

TAKE OVER PROBLEMS

Under bill 80, they retain their identities and powers for local affairs, but the metropolitan council has taken over problems which affect the whole area.

The need for arterial highways was just one problem that needed to be solved on a metropolitan basis. The municipalities each agreed that arterial roads were needed but none was willing to shoulder the cost.

In its present form, the super council will own all the trunk water distribution lines and sell water to the 13 municipalities for distribution. It will also own trunk sewers and collect sewage from each individual unit.

The metropolitan school board will pay to local boards of education $150 to $300 for pupils in different types of schools.

Parks, planning, and servicing land for housing will be looked after by the new government.

All these services will be paid for by each town, village and city "upon the basis of their ability to pay."

Before the super government was set up, an area planning board made a comprehensive survey to decide where industries should locate to give each municipality a fair share of industrial assessment.

"We told industry where it should go. Industry told us where we could go."

With each municipality contributing on the basis of its assessment, this difficulty is overcome.

Cripps Daughter Plans Wed Negro Student

LONDON (AP)—Enid Margaret (Peggy) Cripps youngest daughter of the late Sir Stafford Cripps, announced Thursday her forthcoming marriage "for love" to Joseph Appiah, Negro law student and son of a Gold Coast tribal leader.

Miss Cripps, a tall, buxom, brown-haired woman of 32, made the announcement jointly with her smaller, bespectacled fiance, at a press conference.

Appiah, who received part of his education in England and is the personal representative of the Gold Coast prime minister in Britain, smilingly declined to give his exact age.

Miss Cripps, however, interrupted to say "Joe is about my age."

The couple said they first met at an African Students Union party in London nearly two years ago.

Both Miss Cripps and Appiah said their families approved of the marriage.

Will Stamp Out Riotous Resorts

TORONTO (CP)—Travel Minister Louis Cecile of Ontario said Thursday that the department of travel and publicity and the attorney-general's department are joining forces to stamp out "riotous and undesirable" conditions at some summer resorts in the province.

Areas at Balm Beach and nearby Georgian Bay have been the scenes of disgraceful episodes of drinking and lawlessness by hooligans from the Toronto area who have turned the usually-peaceful districts into brawls on week-ends, Mr. Cecil said. These will be the first points of attack, the minister said.

Mrs. Telford of Smith and Mr. English of the city are new members on the board. Mr. Dawson presided, and the visiting speakers were Paul Meehan, fieldman and secretary of the Co-operative Medical Services of Ontario, and Oscar Wager of Quinte Co-operative, Belleville.

An outline of the financial position of Kawartha Medical was published recently. Assets, principally cash and investments, amount to $11,677 as compared with $8,004 for the year 1951-52. Cash in the bank at the end of March was $5,818 and investments $5,600.

Net savings for the year before patronage returns and taxes on income was $3,165. The members decided to leave the patronage returns total in the books as members' loans.

Mr. Wagar told the Peterborough group that Quinte Co-operative expects to have $30,000 in investments by the end of this year.

They now have $20,000 invested at 4 per cent, and income is paying 40 per cent of administration cost.

Kawartha Co-operative is hoping to be in a position to put their new surgical contracts into effect by July 1. Premium is $15 for one person and $30 for a family including children under 18 years. This is in addition to their existing hospitalization benefits.

Shorthorn Field Day

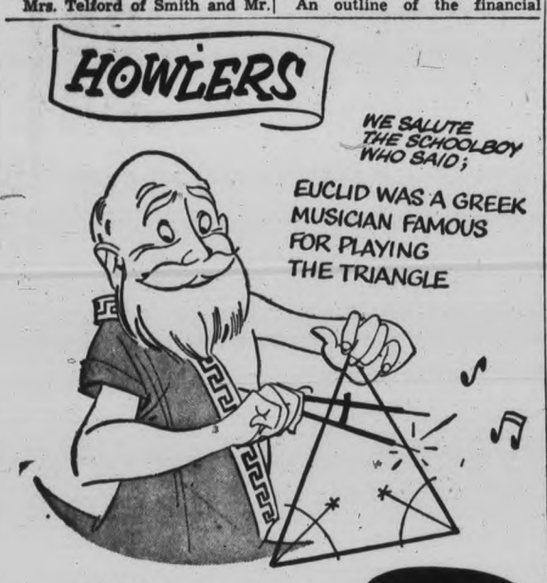
Shorthorn Breeders have arranged an interesting program for their field day at Shaw Brothers' farm in Otonabee on Saturday, June 13.

Lou Shaw, president of the Shorthorn Association, commented: "That was a grand field at Mr. Cadesky's two years ago, and we are hoping that this will be just about as good as that one."

The first visitors are expected before 11 a.m. when they will have ample time to look over the Shaw Shorthorns in the herd of 55 head. Lunch is from 12 to 1 p.m. and wives are requested to bring their own baskets. Tea and coffee will be supplied at the farm.

Time for a guest speaker has been spaced from 1.15 to 1.45 o'clock. Judging of selected cattle will be from 2 p.m. to 3.15 p.m., followed by a herd parade.

Reford Gardhouse, of Weston, will be in charge of the judging competition.



"We were assuming that we could get Mr. Jim Wharry, of Quaker Oats, to talk to us, but his daughter is getting married that day, so we are not sure just yet who the speaker will be," Mr. Shaw said.

The farm is one mile south on the old Keene Road, which turns off No. 7 Highway about the Mark Burnham place.

"We are inviting everybody who would like to spend the day with us and our Shorthorn Association members, and we hope it turns out fine weather," said Mr. Shaw, indicating the quality of welcome.

Farm Forums Stimulate People To Think

"One of the best features of the Ontario Farm Forum is the mental exercise it provides for its rural members," said Paul Meehan, secretary and fieldman for the Ontario Co-operative Medical Services at the Public Library on Thursday night. He was here for the annual meeting of Kawartha Medical Services.

"I'm inclined to think we are letting our minds get weak and flabby," Mr. Meehan said. "We are not doing our share of thinkink like our grandfathers did and all the way back to the Greeks and Romans when there were no newspapers and radio and television. The tendency today is to get somebody else to do things, even to doing your thinking for you.

"But, you join a Forum and become a director of a Co-operative Medical group like your own, and you'll get plenty of mental exercise. Our society today needs more groups like this gathering and like our Forums in the winter, where they are presented with actual problems, as in our business, and the subjects for discussion by the Forums."

NOT CONTENT

Intelligent people, Mr. Meehan said, could not be content with mental stagnation.

"If you become a director in these affairs you'll never be sorry for it. It will take a little of your time, but it repays you in more alertness. Credit Unions, Farm Forums, and Co-operatives help to keep your mind well trained."

Mr. Meehan amused the company with his reference to payroll deductions suggesting that urban people today did not even have to think of what they'd do with their money. He said Ontario Hydro was a great institution, and for their employees they have 16 items of payroll deduction "even their bowling dues are taken out now that way."

"All they need are two more items, rent and food, and leave the employee a receipt for all his money that has been spent for him."

That phase of Mr. Meehan's talk was an appeal to Co-operative Medical members not to shirk their opportunities and obligations of service.

OBITUARIES

MRS. ADDIE GALBRAITH

BETHANY (ENS)—A resident of Bethany and district most of her life, Mrs. Addie Galbraith died Thursday night at her home in Port Hope, where she has lived since her husband's retirement.

Mrs. Galbraith was born and educated in Bethany, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Staples. She taught school in the village and district for some time before her marriage, and after marrying was very active in Methodist Church work.

Her husband, Francis W. Galbraith, died about nine years ago, some time after he and his wife moved to Port Hope. He was a carpenter and lumber dealer in Bethany before his retirement.

Mrs. Galbraith is survived by two sisters and one brother: Mrs. Walter Rowland (Ella) and Miss Hanna Staples, both of Bethany, and John Staples of Hastings.

Funeral service will be conducted Saturday at 2 p.m. in the George funeral chapel, Port Hope. Burial will be in Union Cemetery, Port Hope.

Leaking Gas Causes Death Of Two Men

MONTREAL (CP) — Leaking hydrogen sulphide gas Thursday night caused the death of two men at the plant of the Dominion Tar and Chemical Company. Six others were overcome but responded to treatment.

The dead: Leo Lahaise, 48, and Marcel Corbeil, 32.

Lahaise was pronounced dead at the plant. Corbeil died several hours later in hospital.

Textile Workers Discuss Forming Union

LINDSAY (ENS) — The next phase in the organization of Lindsay labor started Wednesday night when some 200 workers of local textile plants gathered at the Steel Workers' hall to hear an address by Robert Garrow, representative of the CIO Union. They represented working staffs of Horn Brothers, Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Co., Knitters Ltd., National Textiles Ltd.

Ralph Carlin, who organized the steel workers in the town, also spoke to the gathering on the purposes of the Textile Workers' Union. The organized steel workers also met this week, and Gower Markel, educational secretary of the Union from Toronto, addressed them. Contract negotiations have been between M. J. Fenwick, union negotiator, and Dominion Brake Shoe Ltd. Further talks are also planned with McCrae Machine and Foundry Ltd.

Roads Blocked By Terrorists

NAIROBI (Reuters)—Mau Mau terrorists felled trees across roads, cut trenches across others and destroyed four bridges today in an effort to thwart a threatened British offensive in central Kenya.

The action coincided with an announcement from Sir Evelyn Baring, governor of this British Colony, that 6,000 square miles of the terrorist - infested territory will henceforth be sealed off to all civilians from outside without special passes.

The territory contains the Kikuyu tribal reserves of Kiambu, Fort Hall and Nyeri, and the Meru and Embu districts immediately north and south of Mount Kenya. This vast area of forests, farms and plateaus includes all districts where the Mau Mau campaign to drive whites out of Kenya has operated.

Baring said the new order had been issued "for security reasons in view of the present operations against terrorists."

In the last 48 hours, Mau Mau gangs have launched a series of attacks through the Kikuyu reserves and killed five African home guards. Six terrorists were killed.

French Carry War To Rebel Vietminh

HANOI, Indo-China (AP) — French union forces are experimenting with a new system to carry the war to the Communist-led Vietminh during the heavy rains now hitting Laos and north Viet Nam.

They have formed special mobile infantry patrols to establish a buffer zone 62 miles deep, north of the Mekong river in Laos to protect the royal capital of Luangprabang, Ventiane, the government seat, and Pak Sane, bordering northern Thailand.

The whole columns daily are thrusting deep into the jungle and forest-covered mountains to destroy Vietminh regional units and any elements left behind out of four invasion divisions which the Vietminh have withdrawn from Laos.

Malan Criticizes Talk Of Petition

SOUTHAMPTON (Reuters) South Africa's prime minister, Daniel Malan, arrived here today for the Coronation and criticized talk of partition of his country.

He also attacked British "book and article - writing emissaries" who, he said, hurriedly visited South Africa to "substantiate their ill-conceived prejudices."

Malan urged the British people not to be trapped into countenancing the creation in South Africa of "another Ulster." He said the bulk of South Africans "would not tolerate" a split between her English - speaking and Afrikaan-speaking citizens.

Malan said the defiance movement in South Africa, started as a protest against racial segregation laws, is "dead."

Canada Can Stand Anything But Gov't Change

LINDSAY (ENS)—"Is it time for a change, when Canada is the greatest exporting country per capita in the world and our currency is the best in the world?" asked Frank Folwell, Liberal MP for Hastings South at a dinner here last night, held in honor of Dr. Foster Graham, candidate in Victoria-Haliburton riding in the forthcoming election, by north ward 1 Lindsay Liberals.

A good-sized audience at the dinner held at St. Andrew's Church here heard the speaker point out the basic reason for the success of the Liberal Government in making Canada the greatest country it is today—stability and good leadership. Under three great leaders, he said, Laurier, King and now St. Laurent, the country has achieved great things both for itself and its people.

"The Liberal party is the only one presenting to the people a united front across the Dominion", said Mr. Folwell. "And there is no alternative at the present time for Liberal government. This country could stand anything but a return to Conservative government."

The speaker pointed out achievements of the government in the fields of family allowances, old age pensions, the best treatment accorded war veterans anywhere in the world, and labor legislation that leads any country in the world.

PREPARE FOR AUGUST

He urged members of the riding association to prepare their workers for an election on August 10 or 16. "That's what I'm doing," he noted. In closing, he expressed his confidence in Dr. Graham's success as a candidate. Dr. Graham also made brief remarks, pointing out the three reasons, in his mind for the success of the Liberal government. Its great leadership, its record of achievements, and the facts of its members in themselves.

Chairman of the evening was George Keith, veteran Lindsay Liberal and others at the head table included Reeve Richard Butler, Warden Vincent Fee, Ray Webster, chairman of the riding association, A. T. Lacey, who introduced the speaker, William Newman and Mr. Folwell, with Dr. Graham.

Searchers Lose Hope For Missing Boys

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y. (AP)—Searchers began to lose hope today for two teen-aged boys who disappeared after they were believed to have paddled a canoe into the rough waters of the Niagara river late Wednesday.

Six planes from the Niagara Falls naval air station joined the search Thursday for Raymond Pack, 14, and Bobby Wilcox, 6.

The planes buzzed the wooded north end of Grand Island and nearby Navy Island, where fishermen reported hearing what might have been calls for help.

The river flows slowly at that point, about four miles above the falls.

A study in full color of Queen Elizabeth II now on display in Simpson-Sears order office will be permanently hung in St. Joseph's Hospital in June.

The picture, taken by Dorothy Wilding, court photographer, will be presented to Mrs. B. Monaghan, president of the St. Joseph's Hospital Ladies' Auxiliary June 18 by Miss Helen Brooks of the local Simpson-Sears order office.

REGAL SHELTER—Queen Elizabeth II arrives at Westminster Abbey under a regal umbrella held for her by the Duke of Norfolk. The Queen braved a stiff London downpour to attend the rehearsal of ceremonies that will climax Coronation Day in the historic church.

641,820 Homes Ruled Overcrowded

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal statisticians estimate that some 641,820 homes—or 18.8 per cent of all households in Canada—were "overcrowded" when the census-taker had a look at them in 1951.

The bureau of statistics, in making this report public today, defined a crowded household as one in which the number of persons exceeds the number of rooms in the home.

The survey showed that Quebec had the most crowded homes with 216,955; Ontario 151,730; Alberta 56,300; Saskatchewan 50,770; British Columbia 48,100; Manitoba 39,675; Nova Scotia 27,615; New Brunswick 24,130; Newfoundland 23,130; Prince Edward Island 3,515.

Crowded homes averaged 6.7 persons; compared with an average of 3.4 persons in uncrowded homes.

$290,000 Airport Contract Let

OTTAWA (CP)—A $290,000 contract has been awarded for construction of an airport near Timmins, Transport Minister Chevrier announced today.

The contract went to Storms Contracting Company of Toronto.

Mr. Chevrier said the field 10 miles north of Timmins, to have a 4,000-foot runway, is to be completed this year.

Trans-Canada Air Lines, he said, plans to use the Timmins field on a Toronto-Timmins - Kapuskasing run. At present, the service runs between Toronto, Kapuskasing and Porquis Junction, 40 miles from Timmins.

The field at Porquis Junction will be retained as an alternative airport to Timmins.

MAYORALTY OBSTACLE—Mayor Edward Pierce, of New Bedford, Mass., embraces his wife and daughter at Bristol County Courthouse before leaving on a four-year jail term. The mayor was convicted on two counts of gambling conspiracy. But he reaffirmed his intention to run city affairs and campaign for re-election from his jail cell.

NEARING JOURNEY'S END — Thirty-three mothers of war-brides bound for various Canadian centres to celebrate Coronation Day with their daughters, arrived in Montreal aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Australia. Most of them will be seeing their daughters for the first time since they left England several years ago. Although some received aid through their respective branches of the War Brides and Parents Associations of England, Charles Bowbrick, secretary of the association, said most paid their way with their savings.

Big Moment Of Queen's Day Is Play With Her Children; Must Be Home By 5.00 p.m.

At first there seemed little likelihood Elizabeth II ever would be Queen, but she has trained most of her lifetime for the role epitomized in the oath she takes next Tuesday in Westminster Abbey. This is the last of five articles on her childhood, womanhood and the new career brought her by the death of her father last year.

By JAMES F. KING

LONDON (AP)—When she became Queen, Elizabeth, wearing slacks and a bush jacket, was perched in a giant fig tree watching rhinoceroses coming out of the African jungle to drink.

Since childhood she had been drilled in the art of Royal deportment, of combining the regal manner with democratic understanding, of making pleasant small talk with strangers, of being both a symbol and a human being.

And when the moment came for her to assume the responsibilities of the Crown she was in a spot so remote that she did not learn of it until 12 hours later.

DIED IN HIS SLEEP

King George VI, who left a sick bed only a week before to see Elizabeth and her husband, Philip, off on a 30,000-mile royal tour that was scheduled to take them to Australia and New Zealand, died in his sleep at Sandringham Feb. 6, 1952. Elizabeth, stopping off in Kenya in East Africa for a look at one of Britain's most promising and habitable colonies—Mau Mau terrorists were not yet active—received the news the next afternoon.

Even on her flight back to London, the heartbroken 25-year-old girl was handed a batch of state papers to sign, the beginning of a daily ritual that would continue for the rest of her life.

She bore up under her grief and responsibilities with all the dignity and humility in which she had been trained.

"I pray that God will help me to discharge worthily this heavy task that has been laid upon me so early in my life," she told her privy council at the first meeting in London.

KEYNOTE OF REIGN

Elizabeth set the keynote of her reign in a broadcast last Christmas calling on the people for abiding faith in the British way to life and to "venture beyond the safeties of the past."

Elizabeth probably is one of the busiest young women in the world with her duties as wife, mother and queen. She lives by a well-ordered timetable which sometimes is arranged as much as a year in advance.

Her office in the Belgian suite on the ground floor of Buckingham Palace is much like any office of a young woman business executive.

Here she signs the state documents and reads the secret papers brought by her ministers each morning, receives official callers and keeps minutely informed on political, social, economic and constitutional intricacies.

The Queen usually is up at 7 a.m. and begins the day by listening to the 8 o'clock news broadcast. Then she breakfasts with her husband and reads the morning newspapers.

Elizabeth, a horse racing enthusiast who on occasion has been thrown from her mount, and Philip, a cricket and polo player of standing, always scan the sports pages along with the stories of more moment.

Before the working day, their two youngsters are brought in for a half hour's play with their parents. Wide-eyed Charles, 4, is a curious lad and is always popping questions. Princess Anne, almost 3, tries to curtsey and usually falls over.

The first round of callers to the Queen's office, government officials, foreign diplomats and other dignitaries, usually begins at 11:30 after she has read documents and dispatches. Sometimes she receives 18 or 20 such callers in a week. They often are invited to stay for lunch.

The young Queen has a retentive memory for names, faces and details, and is a friendly and easy conversationalist.

AFTERNOON ENGAGEMENTS

Outside public engagements—ranging from impromptu tours, such as the recent visits to flood-stricken areas, to accepting the presidency of a new hospital or attending a full-dress social function — take up much afternoon time.

Wherever she goes, Elizabeth must be the perfection of friendly ease and of queenly remoteness.

Elizabeth always tries to be back at the palace by 5 p.m. for the big moment of her day, an hour in the nursery with the children. She reads to them, cowboy and Indian stories for Charles, nursery rhymes for Anne.

Even Sir Winston Churchill, knighted by Elizabeth, has to take a back seat for the youngsters. By custom, the prime minister makes a weekly report to the sovereign, usually on Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. But at Elizabeth's request, Churchill has put it off an hour to give the Queen more time to see her children to bed.

During the day, Prince Philip is often "on the road" as his wife's envoy, visiting a coal mine or opening a new playground. The Queen's subjects have come to regard him as a "good bloke" because of his informal manner.

HAVE A NIGHT OUT

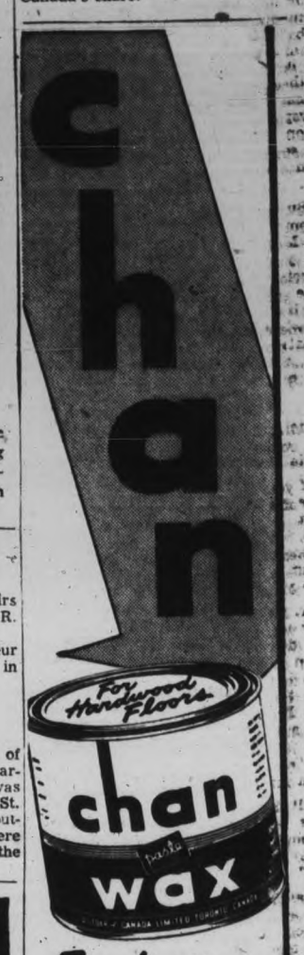
On occasion the royal couple have a night out, attending the theatre or opening some entertainment for charity. Philip enjoys naval drinks, beer and gin, while Elizabeth sips an occasional cocktail.

Philip has had an influence in widening his wife's circle of acquaintances. There were raised eyebrows when the Queen and her husband went to a private dinner party last fall given by the American actor, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. Elizabeth, it was reported, sat on the floor to listen to some funny songs. As a princess she demonstrated for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, then the Allied commander, the intricacies of the highland fling.

Money is no particular problem to this young couple, but the Royal household does have to be run on a budget like any other home.

The Queen probably is the highest paid young lady in the world. She is allotted £1,330,000 a year to run her vast households.

She has no time to take a direct hand in supervising 400-room Buckingham Palace and its 250 servants but she insists on selecting the menus.



MRS. DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER hits the nail on the head—more or less—as she fastens lid on box of clothing collected at the White House for destitute Koreans. A door-to-door collection of clothes for Koreans was conducted in the U.S. capital.

Plan $5,000 Drive For RCAF Memorial

OTTAWA (CP)—The one-time commander of Canada's wartime bomber group, Air Vice-Marshal G. E. Brookes of Toronto, is heading a drive to raise $5,000 for a memorial to the airmen Canada and her allies lost in battle in the Second World War.

The memorial to Commonwealth and Allied airmen is to be erected in Britain's Yorkminster Cathedral at a total cost of $30,000. The remainder will come from other Commonwealth countries.

The Royal Canadian Air Force Association has undertaken to raise Canada's share.

Canadian Provinces Expect Billion Dollar Revenue

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada's 10 provinces have shifted their financial resources into high gear for the 1953-54 fiscal year. And government officials predict a prosperous 12 months.

"The greatest budget. . . in history," said Newfoundland's Finance Minister Gregory Power. "A construction and development budget," said Premier Frost of Ontario. "Unprecedented," said Quebec's Finance Minister Onesime Gagnon.

These were some of the optimistic comments as provincial budgets were brought down in recent months.

Totals show the 10 provinces plan gross expenditures of $1,158,213,814 and expect gross revenues of $1,226,480,077, the highest in history.

The expanding financial picture of the country was reflected in the Ontario budget presented by Premier Frost who is also provincial treasurer. He estimated gross ordinary expenditures of $350,809,000 and revenues of $350,994,000, more than triple the actual figures for 1939. The estimated revenues for the province are $23,294,000 greater than the actual revenues of the federal government in 1932.

Ontario's 1939 expenditures were $103,356,038 and revenues totalled $103,506,910. In 1931-32 the federal government's ordinary expenditures were $378,700,000 and revenues, $327,700,000.

In all provinces but Quebec the 1953-54 payment under the federal-provincial tax agreement was considered. Total payments were estimated at $300,500,000.

A province - by - province breakdown shows the following:

British Columbia—Expenditures, $174,882,838; revenues, $182,389,013; tax-rental agreement, $42,300,000. Finance Minister Einar Gunderson said that for the first time "in years" the province will not borrow to finance capital expenditures, this year planned at $31,384,760.

Alberta—Expenditures, $137,958,130; revenues, $138,368,160; tax-rental agreement, $28,900,000 Premier Manning, also provincial treasurer, said Alberta's expenditures will be $50,000,000 more than last year. The sum includes a $25,000,000 revolving fund from which loans to municipalities will be made at 2½-per-cent interest The fund will be financed from the province's accumulated reserves. A total of $33,625,000 will be spent on highway construction and improvement.

Saskatchewan — Expenditures, $70,425,920; revenues, $70,515,810; tax-rental agreement, $24,500,000. Provincial Treasurer Fines announced a one-cent-a-gallon increase in the gasoline tax, raising the tax level to 11 cents a gallon. Proceeds, expected to total $1,100,000 a year, would be used exclusively for highway construction.

Manitoba—Expenditures, $34,500,000; revenues, $55,000,000; tax-rental agreement, $24,300,000. Provincial Treasurer R. D. Turner said the expenditure total does not include $24,000,000 to be spent on capital account for self-sustaining utilities and financed by non-current revenues. Public works expenditures were seen at $20,000 000.

Ontario—Expenditures, $350,809,000; revenues, $350,994,000; tax-rental agreement, $131,000,000. Premier Frost announced a $153,000,000 highway construction program. The province also plans to spend $78,004,000 on education and $65,000,000 for public buildings and works.

Quebec—Expenditures, $237,999,800; revenues, $288,494,900. Finance Minister Gagnon estimated capital expenditures of $48,905,000 made up of government investments in permanent works such as public buildings, highways and bridges.

New Brunswick—Expenditures, $49,221,893; revenues, $49 234,380; tax-rental agreement, $15,700,000. Provincial Secretary - Treasurer Donald D. Patterson said that all medicines and drugs will be added to the items exempted from the four-per-cent provincial sales tax. He estimated a saving of $250,000.

Nova Scotia—Expenditures, $43,218,824; revenues, $47,433,112; tax-rental agreement, $18,900,000. Premier Macdonald, also provincial treasurer, said $15,503,000 estimated for highways and public works was the greatest in the history of the province.

Prince Edward Island—Expenditures, $7,149,409; revenues, $7,855,402; tax-rental agreement, $3,500,000. Provincial Treasurer E. Darby said that with careful planning of public funds and with the probability of revenues exceeding the minimum basis of forecast, "we can at least have a reasonable hope of attaining this year's achievement—the payment of both ordinary and capital expenditure out of current income."

Newfoundland — Expenditures, $32,048,000; revenues, $36,095,300; tax-rental agreement, $11,400,000. Finance Minister Power's budget called for a five-cent tax on admission to all places of entertainment. The estimated yield of $250,000 will be used for cancer control.

Ford Tough On Actresses, Slaps 'Em Hard

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"I hear you're tough on your leading ladies. Well, we'll see about that."

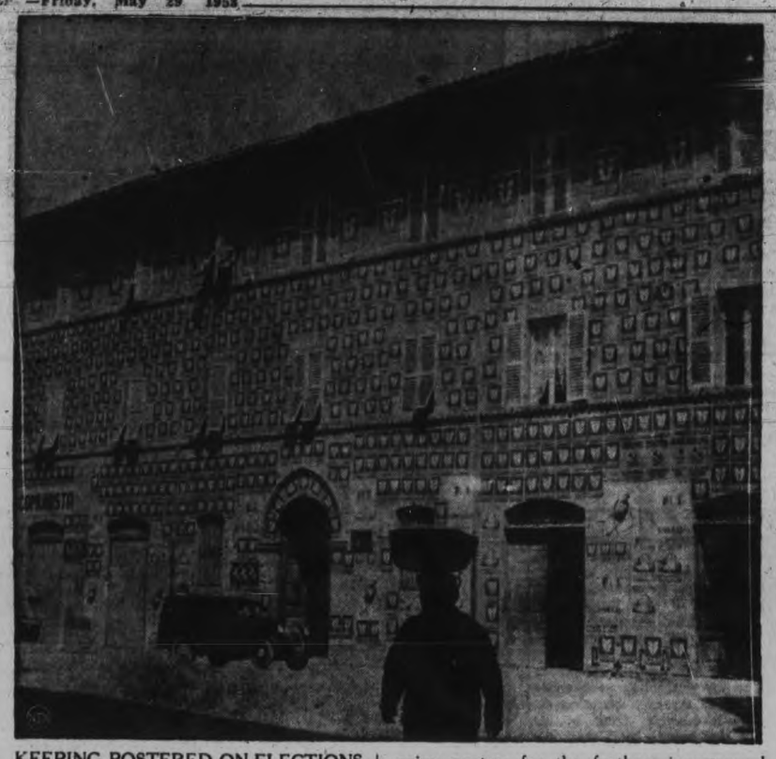
That was Ann Sheridan's comment to Glenn Ford when they met on the first day of "Rage of the Jungle." She learned in a hurry. They went right into a scene in which he grabbed her arms and whopped her across her pretty face.

"I found out about that boy," she sighed later. "I was black and blue for two days. Glenn looks like the gentle sort, but honey, it's always the gentle sort who are roughest with their women."

Ford has been slapping dames on the screen almost since the start of his film career. "I guess I'm typed," he shrugs.

It's an odd kind of typing for the soft-spoken, Quebec City-born actor. It all started when he dealt Rita Hayworth some open-handed blows in "Gilda."

SHE GOT BACK



"I knocked her almost across the room," he remarked with a degree of pride. "But she got back at me. She had a scene in which she slugged me across both sides of the face. The blows loosened two teeth, and I had to have them replaced."

The "Gilda" flicker was wildly acclaimed in Spain and other Latin countries. Ever since then, Ford has been billed as "the woman killer" in those countries.

Ford continued his slugging match with Hayworth, dealing her slaps in "Loves of Carmen" and "Affair in Trinidad." Among the other dolls he has batted around are Ida Lupino in "Lust for Gold" and Diana Lynn in "Plunder of the Sun." He explained his technique:

"It's hard to fake a slap. You can slug a guy on the screen and miss his chin by inches; the action happens so fast that nobody knows the difference. But a slap is different. It has to be the real McCoy. Otherwise you don't get the right reaction."

The gentle husband is taking his wife Eleanor Powell, and their son, Peter, on his next location trip to Brazil. He leaves next month to film "The Americano" in the Matto Grosso area. He will be the only North American in the film, which is being made with the co-operation of the Brazilian government.

KEEPING POSTERED ON ELECTIONS —Spring decorating by the owner of this house in Ascoli Pisceno, Italy, consists of a complete papering of the walls with campaign posters for the forthcoming general election. The posters urge voters to support the Christian Democrats, centreist party of Premier De Gasperi.

Storm Damage Affected Lobster Catch

HALIFAX (CP)—Despite a good season catch and high prices, many Nova Scotia lobster fishermen say their financial return will show a drop because of storm damage.

With the season not yet closed, no figures are available on the catch but normally it averages about 18,000,000 pounds a year, bringing a production return of $6,500,000.

The lobster industry in Nova Scotia, which tops that of New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, is second only to the cod fishery.

A large portion of the catch is marketed in the live or boiled state through retail outlets. At the middle of the season the price was 99 cents a pound for boiled lobsters in Halifax. At one time the majority of the lobsters were canned.

TRAPS OF LATH

More than 2,000 fishermen a year put out from the numerous small ports of the province. Operating from small motor boats, the first step is to set the traps—a half-cylinder of lath work weighted down with rock.

In each end is a net entrance, shaped like a funnel with the smaller end inside the trap. Just opposite this small opening is the bait—almost any kind of salted or fresh fish.

Lobsters, living on the sea bottom, can easily enter the large end, but once they fall inside the trap, are unable to make their way out through the narrow opening. From there on its just a matter of hauling in the traps and taking the lobsters to market.

Lobsters are green when taken from the water. They turn red when boiled.

NO EASY JOB

Although simple in design, lobster fishing is not easy. Traps have to be made, ropes and buoys repaired and the boat kept in shape.

Hauling the heavy traps into the boat is back-breaking toil and through it all there is always the threat of storm and death.

Already this season two Nova Scotians have drowned while lobster fishing.

Storms make or break a lobster season. Sudden squalls which rip the traps from the sea bottom and smash them spell economic ruin for many fishermen each year. A trap costs about $7 and if lost late in the season there is no time for replacement. For one fisherman to lose 200 traps during a bad storm is not unusual.

"BIG SHOT" LETS GO.—The U.S. Army's 280-mm. cannon blasts away with a test round near Las Vegas, Nev. This "big shot" is scheduled to fire atomic artillery. The cannon is capable of hurling a shell about seven miles from the detonation area. At left background of the atomic proving grounds is a "standby" cannon.

Lakefield Cadets Praised At Annual Inspection

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—Lakefield District High School cadet corps, under Cadet Major Bill Down, OC, made a splendid showing on Wednesday afternoon at the annual inspection.

They were highly commended on their steadiness on parade, physical training and other demonstrations by Lieut. H. E. Done, cadet training officer of Kingston. The band, under Lieut. Harry Rath, also came in for its share of honors when Lieut. Done stated that its performance was greatly improved over that of last year.

Lieut. Col. M. E. Clarke, OC 50th HAA Regt., Peterborough, said he heartily agreed with everything Lieut. Done had said, and pointed out to the cadets that the lessons learned in discipline, co-operation and leadership in cadet training would help them all through life.

TAKES SALUTE

The salute was taken by Lt. Col. Clarke. Others in the inspection party included Lieut. H. E. Done, Gordon K. Fraser, MP, Principal J. E. Stephens, School Trustee Wellie Pearson and Cadet Major Down, OC. The march past was taken in close column, column of route and review order.

During platoon drill the following selections were made for prizes: Best boys' platoon, 2 platoon, under Cadet Lieut. Jack Gordon; best girls' platoon, platoon 5, under Cadet Lieut. Patsy Nickels; best boy officer on parade, Cadet Capt. G. Moore; best girl officer on parade, Cadet Capt. Nancy Doubt; best boy cadet on parade, Cadet Arthur Shoefly; best girl cadet on parade, Cadet Audrey Windover.

The boys' PT was directed by CSM F. Barcroft and the girls' PT by Lieut. Jeanette Staples. A precision squad was directed by Cpl. J. Milligan; parallel bar demonstration by Lieut. J. Gordon; stripping and assembling a Bren gun by Cpl. R. Mace; rifle firing by CQMS T. Wilson; a sham battle by CSM F. Barcroft and first aid by Lieut. H. Rath. Knots were demonstrated by Cadets R. Hill, M. Pluard and G. Stenner.

Cadet Corps officers are Cadet Major Bill Down OC, Cadet Capt. G. Moore 21/c (boys), Cadet Capt. Nancy Doubt, 21/c (girls), platoon commanders, Cadet Lieut. D. Northey, Cadet Lieut. J. Gordon, Cadet Lieut. J. Staples, Cadet Lieut. R. Wilson and Cadet Lieut. P. Nickels, Company Sgt. Maj. F. Barcroft, Company QMS T. Wilson and Sgts. D. Pearson, N. Wasson, E. Northey, J. Wagner and J. Hewitt.

Band members are Lieut. H. Rath, leader; buglers J. Northey, K. Webb, J. Milligan, K. Darling, R. Wingett and J. McCracken, drummers D. Millage and D. Jacobs.

Principal Stephens expressed his appreciation of the work done by Mr. Sisson, Mr. Stirling and Mr. Graham of the teaching staff and that of Lieut. Jeanette Staples in connection with the girls' PT display which received a great ovation from the hundreds who attended the inspection.

Protestant Movement In Italy Undergoes Many Difficulties

By PATRICK CROSSE

ROME (Reuters)—Prospects of a Roman Catholic victory in June's Italian elections and the nomination of a Catholic ambassador at the United States embassy have piled up a new wave of alarm among Italy's 150,000 Protestant minority.

Spokesman of the 11 different protestant sects here complain that since the Christian Democrats won Italy's first national election in 1948, life has been made increasingly difficult for them. There is every likelihood that the government will be returned to power.

"The nomination as United States ambassador of Mrs. Clare Booth Luce (a Catholic convert) has in addition greatly discouraged us," said a leader of one of the sects.

The Protestants say police have taken persecuting action against them 150 times in the last four years.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM

The post-war Italian constitution guarantees religious freedom, and cases taken to court have usually been found in favor of the Protestants on constitutional grounds. But many anti-Protestant laws, most enacted by Mussolini, remain on the tatute books.

The Protestants say most of their troubles is on a local scale with local Catholic authorities goading local police to enforce these laws.

The list of complaints range over unfair taxation, arrest for making public disturbances, red tape on importing charity packages, and excessive regulations.

Main targets for police action have been two sects financed from the United States and staffed in part by American missionaries—the Churches of Christ, founded by a group of 13 American missionaries four years ago; and the Assemblies of God, a movement founded here by Italian immigrants who returned from the United States with a new faith, Pentecostalism.

TELLS GOVERNMENT

Cline R. Paden, one of the founders of the Churches of Christ, declared that "in this country it is the Catholic Church which tells the government how to walk."

In August, 1952, Paden moved into Rome, to establish a meeting place here. "Within a month the police ordered me to close down and posted armed pickets round the house to prevent the congregation from entering.

"After the intervention of the state department and the United States embassy the pickets were removed and we were allowed to go on."

He said he and other missionaries are allowed only temporary visas on a month-to-month basis and 10 American missionaries have been unable to get visas at all.

Probably the most severe police action is directed against the Assemblies of God movement.

BANNED IN 1935

Mussolini banned it in 1935 as "contrary to public decency" and the government still enforces this ban "in practice if not formally," said Guido Scalzi, an administrator of the organization.

Scalzi said the group's main trouble is in small country towns where "It is the local priest who forces the police to take action."

The Baptist Church numbers some 10,000 in Italy. Its general secretary, Manfredi Ronchi, said police trouble started after the Catholic government came to power.

A leading lawyer who frequently defends accused Protestants, Giacoma Rosapepe, said apart from police action, the Protestant movements in Italy were subject to a different taxation system from that applied to the Catholic Church.

He said that organizations like the Churches of Christ were made to pay taxes amounting to between 20 and 25 per cent of the money they bring into the country.

Vets Having Tough Time

SHAWVILLE, Que. (CP)—The way things are going, veterinarians in this area 40 miles northwest of Ottawa may go into the scrap-iron business.

Veterinarian Roland Armitage Thursday reported that Amber, a cow owned by Joseph Gibbons of North Onslow, let her diet get out of hand. Called when she was near death, Dr. Armitage operated and found nails, twisted pieces of barbed wire and a miscellany of other foreign matter.

Meanwhile, another veterinary success was scored in the case of Viola, a prize Holstein owned by Iverson Harris of Portage du Fort road.

Some time ago she had an operation and was delivered of several odd articles including nails and bolts. She recovered, but experts said she'd never bear another calf.

This week Viola gave birth to a beautiful bull calf.

Famous Leinster Plate On Display In Fort Henry

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—The famous Leinster plate, dazzling military collection of some 120 pieces of silver plate and trophies, has been put on display at Fort Henry after being locked up for 30 years in a vault at the Royal Military College.

The collection, loaned to Fort Henry authorities by the college as a tourist attraction, was once owned by the first unit from any British colony to serve abroad—the 10th Canadian Regiment of Foot.

It was given to the Canadian government when the former owners, the 1st battalion, Prince of Wales Leinster Regiment (Royal Canadians) was disbanded in 1922.

The 10th was formed in 1858 when Britain accepted aon offer from Canada to send troops to help crush the Indian Mutiny.

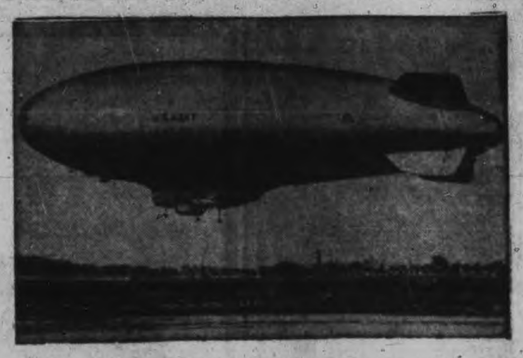
VOLUNTEER GROUP

Most of the soldiers were volunteers and hardly one in 10 had ever handled a musket, but in its second year the battalion was placed fourth among 179 battalions in marksmanship. The three-foot musket trophy it received for this forms part of the collection.

The unit was commanded by Lt.-Col. George, Baron de Rothenburg of Toronto, then adjutant-general of Upper Canada. He was the first Canadian ever to command an imperial regiment.

The collection comprises delicate, hand-worked goblets, cups, candelabras, filigreed trophies and elephant tusks in silver mountings.

The regiment served in India and Malta and then returned to Canada in 1866. After its return to Canada, the regiment was stationed at Montreal and Ottawa and took part in Confederation ceremonies in 1867.



Sir Archibald Nye, now British high commissioner to Canada, was the last commanding officer.

Red, White, Blue Chicks

Quints Have Quiet 19th Birthday

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP)—The Dionne quintuplets celebrated their 19th birthday Thursday behind the cloistered walls of a convent at Nicolet, 15 miles southwest of here on the south shore of the St. Lawrence river.

There was no publicity given the event and details of the party were sketchy. But it is known there was plenty of music and singing at the gala event.

The party was held at a cottage owned by the nuns who operate a girls' college, which the quints are attending.

The quints' main hobby is still music, and all five are good at it. They are taking a course in home economics at the convent which is comparable to first year at university.

NO COMMENT

The mother superior of the convent declined to say what form the party took. However, the father said earlier in the week it would be the usual birthday celebration with a cake.

Plans called for the quintuplets' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne from Callander, Ont., two sisters, Pauline and Mrs. Maurice Geraud of Waterloo, Que., and a brother, seven-year-old Claude, to join the quintuplets at the cottage.

The girls may switch from home economics to art next year. They have been interested in the work of their sister Pauline, who is studying art in Montreal and plans to become an art teacher.

Though their parents gave them clothes as gifts, Mrs. Dionne said the main birthday gift from herself and her husband was in cash. "They know best what they need."

200,000 Firecrackers In Chinese Celebration

OTTAWA (CP). — Ottawa's Chinese colony will salute the Queen in its own traditional style on Coronation Day.

The Chinese will fire off 200,000 firecrackers. That's the Chinese way of doing things like that.

Dr. H. W. Lore, prominent member of Toronto's Chinese community, said last night a meeting was being held tonight to discuss Coronation plans for this city's Chinatown.

When King George VI was crowned, said Dr. Lore, the Chinese community had been asked by City Council not to set off firecrackers. He said Chinese here would like to celebrate in some way, and would probably appoint a delegate to ask permission for fireworks.

Two-Year-Old Drowns

TORONTO (CP)—Two-year-old Brant Halliwell of suburban Mimico was drowned in less than a foot of water along the shore of Lake Ontario Thursday. Police said the boy was discovered by 12-year-old Bonnie McFadden, who pulled him out and applied artificial respiration. He was dead when he arrived at hospital.

Cornish Poetry Enters Case As Tommy Hughes Fined

Evidence was presented in police court Thursday that the doggerel of Cornwall is no match for the poetry of Wales.

Fined $10 and $5 costs on a charge of common assault on Mrs. Ruth Masters, 251 Lake St., Thomas Hughes, 833 Bell Ave., was asked by Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, QC, if he had been brought up in Wales.

"That's right," Hughes admitted.

"Wales is next to Cornwall, isn't it?"

"I think so," Hughes replied cagily.

"Have you never heard the saying:

'A wife, a dog and a chestnut tree,
'The more you beat 'em, the better they be'."

"I can't say I have," said Hughes, smiling with relief.

A further charge against Hughes of stealing some of Mrs. Masters clothes was dismissed, as was a charge against Mrs. Masters of breaking and entering Hughes' house and stealing a sewing machine.

Mrs. Masters admitted that she had been living with Hughes ever since the house was built about two and a half years ago until April 20 when they had an argument and Hughes left.

"I was sitting watching the television and he didn't come back so I went for visit," Mrs. Masters said. She had spent the night with friends and went back the next day to change her clothes.

CLIMBED LADDER

She had a key but it wouldn't open the door so she climbed a ladder to an upper window. She claimed Hughes had given her the sewing machine as a Christmas present in 1950 so she took it with her and left a note saying "I've been home and I'll be back."

She said she returned to the house on April 27 to get her clothes and came across Hughes who said: "You thought I'd be in high court today on the arbitration case with the city; that's why you came." She said Hughes hit her on the face with his fist, knocking her back against the dresser, making the side of her face black and blue and injuring her elbow. Hughes then called the police who let her go.

Cross-questioned by Hughes' defence counsel, Edward Fanjoy, Mrs. Masters said she didn't call out for help. "I've tried it before and it didn't work," she said.

Hughes said that Mrs. Masters had rushed at him with a handful of coat-hangers and threatened to stratch his eyes out. "I gave her a push and then phoned the police," Hughes said.

"Think of the headlines in the press: 'Tommy Hughes Afraid of Coat-hanger'," the Crown Attorney said to Hughes.

"There were four or five coat-hangers," Hughes countered.

"Mrs. Masters, when you're not wanted in a place, the best thing to do is get out," Magistrate Philp advised.

During the hearing of the theft charge against Hughes, Mrs. Masters said that she went back to the house once more on May 6 to get her clothes. Missing were two good dresses, three or four house dresses, a blouse, a hat, a pair of shoes, a station-wagon coat and a coronation pin.

She returned two weeks ago to pack her furniture and Hughes said he had taken a mortgage on a cottage he wanted her to see. She went with him and saw another woman wearing one of her dresses. She saw the coronation pin on the coat of a third woman who told her that Hughes had given it to her for cleaning the house.

On the charge of breaking, entering and theft against Mrs. Masters, Hughes said that their quarrel had begun some time ago over his buying his daughter a bicycle. "She left and took my brand new half-ton truck and she still has it," Hughes said.

He said he went away to St. Catharines and Niagara Falls after "locking up the whole house solid." When he returned he found the lock on the back door broken. There were broken dishes on the table and floor and in the sink, and beer bottles all over the place. A brand new sewing machine, the spare tire of the truck and his books were missing. There were drawers opened and it looked as though the place had been ransacked.

Mr. Bradshaw told the court that the sewing machine was the only article involved in the charge against Mrs. Masters but from the date on the bill it looked as though it might have been a Christmas present.

"No it wasn't," Hughes said. "I bought it for the use of the house—whoever might be there."

Mrs. Masters denied breaking any more than one coffee cup, which she had accidentally knocked off the table.

Change Inquest Date

STRATFORD (CP)—The inquest into the deaths of Mrs. George Lupton and Bronislaw Milert, a hired man on the Lupton farm, has been rescheduled for June 3, it was announced Thursday. Previously, the inquest into Milert's death had been scheduled June 1 and the inquest into Mrs. Lupton's death June 3. Mrs. Lupton died May 21 after Milert is said by police to have attacked her with an ax. Milert died later of self-inflicted razor wounds.

Coronation Influences Look Of June Bride's Trousseau

The fashion influence of the coming coronation of Queen Elizabeth II, in June, is exerting a certain influence over bridal fashions, evening fashions and accessories.

Many June brides will adapt the style of the very becoming tiara in some form as a bridal headdress. And many others will want the "coronation look" in their wedding gowns.

For these brides we show (above) a queenly bridal gown by Alfred Angelo. It is fashioned from bridal-white satin which gleams from beneath layers of frosty nylon tulle and net, which are in turn covered by Chantilly lace in a distinctive rose pattern. (English queens traditionally have worn the dainty rose imprint on the coronation gowns.)

T. bouffant skirt widens to a sequin-scalloped hem from under which springs a double row of graceful ruffling in permanently pleated nylon tulle.

The bodice is spattered with iridescent seed pearls, bugle beads, baguettes and rhinestones in the characteristic wheat motif that will also be part of the de-Elizabeth II.

Keep Within Your Means In Planning Wedding

The days when convention required the family of a bride to pawn the family jewels and totter on the brink of bankruptcy to provide an elaborate wedding went out with a good many other Victorian customs which people rebelled overwhelmingly against. Today's rule is "keep it within your means."

The simplest arrangement is for the bride to consult with her family and decide well in advance how much money can be spent. The bride should always remember that it's father who pays, and she should make every effort to see that he is not burdened with unnecessary expense.

Always keep in mind that the real expense of marriage is the marriage vow— the love, honor and cherish vows, and that everything else which surrounds the bride on her day— the flowers, music, dresses and so on, are nice but not necessary.

The high cost of living is hitting rich and poor alike these days, and many young couples are deciding to forgo a big wedding in favor of a big cheque to help them establish their home. That, however, is up to the couple, and is something which they must decide upon. There are many arguments for both sides.

Whether big or small, a wedding should be kept in good taste. If your neighbors feel that you're trying to merely for the sake of outdoing any previous efforts at weddings, or trying to "show off," tongues will wag for some time in the future and the young couple may find they have started off in an aura of gossip "where did they get the money to do it?"

Sometimes the young husband, eager to make good in his new job, finds a few weeks after his marriage that he has to pay a lot of bills he didn't bargain for.

If you can't afofrd it, don't try to do it. That way you'll save yourself, your family, and your new husband a lot of grief and expense.

Pre-Wedding Relaxation For Radiant Bride

Every girl wants to be a beautiful bride—and certainly you are no exception. Yet, as the days fly by, the pressure of plans seems to be wearing you out. You're probably wondering how you will ever have the strength, no less the glamor, to walk down the aisle.

If it's any consolation, there's hardly a bride who hasn't experienced the same kind of exhaustion. But the smart girls do something about it, before it is too late.

What you must do, if you are to keep yourself feeling and looking lovely, is relax. This may seem impossible, at first, but with a little persistence on your part, it can be accomplished.

Try to get all your shopping and fittings done in the morning before the crowds get started. As soon as you arrive home, fix yourself a lukewarm bubble bath. Tuck a folded bath towel under your curls and just lean back and enjoy the foaming bubbles.

Line up your favorite cosmetics, cologne and a tall glass of ice water on the bath tub tray. Close your eyes and dream. (You shouldn't have any trouble on that score.) Stay put for 30 minutes and you will find the frantic tension is eased. What's more ,you will actually feel wonderfully glamorous.

Once you are dried and dressed, allow another hour or so to take care of any pressing problems. This is a good time to clear up telephone calls and note writing.

As soon as that tired feeling starts to take hold again, interrupt your chores with a session out in the su. Set up a s... chair, and prop your feet up to ease the kinks. Bring your portable radio outside, too. Music definitely soothes the tired bride-to-be. This might also be a good opportunity for you to review travel folders. You never can give too much thought to that honeymoon trip.

While you are relaxing, decide how you will wear your hair, and the type of make-up you think would be best. Naturally, the bridal veiling will influence your hair decision, but it generally is wise not to make too drastic a change. Your groom wants to see you as he knows you best.

Perfume will play an important part in your wedding wardrobe. Choose the fragrance with great care. Look for a scent that is as permanent and unforgettable as the most precious moment in your life. One special fragrance, delightfully scented and long-lasting, seems to be a particular bridal favorite. It has captured the romantic aura that should surround every bride.

Even during your pre-wedding days fragrance preparations can help you to relax. Sprinkle some sachet or perfume on your pillow at night. Falling asleep will be a lot easier and pleasanter.

Carry a perfume vial in your handbag, and in the midst of shopping, when you are feeling especially tired, take a minute to refresh your fragrance. These are small things, but they will help you to get through the hectic days ahead.

Increased Expenses

TORONTO (CP)—The Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada had an income last year of $1,143,790, a report presented to its Dominion board said Thursday. This was an increase of $78,614 over the previous year.

Sources of revenue were conference branch returns (94 per cent of the total), donations and interest on investments.

Expenditures for 1952 were $1,030,592, an increase of $32,813 over 1951.

COOL FISHING—Huge ice cakes, piled along the banks of the Bow River in Calgary, provided just the spot for a bevy of lovely girls to relax on a hot day. They also got in a little fishing. THE EXPERTS SAY:

Choose Drinking Water As Others Choose Wine

By JOAN BARBERIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A Turkish recipe book has come to hand and apparently the Turks are gourmets of no mean stature.

This book informed us that, "In Istanbul, Turkey's metropolis, people choose their drinking water as others would choose their wine."

More than that, "a sip suffices to identify for them the very spring from which the water comes, so developed is the Turkish palate from centuries of good eating."

In Turkey, a person wouldn't be satisfied with just ordering peaches. They specify what kind. "Bursa peaches, for instance, have a different flavor than those from Izmir. The same applies to apples They ask for an "Amasya" apple, or a "Gumushane." Each has its distinctive taste and aroma.

The book reveals that the much romanticized open-air restaurants and cafes on the European continent had their origin in Ottoman Turkey. The Viennese carried the idea westward.

LAMB, MUTTON DISHES

Lamb and mutton rate highly with the Turks and the following recipe is for "tas kebab" (potted lamb).

Ingredients: 2-lb. shoulder of lamb; four tablespoons butter; two onions (chopped); one No. 2 can tomatoes; one half teaspoon salt and one quarter teaspoon pepper.

Method: Remove bone and cut lamb into 1-inch cubes. Cook in butter in heavy frying pan until browned. Add onions and brown, then add tomatoes, salt and pepper. Bring to boil, reduce heat and simmer for 45 minutes.

The Turkish recipe book suggests that with "tas kebab" might be served "pilav," a rice dish.

Ingredients: Two cups uncooked rice; four medium tomatoes (or canned tomatoes); one-eighth lb. butter; 3½ cups liquid (water, meat stock or chicken broth) and two teaspoons salt.

Method: Wash and drain rice well, then set aside. Cut tomatoes, peeled and seeded, into small chunks. Heat butter and tomatoes together until a tomato paste is obtained, then add liquid and salt and boil for two minutes. Add rice while liquid is boiling, stir once, cover and cook over medium heat without stirring again until rice has absorbed all the liquid. Turn flame very low and simmer for another 20 minutes. Remove from stove and leave covered for 30 minutes—do not stir.

When transferring rice to serving dish, use a flat serving spoon, handling the rice gently to keep it fluffy.

China And Silver Welcome Presents

Additional pieces of the bride's china pattern will be a welcome gift, if you are invited to a wedding and don't know what to buy. The same thing goes for her silver. She may have bought only the essential pieces of china or silver in an open stock pattern, and the salad forks, butter knives, table spoons, etc., that she doesn't have will complete her set. Vegetable bowls, platters, covered dishes, and extra cups and saucers take an important place in the gift display.

Bridal Music Should Be Personal

The choice of bridal music is as personal as the bride's choice of flowers and perfume. It may be as traditional as grandmother's wedding dress or as new as the ballet-length gowns you've chosen for your bridesmaids.

The couple should, however, consult with the officiating clergyman on the choice of music. In some churches, none but sacred music is allowed. The clergyman's word on this subject should be taken as final.

Music at most weddings is broken up into three sections—the prelude music, music during the signing of the register, and the music when the bride and groom leave the church.

About half an hour before the ceremony and while the guests are assembling, soft "background" music is played, if desired. The choice of this music is restricted only by the repertoire of the organist, choir or soloist, and the rules of the church. "Sheep May Safely Graze, "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," and a host of others may be chosen from. "Ave Maria" and "Liebestraum" are also considered traditional for the organ. Many couples prefer to leave the choice of this music up to the organist. If you do, you may rest assured that he is well versed in such matters.

SOLOIST

Perhaps the couple has a friend who can sing and whom they would like to ask to be soloist. If, however, there's any chance of offending anyone by making a choice, it's better to have an outside soloist or none at all. The soloist should, of course, check with the clergyman and the organist on the choice of solos. While "I Love You Truly" and "Oh Promise Me," two traditional selections, might be quite acceptable in some churches, they may not be acceptable in the church of your choice.

If the couple has a favorite song which brings back fond memories, but which is not suitable, some friends of the bride and groom might get together during the reception and sing it.

FRAGRANCE IN HER HOME gives this girl background for her own well-groomed charm. She uses an atomizer on her bottle of cologne to give her bedroom a pervading odor of her favorite perfume. She sprays the bulb of her dressing table lamp (left). When she switches on light, heat will send out scent. Utmost in luxury is achieved by spraying sheets and pillowcase (centre). Her clothes will pick up fragrance as she sprays floor, walls and ceiling of her closet (right). She uses her own personal scent in the bedroom. For other rooms of the house, she uses fragrance fresh and impersonal that can serve as background for her own and her guests' perfume.

New Stove Lamp Hailed As Startling Innovation

NEW YORK (AP)—Some American housewives are cooking with light this spring. They'll flip a switch on their range, a light goes on and things start cooking—fast.

It's being called cooking with light because the heat comes from a small, high-powered electric lamp installed in the range in place of the conventional coil unit. The lamp is shaped like the head of a flashlight. And on top of it, flush with the top of the range, is a cover plate of tinted glass. But it is the lamp, not the cover plate, that provides the heat.

The firm which makes the glass for the new heating unit—Corning Glass Works—hails the stove lamp as the most startling innovation in the range industry since the electric range. It says the lamp will produce 1550 watts of electricity the second it's turned on and the heat is distributed evenly over the surface of the pot or pan.

The cover plate is tinted so that it transmits a small amount of visible light and a maximum of infra-red wave lengths.

These advantages are claimed for cooking with light:

The unit gives instant heat. It makes possible faster cooking of food. Since the flush top cover plate glows softly as soon as the unit is turned on, there is always visual indication of the heat setting. The unit is easy to clean, it is claimed, and offers possibilities for surface broiling through glass utensils.

To illustrate the speedy cooking possible with the stove lamp, this test is cited: Eggs placed in a skillet atop the stove lamp were completely cooked while a pat of butter placed over the conventional coil type electric heating element was melting.

Hair Care Is Routine For Bride-to-Be

To look her loveliest on that day of days, the June bride should start right now to condition her hair. Heated rooms, heavy hats and freezing temperatures have been waging war on your hair all winter. Before you can be certain your hair will look lovely under your filmy veil, you must give it some special treatment.

First, to get off to a pretty, healthy start, have it cut to eliminate dry and frizzy ends. Don't wait until the last week before your wedding to do it though. Your husband-to-be won't have a chance to get used to it in time.

If you need a permanent, have it about a month before the date of your wedding. That will give it enough time to "settle down," so that you can manage it, but it will not

Miss Littlefield's Ballet On Coronation Theme

Once again the followers of the arts in Peterborough will have the opportunity to see a ballet produced by Miss Caroline Littlefield in the "Coronation of the Flowers" on June 4th.

Her ballet this year is presented by the Lion's Club of Peterborough and will be in the Brock Ballroom next Thursday evening. It will be remembered that Miss Littlefield retired in 1952 from more than 30 years with the YWCA where each year she produced a ballet coupled with a gym display.

Familiar dancers from the previous ballets will be performing, for it is at their request that Miss Littlefield resumed teaching. However, she also has a new class of babies and they are as delightful as ever three to four-year-olds were, and will probably steal the attention and applause in spite of the accomplished seniors.

Three young toe-dancers are to be starred—Diane Zakos as the Queen of the Butterfiels, Erline Bellenger as Princess Rosebud and Lynda Anderson as Prince Sweetbriar.

The senior group of nine includes Gerry Vinette and daughters Majorie and Geraldine and Sophie Zakos and daughter Helen. This group will appear in one number as bright red poppies and in the coronation ceremony they will be in red, white and blue trios as carnations, daisies and cornflowers. There is also a "Can Can" version and a solo in preparation.

The only members of Miss Littlefield's gym classes taking part are seven seniors dressed as dandelions.

Forget-me-nots, garden pinks and the butterflies are from the tiny babies, baby and junior ballet classes. Only boy is Eddie Collis as the blue bird and Irene Campbell is to play the part of a nasty raven.

Costumes for the children have been made by a group of sewers meeting weekly under convenership of Mrs. W. T. Edmonson and Mrs. A. Legon.

Decoration of the ballroom for this event is in the hands of Mrs. A. B. Collis, Mrs. F. Sullivan, Mrs. J. Kitney and Mrs. Ralph Clark. For next Thursday evening Mrs. James Laidlaw will take charge of the dressing room and wives of the Lions Club members will assist with dressing the children.

The program is to open with A. A. Milne's favorite play "The Ugly Duckling," directed by John Campbell who plays the part of the king. The cast also includes George Booth, Peggy McCombe, Irene Campbell, Pauline Howard, John McDougall and Alex. Sinclair, all familiar figures to local play-goers.

Coronation Cloth To Be Raffled At IODE Tea

A Coronation bridge tea cloth which arrived only this week from overseas is to be offered as a draw prize at the Coronation Tea of the Otonabee Chapter, IODE, this Saturday afternoon.

On the four corners of this cloth are shown the state carriage and horses, Buckingham Palace, Westminster Abbey, and the Crown and the Coat of Arms. It is decorated also with flags and flowers in red, blue and gold.

The cloth is being donated through Mrs. A. R. McWilliams and was sent to her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. J. Sloan of Young's Point by his relatives in Ireland.

Another feature of this tea will be a basket of nylon nosegays for sale by Mrs. Lucy Davis, dressed as an Old Country flower seller.

Guests will be received by the regent, Mrs. Frank Merrett, assisted by Municipal regent Miss Mary Medd. Tea pourers will be representatives from four senior chapters of IODE, Mrs. M. E. Clarke, 57th Regiment Chapter; Mrs. Frank Jobbitt, Peter Robinson; Mrs. Andrew Rutter, Jeanette Scott; and Mrs. Donald Murray, Major Bennett.

Trent River W.A. Organize Bazaar

TRENT RIVER (ENS)—Group 4 of Trent River United Church Women's Association held their May meeting at the home of Mrs. Ross Pollock on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Harvard Thompson was in the chair.

The lesson was read by Mrs. Eric Little.

Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. W. C. Inkster and Mrs. John Scott led in prayer. The motto was read by Mrs. Jack Henry.

Discarded articles are to be brought to the bazaar to be used at the "touch and take counter".

Aprons and fancy face cloths were handed in by the members. Mrs. Frank Openshaw donated print for aprons. Mrs. S. Deline, Mrs. H. McKeown, Mrs. Harry Mann are to look after the making of the aprons.

A letter of appreciation was read from the Rev. and Mrs. R. G. Newman for chesterfield suite placed in the parsonage by the WA.

Articles are to be gathered up for a "fish pond" and kiddies' counter.

Mrs. Harry Mann, convener, presented the following program: readings by Mrs. Frank Openshaw, Mrs. Bert Robson; duet by Mrs. John Scott and Mrs. Eric Little; contest on "Know Your Ads" was won by Mrs. Howard McKeown.

A 3-D Crown 8½ Feet Tall Made For Ball

An unusual amount of time and artistic ingenuity has been devoted to the preparation of decorations for the Coronation Ball tonight by members of the Major Bennett Chapter, IODE.

They will feature a three-dimensional crown which is eight and a half feet from floor to tip of the cross and about four feet wide, centring the bandstand. It is planned to put this oustanding piece of work also on public view in the coronation parade next Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Chris Dominick and Mrs. Douglas Hill have been in charge of the decorations and Mr. Dominick designed the crown for them.

This ball, which is planned as a celebration of the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth II, rather than as a money-making project of the chapter, is being convened by Mrs. Jack Skitch and Miss Louise Spriggs, and Mrs. Donald McIntyre is in charge of ticket sales.

Receiving tonight will be the regent, Mrs. Donald Murray, and Mr. Murray, assisted by Miss Mary Medd, of Municipal Chapter, Acting Mayor Mr. Douglas Miller and Mrs. Miller, and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon K. Fraser. The ball is being held at Brock Ballroom.

Crowns And The Tri-Colors Decorate For Legion Tea

Crowns were featured ornaments amongst red, white and blue decorations made for the Empire Day tea of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion which was held Thursday afternoon in the Legion Hall.

On the tea table a very large crown rested on a gold satin cushion and was flanked with tapers in the flag colors set into holders fashioned in these colors. Individual serving tables were centred with smaller models of the crown on little paper cushions and booths were festooned in with red and blue streamers on their white covers.

All this had a stage background featuring the portrait of Queen Elizabeth II given the Legion Hall by Mr. Gordon K. Fraser surrounded by drapery in the royal colors and flags of the United Nations, and in the foreground was another head size model of the state crown made by a school boy.

Tea guests were most cordially received by president Mrs. G. C. Stevens and first vice president Mrs. W. Downer, who was a co-convener of the tea with second vice-president Mrs. A. Manley. Mrs. Robert Ritchie, treasurer, received the admission tickets.

A home cooking table was in charge of Mrs. A. Pilling and Mrs. J. Buchan and Mrs. A. Gynane and Mrs. C. J. McKane had the home-made candy table. Aprons and sewn articles were for sale by Mrs. E. Withers and Mrs. A. Wagstaff and a "gift table" was in charge of Mrs. E. Graham and Mrs. M. Shannon.

There were three draw prizes offered, one a corner bracket on which Mrs. A. Duvall was selling tickets, is not to be drawn for until the meeting on Monday night, June 1. The cake, displayed on the home cooking table, was won by Miss Ada Jenkinson, and the box of home-made candy was won by Mrs. H. Tarkington.

Mrs. A. Parrington acted as hostess in the tea room. Tea pourers were Mrs. Douglas Miller, Mrs. Harold R. Scott, Mrs. Gordon K. Fraser and Mrs. Maurice Holt.

Servers were Mrs. M. Pearson, Mrs. B. Edwards, Mrs. E. Woods and Mrs. D. Farthing with Mrs. A. Moscrop and Mrs. C. Shannon replenishing. Assisting to prepare the sandwiches in the kitchen were Mrs. C. S. Windsor, Mrs. A. A. Glenn, Mrs. E. Taylor, Miss Ada Jenkinson, Mrs. W. Dawson and Mrs. H. Beresford.

Tea cup reading, a great drawing card, was by Mrs. Lynch.

Slim Or Full To Suit

ST. LOUIS (NEA)—Women have always been obliging (and acrobatic) about adjusting their figures to the current fashions. If the line of the season is slim, they diet, buy a couple of new girdles and take a deep breath.

If curves are all the rage, those women who don't already have them somehow contrive to acquire them.

This summer, happily, they are not forced to make a choice between the full and the slim skirt. They may have either—or both. Full skirts for the none-too-perfect figure and sheaths for the more fortunate. Either way, a girl can manage to look both pretty and in fashion.

Women's aren't, of course, made of dough or putty or plastic, to be squeezed ruthlessly into the latest silhouette. Nor are Canadian women, generally six feet tall and skinny as a beanpole. There must, therefore, always be fashion leeway for women who have figure problems to be worked out to best advantage.

Designers show, for summer, two very different(and wearable) silhouettes. For the girl whose a bit hip-heavy (left), there's a cotton with beige top dotted in brown, beige cummerbund and full, easy skirt in brown. This is in junior sizes.

Narrow sheath (right) is pale beige in rayon linen worn with wool mesh stole that's lined and appliqued in the dress fabric. We show it here with patent leather belt and pumps.

Out At The Kawartha

Ladies' Section: The first 18 holes, following Opening Day, were played by the Kawartha Ladies Thursday afternoon, with a record number in attendance. Mrs. Howard Woodcox came in with low gross which won the sterling silver spoon. Mrs. D. Chamberlain had low net which won her the golf ball and also put Mrs. Chamberlain one point ahead of Mrs. Woodcox in the Spring Trophy Competition. This is the first of the four-weeks' competitions and a new contestant will be named each week.

The afternoon 9-hole players were out in a goodly number and members of both sections met at the club house for a buffet supper. Mrs. J. F. Haldimand in the 9-hole players won the silver spoon for low net and Mrs. D. Meredith won the golf ball for second low net.

Business Girls: Opening Day for the BG's was just about perfect — at least in weather if not in scores. The latter certainly left room for improvement during this busy golf season ahead. However Dorothy McElroy won the prize for low net and Ruth McKee won it for low gross. Nora Gabbutt was the most honest golfer for the day and a number of girls chalked up various scores on hidden holes, both high and low. On Thursday evening the BG's had a buffet supper before playing but in future lunches will be had after playing so the girls should tee-off as soon as possible after 5. The winners of Thursday's competitions will be announced in this column on Tuesday night together with the first competion in the Spring Trophy competition. On Saturday, May 30, it will be to everyone's advantage to listen for the "Kawartha News" program at 6:15 p.m.

Soroptimist Club Receives Three New Members

Three Peterborough business women pledged themselves to uphold the principles and ideals of Soroptimism and became members of the Soroptimist Club of Peterborough Thursday evening. The installation ceremony was carried out by president Miss Gene Clark, following the dinner meeting in the Empress Hotel Kawartha Room, and brought the total membership of this club to 38.

New members are Miss Evelyn Robson, whose business classifications are hospitals and director and principal of a school of nursing; Mrs. Ada Stanton, real estate, and apartment house owner and manager; Mrs. Grace Tait, beauty culture and cosmetics.

They were told that they are expected to give freely of their talents and ability for service, as this is a women's service club. Also, that they must in every way possible promote Soroptimism as it is laid out in their code of ethics, copies of which were presented to each.

Each new member also received a handsome corsage of yellow roses with blue cornflowers and they were told that these are their club colors.

Program for this meeting consisted of the report of the conference of Eastern Canada Region of the Soroptimist International Association held at Ottawa, May 15 to 17. Delegates from Peterborough were Miss Gene Clark, president-elect Mrs. Eva Brackenridge and Miss Marjorie Nesbitt, and the report was prepared and read by Miss Nesbitt.

She stressed two aspects of Soroptimism as these were brought out in the conference program: "sincerity and friendship" shown at social gatherings, and "joy of achievement" as indictated by the reports of club activities the past year.

Projects of many Soroptimist Clubs, as with the Peterborough Club, have to do with aged people and so the conference guest speakers were two doctors from England who outlined what is done in their country for elderly persons.

From their addresses, Miss Nesbitt stressed the points that loneliness of older people has been overcome in England by the establishment of more than 3,000 clubs for them. Home and hospital care is provided and one of the doctors advocates a system of long-term small hospitals for the elderly which would accommodate 30 or more patients.

A description of the Soroptimists' Golden Mile Club in Peterborough, prepared by the welfare chairman, Miss Myrtle Sargent, was read at the Ottawa Conference and received with interest by the delegates. It was noted that this club now has a membership of 36 ladies between 65 and 85 years of age, and that the average attendance at bi-monthly meetings this year was 28—greater than most clubs of the city can boast. Transportation is provided only for those who are incapacitated.

More Women Wanted In Senate

OTTAWA (CP)—A request for appointment of more women to the Senate will be among resolutions presented at the annual meeting of the Canadian Federation of University Women at Winnipeg June 5 and 6.

Other resolutions, announced here today by an executive of the federation, will include requests for changes in the Succession Duty Act to place wives in the role of partners and for appointment of a woman to the civil service commission.

Two women were recently named to the Senate, bringing the number of women in the 102-seat upper chamber to four.

Dr. Martha E. Law of Toronto, federation president, will preside at the two-day sessions.

Friday's Inquiry Column Conducted By Mary Moore

QUESTION: I am a girl 16 years of age and would like to know if you would kindly print a recipe for making doughnuts. I have written to several other women for recipes but they were not successful. If it is not too much bother to you would you kindly also suggest recipe for making banana cake.

Margaret B.

ANSWER: Well, Margaret, I certainly hope I come through successfully. Doughnuts are difficult for amateurs to make so be sure to follow all of the directions exactly.

DOUGHNUTS

(cake-type)

Beat 4 egg yolks well then beat into them 1 cup sugar and 2 tablespoons very soft shortening until smooth. Now stir in ¾ cup thick buttermilk or sour milk. Sift 3½ cups sifted flour with 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon baking soda, ½ teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon each nutmeg and cinnamon,—into the first four ingredients and stir until smooth. Chill this dough at least 2 hours. While you are rolling out and cutting the doughnuts heat and melt the fat in a heavy kettle or deep fat fryer,—having it 3 inches deep and 390 deg. Fahr. (if you have no thermometer a cube of bread will brown in the fat in 40 seconds). Turn out only ⅓ of the dough on lightly floured board at a time. Return remainder to refrigerator. Turn the dough over to lightly cover it with flour. Gently roll out to ⅓-inch thickness and cut out with floured sharp doughnut cutter. Carry board over to stove, and transfer doughnuts to fat on wide pancake turner. Just fry as many at a time as can be turned over readily. As the doughnuts rise to top and are slightly browned on bottom turn them over—they require about 3 minutes in fat to brown both sides. Caution: The fat cools when doughnuts are dropped in so temperature will drop to 375 or 380, so do not be tempted to lower the heat. Lift doughnuts from fat with long fork, but do not prick them. Drain over kettle for a moment, then place on paper towel in a warm place. To sugar doughnuts: Just before serving shake doughnuts one at a time in a paper bag containing a little icing or granulated sugar.

The recipe for Banana Cake was in this column on May 14th. Since you may have missed it I am mailing you a copy. Good luck with both.

QUESTION: . . . on 9th April you gave us an account of Margie's meat loaf and you told us that she also served a marvellous fruit cup in which she used her own homemaid canned melon balls. I would be most interested in knowing how to can melon balls. Last year we had a lovely crop of melons and I looked all over to find out how I could can some. I even called the Experimental Farm and was told they would not can well as they are too watery. . .

M. E. L.

ANSWER: They are soft and you do sacrifice flavor for you have to use melons that are not fully ripened, so that the balls retain their shape. As you shape the melon balls drop them into 1 quart of water in which is dissolved 1 teaspoon powdered alum. When enough balls are added to be barely submerged bring to boil and boil gently 10 minutes. Drain. Now soak in ice water 2 hours. Drain very well. Pack balls in sterile jars. Cover to within ½ inch of top with syrup—it must be boiling hot as balls are so cold. Margie used 1 cup sugar to each 3 cups water. I added the grated rind of 1 lemon to mine. Seal to within ⅛ turn of tight. Process in hot water bath 25 minutes for both pints and quarts.

LETTER: . . I saw Mary P's letter where she asked for recipes for leftover roast beef. I have two we are fond of: Recipe No. 1: Cut roast beef in slices. Cover with water and simmer. Add small onion chopped and about 1 cup macaroni. Put leftover gravy in pan with meat to warm. Sometimes I put the onions in whole when I have small ones, also carrots left in pieces.

Recipe No. 2: Slice the cold roast and dip in batter. Fry in deep fat. Batter: 1 egg well beaten, ¼ cup milk, 1 rounding teaspoon baking powder, shake of salt and about ¼ cup flour. This makes the meat go farther and is tasty enough to serve when company calls. . .

Red Rose.

ANSWER: Thank you very much Red Rose,—it was pleasant to see your handwriting again. The batter on the leftover roast beef is a peach of an idea.

Make Trousseau Practical Suggestion To June Brides

Our suggestion this year to youthful June brides everywhere is that they give serious thought to the practicality of the completely washable trousseau.

Perhaps practical isn't a word ordinarily associated with romance and June brides. Still, there's no doubt that brides can be practical. They're generally quite efficient about buying furniture, renting an apartment and keeping track of the many details connected with a wedding. And many of them are practical about a trousseau, as well.

For every June bride who wants a portrait bridal gown with long train that she can pack away in a box for possible use by posterity, there are nine girls who want a gown that can double as a dance or party dress when the big event is over. They want clothes that will do for several years' wear, not just a single occasion.

These are the girls who will take to the new, washable trousseau fashions. They will pick their bridal gowns, party dresses, suits, skirts, blouses and lingerie in fabrics that take a quick sudsing but no ironing.

This year, June brides can select peignoirs, party dresses and bridal gowns, in a washable blend of 55 per cent orlon and 45 per cent wool. This makes a soft-to-touch fabric that's everything the practical bride could want.

Further, one designer has used it for a bridal gown that will play an active part in a wardrobe when the wedding is over.

DOROTHY DIX:

Compel Childless Couples To Support Other Children

DEAR MISS DIX: Several months ago I met a young man whose wife had left him, taking all their money and everything she could lay her hands on. Now she is suing for separate maintenance in another state. The young man and I have grown to love each other, but he does nothing about trying to obtain his freedom. I think that if he wanted to begin life over again, he should sue for divorce.

My family is moving to another city in a few weeks and this young man doesn't want me to go with them. Do you think I should stay here, or go with my family? The man is 30, I am 24.

IRENE L.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your young man may be in love with you, or he may simply be clinging to you in a time of emotional stress. He hasn't been separated from his wife long enough to make an adjustment, and I think you are rather trying to force him to make a decision he isn't ready for, if he wants to make it at all.

SHOULD SETTLE MARITAL MIXUP

Staying in the city with him, especially while you are in the vulnerable position of being separated from your family, would be most unwise. If he cares for you, he most certainly would take steps to straighten out his matrimonial problems, either by obtaining a divorce, or insisting upon his wife taking such a step.

Don't overlook the possibility that he may be hoping for her return. In that case you are merely acting as a temporary companion—a most unrewarding position.

Leave with your family, and if he cares enough, he'll do something definite about his personal affairs.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: The majority of divorces are brought about through selfishness. Too many couples prefer to remain childless, while others have to support five or more children. I think childless couples should be compelled to take one or more children from orphanages.

MRS. L.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I can think of no worse fate for a child than to be forced upon unwilling foster parents. Apparently you aren't too well acquainted with adoption laws, which insist upon every precaution that people who adopt a child are eager to have the youngster. There's no doubting your statement that most divorces are caused through selfishness, but forcing responsibility upon people is not the cure.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: The other night my husband and I went to pick up his mother, then called upon his sister, who, we learned, wasn't home. Her husband told us to come in while he went to a neighbour's to get her. She wouldn't return with him because she was playing cards. We felt hurt about it. Were we justified?

R. O.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: If your sister-in-law sees her mother, and you, frequently, the unexpected visit certainly did not require her to leave a game and probably spoil the rest of the evening for the other players. At any rate, you should have let her know you were on your way to her home. I do not think you were justified in being hurt; in fact, yours was a childish reaction.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 21, and I love a boy 19. We met at a party last year, and for three months he took me out and called me almost every day. One night he wanted to go skating and I wanted to go dancing; he took me to the dance, brought me home, kissed me goodnight, and I haven't heard from him since. That was eleven months ago. I sent him cards for Christmas, Valentine's Day and Easter, but have heard nothing from him.

P. H.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: When a boy doesn't call for eleven months, I think you can be sure the romance has cooled. Sending him cards won't do any good. You are old enough to face disappointment. Remember the pleasant times you had with the boy, forget the disillusion, and get into circulation. Another man will come along.

The first Queen Elizabeth reigned from 1558 to her death in 1603 at 69.

Of Interest to Women

Works Magic Wedding Day

Memories of your wedding day will last forever. The soft, creamy texture of your satin gown . . . the billowing cloud of white lace veiling . . . the unforgettable strains of Lohengrin.

To make this day completely perfect, you will want to pamper your skin until it is as satin smooth as your gown; brush your hair until it gleams as it never has done before.

As important as your bridal gown and the make-up you choose for the wedding is the fragrance you will wear. An invisible accessory, fragrance works its magic for you in a subtle way by underscoring the white of your gown, accenting the fragile, feminine air of your ensemble.

Plan a trousseau of fragrance—perfume, eau de toilette, dusting powder, bath softener, sachet powder and liquid skin sachet. Each plays a role in the final picture you will present on your wedding day.

To make the most of your fragrance, here are a few tricks for you to try. Spray your Chantilly lace hankie with a delicately scented toilet water. There is one such fragile fragrance that will be the perfect companion for your aisle trek. Its lingering yet delicate scent will add to the whisper, "What a beautiful bride."

Then you might like to make a small sachet of the same scent and pin it to your slip. The fragrance will rise and wrap you in an unforgettable aura.

If you feel that fragrance does not seem to "stay" with you, try a liquid skin sachet. This unusual fragrance medium is particularly long-lasting because of its sachet base.

6—In Memoriam

CROWE—In loving memory of mother, Mrs. Levina Crowe, who passed away May 29, 1951.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly tender, fond and true.
There is not a day dear mother,
That we do not think of you.
—Ever remembered by Myrtle, Ernie, Perritt and family.

McINTYRE—In loving memory of John Arthur McIntyre, who entered into rest June 18, 1950.
There is a link death cannot sever.
Love and remembrance live forever.
—Sadly missed by his wife and family.

PURDY—In memory of Mrs. Raymond Purdy (nee Eula Rosborough) died May 29, 1952.
To have known her was to have loved her.
—Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Graham, 366 West Otis Ave., Hazel Park, Michigan.

PURDY—In loving memory of a dear daughter and sister Mrs. Raymond Purdy, who passed away one year ago today.
Sweet memories will linger forever;
Time cannot change them it's true;
Years that may come cannot sever
Our loving remembrance of you.
—Always remembered by Mr. Walter Rosborough and family.

7—Card of Thanks

I wish to thank all those who helped in any way, during the recent sad bereavement of my dear sister, Cressa Payne.—Harold Payne, R.R. 2, Warsaw.

Mrs. Edward Montgomery, Spencley's Lane, wishes to extend her sincere thanks and appreciation to the attending doctors, nurses and Sisters of St. Joseph's Hospital during her six weeks illness. Also sincere thanks for cards and flowers received from friends, neighbors and relatives.

We wish to thank the Sisters and doctors of St. Joseph's Hospital, kind friends and neighbours who sent flowers and cards of sympathy, the Rev. A. A. Mathews of George St. United and Mr. Stewart of Wesley United Church, during our recent sad bereavement in the loss of a dear mother, Mrs. Annie Northey.—Wilson and Cecil Northey and families.

Queen Signs Proclamation Approving Style And Titles

LONDON (Reuters)—The Queen signed proclamations Thursday approving the style and titles by which she will be known in the various countries of the Commonwealth after her Coronation June 2.

She first held a meeting of her Privy Council—body of advisers on high constitutional issues — and signed the proclamation affecting Britain.

Afterwards she received individually Prime Ministers Louis St. Laurent of Canada, Robert Menzies of Australia, Sidney Holland of New Zealand and Dudley Senanayake of Ceylon. Then she signed the proclamations they submitted for her titles in their respective countries.

Separate forms of the royal style and titles, containing a substantial common element, were agreed by the Commonwealth prime ministers at their conference here last December.

The proclamations for overseas Commonwealth countries, which took effect at once, vary in recognition of their different constitutions, and, in some cases, religions.

Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Ceylon each name Elizabeth as their own Queen.

The Canadian form is:

"Elizabeth the Second, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom, Canada and her Realms and Territories Queen, Head of the Commonwealth, Defender of the Faith."

SPEEDY ACTION BY A MOTORIST saved the life of a two-year-old girl Friday night after this car rolled on Highway 28 just north of Bewdley and injured three people, one seriously. Thomas Richards, of Toronto, stopped at the scene of the accident and rushed Judy Olson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Olson of Toronto, to hospital. She was trapped beneath a car seat and starting to strangle when Richards found her. Olson, 55, suffered a broken right thigh and head injuries; his wife 34, broken ribs and shock. A passenger, Russ Watson, 49, of Toronto, was unhurt. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Motorist's Action Saves Girl

Three In Hospital After Car Rolls North of Bewdley

By DON GRANT

Quick thinking by a passing motorist probably saved the life of a little girl Friday night after the car in which she was riding rolled several times on Highway 28 just north of Bewdley. The accident sent four to hospital with injuries ranging from minor to serious.

In Civic Hospital are:

William Olson, 55, 179 Carleton St., Toronto, broken right thigh and head injuries.

Mrs. Mina Olson, 34, one broken rib and lacerated scalp.

Judy Olson, infant daughter, broken right leg and bruises.

Their conditions are described as good.

A fourth person, Russ Watson, 49, 152 Glenmount Park Rd., Toronto, owner of the car, but not the driver, was driven to hospital by provincial police but suffered only small cuts and bruises.

Watson said the foursome was going to Coboconk for the weekend to visit Mrs. Olson's sister when the accident happened.

TOOK WHOLE ROAD

Watson said a red truck "came over a hill" just north of Bewdley and it was "taking the whole of the highway, sliding down broadside."

"Bill (Mr. Olson) took the shoulder on the right, applied the brakes but we started to roll. Boy, it felt about four times to me," said Watson.

"I couldn't help but see the red truck and slipped or dropped down under the dash. I knew what was going to happen." added Watson. "Bill went through the windshield and landed 20 feet in front of the car; Mrs. Olson was bounced around in the back seat and the baby was pinned under the rear left window."

Thomas Richards, 16 Leers St., Toronto, was following the Olsons, coming to Peterborough to visit.

"When I got there everyone was still in the car," said Richards. "A few people were standing around just watching."

Richards said he spotted "an elderly man well ahead of the car, lying on a cement culvert with his head and arms over the side."

LOOKS FOR CHILD

His love for children made Richards look to see if there were any children in the wreck.

"Through the back window I saw a child's hand and my main thought was getting that kid out of there."

Richards said the child, Judy, appeared to be strangling; she was blue in the face, the back seat lying across its throat and the car pinning its leg down.

Held In High Esteem Across Continent

Coronation Delights Europe

By I. NORMAN SMITH
(Special to The Examiner)

DOVER, May 30—This Coronation reporter hasn't laid eyes on any part of London yet. I write these few notes on the boat train from Paris to Calais.

There is an invasion of England going on. Not just what Hitler had in mind. The Gare du Nord was crowded and trains are running in many sections. It will be so from Brussels, Amsterdam, Copenhagen, and not a plane seat can be had from the inland points like Vienna and Rome.

Royalty is travelling by warship but what has kept travel offices busy all over Europe is the enthusiastic and money-spending interest of ordinary citizens.

Queen Elizabeth, said an Austrian to me some weeks ago, is the head of the royal houses of Europe. Vienna still looks back to the grand days of its own monarchy and empire. The Queen, our Queen, makes them nostalgic. In a news kiosk in Belgrade lay row on row of papers and magazines, the Cyrillic alphabet or Croat language bearing nothing recognizable to my eye. But smiling out from the covers of several was the pleasing friendly face of Elizabeth. The Yugoslavs don't regret the passing of their monarchy, except a few, but they have an eye for ours and they stress in conversation that she is constitutional and not monarchic. They are reading much about the coronation and their radios will be busy June 2 in our language and theirs too.

The story of radio and television to Europe and the world June 2 is tremendous and you have probably read more of it than I. It is being done by the British at much expense for propaganda reasons but I can testify, anyway, that there will be a vast multilanguaged audience eagerly awaiting it.

In Dubrovnik on the Adriatic I met Swiss and German people on holiday. They were only moderately interested in Canada but when I mentioned we would be at the Coronation that was an affair for them to enthuse about. They seemed almost proud to know us on that account. In Paris not alone in the grand shops for tourists, but off on the back streets, the oft-seen motif of window dressing was the Queen or tiny uniformed guardsmen in mock parade.

Then there was the diplomat from Norway who had only recently entertained in Oslo for Princess Margaret and who reported without stint of her success there.

CORONATION CELEBRATIONS

All along our trail in mountainhemmed Sarajevo, in Vienna where British troops are in occupation and in Trieste where the conquerors' flag also has still to bear the cost of occupation, we have heard of the local plans for Coronation celebrations. There will be parades where there are garrisons, balls and teas where there are diplomats. Canadians stationed in Belgrade or Vienna or Paris might like to slip over to London to see the fun, but the order is to stay at their posts and show the flag as will other Commonwealth representatives. Arnold Heeney, ambassador to NATO, will review Canadian troops in Germany. These notes, while the shrill whistle of our train hurries us through France's lush, yet war-scarred fields (we paused at Amiens a moment or two ago), may not in any particular bring news to Canada.

But their point is that not alone in London or in the Commonwealth or even in the English-speaking world is there interest and even affectionate goodwill towards the young Queen and the task that lies ahead of her long after June 2.

ABOVE ARGUMENT

The people of Europe, from the Communists of Yugoslavia to the cloistered Swiss, look upon the Queen as someone above the arguments of NATO, or UN, or a united Europe. As Sir Winston said yesterday, she gets the praise and prestige when things go right and is spared the blame when things go wrong. It was Sir Winston's point that that was a good thing, not only for her but for the constitution and the cause it made for solidity and respect. Certainly this last five weeks on the Continent, not always on the highways, have shown beyond question that through the person of the young Queen the entire Commonwealth is attaining reservoirs of friendship in foreign lands.

Masefield's wish, "May love keep all her pathways green, may sunlight bless her days," is probably not only a poet laureate's ode, but a weary continent's silent prayer.

Would Block Landing Of Guards

Will Not Accept Latest Allied Armistice Proposal

SEOUL (AP) — The acting prime minister of South Korea today threatened to pull RoK divisions from the United Nations command, freeing them for independent military action, if negotiators sign an armistice based on the latest Allied proposal.

Pyun Yung Tai told newspaper men South Korea also is prepared to use its army to block any landing of troops from five neutral countries to guard Red prisoners of war who refuse to go home.

"In order to block these attempts . . . we are ready to use our armed forces and we would even be willing to shed blood in fighting them," Pyun said.

REBELLION MOUNTS

South Korea's rebellion against the UN truce proposal mounted steadily as the time neared for negotiators to return to Panmunjom Monday after a week-long recess. The Communists are expected to answer the proposal handed to them in secret session last Monday.

The Reds were reported to have turned down at least part of the plan on the spot, but silence from the Peiping Red radio indicated to some observers that high-level discussions may be under way.

United States diplomats and officers of the UN command were said to be deeply concerned over the bitter South Korean revolt. One source said Allied officials are devoting every effort to quiet the clamor before negotiations are resumed.

Ellis O. Briggs, U. S. ambassador to South Korea, flew today to the Republic of Korea naval base at Chinhae near Pusan where, with President Syngman Rhee, he will attend naval academy graduation exercises.

DEALING WITH RHEE

Briggs has been dealing directly with the 78-year-old Rhee and has conferred with him at least twice since the Allied proposal was given to the Communists.

Rhee and other South Korean officials have threatened to fight on alone if the UN agrees to any armistice which leaves Korea divided.

The UN proposal for breaking the long deadlock over prisoner exchange, last major barrier to a truce, has not been made public officially. But irate South Korean officials have divulged many details.

The plan reputedly provides that all of the 48,500 North Korean and Chinese prisoners who refuse to go home will be turned over in Korea to a commission comprising India, Switzerland, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Price Too High To Save Sons From Reds

NEW YORK (AP)—A heartsick mother's anguished words went out Friday to her sons, half a world away behind the Iron Curtain:

"We would have made the most serious sacrifices involving our own person for your welfare. But we have been asked to pay a price that is too high, a price that no honorable man can pay."

Thus Mrs. Valeriu Georgescu spoke to her two boys, Constantin, 19, and Peter, 14, the sons she has not seen in six years since she and their father, now American citizens, left Romania on what was to have been a brief business trip.

Thus Mrs. Georgescu tried to explain to her children why their parents could not accept a Communist diplomat's reported proposal to spy on their adopted land, even if it meant not seeing them again.

ETERNAL SHAME

"To go against our conscience (would) bring eternal shame to our family and to our name," she said.

Mrs. Georgescu's words were beamed at Romania by Radio Free Europe, a privately operated anti-Communist network of the National Committee for a Free Europe.

Tape-recorded in New York, it was broadcast even as Christache Zambeti, a Romanian diplomat, took off from Idlewild airport for home. He was expelled by the U. S. government for allegedly trying to induce Georgescu to spy—if he wanted to see his boys again.

President Calls Special Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower held a suddenly-called 30-minute conference on Korea today with diplomatic, military and civilian defence chiefs.

The White House declined to give details on the meeting, limiting its announcement to the bare statement that it dealt with Korea.

The meeting was called only this morning. The president conferred with State Secretary Dulles, Defence Secretary Wilson and Gen. J. Lawton Collins, army chief of staff.

Murray Snyder, assistant press secretary at the White House, refused to say whether the discussion dealt with diplomatic or military events or both. "All I can say is it was on Korea."

Canadians To Get Medals From Queen

LONDON (CP)—Canadian soldiers, sailors, airmen and Mounties participating in the Coronation will receive Coronation medals from the Queen at a Buckingham Palace investiture Wednesday.

Nearly 800 Canadian service personnel will parade with Commonwealth and colonial contingents from Hyde Park to the palace.

Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, aide-de-camp general to the Queen, will attend Her Majesty, receiving his own medal after the Contingent commanders.

Other ranks will receive their medals from trays distributed rank by rank.

Maj.-Gen. J. B. B. Smith, commanding officer of Canada's contigent, will be the first Canadian decorated.

Happy Queen Stays Dancing Till 4 a.m. At Ball Given By Guards' Brigade

LONDON (AP)—The Queen, bubbling with joy, danced late at a pre-Coronation ball and didn't get home until 4 a.m. this morning. Only 100 persons still were waiting outside Buckingham Palace in the cold dawn light to cheer the monarch as she returned from the dance at Hampton Court Palace—the same place where her ancestor, King Henry VIII, held his revels 400 years ago. There had been 20,000 wildly cheering Britons gathered about as the Queen left for the ball with her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, and Princess Margaret.

The Queen brought her sister home with her. Margaret, who didn't have a date, popped into the palace for a minute and then drove on to her own residence, Clarence House.

With the strenuous routine of Coronation just three days off, the Queen made no engagements for today and planned to rest and take things easy. Palace sources said she and the Duke might run down to Windsor for a breath of air, but would otherwise stay quietly at home.

The ball was given for the Queen by the Brigade of Guards. Radiant in pink and white chiffon with a diamond tiara and necklace, she opened the festivities by dancing with the commander of the household brigade, Maj.-Gen. Julian Gascoigne.

SLIGHT MISHAP

The affair got under way after one of those mishaps that so often plague people giving a party for the boss—the lights went out just as the Queen arrived.

She had barely entered the 438-year-old red brick Tudor structure through the Anne Boleyn gate when the king's staircase, where she was to be received, was plunged into darkness.

The formal ceremony was hurriedly switched to another section of the palace.

Dancing was on a special floor laid over the spot where Henry VIII used to gorge himself at the fabled royal banquets.

Two Radio Employees Killed By Flyer

TORONTO (CP)—Two employees of radio station CKEY were killed early today in a level-crossing accident in suburban Scarboro.

Police said transmitter operators Monty Ranney and Eric Harwood were driving here from CKEY's Scarboro transmitter when struck by a fast passenger train at an Eglinton avenue crossing. The car was thrown 300 feet and was demolished.

Financier Dies In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Frederick Keenan Morrow, a farm boy who became one of Canada's most successful business men, died at his home Friday night. He was 67 and had been ill for several months.

Spanning the Canada-United States border with his multi-million dollar deals, Mr. Morrow gained financial prominence in his early 40s as director of many merchandizing, manufacturing, banking and financial organizations.

He was called by associates the "master of business." Born on a farm in Essa township, about 40 miles north of here, he taught himself in practical finance while working with the old Home Bank at Toronto and Walkerville.

He was on the board of directors of many big companies, including Loblaw Inc. of the United States, the Canadian International Paper Company, Montreal, the International Paper Company and Remington Rand Limited, Toronto.

He was generous to educational organizations and hospitals. He provided a new wing for St. Joseph's hospital at Toronto and supported financially the erection of the University of Toronto school of nursing.

Charge Youth, 16 With Arson

OSHAWA (CP)—Donald Harding, 16, was charged with arson today in connection with a fire that killed his mother in their apartment Friday. Mrs. John Harding, 38, was fatally burned in the blaze.

The fire broke out in the small apartment building. Donald and his father were cut when they jumped from a second-storey window. Six other persons fled unhurt from the building.

The boy was remanded in custody until Monday, when his mother will be buried.

Police said newspapers had been stuffed under stairs leading to the second floor and set ablaze. They said Donald also faces two other charges in connection with fires May 18 and 27 at an Oshawa bakery where he worked.

Hearing For Seguin Postponed Indefinitely

CORNWALL (CP)—The preliminary hearing of Henri Seguin on a charge of murder has been postponed indefinitely, Crown Attorney R. P. Milligan said today. Several witnesses are unavailable for some time, causing the delay.

The 27-year-old laborer is charged with the Aug. 16 murder of taxi driver Leonard Hurd at Maxville, 18 miles north of here. He now is serving a 20-year term in penitentiary for attempted murder and bank robbery at William's Lake, B.C.

Doesn't Wait To Argue

Overpowers Reds In Trench, Takes Gun

IN KOREA (Reuters)—A Welsh signalman told Friday how he overpowered two Chinese in a slit trench with his fists and ran off with their machine-gun while his company of the Duke of Wellington's Regiment was battered by a swarm of Chinese.

The youth, identified only by his nickname, "Happy Baby," said, at the height of the attack Thursday night when the Wellingtons were forced back by the Communists, he jumped into his trench and found two Chinese awaiting him. One told him in English to "come with us" but the Welshman struck out with both fists, grabbed their machine-gun and ran.

His was only one of a score of feats recorded as the Wellingtons, badly outnumbered, held out all night and finally beat the enemy back.

One platoon commander, Lieut. E. T. H. Dasent of London, said the attack came suddenly. "We got a 10-minute (barrage) from their artillery. The moment it finished the Chinese were all over us."

The regiment, serving with the Commonwealth division, was attacked at a point identified as "the Hook"—scene of heavy fighting in the last few days.

A machine-gunner, trapped in his pit with only enough room to fire out of a narrow slit, kept firing on his own all night—long after his companions had retreated down the hill. When he was rescued in the morning, he said simply: "I knew you would come and get me."

The attack was finally broken by allied artillery. The Britons, tipped off in advance, hit for cover before the barrage started. But the Chinese, standing in exposed positions and eager for the kill, were badly hit.

Canada Has 1st Jet Transport In Air Force

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has become the first country in the world to boast a jet transport in service with its air force.

The transport, a gleaming white British-built Comet Airliner, planed into Uplands airport Friday after a 10 hour and 20 minute transatlantic crossing, flying time.

The $1,200,000 Comet was piloted by Sqdn. Ldr. C. S. Olsen, 32, of Wilkie, Sask., and greeted by Defence Minister Claxton and top RCAF officials.

Mr. Claxton said the Comet's arrival was an historic occasion. He said the aircraft will be used by the RCAF for two purposes, to test Canadian fighter defence by acting as a "hostile" bomber and to do transport flying to teach Canadian pilots high-altitude, long - range flight.

The Comet's transatlantic crossing time set a record for transport craft over the route because the Comet was the first pure jet transport to fly it. The aircraft wasn't trying for any records. She was cruising at 420 miles per hour, at least 200 miles per hour below her top speed.

Mr. Claxton listed some of the feats the Comet can perform. It can travel from Ottawa to Toronto in 30 minutes, less than one-third the time a Trans-Canada Air Lines plane takes on a normal run. It can travel between Toronto and Winnipeg in two hours. Between Vancouver and Ottawa in 4½ hours.

Squdn. Ldr. Olsen and his crew were united in praise of the Comet. They dwelt on its speed and smoothness of handling and the quiet, as far as passengers are concerned, with which it moves.

Allies Break Up Big German Trust

BONN (AP)—The Western allies took another big step in the reorganization of the German coal and steel industries today by breaking up the big, family-owned Kloeckner trust.

The Kloeckner holdings have been one of the largest industrial trusts in West Germany, embracing all the processes from the production of raw materials to the sale of finished products.

Britain, the United States and France ordered the reorganization of the Kloeckner concern under the Allied plan to break up industrial giants which controlled the German economy under Hitler. A large number of new companies already have been formed in the steel, coal and iron industries.

The plan to break up the Kloeckner concern follows close on the Allied decision to decentralize the Krupp and Thyssen industrial empires.

Chinese Cling Grimly To Battered UN Outposts

SEOUL (AP)—Chinese Communists clung grimly to three battered outposts near Panmunjom today as Allied big guns and planes poured tons of explosives and blazing napalm on the smoking, shell-torn hills.

The Reds wrested outposts Vegas, Carson and Elko from U.S. and Turkish infantry in a division-strength assault which opened Thursday night along a five-mile front only 30 miles north of Seoul.

Fighting continued on the east-central front where the Reds seized several outposts Wednesday night in a 6,500-man attack along a 20-mile front defended by South Korean infantry.

There have been no official casualty reports from either battle yet, but losses on both sides were believed high.

Turkish officers estimated the Chinese lost 3,000 killed and wounded in the 28-hour battle for the low hills which guard the invasion route to Seoul and the main Allied defence line.

Lt.-Gen. Maxwell Taylor, 8th army commander, said Communist capture of the three outposts did not threaten the UN main line. He said the Red attacks so far were local engagements rather than a general offensive.

British troops of the Duke of Wellington Regiment hurled back two Red battalions of about 1,500 men, which attacked the Hook, another strategic outpost, about 12 miles east of Panmunjom.

Pilots Rehearse RCAF Flypast

LONDON (CP)—The 168-plane, all-jet RCAF and RAF Coronation flypast was rehearsed Friday, whistling over packed London at 1,500 feet below light, scattered clouds.

The 24 Canadian-built, Canadian-manned Sabre jets from No. 1 fighter wing at North Luffenham crossed London about 5:15 p. m., accompanied by RAF Meteors.

The weather was the kind that the pilots are hoping for June 2, although a long-range prediction today warned of possible showers then.

If the weather is too bad, the flypast will be cancelled.

The RCAF announced the names of the 24 pilots who will probably be flying the craft. Commanding the unit will be Wing-Cmdr. Doug Lindsay of Arnprior, Ont. From 439 squadron will be the following Ontario pilots: Flying Officers Frank Fowler, London, Ont., Ken Cheesman, Fort William, Blake Smiley, Perth, Len Pappas, Toronto, Ken Gennett, Toronto, and Milt Sills, Toronto, and Flt. Lt. Harry Wenz, Toronto.

From 441 squadron will be the following Ontario pilots: Flight Lieutenants P. C. Walker, Ottawa, D. H. Atherton, Welland, John E. Ecer, Smithville, Eric Dean Kelly, Peterborough, and Flying Officers Gordon A. McDonald, Windsor, Murray Bruce Neilson, Huntsville.

Car Flips 30 Feet, Upsets, 1 Youth Killed, 5 Injured

NORTH BAY (CP)—One youth was killed and five others were injured early today when a small delivery truck skidded out of control on a steep hill, flipped 30 feet into the air and landed on its roof. Two of the youths are in serious condition.

Killed was Jack McGinty, a 20-year-old telephone switchboard operator for Canadian Pacific Railway Communications. McGinty was hurled from the truck and crashed head first into a ditch.

The injured:

Charles Hansman, 20, North Bay high school student, fractured skull, broken right arm, bruises and cuts.

Cpl. John Cruickshank, 24, native of suburban Gateway and a member of the RCAF, fractured pelvis, four broken ribs and undetermined internal injuries.

Frank Klein, 21, student operator for CPR communications, cuts and bruises and shock.

Harold Rainville, 23, North Bay salesclerk, undetermined head injuries, cuts and bruises.

Stanley Venasse, 23, of North Bay, driver of the truck, bruises and shock.

Venasse told police the brakes failed when the vehicle was heading down curving airport road hill near here and went out of control for 300 feet before it hit a culvert.

McGinty was riding in the front seat with Venasse. The others were in the rear. When the vehicle crashed into the ditch, a heavy car engine being carried on the back of the truck struck Cruickshank in the midriff.

Thief Enjoys Trolley Ride

HAMILTON (CP) — Someone apparently in a hurry to get home early today took a trolley coach from the Hamilton Street Railway yards and drove off through west-central Hamilton.

An HSR employee discovered the theft at 5 a.m. today and notified police who found the coach on Kenilworth avenue, which does not have overhead wires to provide the electrical vehicle with power.

The inexperienced operator had apparently failed to notice where the overhead wires took a corner and coasted down Kenilworth as far as he could before pulling over to the curb.

He carefully hooked the power poles onto the roof and shut off the air which operates the doors, before leaving.

Off-And-On Downpour Doesn't Discourage UK

LONDON (Reuters)—The weather forecast for Coronation Day is uncertain but the chances are that Tuesday will be cool with periods of rain, showers and sunshine, the weatherman says.

Today an off-and-on drizzle and a few good downpours did little to dampen spirits though some of the paper streamers sagged dangerously. It was cooler, too, following the heatwave earlier this week.

300 Attend Re-opening Of Legion Hall

Three hundred guests attended the official re-opening of the Canadian Legion Hall on Friday night. It was the biggest social event since fire swept through the rear of the building on Feb. 3.

Renovations—including painting, plumbing, repairs, and a changed layout of several rooms—cost $25,000.

Most of the changes are on the top floor, at the rear of the recreation room. The stairway leading up to the third floor has been shifted and rebuilt and this leaves ample space for something new: a television room—set off from the main recreation room — where guests can watch their favorite program without being disturbed by other people's conversation.

The tap room has been changed over from the east to the west side of the building. And the old back room, used mainly for storage, has been eliminated to make more space available.

Walls have been painted light colors. The recreation room itself has been repainted and decorated in a blue-grey color scheme. A new brightly-colored tile floor has been laid with the Canadian Legion crest inlaid in the centre of the floor. This permits dancing on two floors of the building.

After the fire the floor of the dining room and main hall was sanded down eliminating some ridges. Friday night every available table in the main hall was taken by guests who came to dance to the music of the Red Hughey orchestra.

The change that caught the eye of the women guests as they inspected the building was the new kitchen. The stoves and sinks have all been shifed about and installed in a more compact and handy place. There are now two rooms and the food is served through a "dumb waiter." New shelves have been built for the crockery.

"They certainly did a good job," commented Mrs. George Stevens, president of the Ladies Auxiliary. "The new kitchen is a big improvement. It's light and airy and more handy."

The Ladies Auxiliary and wives of members of the executive — under the direction of Mrs. Stevens and Mrs. Leo Herr—served refreshments at the close of the evening.

As women entered the hall Friday night they were presented with a rose and the guests were received at the commencement of the "open house" by Lou Durkin, prsident of Branch 52, assisted by Helen Howden, and by Claire Stuart, 1st vice-president, and Mrs. Stuart.

Leo Herr was the chairman of entertainment for the special event.

The supper served in the wee hours this morning was spread in the orangerie — or greenhouse—a later addition to the palace.

NOT ONLY PARTY

The building was floodlit and so were the lawns sloping down to the Thames and the walled gardens around the mellow structure. Between dances, the guests strolled outside in the balmy May night.

The ball for the Queen wasn't the only party in London.

This whole capital of 8,000,000 persons is Coronation happy and there were celebrations all through the city. One of the biggest was the air force Coronation ball at the Savoy Hotel.

Guest of honor there was the Queen Mother.

As she left Clarence House for the dance, thousands of persons mobbed her car to cheer and wish her well. Police had to call for reinforcements before the Queen Mother could drive on. It took 10 minutes for her to drive two blocks to the Admiralty Arch.

WORK SHIFT-SYSTEM

While the army of workmen put London's west end through the final stage of its transformation into Coronation costume, royalty worked a shift-system to welcome the stepped-up flow of state visitors arriving by land, sea and air for the ceremony.

The Duke of Edinburgh, in the uniform of an admiral of the fleet, went down to the Thames at Westminster to greet Norway's Crown Prince Olav, Crown Princess Martha and their daughter, Princess Astrid.

Prince Olav, who will represent King Haakon at the Coronation, travelled from Norway by sea and was brought up the Thames in a launch escorted by police.

Meantime, the 17-year-old Duke of Kent went to London airport. He shook hands on behalf of the Royal Family with a continuous stream of distinguished arrivals, including the prime minister of Libya and the foreign minister of Syria.

SPELLED BY UNCLE

During the morning, the Duke of Kent's uncle, the Duke of Gloucester, went to the airport and took over the welcoming post from his nephew.

Among the first visitors greeted during the Duke of Gloucester's shift was Gen. George Marshall, President Eisenhower's chief representative in the abbey, and U. S. Admiral Lynde McCormick, NATO North Atlantic commander.

While the Royal Dukes shook hands with official guests, ordinary tourists were pouring into London airport at the rate of 500 an hour.

Driven By Hunger

BERLIN (Reuters) — A record 3,793 East Germans fled to West Berlin Friday, most of them driven by hunger. An official said "many of them first ask for bread and then for registration as political refugees."

ENGAGED—Enid Margaret Cripps, 32, daughter of the late Sir Stafford Cripps, and Joseph Appiah, law student son of a Gold Coast tribal leader, hold hands during a news conference in London Thursday as they announced their engagement. Miss Cripps' father was chancellor of the exchequer in the Clement Attlee Labor government, and a noted lawyer.

Truck Crashes Driver Unhurt

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS). — Wayne Wartman, 20, of Warkworth escaped injury Friday night though his truck plowed into a ditch, tore through a wire fence and finally rolled over in a farmer's field. The accident occurred during the drizzle on a county road three miles west of Warkworth.

Wartman, who was driving a pickup truck, told OPP Constable George Rose that he lost control of the vehicle after the front wheels struck some potholes in the road. The truck swerved into the south ditch, through the wire fence, and rolled over.

Damage is estimated at $400.

Four hundred dollars damage was caused to two cars that were in collision on the Campbellford-Springbrook Road, six miles east of Campbellford.

Roy Simpson, 42, of RR 2 Campbellford was driving to Springbrook about 8 p.m. Friday night when another car, driven by 16-year-old Roy Petherick, also of RR 2 Campbellford, crashed into the rear end of his vehicle.

Petherick didn't see the car ahead until he drove over the crest of a hill. Damage of $250 was caused to the front end of Petherick's car and $150 damage was caused to Simpson's car.

Neither man was injured.

Going To U.S. For Operation

LONDON (Reuters) — Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden is expected to travel to the United States shortly to undergo a further operation for gall bladder trouble, it was learned from a usually well-informed source here today.

The operation will be the third for Eden in recent weeks.

Medical bulletins issued when he left a London clinic earlier this month said he had been examined by Dr. George Cattell of the Lahey Clinic, Boston, and Eden's decision, it is believed, was a result of this examination.

Since leaving the London clinic Eden, 55, has been recovering his strength at Chequers, official country residence of the prime minister, which has been lent to him by Sir Winston Churchill.

RCAF Officers, Wives Atend Garden Parties

Three Peterborough RCAF officers and their wives will attend garden parties and presentations at Buckingham Palace before and after the Coronation.

Attending the affair on Thursday were Flt.-Lt. and Mrs. Dean Kelly and FO and Mrs. Robert Greenlaw. Invited to a similar party July 23 are Flt.-Lt. and Mrs. Allan Marshall, and FO and Mrs. Russell Baker, Trenton.

Approximately 150 Canadian officers and their wives attended the Thursday garden party.

Airliner Breaks Non-Stop Record

PARIS (AP)—An American-built four-engine transport airliner broke the commercial non-stop distance record Friday in the first flight by such an aircraft from Los Angeles to Paris. It completed the record 5,700 miles in 20 hours and 28 minutes, averaging 278 miles an hour.

The flight over the great circle route was made by a $1,000,000 Douglas DC-6B, which was being delivered to its French purchasers, Transport Aeriens Intercontinentaux. The previous distance record for commercial planes was 3,900 miles, flown by a Pan American airliner from Tokyo to Honolulu.

Children's Aid Makes Two Changes In Staff

Two changes in the staff of the Children's Aid Society will become effective Monday Miss Rachael Young, Superintendent said today.

Social worker Miss Dorothy Metcalfe, is leaving to be married in Burlington and stenographer Mrs. Gena McKenzie is retiring.

Taking the place of Miss Metcalfe will be Miss Jean DeNure, Peterborough, a graduate of Queen's university. Miss Katheryn Carnegie, of Omemee will be the new stenographer.

Sees Commonwealth Power For Peace

MERITTON (CP)—Sir Archibald Nye said Friday night the Commonwealth of nations, in the hands of competent leaders, can be the greatest organization for peace in the world's history.

The British high commissioner to Canada told a Lions Club banquet that the British political genius is "a capacity to change with changing times and conditions." In most cases, the transition from colony to independent nation had been extraordinary smooth.

Gordons Returning From Riviera Trip

NEW YORK (CP)—Donald Gordon, president of Canadian National Railways, and Mrs. Gordon arrived in New York today aboard the liner Mauretania en route home from a honeymoon trip abroad.

Also aboard was James R. Meakes, publisher of the Sudbury Daily Star.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon spent most of their holiday on the French Riviera. She is the former Norma Hobbs of Montreal.

3 School Bands Present Excellent Concert

The Junior and Senior Public School bands and the Concert Band of PCVS presented a concert Friday night in Queen Mary auditorium under conductor Albert Croasdale.

Apart from entertainment, the informal concert gave parents and friends an insight into how young musicians develop and what can be accomplished by even first year musicians.

All three bands were notable for the tone and control they displayed over a wide range of selections.

With clarinets, trombones and trumpets the Junior band played a number of short selections mainly hymns, such as Son of My Soul, and two anthems. In each piece the time was slow and careful to give the youngsters a chance to keep up.

They showed what they had learned of harmony and generally had a good time.

WIDER VARIETY

The Senior Band, composed of second and third year students, displayed a wider variety of instruments and many more members. The band was also able to play a wider variety of selections. Mr. Croasdale in one of his informal comments which punctuated the concert, said that he had concentrated more on hymns this year and was proud of the manner in which the senior band's accomplishments compared with other city organizations.

They played "School Days," "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," "Let's All Sing Like the Birdies Sing," "America the "Beautiful," and "O, God Our Help In Ages Past."

Although Mr. Croasdale obviously takes his music and his teaching seriously, that doesn't stop him and his students from enjoying their music and having a little fun at it.

The PCVS band showed the younger musicians how far they have to go. The band has averaged 87½ per cent in the music festival over the last four years, but they were not so perfect that their ability would seem unattainable to their juniors.

They had enough confidence and competence to try a difficult selection like the overture of the "Marriage of Figaro." They also played the "Song of Love" from "Blossom Time," and a pot pourri tagged "Snizzlepops." But the piece the band enjoyed playing the most and most of the audience liked hearing the best was "Tiger Rag." They played with gusto that exactly fitted the favorite of jazz musicians.

They finished with "Soldiers of the Queen," "Land of Hope and Glory" and "The Queen" — the last at a pace that made it seem more like music and less like a lonely dirge.

Dr. J. E. Howes thanked Mr. Croasdale, both on behalf of the Junior Band and the parents. Members of the band presented a gift to both Mr. Croasdale and Mrs. Croasdale.

Wendy Collins, a member of the Senior Band, thanked Mr. Croasdale for his teaching and presented him with a gift from her band. Mrs. Claire Collins, on behalf of the city's home and school associations and parents generally, praised Mr. Croasdale for his work.

"You have achieved a wonderful success," she said.

Fifth air force fighter-bombers and twin-engine B-26 bombers roared over the Western front today, dropping almost 200,000 pounds of bombs before noon.

B-29 Superforts bombed a North Korean dam north of Pyongyang Friday night in an attempt to loose flood waters over main Communist supply routes. Fourteen Superforts hit a big earth-fill dam at Kuwonga on the Hapchang river, but were unable to observe results, the air force said.

An 8th army briefing officer said fighting still raged around two outposts on the east-central front.

South Korean soldiers counter-attacked repeatedly in an attempt to drive Chinese soldiers off the strategic hills near Finger ridge and bloody ridge.

TOP BRASS—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, Allied Commander in Europe, chats with President Eisenhower who once held the same post. They had breakfast together in Washington. Ridgway, in the U.S. to succeed Gen. J. Lawton Collins as Army Chief of Staff, said he would be ready for the new duties in about a month.

Big Hydro Project Underway On Bow River, West Of Calgary

CALGARY (CP)—The face of the Bow river west of Calgary will soon be changed by one of the largest hydro-electric projects in Canada.

Hundreds of workmen with the latest construction machinery are building the giant Bearspaw dam 12 miles west of Calgary, in a narrow defile in the Bow valley where Stony Indian chief Jacob Bearspaw signed a treaty with the white men in 1877.

The dam will create an artificial lake five miles long and half a mile wide. It will not only alleviate flood conditions in Calgary and produce electric power for the city, but will probably become a beautiful scenic playground.

HUGE GATES

The dam will have three steel sluice gates, each weighing 90 tons and costing $258,000. It will generate 22,000 horsepower.

Preliminary work began last fall with the construction of a coffer dam. This horseshoe-shaped barrier of gravel stretches 400 feet across the river and diverts the water into a channel on the south bank.

Water was pumped out of the enclosed area and ice was shoveled away so that the actual construction could proceed without too much difficulty.

More than half the dam will be of compacted earth construction. A rolled clay core will be built up on a trench which has been excavated down to smooth bed rock. The clay will be protected by a thick layer of broken rock and gravel.

WIDE BASE

The earth dam will be about 20 feet wide at the top and about 350 feet at the bottom.

A transition dam is also being built. It will be a framework of upright piers on a concrete base. This framework could be easily filled to form a solid concrete barrier when the rest of the dam is completed.

The spring floods are expected to sweep away the gravel coffer dam, and flow over the half-finished earth dam or between the piers of the transition dam. If this does not happen, a channel will be cut in the coffer dam.

When the floods are over, a second coffer dam will be built so that work can start on the main concrete dam. It is expected to start operating in 1955.

GIVEN 90 DAYS

The Reds then would be given 90 days to try to change the prisoners' minds about returning home. A post-armistice political conference would try to settle the future of those still refusing repatriation, and if it did not succeed, PoWs still in custody would be turned over to the UN general assembly.

India would provide an unknown number of troops to guard the prisoners. The other four members of the commission would supply only staff members and could send at least 50 assistants to Korea.

Police Juvenile Clubs Pay Big Dividends In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—It's 17 years since a Montreal police officer with a soft spot in his heart for youngsters in trouble decided that the leader of a tough street gang could be developed into a good sports captain.

That decision is still paying dividends. The police juvenile clubs here are credited with giving Montreal a remarkably low juvenile delinquency record.

It was in 1936 that assistant inspector Ovila Pelletier first was struck by the number of youngsters running into trouble with the law. He found these youngsters were full of energy and intelligence, and were letting off steam in the wrong direction.

HELPED YOUNGSTERS

He obtained permission from his superiors to form clubs for youngsters. The first members were recruited on street corners.

Spotting youths with a lot of time on their hands and nothing interesting to do, police would ask them: "How would you like to play in a baseball league?" If it was not baseball, it was hockey or swimming that was suggested.

The response was terrific

Police officers dug into their own pockets to buy sports equipment, and the league of "kids and cops" was launched. The police athletic fund and the city took an interest and extended financial assistance.

The best of equipment and coaches were placed at the disposal of the youngsters.

The end of the purely experimental period came when inspector Pelletier was given facilities for a 15-minute talk over two Montreal radio stations.

In the two weeks following his broadcasts 34,000 youngsters called at police stations throughout the city to apply for membership in the juvenile clubs. Since then, public drives have been held annually to finance activities.

BIG BUREAU

A full-time delinquency prevention bureau was established seven years ago. The bureau has a permanent staff of 65 policemen and 20 women. One aspect of its work is to keep young people away from places where they should not be.

Officers keep watch on conditions in restaurants, theatres, billiard halls and similar sports. More than 5,000 such visits are made each year. Often, the officers will explain to juveniles they encounter on these visits how their time could be spent better in some other fashion.

The results of the work are reflected in juvenile delinquency records. In 1952, police referred 2,000 youngsters to juvenile courts. The number was only half as large as in 1943, when the population was smaller.

Banks Operated From Tents 10-Cent Shares Worth $300

COBALT, Ont. (CP)—Discovery of silver here in 1903 sparked the finding of gold at Timmins and Kirkland Lake and the development of a large part of Northern Ontario.

When Cobalt holds an old home week July 5-11 the celebrations will mark what amounts to the 50th anniversary of the opening up of a huge territory stretching from North Bay to James Bay.

The affair is being promoted by a chain letter system among old-timers scattered all over the country. Prime Minister St. Laurent and Premier Frost of Ontario have been invited and a reunion is being planned that will not soon be forgotten.

OVERNIGHT BOOM

Prospectors flooded into this district after silver was discovered. Ten-cent shares rocketed to $250 and $300 as they were peddled on the muddy streets. A camp of 10,000 men sprang up and at one time there were 38 mills in operation.

The Imperial Bank and the Bank of Commerce operated from tents. By 1910 five theatres were operating and so were six brokerage houses.

The rush for silver started, so the story goes, when Fred Larose, a blacksmith working on construction of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, threw a hammer at a fox and missed. The hammer fell into a creek beside a float heavy with micolite. Near it was a vein of silver garnished with cobalt bloom.

Major credit for the discovery goes to Willet Green Miller, Ontario's first provincial geologist. There's a monument to him in the town square.

FOR STRONG MEN

During the boom days one of the favorite spectacles was the hand-steel drilling competition. The contests frequently attracted 20,000 persons and tough miners from all parts of North America travelled to Cobalt to test their strength.

One man held the steel to the rock in his fists while his partner swung a sledgehammer. They took it in turns. The world champions were Page and Pickens of Colorado who set a record of 43½ inches in 15 minutes.

Among spectators have been Woodrow Wilson, Noah Timmins, Henry Drummond, Victor McLagan and others who later became famous. Prizes ran to $1,000, but far larger sums changed hands in private bets among the millionaires and near-millionaires.

In 1911 Cobalt had a population of more than 5,000. Today it has a population of 2,400, but is on the way up again. The metal cobalt has a strategic importance and about 20 properties are in various stages of development and production. Workers are moving in, causing an acute housing shortage, but the town boasts a new fire hall and police station, as well as a $100,000 community centre finished two years ago.

Old-timers are looking forward to the anniversary celebrations as something of a re-union. A feature will be the old hand-steel drilling competitions.

Jenny's Girls Do Paint Job On Crusader

OTTAWA (CP)—Who would paint a destroyer from stem to stern, scrub down every square inch of steel—all for the privilege of collecting the ship's leftovers and other handouts?

"Jenny's girls" make a business of it in Hong Kong. Just ask the crew of HMCS Crusader.

A story of the job the Chinese girls did on the Crusader when the destroyer visited Hong Kong recently is carried in the current issue of The Crowsnest, Royal Canadian Navy magazine.

The warship entered Hong Kong harbor to re-fuel and rest after duty in Korean waters.

SHRILL ORDERS

Lt.-Cmdr. John Husher of London, Ont., and Victoria was on a wing of the bridge in charge of securing the ship to the tanker.

He noticed nothing out of the ordinary until a soprano voice behind him said:

"Put wire there, Jimmy; all RN ships put wire there."

The amazed "Jimmy" swung round to find one of Jenny's girls —all smiles, five feet high.

The girls had come aboard from their sampan almost unnoticed.

Jenny is a Chinese woman, fat and amiable, shrewd in business. Her girls, some 10 or 12 of them, are between the ages of six and 16. They'll wash and paint a ship's superstructure clean as a whistle

In return they collect all the ship's leftovers and sell them in Hong Kong.

The girls are neat and clean, with their long hair braided into the typical Chinese queue and Jenny rules them with an iron hand.

Says Jenny:

"We like Canadian ship better than Royal Navy. Your food better so your 'gash' (navy slang for garbage) better."

AN INSTITUTION

Jenny is known to sailors of most of the world's navies. She is an institution and most seamen agree a pretty wonderful one at that.

"Unlike the average sailor, every one of Jenny's girls manages to get more paint on the ship's side than on her own clothes," said one admiring Canadian officer.

Jenny's girls took over the job of cleaning and painting the Crusader. This meant more spare time and three days' leave for each watch.

When the Crusader left Hong Kong Jenny's girls were there in their sampan to bid farewell. Fluttering from their little jackstaff was the flag Crusader had given them with "Crusader," "Jenny," the date, and the ship's crest worked on it.

"The baby's face was blue. The car seat was right across its throat. It was gasping. Whew, another minute!"

Along with a hitch-hiker, Richards called to other spectators to help lift the car off the child. Once it was raised the child was released But before it started to breathe properly, Richards had to clear its throat of vomit.

DASHES FOR HOSPITAL

Bundling the baby in his car Richards closed all the windows and turned the heater on to keep the child warm. Then he started a mad dash for the Civic hospital.

"On the way in I saw the ambulance (Nisbett's from Peterborough) coming. I flagged him down, telling him that I had the child and that there were two others still there."

Richards said the man (Olson) on the culvert was lucky, for if he had been thrown another few feet, he would have fallen into the water and perhaps drowned.

"No one would have known he was in the water if he had gone in," said Richards. "It was quite a distance from the wreck. As it was I just happened to notice his left leg moving up and down or I would have missed him even then."

TREATED AT CIVIC

Nisbett's rushed Olson and his wife to hospital. There they and the baby were treated by Dr. Donald Whyte, Dr. William Blastorah. Dr. John McNeil went to the accident and then helped with the treatment at the hospital.

No red truck was seen at the scene of the accident, but there was a green truck in the ditch.

Provincial police investigating the accident said there was no connection between the green truck and the Olson accident. The green truck, owned by Keith Brunton of Pickering, was also travelling north, missed the curve and skidded into the ditch minutes before the Olson accident.

Several times they tried to get the undamaged truck out of the ditch. But finally they had to go to Bewdley to get a pull out. When they returned the Olson car had turned over.

Investigating officers were OPP Constables Vic Piper, Cy Meadows and Bill Warner, all of the Cobourg detachment.

One New Outbreak Of Hog Cholera

OTTAWA (CP)—The agriculture department today reported only one new outbreak of hog cholera in southwestern Ontario, bringing the number of infected farms to 26.

The new case was uncovered in Huron county.

Total of hogs dead or destroyed now stands at 1,541. These include animals who have died of the disease and those killed in the eradication program.

The disease, first reported May 15, is confined to eight counties, well within the quarantine area.

Pearson Doubts Red Sincerity

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP)—The Communist rejection of the latest offer of the United Nations for settlement of the prisoner-of-war question in Korea would leave doubts about their "professed desire to end the war," External Affairs Minister Pearson said Friday.

Speaking at a luncheon sponsored by the United Nations Association's Lethbridge branch, Mr. Pearson said the latest United Nations' plan had been worked out by the United States in consultation with those countries which had troops in Korea, including Canada.

Mr. Pearson, now president of the United Nations general assembly, said the plan embodies the principles of the UN resolution passed unanimously at the last meeting of the UN assembly.

"It provides an easy and honorable way for the Communists to end the war."

"The Russian attitude has changed in recent weeks," Mr. Pearson noted, "certainly superficially for the better. It reflects the change in tactics that has been decreed in Moscow."

The supreme question was did the change mean an easing of international tension and therefore a step towards peace.

"If so, we should be receptive but also cautious and wary," he declared.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP)—Sharp declines on the Chicago market Friday unsettled grain on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, but prices here showed stubborn resistance to the downward trend. Some rallies were made at the close, and losses were reduced or erased. A flurry of good export buying showed at the close in most grains.

Top grades of Class 2 and IWA wheat dropped one-eighth cent. Domestic prices were unchanged.

Separate Schools Face Acute Need For More Room

The rapid growth of Peterborough since the Second World War may require the construction of two more Separate Schools on the southern edge of the city—one in Assumption parish of Otonabee township and another in the south-west section of the city, probably in the parish of St. John the Baptist.

While the pressure of accommodation is greatest in the south part of the city, it is a problem affecting all the Separate Schools in the community.

There is already an acute problem of accommodation at St. John's and Immaculate Conception Schools. With an attendance of 245 this year, the former is expecting 285 pupils to attend next September and the latter, with an attendance of 219, is expecting the total to reach 257 when school opens for another term.

BEGAN WITH 4 ROOMS

St. John's, which was built in 1945, was originally a four-room school but three years later it was necessary to add four rooms. The same year, 1948, an eight-room school was built in St. Anne's parish in the north end. Now, just five years later, another room is required at St. Anne's and another at Immaculate Conception School in East City. Moreover, St. John's will actually become a 10-room school this fall because two classes will have to attend in the auditorium.

An attempt to predict the future needs of Separate School accommodation in the city was made five years ago when, under the late Frank Doris, a member of the Separate School Board, 113 men made a survey of the city. Their findings not only resulted in an increased assessment but revealed the large number of children of pre-school age who would swell attendance to a record peak in a few years.

The figures revealed in the survey were confirmed by baptismal registers of the various city parishes as well as by the number of pupils who have registered in subsequent years. For example, when St. Anne's School was opened in September, 1948, 169 pupils registered from St. Peter's and St. Mary's Schools. Yet the registration at these two schools that same year was only 11 less than the year before.

NOW ANNEXED

St. Anne's School is located in the portion of the city recently annexed from Smith township and will be operated by the Peterborough Separate School Board as of September. With an attendance of 192 this year, St. Anne's is expecting 225 pupils in September.

Attendance of city pupils at township schools is in keeping with Separate School policy of having pupils attend school in ther own parishes. In cases where residential areas of cities expand into surrounding municipalities the number of city pupils registered often exceeds that of pupils from the township in which the school is actually located.

An outstanding example of this is St. Alphonsus' School in North Monaghan township where 80 per cent of the pupils live in the city.

St. Alphonsus' was built in 1949 with an eye on the future needs of Separate School accommodation for residents of the extreme western section of the city. The parish boundaries are the west side of Monaghan Rd., the north side of Lansdowne St. and generally the south side of Charlotte St., except in the neighborhood of Civic Hospital where the boundary is Walkerfield Ave.

The city taxes for Separate School purposes from the portion of the parish in the city are paid to the rural school board by the Separate School Board of the city.

HIT SUBURBS

The growing need for extra accommodation for Separate School pupils has been felt in suburban communities as well. Last year saw the opening of St. Francis de Sales' School about a mile and a half north-east of the city on the Warsaw road. It has accommodation for 50 pupils and the new Holy Family School at Bridgenorth will accommodate 30.

One person who has kept his eye on the problem is Msgr. P. P. Butler, a member of the Peterborough Separate School Board, whose parish of the Sacred Heart is the mother parish for three new parishes established within the last seven years: St. John the Baptist's, where a beautiful new church will be officially opened June 24, Assumption in Otonabee township and St. Alphonsus' in North Monaghan.

Msgr. Butler told The Examiner the other day that, whereas there were only about 28 families south of Exhibition Park 10 years ago, tody that are 425, an indication of the need for new school accommodation as well as new churches in the southern part of the city and beyond.

"You must remember," he cautioned, "we didn't build a new school for 40 years, from 1905 when St. Peter's School was built until 1945 when St. John the Baptist's was erected. During all that time, the only additional accommodation we obtained was Immaculate Conception School which had been a public school. We acquired it about 1914 or 1915."

What is now St. Peter's High School was originally a boys' elementary school. At first, the boys attended Murray St. School on the site of the present Armoury. This property was sold and St. Peter's built in 1905.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS

In 1914 the first high school students began to attend St. Peter's. Gradually, the number of high school students became so great they pushed the elementary pupils right out of the building and they were sent to various other elementary schools.

Before the new St. Peter's Elementary School for boys was built at Brock and Rubidge Sts., the pupils were taught in the little stone building at Hunter and Reid Sts., St. Mary's girls' school, St. Alphonsus' School, and an annex which had been built on St. Peter's High School.

Attendance at the city's Separate Schools this year is: St. Peter's—250, St. Mary's—235, Sacred Heart—227, Immaculate Conception—219, St. John the Baptist's—245, St. Anne's—192. There are 130 pupils attending St. Alphonsus' and 165 are expected in September.

There are 33 sisters of the Order of St. Joseph, four priests and 20 lay teachers, teaching in the Separate Schools of the city, not counting those at St. Anne's which has four lay teachers and two sisters, and St. Alphonsus' with five lay teachers and two sisters who will start teaching there in September. That's a total of 37 sisters and 31 lay teachers who are instructing pupils from the city.

John McCarney is chairman of the Peterborough Separate School Board and the Rev. James O'Houlihan is secretary. Other members are Msgr. Butler, the Rev. James McGuire, Arthur Primeau, Roland Hull, Glen Moher, William Brady, Fergus O'Connor, Victor Mattucci, William Toal and Dr. J. R. Epping. Inspector of Separate Schools is W. C. Doyle.

Arrest Ex-Lawyer

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Police Friday night announced the arrest of a former lawyer for the British railroads in Argentina as a suspected bomb plotter. The lawyer, Domingo Nogues Acuna, was accused of engaging in subversive activities since 1945 along with other railway lawyers. The British companies have been in process of liquidation since 1948 when Argentina nationalized the lines.

Charge 100 U.K. Ships Working For Reds

WASHINGTON (AP)—The acting chairman of the Senate investigations sub-committee says it has information that 100 ships, many British-owned, are "still carrying strategic supplies to the Communist troops in Korea."

Senator Karl Mundt (Rep. S. D.) commented also that it "might be a very happy thought" to write into foreign aid legislation a ban against giving funds to countries participating in such trade.

Mundt, heading the sub-committee during the absence of chairman Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.), spoke on a radio program Friday night.

He said the committee is preparing "a list of about 100 ships, foreign-owned, many of them, also, unhappily, owned by the British, which are still carrying strategic supplies to the Communist troops in Korea." He said in addition to the British-owned ships, there were others of British registry.

Acquit Hamilton Man Of Placing Explosive

KITCHENER (CP)—Robert Dunlap Hooker, 23, of Hamilton was acquitted Friday of placing an explosive with intent to damage in connection with a robbery March 1 at a bowling alley. A safe was blown and about $1,000 taken.

Hooker had been acquitted of breaking and entering. Earlier, Donald Michalofsky, 22, of Kitchener and Elmira and Edward Larsh, 22, of Hamilton were convicted of breaking and entering on the explosives charge.

Michalofsky was sentenced to two years on the first charge and one year on the second and Larsh to 15 months on the first and one year on the second. The one-year terms are concurrent.

Bang-Up Start

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—The first three-dimensional movie shown here had a sensational opening. A plaster cornice crashed 54 feet from the dome of the theatre on to the audience, and 11 persons went to hospital with minor injuries.

Approve Payment

BONN (AP)—The West German cabinet Friday approved a draft law providing for payment of damages totalling about 4,000,000,000 marks ($952,000,000) to several hundred thousand persons, mostly jews, persecuted by the Nazis.

Chinese Have Much To Gain

LONDON (Reuters)—The Times of London says today "the Chinese have everything to gain and little to lose from their periodical offensives in Korea."

Less sensitive to casualty lists than their enemies, they may have in mind that military pressure "has sometimes sped the tempo of peace negotiations," the newspaper says, adding:

"They are plainly capable of mounting a much more formidable assault than this, if they choose to carry the experiment rather further. They may yet try attacking with half a dozen divisions instead of one.

"The military position in Korea today gives the Communists some grounds for self-congratulation.

"The Communists have over 1,000,000 soldiers in the field, 800,000 of them Chinese; they are organized into about 80 divisions.

"Their strategic reserve behind the Manchurian frontier consists of a further 18 divisions and 3,000 or more planes, half of them jets."

Offer 2,000 Volunteers

LONDON (AP)—Natives of Britain's tiny Gilbert and Ellice Islands in the western Pacific have offered 2,000 volunteers for service with British forces in Korea or Malaya, it was announced Friday. Colonial Secretary Oliver Lyttelton sent a message to the islanders expressing Britain's deep appreciation "for this very loyal offer of service but regretting that it is not possible on practical and administrative grounds to accept it."

5 Die In Collision

SELMA, Ala. (AP)—Five persons were killed in a head-on collision of two automobiles near here Friday. A soldier's wife and her two small sons were killed in a private car. Two occupants of a taxi were fatally injured and three others were hurt.

Lamb Sues Wolfe

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—Mr. Lamb has sued Mrs. Wolfe. Walter Lamb asked $25,000 damages Friday in a petition against his mother-in-law, Mrs. Blanche Wolfe. Lamb charges Mrs. Wolfe with "alienation of his wife's affections."

EDMONTON (CP)—A tri-weekly bus service now connects Edmonton, Vancouver and Whitehorse, Y.T., putting these points within about 30 hours of Dawson Creek, starting point on the Alaska highway.

Norwood Teams Win In Lakefield Games

NORWOOD (ENS) — Public School softball teams of Grades 7 and 8 played and won against the Lakefield teams in inter-school games played at Warsaw.

Score for the boys was 9-0 in favor of Norwood, for the girls 16-12. For the greater part of the girls' game Lakefield was ahead but the Norwood team managed to gain a lead late in the game and retain it till the end.

Norwood team were as follows: Danny McManus cf, Jerry Paxton 2b, Percy Long ss, Fred Morgan 3b, Doug Lochhead c, John Scott 1b, Keith Bedore p, Hayden Scott lf, Ronald Scott rf; Norma Monahan p, Lorraine Hie 2b, Pat McManus 3b, Nona Scott ss (also Anne Kavanagh from 5th inning on), Beverly Rothwell rf, Lois Scott cf, Marie Akister lf.

Confeds Take Win

Confederation seniors defeated Grove 11-3 in a school softball fixture, scoring seven runs in the fourth inning, and two each in the third and fifth. The losers got one each in the last three heats. It was a fairly fast fray with some neat hitting and fielding seen at times. Each side had four strikeouts, as the winners drew four walks to one, and Grove reeled off a twin killing. Woods of Confed. hit a homer. Teams:

Confed.: Steele, Trotter, Brown, Ferguson, Quick, Kimball, Woods, Anderson, Warner, Moffat.

Grove: Patterson, Copping, Griffin, Wood, Simmons, Casey, Merrett, Bailey, Heard.

Umpires, G. Hagerman and T. Loveday.

Bethany Triumphs

BETHANY (ENS). — Wimp Borland's Peterborough junior team made their first appearance in Bethany on Thursday night. The score of 11-2 for Bethany does not indicate the abality of the juniors, who look like an up and coming team. The score:

Peterborough ..... 010 000 1— 2
Bethany ..... 124 301 0—11

The teams:

Peterborough — Gilders 2b, Kentin c, Naish 3b, Patterson 1b, V. Rowe ss, Whitehill cf, Morley rf, R. Rowe lf, Caren and Hayden p.

Bethany — Cam Rowan p, Reynolds c, Edmunds 1b, W. Rowan 2b, Ryley 3b, Pomeroy ss, Driver and Challice lf, McGill cf, B. Reynolds and Finney rf.

Umpires—Borland and Ferren.

3 Labor Members Lash Out At Coronation Celebrations

LOWESTOFT, Eng. (AP)—Three Labor members of Parliament, all supporters of left-wing leader Aneurin Bevan, have lashed out at Coronation celebrations.

Barbara Castle, member of the Labor party's national executive, called the big spree a "neurotic outburst."

"I don't see what all the fuss is about," she told a Bevanite meeting here Friday night. "I hope it is the last Coronation of this kind that this country will ever see, utterly unrepresentative as it is of Britain and the Commonwealth of ordinary people."

John Freeman, who walked out of a junior minister's job in the recent Labor government along with Bevan, commended the Royal Family as industrious and impartial. But he said the Coronation was tied up with "glorification of every kind of anti-Socialist belief and every myth which can be found in our history."

INTENSE DISAPPROVAL

"I feel intense disapproval of it," Freeman added. "It is possible to have a constitutional monarchy without this waste of money and ballyhoo."

Another staunch Bevanite, Ian Mikardo, criticized seating arrangements along the Coronation route.

"I believe people should just come along and those who get there first get the best view," he said.

"Now it's a case of first come first served—if you can afford five pounds ($14)."

Five pounds is the price of the average seat in a government-built stand.

Captain Worked For Reds But Only At Gunpoint

HONG KONG (Reuters)—The captain of the 3,221-ton Panamanian ship Perico today agreed with Senator Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin that he had worked for the Chinese Communists—but only at the point of gun.

McCarthy's Senate investigations sub-committee said in a report published two days ago that British ships, including the Perico, had carried Communist troops since the outbreak of the Korean war.

Wallem and Company Limited, Hong Kong owners of the Perico, said the ship carried 462 uniformed Chinese Reds 300 miles along the China coast in June, 1951.

The master said he was threatened that if he did not carry the soldiers "somebody would be shot."

The captain, unnamed in the shipping company's statement, said the soldiers were in uniform but wore no insignia or rank badges. He said his passengers were alleged to be sick. They were guarded by about 12 armed Communists.

LOADS NORMAL CARGO

He took them from Kwong Chowan, South China, to Canton, South China capital, June 22. Then he loaded rice, the ship's normal cargo, and eventually returned to Hong Kong.

"On the vessel's return to Hong Kong, the master gave a full report on the incident to the Hong Kong commissioner of police and we understand that copies were sent to local naval authorities and to the colonial secretariat," the statement added.

British shipowners Wheelock Marden and Company Friday night explained how its name had got mixed up in the Senate investigation. The company said it had never used ships to transport Communist troops but three of its vessels had been seized by Communist China.

The Communists refused to return the ships so Wheelock, Marden and Company applied to the Panamanian government last January to have their registry cancelled. The ships have been in Communist hands ever since and officials said they have "every reason to believe they are used in the coastal trade."

Lift Price Controls

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — The South African government lifted price controls on a wide variety of articles Friday. The list of goods affected includes cigarets, sweets, many groceries, radios, refrigerators, jewelry, electrical appliances, imported books, cameras, sports goods, nuts and bolts.

Queen Accepts Gift Of Painting

ASHBURTON, Eng. (Reuters)—The Queen has accepted a painting which a local artist painted by gripping his brushes between his teeth.

Richard Hext, 58, has been paralyzed in his arms and hands since birth.

He offered the Queen his masterpiece, a canvas of a Dartmoor bridge with the sun breaking through the clouds.

He used to paint with his toes but he tired of this. "I prefer using my teeth now," he said. "It saves me the trouble of taking off my shoes."

Hext received a letter from Buckingham Palace explaining that the Queen never accepts gifts unless they were from her personal friends.

"But in the very exceptional circumstances Her Majesty would be pleased to very her rule. . . ," the letter added.

A Move To End The Strike

The strike of 435 production workers at the Quaker Oats company plant in Peterborough and echoed by a responsive strike at the Saskatoon Quaker plant, began on Wednesday, April 22nd. It is now in its sixth week. For more than five weeks the plant has been unproductive; for more than five weeks the workers have been out of their jobs. It is all lost time, lost pay, and lost production.

* * *

We do not propose to enter now into a discussion of the rights and wrongs; the issues between the Packinghouse Workers union and the company have been clearly stated in our news columns. Our readers may judge for themselves wherein lie the faults and the responsibility. For fault there surely is. A strike, though legal, is a kink in the normal operation of society, and results from something wrong somewhere: with the union leadership, with the employees themselves, or with the company. The strike at the Quaker has been an unhappy interruption, and one of its worst features has been the lack of action towards settlement. Day by day nothing has happened, nothing at all. The movement towards settlement has been as idle as the pickets. We are glad that the Provincial Department of Labour has at last intervened, to try to end the moribund state of affairs.

* * *

There has been remarkably little civic interest in the strike. Like the wet, cold weather of recent weeks, it has come upon the city. The citizens do not like the bad weather. They do not like the strike. They are wasting sympathy on neither and shrug and say that it cannot go on forever. In view of this atitude, it is just as well that there is an outside force which can affect the situation. We do not say that the Ontario Department of Labour is the sun, and that the clouds will be broken immediately next Wednesday. But it is a good omen that company and union have agreed to accept the offices of the Department and talk matters over in Toronto. Nobody is benefitting from the strike. Why, then, cannot it be fairly concluded?

The Cost Of Atomic Energy

In a paper read to the Engineering Institute of Canada meeting last week at Halifax, Mr. I. N. MacKay, head of the Plant Design Branch at Chalk River, discussed the development of power from atomic energy. He based most of his comments on the type of nuclear reactor used at Chalk River. It is one of the most advanced in existence—until the next one is completed at Chalk River. It uses natural uranium as fuel and heavy water as moderator. It produces heat and plutonium.

The heat is, at present, wasted. Many problems arise if the heat of a reactor is to be put to use for power, particularly to convert it to electrical energy by conventional means. Yet the limitations and problems can be overcome. The chief impediment is the economics of the project; the high cost. However, Mr. MacKay said that "in a very few years experience in reactor operation will have doubled, and much of the new experience will be of a kind that will enable the study of cost reduction to be made intelligently".

Mr. MacKay analysed costs and began with the estimated costs of the reactor now under construction at Chalk River. This is expected to be about thirty million dollars. It is, however, a "many-purpose" reactor, and at this stage of experience with reactors—for instance, little data on the reliability of many specialized components—many parts of it are duplicated and triplicated. In the future, should reactors be built for the single purpose of producing power, the cost is expected to be less. The most expensive single item is the "heavy water". Its price can be reduced if it is recognized that there will be a continuing demand for it. It is reasonable to assume that an atomic powered steam generator capable of producing 500,000 kilowatts of heat could be designed and built a few years hence for $20,000,000.

Is this expensive? Here is a table showing the capital costs of an atomic power generating station producing 125,000 KW at today's prices.

	Total Cost	per KW
Atomic power steam generator	20,000,000	$160
Conventional turbo-generating equipment ...	10,000,000	80
Transformation ..	6,250,000	50
	$36,250,000	$290

These costs may be compared with others. The approximate cost of hydro-electric stations in Ontario in 1950 was $215 a kilowatt hour. The approximate cost of a modern steam plant in the United States is $160 a kilowatt hour. All these figures exclude transmission and distribution costs which would, said Mr. MacKay, tend to favour the atomic power station since there is greater latitude in the choice of its location.

If these figures are approximately correct for any near future, nobody is going to build atomic power stations if hydro power—with no fuel costs—is available. The disparity between costs is too great: $215 a kilowatt hour for a hydro station, with free power; $290 a kilowatt hour for an atomic power generating station, with very costly uranium. However, even Ontario may be forced in the future to use the more expensive atomic power.

It is considered that when the St. Lawrence power development is completed—at which time the Ontario demand for power will be about equal to the new supply—this province will have pretty well exhausted useful new hydro sites. On the other hand, Ontario already has steam power generating plants, and will presumably have more should the need require them, unless atomic energy plants prove as cheap and reliable. The operating costs of steam stations is considerably less than the present probable cost of atomic energy stations; likewise, as we have shown, is the capital cost less. Therefore, if cost is the determining factor, only experimental atomic power generation will take place for some years to come.

Another element, more important than cost, looms in the future. The coal and petroleum resources of this continent are limited. On the other hand, uranium is a very abundant material. Mr. MacKay reported that there is more heat value in the uranium in a ton of ordinary granite than there is in a ton of coal. It is also probable that in years to come more rich deposits of uranium, in concentrated form, will be discovered. Our footnote to this discussion is the remark of Dr. L. R. Hafstad, director of reactor development for the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission: "I hope, sooner or later, our country will be in the position of declaring that for stationary power plants and large blocks of power, we cannot afford to use petroleum. Uranium-238 ought to be good enough". We have never before heard uranium, precious, fantastic uranium, described so shabbily—"good enough".

A Real Twister

The Sarnia Observer seems to have been in the calm centre of the tornado which ripped through its city. Its leading article last Monday on the thankfulness of Sarnians had a surprising detachment. It begins thus:

> Efforts continue to restore to health those suffering from injuries and shock resulting from last Thursday's cyclonic storm and the rebuilding of the damaged areas is being planned. The disaster will be recalled by Sarnians for many years to come.
>
> Future generations will review the fact that Sarnia was forunate in escaping a much worse fate than it did due to the brief duration of the cyclonic winds and the relatively narrow width of the storm's path across the city.
>
> It is a coincidence that the distress caused by the storm blotted out, for most Sarnians, recollections of the preservation of themselves and other Canadians from the German U-boat menace which threatened our shipping and seaports 10 years ago, during the Second World War.

The next five paragraphs are about the Battle of Britain, how Sarnians would no doubt have shared in the Sunday observance of its anniversary had the tornado not struck, and how Sarnians, grateful for their preservation from the recent disaster, will recall "the relief they experienced by the subjugation of the U-boat menace a decade ago." So the article ends.

It is a notable feat of glissade, which would have amused us were it not too soon after the tornado to be amused about anything in Sarnia, even about the convoluted Observer of its ways. The editorial twist of the Observer is only less remarkable than the twister which struck the city. Well, we may at least express our sympathy to the dazed Observer and hope that it soon gets over the effects of the shock which the tornado has given it.

Big Noises Outside The Tent

Chinese music is heard, in most Western ears, as a rather noisy and certainly strange, noise. The Western negotiators at the Panmunjom truce tent may be pardoned for thinking that the noises outside it are very odd accompaniments to truce talks. They are indeed more than noises. A full-scale attack was launched by the Chinese. It had two main prongs, one in the west with 8,500 men (so it has been reported) the second in the central front with 6,500 men. The purpose of the attack may be to recapture Seoul, thirty miles south. We suspect, however, that the real intention has been bloody propaganda: to warn the West that the Red scorpion has not lost its fight or its bite.

It is a savage method of reinforcing a peaceable position. One wonders if the Reds really want peace, when they are ready to waste their own troops' lives and the lives of their opponents on the possible eve of truce? At least it is a demonstration as extravagant as it is inhuman.

The Journal of Samuel Marchbanks

SUNDAY: Have been greatly disturbed by the information which a government official has made public that one out of every 130 people in Ontario has either been in jail or may be depended upon statistically to land in jail quite soon. At divine service this morning I could hardly keep my mind on the sermon, for my eyes flickered around the congregation, seeking the jailbirds, either past or to be. The trouble is that once you permit a thought like that to take hold of your mind, you begin to see things in the saintliest faces that you had not noticed before—a slight shiftiness of eye, or a tendency to lick the lips too frequently. There is no art to read the mind's construction in the face, as Shakespeare tells us, but we go righ... rying, just the same. I know a great number of people—many times 130—and I spend all my time now wondering which ones are concealing the fact that they have done a stretch at Burwash, perhaps with lashes.

✧ ✧ ✧

MONDAY A wild canary spent several hours trying to get into my dining-room this afternoon. It would hover curiously outside, then swoop away and drive itself against the glass with a thud which must have shivered its timbers. A visitor suggested that it was trying to get at some fruit on the table, but I don't believe it. Dr. Konrad Lorenz, who knows more about the way animals and birds think than most people, has stern things to say about the limitations of their sight, and I do not suppose that the bird could see anything very much inside the room. It certainly couldn't see me when I stood inside the glass and tried to shoo it away for its own good. The only satisfactory hypothesis is the fairy-tale one: the bird is a princess who has been turned into a canary by enchantment; she is trying to get to me to whisper this in my ear, so that I may do something to lift the spell which binds her. But she is frustrated by the glass in my windows. But even this simple explanation has its faults. Was the Princess, in her human form, accustomed to enter houses through the windows? If she remembers enough of her human life to want to enlist my help, why doesn't she remember about window glass, as well? The whole thing is a puzzle. Meanwhile I hope she doesn't break her neck.

TUESDAY: Of late I have been reading a lot of books about dieting, for my physician has spoken prayerfully to me on this subject. What annoys me about diet books is that they are written either by people who are funny, or people who are angry. The funny ones think it is the most hilarious thing in the world to be compelled to eat less than one wants, of foods that one would not ordinarily choose; they write as though a diet were a huge joke. The angry ones are, if anything, worse: they threaten the dieter with quick and unpleasant death if he doesn't lose his excess weight, and they speak scornfully of the kind of life (cocktails and two-helpings-of-everything) which makes diets necessary. Further, both kinds of writers have an addiction to gelatin in food; everything they recommend seems to contain either lettuce or gelatin. Now it so happens that an uncle of mine, Bellerophon Marchbanks, has devoted his life to the manufacture of gelatin and also of glue, and I cannot separate the two in my mind. Gelatin in moderation I accept; unlimited gelatin turns me cold and shaky. Nor am I a lover of skim milk, which is a favourite beverage of diet-compilers. Life on these terms seems bleak indeed.

✧ ✧ ✧

WEDNESDAY: A few weeks ago I bought myself a toy—a pedometer, which measures how far I walk when I am wearing it. Apparently I don't walk very much. I have always assumed that in the course of an ordinary day's work I walked four or five miles, but according to the pedometer an eighth of a mile is nearer the correct figure. The only time the pedometer gets much of a workout is when I am cutting my lawn, and then the miles tick up at a surprising rate. The instrument is worn on the right leg, and it has a psychological effect; it makes me stamp with that leg to make sure that the dial registers properly, and I am developing a gait like the Giant Blunderbore, or possibly Peg-Leg Pete the Pirate. The pedometer cheats, too; when I am riding in a car it registers a step whenever the car goes over a bump; on a long journey I can cover as much as a quarter of a mile, according to the pedometer, although I have not exerted myself in the least. I have no desire to clock astonishing scores on this gadget; I merely want to know if I do much walking. I am disappointed by what it tells me, but at least I am now in a position to lure other people to boast of the walking they do in an ordinary day's work, so that I may contradict them, and gain face as a statistician.

✧ ✧ ✧

THURSDAY: Told a friend about the demoniacally possessed canary which continues to haunt my window, and he tells me that he has a similar trouble; two have nested on the window-sill of his office and until the young birds are hatched he cannot open his window. Hurried home and found that, as was the case with my friend, my lunatic bird was the male of a pair, who are nesting near my dining-room. I think he wants my window curtains to make some repairs to his nest.

✧ ✧ ✧

FRIDAY: To the movies this evening, and half-way through the film the thought struck me with almost unbearable force that I am not interested, even faintly, in romance. I do not care whether boy gets girl; I don't even care if boy meets girl. If they can meet and get married without any help from me, I am interested in what happens to them then, but the preliminaries of courtship bore me. The emphasis in almost all movies is in the wrong place; it is easy to fall in love and get married; what is really hard is to keep on being in love, and stay married. It is in achieving this that people do really interesting things. The great scenes of passion are not created by pie-faced ninnies who think that the boy of their choice is eluding them. No, for sheer exuberance of emotion, show me the wife of 45 whose husband decided to leave her and the children and go to Bermuda with the 45-year-old wife of another man. Men and women of mature years really know how to make an interesting fuss under such circumstances, but the movies continue to neglect them.

✧ ✧ ✧

SATURDAY: Cut my lawn thoroughly this afternoon, and when I removed the pedometer from my leg it showed that I had walked just a little under three miles on the job. But I felt as though I had walked ten, for my grass had grown tall and strong under the stimulus of the recent rain, and resisted the lawnmower valiantly. I stupidly set out on the job with a cigar in my mouth, to solace me as I worked, and the harder I pushed the harder I puffed until I became conscious that the Sun was dancing in the sky as it did before the eyes of the children of Fatima, and my heart was beating rub-a-dub-dub like a drum in an Orange parade. I am not really the physical type; there are men who rejoice in the use of their muscles but I am at my best when resting, or approaching torpor. So when the lawn was finished I stretched myself out in a garden chair and pondered on the whole matter of effort, physical and mental, and at last came to the conclusion that this would be an excellent day upon which to discontinue this Journal for the Summer. And so, with a languid wave of the hand to my readers, I set aside my notebook and typewriter for the sunny months before us.

NOTE TO EDITORS: This will be the last "Marchbanks" column for the Summer months.

Municipalities and Money

(BRANTFORD EXPOSITOR)

THE president of the Association of Ontario Mayor and Reeves, Barry Atkinson of Sandwich East, speaking at the annual meeting of the organization he heads, called for the appointment of a Dominion-Provincial Economic Committee to co-operate with appropriate Ontario fiscal groups. The purpose would be to effect reforms in the present tax set-up so as to give municipalities access to adequate tax revenues . . .

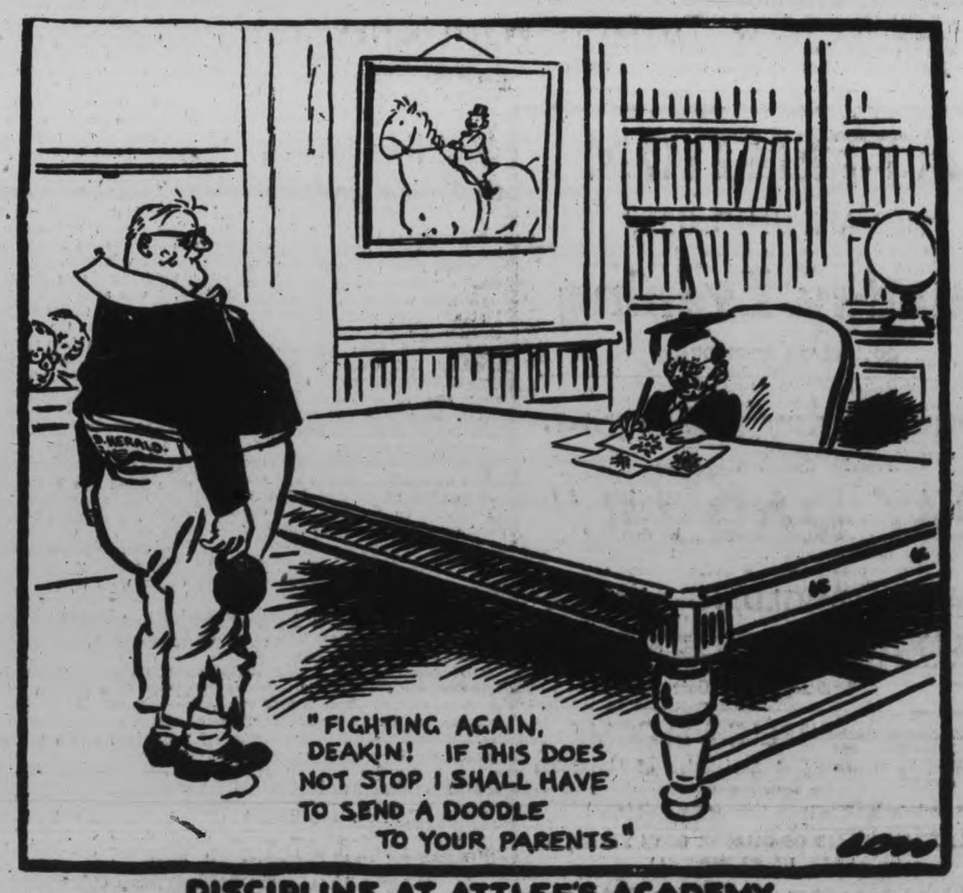
Such reform has been needed for a long time. It should not be beyond the capacity of experienced administrators and their economic advisers to contrive something much better than the present makeshift and outmoded system under which a cruelly disproportionate load falls on the backs of owners of real estate.

The remedy lies in constitutional changes which would reallocate civic functions, where necessary or desirable, and redefine taxing powers on a basis which would make municipalities self-supporting through their own taxation.

Admittedly this change would require great effort and much painstaking study. It is, nevertheless, a change foreseen for years by discerning municipal officials and economists as inevitable. The fact that successive governments in Ottawa (and not only in Ottawa) have chosen to ignore it does not mean that the ultimate responsibility can be evaded.

No matter how one may analyze or argue about the situation, it boils down to the simple circumstance that many municipalities are having difficulty and some are finding it impossible to raise the revenues required to meet the demands and obligations imposed on these municipalities. No federal administration can afford to turn a blind eye to this subject indefinitely.

A d'Iberville Returns To Hudson Bay



(MONTREAL GAZETTE

A SYMBOL of the times and a good augury for the times ahead is the commissioning of the new Canadian icebreaker d'Iberville. Completion of this powerful 311-foot vessel in a Quebec shipyard recently emphasized the fact that this country and this province are seriously in the industry of shipbuilding. The d'Iberville started her career with an historic voyage to England with passengers for the Coronation.

It may well be that she will also make history when she finally settles down to her basic career. At a time when more and more attention is being devoted to the Canadian northland, even to the more distant Arctic areas, this stout ship will be carrying the Canadian marine flag to territory never before reached by sea.

Her mission will include the supplying of government installations in isolated Arctic stations. She is destined to penetrate farther into the frozen northern seas than any ship in history. She will be a mercy ship to suffering native people and she will do her stint in keeping the vital St. Laurence River route free of ice.

Part of her territory will be Hudson Bay, the great inland sea once visited by another d'Iberville, Pierre LeMoyne, Sieur d'Iberville early governor of Louisiana in the French Regime. That d'Iberville came north on a warlike mission, to lead an expedition against the English, then entrenched in the rich fur territory of Hudson Bay. This present day d'Iberville travels in peace and great may be her accomplishments.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

My brethren, count it all joy when ye fall into divers temptations; knowing this, that the trying of your faith worketh patience . . .

Blessed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him. (James 1: 2, 3. 12.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And to the angel of the church in Philadelphia write; These things saith he that is holy, he that is true, he that hath the key of David, he that openeth, and no man shutteth and shutteth, and no man openeth; I know thy works: behold, I have set before thee an open door, and no man can shut it: for thou hast a little strength, and hast kept my word, and hast not denied my name.

Behold, I will make them of the synagogue of Satan, which say they are Jews, and are not, but do lie; behold, I will make them to come and worship before thy feet, and to know that I have loved thee.

Because thou hast kept the word of my patience, I also will keep thee from the hour of temptation, which shall come upon all the world, to try them that dwell upon the earth.

Behold, I come quickly: hold that fast which thou hast, that no man take thy crown.

Him that overcometh will I make a pillar in the temple of my God, and he shall go no more out: and I will write upon him the name of my God, and the name of the city of my God, which is new Jerusalem, which cometh down out of heaven from my God: and I will write upon him my new name.

He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches. (Rev. 3: 7-13.)

Unconsidered Trifles

An estate agent bought his little girl a beautifully furnished doll's house, and on his return after a week's absence asked her how she liked it.

"Oh, it's very nice, Daddy," she replied.

"But where is it, Betty?"

"Oh I rented it furnished to Cousin Jill for a quarter a week."

Dinah had been having trouble with an ulcerated tooth for some time before she got up enough courage to see a dentist. The moment he touched her tooth she screamed at the top of her lungs.

"What are you making such a racket for?" demanded the doctor. "Don't you know that I'm a painless dentist?"

"Well, sah," retorted Dinah, "mabbe yo' is painless, but ah isn't."

Peterborough In The 70's: American Five Dollar Bills Fetched Only Four Dollars

Editor's Note: This social account of Peterborough in the seventies was written a dozen years ago by a former resident of Peterborough who has died since. We print them almost unedited from the typewritten manuscript. They are personal memoirs, and subject to the writer's prejudices, views and sometimes unprecise memory of the events and people of eighty years ago. The Examiner does not vouch for their accuracy of detail).

BANKS AND BANKERS

The Bank of Montreal was on Water Street at the corner of Simcoe. E. J. Lewis was the manager. The Commercial Bank was on George St. W. H. Harper was manager. It was taken over afterwards by the Merchants Bank and Mr. Harper was moved to the London Branch. The Bank of Toronto was on George St. next to the Central Canada Loan & Savings Co. Murray Smith was manager and was followed by J. H. Roper, Peter Campbell and J. Tower, J. Murray Smith, General Manager at Toronto.

Percy Miles was accountant of the Bank of Toronto, J. Kelly assistant. Both were members of the 57th Battalion and went to the Riel Rebellion. R. Grubbe was teller and died within the last year at a very old age. Mr. Grubbe's father a retired British Army officer. The Bank of Commerce was on George Street. R. W. Smylie was manager, W. Manson succeeded him 1876. Mr. Smylie was moved to the London branch and was manager there for many years. Later on he became General manager of the Huron and Erie Mortgage corporation, about 1890, became General Manager of the Dime Savings and Loan Co. in Detroit and became President a few years later. Lived to a ripe old age.

The Ontario Bank was on Water Street, George E. Shaw was manager and was succeeded by Charlie McGill. The Ontario Bank had probably the leading businness in Peterborough at that time. Mr. McGill was moved to Toronto and became General manager. He was popular wherever he went, was interested in sports especially cricket.

Charles McGill was President of the Boys Brock St. Cricket Club. Vernon and his son was one of the players. Charlie supplied the bats, and balls and uniforms and many games were played with boys' clubs in surrounding places. He always went with them and supplied the funds. He was a good coach.

PRIVATE BANK

Martin and Kingan had a private Bank and many of the leading merchants did a private banking business. Thomas Menzies was one of these, he represented J. Pierpont Morgan and Co. He bought and sold American exchange. During the Civil War American money was at a discount at times 20/c, 30/c, 50/c and more. Americans bought everything Canadians had to sell and there were plenty of American bills and silver in circulation about 1879. We took in American quarters at 20c and American five dollar bills at four dollars. We sold it next day to Menzies at a discount of 10 per cent.

Often we made ten dollars a day on American money. Today Canadian money is at a discount. The Central Canada Loan and Savings Co. was on George St. Geo. A. Cox was President about 1888. Mr. Cox moved to Toronto and became Hon. George Cox and a leading Canadian Financier and President of the Bank of Commerce, the Canada Life Assurance Co., the Dominion Coal Co., the Dominion Steel Co., The Canada Cycle and Motor Co. and many other enterprises. Was also President of the Midland Co. The Grand Trunk took over the Midland Railway.

In the 70's if one wanted to go to Toronto they went by the Midland railway to Port Hope and over the old Grand Trunk to Toronto. There was a floating Bridge over Rice Lake. Geo. A. Cox had many enterprises in Peterborough, insurance, private banking, Real estate, etc. Aaron Cox was a brother and Mr. Davis looked after the insurance business and there were three sons, all of them now (before the war) living in England and sportsman, horseman, and financier. He has a private hunt of his own and entertains Canadians and others royally. A. E. Ames, a son-in-law became a leading stock and bond broker in Toronto. Geo. A. Cox was one of the prime movers with Sir. Wilfrid Laurier in the Grand Trunk Pacific. Laurier and Cox were farseeing men.

BOOTS AND SHOES

Sam White had one of the leading shops. He was one of the first merchants in Peterborough. He started on Water St. in the thirties. In the fifties he moved to George St. east side near Simcoe, had ready-made and made to measure shoes. Had at least half a dozen shemakers besides helpers, clerks, and others. Most people wore made to measure shoes. Ames and McWhinnie had a large shoe shop on the west side of George near Brock St. Later they disolved and McWhinnie had a shop across the street. McWhinnie was also agent for Bell's celebrated shoes. I think Bell's shoes are still on the market. Other shoe men were W. J. Larmonth, Amiel Hopkins, A. A. Oliver, J. Stinson, John White. Many old-time merchants wore jackboots, breeches, frock-coats, and silk hats to work. A good pair jack boots would cost $25.

CARRIAGES AND BLACKSMITHS

One of the largest carriage manufacturers was Fitzgerald and Stanger, their factory on the southwest corner of Brock and Water employed in excess of 100 hands. Douglas and Logan were on Brock St. corner of Aylmer. Others were Tom Mitchell, Lockhart and Brown, D. Desautel, F. E. Fitzgerald, Wm. Armstrong, John Delaney was on Murray St. opposite the drill shed.

J. & W. English, also built canoes and their canoes became famous th eworld over. Wm Huntington, Chas. McDonald, W. Yelland were on the west side of George near Murray. There were no automobile and many leading citizens had large stables, coachmen, footmen, groms, carriages, sleighs, Musk ox and lovely robes that cost hundreds of dollars, well matched horses, harness and trappings, nothing better. They would all turn out for the ice races on Little Lake. The ice races were an annual event and would attract people from all over the district.

CAPITALISTS AND MONEY-LENDERS

J. J. Lundy was one of the leading citizens of Peterborough. His office was on George St. and his residence in Ashburnham. His grounds were well kept and a show place. A sister kept house for him. He was reputed a millionaire and was agent for the North of Scotland Loan Co. of Edinburgh, Scotland. Duke Lundy was a brother and ran the tannery on Brock St.

The Lundys were one of Peterborough's oldest families. It was said that the father came to Peterborough in the early thirties of the last century. John Carnegie was a wealthy man, representing Peterborough west in parliament for a time. E. Chamberlin had a large connection with the farming community. Farmers patronized private lenders rather than chartered banks.

LUMBER DEALERS

Irwin and Boyd ran the Red Mills (Nassau). They employed about 100 hands. Nassau was a good-sized suburb. Last time I was there there was little left of the Red Mills. Alex Hamilton was manager of Irwin and Boyd's. Hamilton went later to New Ontario and returned to Peterborough with a fortune and married Dr. King's widow. She was his second wife. The Red Mills would have a hundred men in the woods in winter time. Martin Paisley Jordan came to Peterborough in the thirties and would have in excess of 300 men in the bush north of Peterborough in the winter time. He had extensive limits and in the spring would have many drives down the Otonabee and Trent rivers.

The logs would be put in rafts at the river mouth and towed to the coves at Quebec. During the American Civil War the lumber business was prosperous. Martin Jordan left Peterborough about 1876, went to Detroit, Saginaw, and St. Louis. He had many ups and downs like all lumbermen but died a millionaire. Mrs. John Garvey was a sister. C. C. Hilliard ran the Hilliard mill and had a large and extensive business. McDougall and Ludgate, later Ludgate and Co. had large interests north of Peterborough. Mr. Ludgate lived in Ashburnham. He moved to British Columbia, had ups and downs and died wealthy.

The Ulyett Sadleir Co. would have in excess of 200 men in the woods in winter time, Mr. Ulyett retired wealthy and lived to a good age. His residence on Brock St. was one of the show places in Peterborough. The Prices of Quebec had offices in Peterborough, ditto the Rosses of Montreal and Quebec and large timber limits north of Peterborough as well as in Quebec Province. Rathbun and Co. had headquarters in Deseronto and had an office and yards in Peterborough.

DRUGGISTS AND CHEMISTS

Ormonde and Walsh had one of the leading chemist shops in the Province. They were on the north east corner of George and Simcoe Sts. Ormonde was also a medical doctor. J. D. Tully and Co. were on the west side of George St. near Hunter

Edward VII Coronation Music Repeated

By RICHARD F. CHOATE.

Music of the Coronation service of King Edward VII and Queen Alexandra at Westminster Abbey on August 9, 1902, was repeated at the Metropolitan Church, Toronto, at a Thanksgiving Festival, October 16 and 17, under the direction of Dr. F. H. Torrington, then Metropolitan organist and choirmaster.

The present writer, while rummaging through his miscellaneous collection of old music the other day was surprised (and delighted) to come across a copy of souvenir program of the Metropolitan presentation, with its red and gold cover, bearing the imprint of two crowns.

Dr. Torrington went to Toronto in 1873 as Metropolitan organist. He is remembered as "a sound musician, a violinist of parts, with a fiery, intense personality which made for leadership." He soon had a festival chorus of well over two hundred, named the Philharmonic Society. When the Massey Music Hall, the donation of Hart A. Massey, was built, musical artists fled gladly from the draughty old Horticultural Building in Allan Gardens. Opening concerts in 1894 under Dr. Torrington's direction were notable. In the same year, Dr. A. S. Vogt founded the Mendelssohn Choir.

IN PETERBOROUGH

Dr. Torrington was well known and esteemed in Peterborough. He came to this city in connection with another "Royal" event—the visit to Canada of TRH the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York, later King George V and Queen Mary. He then reviewed the Peterborough contingent of one hundred singers who had been given preliminary training by the local G. W. Mulligan, in preparation for the part they were to play in the Grand Chorus of eight hundred, under the Torrington baton, in front of the City Hall, Toronto.

Dr. Torrington, in preparing the Metropolitan Church program of 1902, found it necessary to make some changes and abbreviations in the original musical service, as it was felt that the music accompanying the Litany, prayers and some other ceremonial functions of the Coronation would be inappropriate in the absence of the original surroundings. In place of these omissions other music, which it was believed would be fitting and acceptable, was introduced Especially interesting and illuminating are the annotations written into the souvenir program.

"God Save the King" (Costa's arrangement) was preceded by a fanfare of trumpets and roll of drums. The first verse was by sopranos; the second by altos; and the third by the united choirs and audience

TORONTO COPY

As Their Majesties entered the Abbey the Processional Anthem, "I Was Glad," composed especially for the Coronation by Sir Hubert Parry, was sung. The opening strains were by the Abbey Choir proper, but the entire choral force was subsequently employed in antiphonal responses to the smaller choir. This was observed in the Toronto rendering by the Coronatin Choir Party and the General Chorus. Midway in the anthem was a break enabling the Choir Boys to exercise their ancient privilege of greeting Their Majesties with "Vivat Regina Alexandra I!" and "Vivat Rex Edwardus!" The exclamations were introduced in the anthem in a rather novel manner, the boys singing their enthusiastic expressions of loyalty, and the "full-voiced choirs" answering in mighty unison.

"Land of Hope and Glory" by Dr. (later Sir) Edward Elgar, here introduced as a replacement, was sung as a bass solo by Albert Archdeacon.

The Introits, "O Hearken Thou" by Sir Arthur Sullivan, and "Let My Prayer" by Henry Purcell, were sung in Toronto by the Coronation Choir Party. The first was adapted by Sir Frederick Bridge from Sullivan's oratorio, "The Light of the World." Purcell's Offertorium is a characteristic specimen of his harmony. It is brief but impressive. The Introits prefixed the Communion services. Their Majesties then delivered their Sceptres to the Noblemen who had previously borne them and descended from their Thrones, supported by Noble attendants and then passed to the steps of the Altar.

Then the King offered bread and wine and delivered into the hands of the Archbishops the bread upon the Paten and the wine in the Chalice which were reverently placed upon the Altar and covered with "a fair linen cloth" after which the Archbishop offered a prayer of supplication. At the time of the Anointing, the King having taken his Oath, returned to his chair, and both he and the Queen, kneeling at their Faldstools, the Archbishp recited the "Veni Creator Spiritus," which the choirs sang to an ancient plainsong in unison.

Orlando Gibbon, Mus.Doc., composer of this noble plainsong, was born at Cambridge in 1583. He became one of the most renowned composers and organists England ever produced.

The Archbishop laid his hand on the Ampulla, a vessel for holding the consecrated anointing oil used at Coronations. It is of pure gold, richly chased, and is in the form of an eagle. Then followed a prayer.

"ZADOK THE PRIEST"

The anointing ceremony ended, the choir broke forth into one of Handel's sublime series of choruses, "Zadok the Priest": "And all the People Rejoiced" and "God Save the King."

The anthem, "Zadok the Priest" is one of the chain of four anthems originally composed by Handel for the Coronation of King George II and Queen Caroline. This magnificent work, which was sung at successive Coronations, has been familiar to Peterborough County choirs for well on to a century. It appears in "The Seraph, a Compilation of Anthems and Set Pieces Designed for the Use of Churches and Singing Societies, Selected from Eminent and Approved Authors by M. Burnham" (Rev. Mark Burnham of Peterborough).

"The Seraph," a limp book of about 9 by 12 inches, with canary yellow cover, was published in Toronto in 1867 by the Christian Guardian, with an inscription testifying to an awe-inspiring mechanical up-to-dateness: "Printed at the Guardian Steam Printing Establishment." With such an "Establishment" as the dernier cri there surely was no need to wait for the invention of "assembly lines" and such like.

Copies of "The Seraph" are in possession of the present writer, an inheritance from his grandfather, Thomas Choate, of Warsaw. During the latter's sixty years of musical leadership, the Dunmer choirs he conducted were on terms of easy familiarity with "Zadok" and other noble music of the Burnham compilation. While the songs of the axe and the spinning wheel were heard by day, nightfall was vibrant with the triumphant paean of the Handel Hallelujahs.

"Zadok the Priest" recalls an interesting bit of musical history. It has been suggested that Handel designed his introductory symphony to represent the procession of twelve tribes to the coronation of Solomon, but this idea is regarded by some as rather fanciful. An informative reference to its first performance has been found in a curious old London newspaper called "Parker's Penny Post," dated October 4, 1727. It says (using the customary f for s):

Mr Hendle has compofed the Mufick for the Abbey at the Coronation, and the Italian Voices with above a Hundred Muficians will perform, and the whole is allowed by thofe Judges in Mufick who have already heard it to exceed any Thing heretofore of the fame kind. It will be rehearfed this week, but Time will be kept private, left the crowd of People should be an Obftruction to the Performers.

Another replacement number introduced in the 1902 program was Mendelssohn's "Then Shall the Righteous Shine Forth," sung as a solo by Charles Elliston, tenor.

After the Enthronization of the King, the Archbishops and Bishops presented their homage and immediately thereafter the Prince of Wales removed his Coronet and kneeling before His Majesty pronounced these words of homage: "I do become your liege man of life and limb, and of earthly worship of faith and truth. I will bear unto you to live and die against all manner of folks. So help me God."

The Choir thereupon sang the Homage Anthem, "Kings Shall See and Arise," specially composed by Sir Frederick Bridge for the Edwardian Coronation.

Drums then beat, trumpets sounded and the Assembly shouted: "God Save King Edward! Long Live King Edward! May the King Live Forever!" The Archbishop left the King on the throne and passed to his chair The Coronation of Queen Alexandra, similar in many respects to that of the King, then followed.

The patriotic nymn, "O King of Kings" was introduced, that the audience might join with the United Choirs in a song of loyal devotion.

ADDITIONS

Part II of the Metropolitan presentation comprised selections additional to the special Coronation program These numbers were:

Trio and Chorus, "The Heavens are Telling" (Creation): Haydn.

Chorus. "Furl up the Flag. Sweet Peace is Come", James Coward: sung by Gentlemen of the Coronation Party.

Song, "Gloria Tibi Domina," Sir Joseph Barnby: sung by Master Percy Phillips.

Solo and Chorus "Seek Ye the Lord," J Varley Roberts: sung by E. Branscombe (Tenor) and United Choirs.

Solo, "O Rest in the Lord" (Elijah), Mendelssohn: sung by Madame Marie Hooton (then a renowned Contralto).

Chorus. "Hallelujah Chorus" (Messiah), Handel: sung by The United Choirs.

The next evening October 17, 1902, the Coronation choristers and soloists presented a magnificent program, still under the Torrington baton:

1.—Hymn. "O God, Our Help in Ages Past," by Dr Crofts. First verse by Choir Boys: second by quintette and third by male voices of the Coronation Choir Party; remainder by United Choirs and audience. Dr. Crofts, composer of this fine choral, which was sung at the Abbey Coronation service, wrote the hymn tune "St. Anns" generally regarded as one of the finest chorals ever composed by an Englishman. He died in 1727 and was buried in the Abbey.
2.—Anthem, "Comfort, O Lord," by Dr. William Crotch. When the Duke of Wellington was installed as Oxford Chancellor in 1834, Dr. Crotch composed a celebrated Oratorio.
3.—Duo and Chorus "I Waited for the Lord", from Mendelssohn's beautiful symphonic cantata, "Hymn of Praise". Sung by four boys of Coronation Choir and Metropolitan Church Choir.
4.—RECITATIVE, "Comfort Ye My People", and ARIA, "Every Valley Shall Be Exalted" (Messiah), Handel: Sung by E. Branscombe, Tenor.
5.—Anthem, "Judge Me, O God", Mendelssohn. Sung by the Coronation Choir Party.
6.—Solo and Chorus, "O Thou That Tellest" (Messiah), Handel. Sung by Madame Marie Hooton and United Choirs.
7.—Anthem, "In the Sight of the Unwise", Sir F. Gore Ousley (composer of notable church music in the Anglican tradition). Sung by Coronation Choir.
8.—Solo. "Angels Ever Bright and Fair" This inspired song from "Theodora" by Handel "can never grow old, nor can it ever die". It is said sometimes that it contains the sweetest cadence in the whole range of music. Sung by Master Percy Phillips, soprano.
9.—Anthem, "Come Unto Him", Gounod. Sung by the Coronation Choir Party.
10.—Solo, "The Choristers", Sir Arthur Sullivan. Sung by Lionel Craven Boy Soprano.
11.—Recitatives and Chorus, "Unfold ye Portals Everlasting", Gounod. With harps and trumpets. Sung by Edward Branscombe (tenor); Albert Archdeacon (baritone), and United Choirs.

Singers taking part in these memorable programs numbered about 125.

"MR. HENDLE has compofed the Mufick for the Abbey at the Coronation, and the Italian Voices with above a Hundred Muficians will perform, and the whole is allowed by thofe Judges in Mufick who have already heard it to exceed any Thing heretofore of the fame kind." — Handel's "Zadock the Priest" was composed for the Coronation of King George II and Queen Caroline. It has been sung at most Coronations since, and will be sung in the Abbey on Tuesday.

MUSIC ON DISPLAY

Coronation music referred to in the accompanying article is now being displayed at the Music Library, College and St. George streets, Toronto. The exhibit is of marked Peterborough interest since it includes copies of the Rev. Mark Burnham's books, "The Colonial Harmonist" and "The Seraph." The latter contains what was probably the first printing in Canada of the great Handel anthem "Zadok the Priest", which has been sung at successive coronations since that of King George II and Queen Caroline. It is being repeated, on June 2. The general title of the display is "Coronation Music of the Past Echoed in Canada". The music which is being shown in the fine new, enlarged quarters of the Music Library, under the progressive direction of Mrs. McNeil, is on loan from Mr. Choate.

Your Garden:

How To Deal With Chrysanthemums

By HENRY PREE (NEA)

Do not forget that last year's favorite chrysanthemums should be dug up, divided and replanted in an enriched soil. Like phlox, dividing clumps of chrysanthemum every spring is worth the time and effort.

Chrysanthemums are especially valuable in the garden because they are at their best in early and late autumn when so few other perennials are in bloom. The home gardener should not try to start chrysanthemums from seed. It is best to buy plants and set them out now.

These plants should be well-rooted cuttings and not only clumps unless one divides the clumps and plants only the young offshoots. The old center portion should be discarded.

Chrysanthemums must have sunshine at least two thirds of the day, better than average soil and plenty of room for development. Air circulation must be good, so avoid planting in corners, too close to a fence, hedge or building and overhanging eaves. Any friable well-drained soil yet retentive of moisture is satisfactory.

Chrysanthemums should have an approximately neutral soil. Manure or any sort of good humus plus a complete fertilizer rich in phosphorus should be worked well into the soil prior to planting.

An additional advantage of dividing the clumps each year is that it provides an easy method of enriching the soil as well as maintaining flower quality. Side dressings of fertilizer, during summertime, while most helpful, do not serve the same purpose. And bear in mind that chrysanthemums will not succeed in a soggy soil, hence the need for drainage. Plants should be set 10 to 12 inches apart.

Chrysanthemums should be dug up, divided and replanted in enriched soil each year

Incidentally, many gardeners grow surplus divisions in rows in order to have plants to fill in vacant spots in the flower border or garden. Chrysanthemum plants can be moved in bloom provided a fair sized ball of earth is left about the root system and they are thoroughly watered first. Such plants should be shaded for two or three days, and kept constantly moist.

Bushy plants are to be preferred and pinching back from the time the plants are six inches high until late June is therefore a part of the program. The cushion-type varieties require but one pinching while the tall-growing varieties should be pinched back three or four times. The easiest method is to use the finger and thumb and pinch off an inch and a half or so from the tips.

The first of the worthwhile chrysanthemums to please us with their glorious white-petaled blossoms is the Shasta daisy, chrysanthemum maximum. Recommended are Mt. Shastas which produce, somewhat freely, pure white flowers from June to October, and Wirral Pride with dainty frilled blossoms during late July and early August, and, if the faded blossoms are removed, again in September and early October.

Then follow the recommended early-flowering garden "mums" in a range of colors beyond description. Your nurseryman has a collection which he deems the best ever, so be guided by his recommendations.

Every gardener should include several of the cushion chrysanthemums, a low-growing variety which blooms from July till frost time. The best known is advertised as Azaleamum but those sold by the nurserymen as cushion "mums" are equally good.

Some list them just by color while others list as Pink Cushion, White Cushion, etc., and under named varieties like Little Bob, a dandy mahogany-bronze, Clara Curtis, salmon-pink, Apricot Glow, the prize of cushion mums, and Powder Puff, the best of the white cushion mums.

Gardening Questions

Q—There are a lot of starlings visiting my lawn about this time of the year. What would they be feeding on? There are a large number of holes in the lawn; look like worm holes to me. Would the starlings be after the Japanese beetle grubs?

A—The starlings are after beetle grubs. Treat the lawn with a 40 per cent chlordane mixture, using one pound for each 1,000 square feet area. If chlordane is sprayed on use one pound to 10 gallons of water; if spread dry, mix with a bushel of sand or 20 pounds of milorganite.

A·F·I·E·L·D with NICK NICKELS

Pickerel fishing is gradually picking up, according to stories trickling in from informants. There have been no large catches, but in threes and fours, and fishermen after the opening-of-the-season drubbing are feeling better about the sport.

Trout men are happy, too. The great pressure is off their quiet haunts and they are now able to knuckle down to it in peace once more. The Land o' Lakes district seems to be attracting local and visiting trouters and their catches have been satisfying.

Nitwits Afloat

It is alarming to read of the weekend accident toll in each Monday's paper and especially, now that the water season is upon us, of the majority of deaths, some weeks, by drowning in addition to highway accidents.

The cause of a lot of them can be seen in the swarms of fishermen's boats that put out from the boat liveries. Operators can only advise greenhorn sailors, of course, and generally take a lot of abuse for suggesting safety measures.

Many boats are loaded to the gunwales; they swing about under strong-arm control and lumber threateningly. Other boats are overpowered and eager-beaver riders soon find themselves dumped in the water trying to make capers, often under the affluence of incohol.

And some amateur skippers with lots of power at the twist of their wrists attempt to ride too-rough water at full clip. If they don't succeed in pounding the bottom out of their craft they can generally manage to capsize.

DON'T ride rough seas all-out.
DON'T overload.
DON'T overpower.....BE SMART.

Eliminating the Guesswork

To settle the constant argument among fishermen as to how old this fish and that fish is, here is a handy chart to paste in the lid of of your bait box. These figures are scientific statistics from Lands and Forests laboratories.

It is interesting to do some personal juggling with the figures; you will find, for instance, that legal-length 'lunge are in the five-year group, pickerel a mite over three, and so forth.

How the Unicorn Got Where He Is Today . . .

Wunsaponna time, so the story goes, the Land of Ind was overrun with ramudas of fabulous beasts with the heads of a horse, hind legs of an antelope, a lion's tail and a goat's beard. A curious single horn c red and white stripes grew right ou from the middle of their noggins, twisting in a clockwise spiral. These funny-looking fauna called "unicorn".

In addition to their odd appearance the unicorns were noted for their fleetness and great strength and it was nothing for some of the old bucks to best an elephant in combat. Artistotle mentions them and so does the Good Book.

The horn was not used entirely for fighting but contained some magic property that, if the tip touched the water of a contaminated pool, the water was immediately purified.

The unicorn could neither be trapped, snared nor outrun by mounted horsemen but some clever duck found that by tying a beautiful maiden to a tree, they would stop their roaring around, give the babe a bold eye and come up to her to exchange a little old-fashioned malarkey. All the maid had to do then was to touch the swooning sucker with her well-manicured hand and he became as docile as a dove. (Nothing old about THAT sort of malarkey.)

But the hunters ran out of good-looking unicorn bait and the unicorns ran themselves into oblivion, all but two.

Somehow, they were bought, traded or, more than likely stolen, by a Scot. No one can explain how a Scot happened to be in the Land of Ind at that time but his kind do get around, you know.

He took his team of uni-horns back to the Land of the Heather and made so much money showing them off at a tanner a time that he became very wealthy with a baronetcy, and all. He sported a family crest showing his two unicorns and when the beasts died made ivory chanters from their bills.

The King wanted the device for the Royal Coat of Arms and got them, and everyone thought they looked right handsome as supporters.

Came the Union with the British below the Border and a stuffy fight to retain the two unicorns on the revamped Coat of Arms. It made quite a to-do and the English finally agreed to place one unicorn on the left side of the Arms as a supporter. They also clapped a small crown on its head (the Hannovrians took it off) and forged a jagged golden collar and chain about its neck (to keep the Scots from taking it away).

And though the Nationalists made off with the Stone of Scone they never got up enough nerve to steal the British lion from the coat of arms and replace it with their second beloved unicorn. But give a Scotsman time.

Orioles Down Athletics 4-2; Royals Get Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Royals, fresh from a four-game sweep over Baltimore Orioles, Friday night started on Springfield Cubs, who have been keeping the International Baseball League cellar company for most of the season.

The Royals, on top of the eight-team loop with a two-game lead, started their four-game series with the Cubs with a 7-1 victory to extend their winning streak to six games.

From Springfield's performance to date—only 11 wins in 31 games—it wouldn't surprise anyone if the Canadians take the next three games. Montreal remains at Springfield for a twi-night doubleheader tonight and a single contest Sunday.

The sixth-place Orioles downed Ottawa Athletics 4-2 at Baltimore in the only other game played Friday night.

RAINED OUT

Four contests were scheduled, but two of them—Toronto at Rochester and Syracuse at Buffalo—were postponed because of rain and wet grounds respectively.

The Montreal win was Hamp Coleman's second against as many defeats. Although giving up 10 hits, he was tight in the pinches and fanned eight. Springfield used four hurlers, starter Bob Hartig suffering the loss.

Howie Fox allowed only six safeties for the Baltimore victoty. He struck out six and walked none. Starter Bill Harrington was charged with the loss.

Hope Speedway Roar Will Revive Driver

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—The roar of the Indianapolis speedway race will be used in an attempt to revive an injured driver from a five-months coma.

An hour-long tape recording of the 500-mile classic will be replayed beside the bedside of the stricken Bobby Ball, who finished fifth in the 1951 Indianapolis race.

Ball, who dropped out in the early going with car trouble last year, was injured later in a midget auto race Jan. 4. He has been unconscious ever since.

Dr. John Eisenbeiss, Ball's physician, hopes the sounds of racing cars and track noises may provide enough stimulus to bring him back to consciousness.

Keene Schools Win Field Day

KEENE (ENS) — The Lions Club held their annual scholastic field day at the Athletic Field here Friday afternoon. The races and events were open to all pupils attending any Otonabee School. The winners were decided on the point system—1st place 3 points, 2nd place 2 points, 3rd place, 1 point. Individual trophies were won by: Boy over 11 years, Duke Lang, Sixth Line, 11 points; Boy under 11 years, Morley Bonner, Stewart Hall, 10 points; Girl over 11 years, Lou Anne McDougal, Assumption, 7½ points; Girl under 11 years—Diane Richardson, Lang, 8 points. These trophies became the permanent property of the winners.

The large trophy was won by Keene schools, whose students totalled the highest number of points during the Field Day. This Trophy will be held by Keene schools for one year only and is for annual competition between schools.

The point standing of the schools were as follows: Keene schools 44, Lang 38, Cold Springs 36, Assumption 31, Sixth Line 27, Stewart Hall 15, Villiers 11, Woodview 10, Providence 9, Hiawatha 6, Indian River 5, Mathers Corners 4.

The childern were transported by buses and cars to and from Keene. The well partonized booth was conducted by members of the Lions Club—Mervin Mather, Wm. Steele, Robert Woods and Chas. Nelson. Dr. W. H. Ford and Mr. Jas. McCarthy were the committee in charge of organizing the events.

In the evening the Club sponsored a successful dance in the township hall.

Pats Ready To Open OLA Junior Season

Weather permitting, Peterborough Pats open their home OLA junior "A" schedule here tonight, playing St. Catharines at 8.45 in Miller Bowl. Plans have been made for a pre-game parade by the navy and air cadets behind a band, with the official opening at the bowl by Acting Mayor Doug Miller and Mr. D. A. McGillis.

The Pats began their season earlier this week in Brampton where they dropped a 29-14 decision to the 1952 Minto Cup champions, fading in the last half after their trip. However, Coach Doug Miller Jr. is confident he will beat them all during the season, since the club has bolstered a lot here, including half a dozen ace imports.

In the Brampton game, Bill McLaughlin of the champions paced their attack with five goals, while Bob Allan was tops for the Pats with four goals and three assists.

GRANT'S SPORT CORNER

By DON GRANT

Let's hope for a good breeze (no, chum, not shooting the breeze) for we're going sailing today with the Stony Lake Yacht Club.

The club which promotes and supervises recreational activities (especially sailing) in the Stony Lake area is actually the child of the parent Association of Stony Lake Cottagers Incorporated. Both organizations are possibly the oldest of their kind in the district.

The furthering of the sport of sail boat racing and motor boat racing is one of the main aims at the yacht club. During the years the members have put unestimable amount of time and effort into their work.

The high esteem with which other Ontario and Canadian clubs regard the Stony Lake club was evident two years ago when the yacht club was selected as host for the Canadian Dinghy Association Regatta.

Helped To Increase Interest In Dinghy Class

That event which attracted 53 boats from many parts of the world helped to increase interest in the dinghy section of the yacht club. So much so that during the past two years the club has sent six dinghies to the championships, the largest number from any one club. Again this year it will send another sextet, maybe more, to the championships in Ottawa.

The Habitant Shows Her Heels

Many members are active dinghy sailors. Such sailors as Jim Collins and Jack Matthews, well-known former University of Western Ontario football star and last year star kicker for the Orfuns, Doug Reid of Buffalo and Sue Slater are rated high in American and Canadian competition.

Keen Interest In Their Larger Sized Crafts

The club has a large number who point with pride at their larger crafts such as the medium- and large-sized sloops. They take part in the annual competitions and also cruise around the lake on pleasure trips.

Well-known names in the larger sailing class are Harry Huff's Gull, L. M. Crawford-Brown's "B" class Kestrel, Keith Russell's sloop, the Spree, Art Teamerson's Habitant, plus others. The Habitant had little trouble winning the main event last summer at Juniper Island regatta.

Last year the club started its own program of teaching boys and girls the art of sailing dinghies and other boats when the junior club was organized. This is for sailors under 16 years with special emphasis on the younger children, 10 years and under. Twice a week these youngsters raced under supervision of the older sailors and then after each race they were given brief informal talks on racing rules and on seamanship in general.

This year the Lakefield Preparatory School (better known as The Grove) will initiate a new enterprise for youth. The headmaster and directors of the Grove have undertaken to open the school during the early part of August for a special regatta for sailors 13 years and under.

Preliminary plans call for the sail boats to gather at Juniper, then be towed through Clear lake, through the locks at Young's Point, then to The Grove. There sailing and other events will be held.

This venture, thanks to the school, should give sailing in the Kawarthas, particularly Clear and Stony lakes, a good boost.

Compete During Summer For Cups

Throughout the summer the yacht club members compete for the various president's cups, six in all during July and August. Then there are other cups such as Turner's, Gillespie's, Visitors', Juniper, Stan Braund Memorial trophy and the Knapman cup. They're all keen competition.

One of the most interesting competitions is for an egg cup no less. The egg cup race, originated at least two generations ago, can be held day or night, in good or foul weather, and includes all classes.

There's also no set date for the running; you see its time and course are set by the challenger. Often it is held at night, probably around two or three in the morning. It has been held as many as two and three times a week.

Two cruises which most sailors look forward to throughout the summer are the annual trip to Chemong lake and from Juniper to South Beach. The Chemong cruise is probably the oldest and a strong rivalry has been developed for the championship of the Kawartha lakes with the Chemong sailors.

So far this year only a few have ventured out for their first whirl around the lake, but beginning next weekend, the first in June, the sailing crafts will be seen in increasing numbers, dotting Stony and Clear lakes with their white sails hugging the breeze.

Here And There In Sports

BID TO COMMIE FESTIVAL

TORONTO (CP) — Nortown Tri-Bells, Canadian men's senior basketball champions, have received an invitation to compete in a basketball tournament at the world youth festival in Communist-dominated Romania.

Alex Fisher, manager of the Tri-Bells, said Friday the invitation came from the youth festival committee but "we want to investigate the offer thoroughly before forming an opinion."

Fisher said he intends to check with Canadian authorities to see what is the government's reaction.

The pamphlet sent Tri-Bells said the festival, to be held in Bucharest Aug. 2-16, is for "peace and friendship."

Norma Williams and Shirley Eckel, both of Toronto and two prominent track athletes, said Friday they had turned down invitations to compete in the festival. They said they were among 12 Canadian athletes offered an expenses-paid trip to "see Bucharest and travel in Eastern Europe."

TUCKER-KESSELRING WIN

DUNDAS (CP)—Lloyd Tucker and Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener Rockway combined Friday for a brilliant nine-under-par 133 to capture the second annual Peller's pro-amateur best ball golf tournament. They beat the tournament record by one stroke.

Last year's winners, Hugh Borthwick of Toronto and Nick Weslock of Windsor, were dropped from the running after the morning round.

An intermittent drizzle and a driving wind hampered the field of 82. It didn't stop the sharp Kitchener pair, however, from carding a 66 in the first round and a 67 in the afternoon.

WINS WOMEN'S TOURNEY

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Cherry Morris of Toronto Oakdale carded a net 73 Friday to win the first women's invitation golf tournament of the season here. Some 110 players competed in the 17th tournament for the Elizabeth Young Trophy, first held in 1928. Anne Sharp of the Lookout Point Club, Fonthill, was low scorer with 81.

Senior OLA Tilt Off

The OLA senior "A" game scheduled between Brampton Excelsiors and the Petes' Trailermen here last night was postponed due to heavy rain. It was called off during the afternoon, and the Brampton club notified in sufficient time to save Excelsiors the trip.

The Petes are slated to play in St. Catharines tonight, and in Fergus on Coronation Day, with the next home game in Peterborough against St. Catharines next Friday.

Remember When—

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

United States defeated Australia in a Davis Cup tennis round 16 years ago today, when Don Budge and Gene Mako beat Jack Crawford and Vivian McGrath, 7-5, 6-1, 8-6 in the doubles after the U.S. had won both singles. The U.S. team went on to capture the cup final by beating England four matches to one.

Harvie Ward Enters Finals

HOYLAKE, England (AP)—Defending champion Harvie Ward, firing relentless, near-perfect golf, beat two opponents Friday in the quarter and semi-finals of the British amateur championship and made each victory look easy.

The unassuming, 27-year-old Atlantan meets Irishman Joe Carr today in the 36-hole final. That's the cast for the pay-off round which practically everyone has been predicting for two days.

First Ward ripped through Cecil Windrow, a 48-year-old chocolate factory director, 5 and 4. Then he routed 23-year-old Arthur Perowne, a member of the 1949 British Walker Cup, 6 and 5.

Ward reached the final for the second straight year and gained the chance to become the first golfer since Lawsin Little in 1934-35 to win two British amateur titles in succession.

Ward's rival today, a lanky, long-hitting Irishman who is regarded as one of Britain's best amateurs, had his troubles Friday. Still he managed to beat Joe Lambie on the 18th hole and Cecil Beamish, another Irishman, on the 19th.

Kitchener Union Charges Lockout

KITCHENER (CP)—Officials of the United Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers (CIO-CCL) charged here Friday that rubber companies in Kitchener and Waterloo would declare a lockout on Coronation Day, June 2.

Julius Koch, international representative of the United Rubber Workers, said the firms plan to close down without paying any wages. He claims the companies had violated their contracts in making this decision without negotiating with the unions as contracts demand.

A spokesman for a local rubber company intimated that he did not agree that the plant closing constituted a lockout. He said the company is fully abiding by its contract.

Predict Filly May Be Crowned Queen Of Coronation Race

By JIM BASTABLE

TORONTO (CP)—A filly may be crowned queen of Canadian-bred three-year olds on Coronation Day.

That is the day when about 20 of the country's equine aristocracy go to the post for the 94th running of the Queen's Plate at fashionable Woodbine Park. It is also the day when the country's largest sports crowd—an expected 50,000—make it the event of the turf year.

Traditionally, the Plate has the color of a royal garden party; the ladies in their summer finery and the men in toppers, striped trousers and frock coats basking in the fenced-off members' enclosure. The day-to-day race fans crowd the grandstand and spill over into the infield.

All the hopes, fears, patient care and training of months will be bundled into two minutes of drama as the horses pound over the nine-furlong course in pursuit of the Queen's 50 Guineas, $10,000 or so in cash, and the indelible historical fact that such and such a thoroughbred won.

POSE STRONG THREAT

This year the fillies, with the big-league combination of jockey Eddie Arcaro and E. P. Taylor's Canadiana considered a "Sure thing," pose a strong threat to take the 1¼-miles, $20,000-added stake. There is plenty of cash around that says at least three of them will be tough to beat.

Not since 1943 — that's when Paolita did it — has a filly entered the Plate winner's circle. This may be the year if such speedsters as Canadiana, Virginia Fair, Avella and Winter Lady are ready.

The people's choice will be Canadiana. Although the big bay filly was fourth in the May 23 Plate Trial, she probably will go to the post June 2 at less than even money. She was the 8-to-5 winter-book favorite, shortest price in history, and 1-to-10 in the trial.

Canadiana was a doubtful starter earlier this week. However, she covered a mile workout in 1:40.2 at Woodbine, in east Toronto, Thursday and Taylor, a Toronto industrialist, was convinced that she was "fit and well."

RUN AGAINST HER

Up against her will be Virginia Fair, Western Canada juvenile champion last year, owned by James A. Charlesworth of Edmonton; Avella, second-choice favorite in the winter book owned by Jack Addison of Toronto; and Winter Lady, owned by Miss Olive Armstrong of Toronto.

The records show that only four fillies have won the Plate — the oldest continuously-run horse race in North America — in the last 25 years. This year they may get a good run from J. R. McIntyre's Blue Scooter, an 11-to-1 shot which beat out Canadiana last Saturday in the second division of the trial, and Canadiana's stablemate, Lively Action, which won the first division of the trial.

Here are a few Plate facts and figures:

It was started in 1860 when Don Juan, owned by James White of Carleton, now West Toronto, won the classic, then over the 1½-miles distance.

The 50 guineas is a royal donation. It was originally made in 1859 by Queen Victoria upon petition of the Toronto Turf Club.

Fergus Wallops Mimico 25-7

Fergus (CP) — Fergus Thistles had little trouble in thumping Mimico Mountaineers 25-7 here Friday night in a Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association game.

Fergus started with a first-period lead of 6-0, pushed it to 13-2 at half time and 22-3 at the end of the third.

Stan Abbott and Don Campbell paced the Fergus attack with four goals each. Bob Dobbie and Elmer Harris contributed three each.

Mimico's Fred Sandford scored three.

The game between Peterborough Trailermen and Brampton Excelsiors at Peterborough scheduled here for Friday night was postponed because of rain.

C's Beat King Edward

Confederation won 6-1 the past week over King Edward in a public school softball tilt. They got a run in the third and won it in the fifth with five, the losers being limited to one in the third. There were few errors and the outfields went good in the keen contest. Each side fanned six, while the victors drew five walks against two. Two homers helped the Confederation cause. Teams:

King Edward: Simmons, Walling, R. Rowe, Waldie, I. Rowe, King, McCullough, Livingston, Hedges, Jones, Warner, Heard.

Confed.: Steele, Trotter, Brown, Ferguson, Anderson, Kimball, Woods, Rollins, Moffat, Warner, Quick.

Umpires, C. Bullock and A. Hill.

Man Mountain Dean Dies

NORCROSS, Ga. (AP) — Man Mountain Dean died Friday.

Born Frank S. Leavitt in the Hells Kitchen section of Brooklyn, N.Y., about 62 years ago, Dean moved to this hilly section of Georgia in 1930. He was working in his yard when he died of a heart attack.

He tried his hand at prize-fighting and became a good fighter before turning to wrestling. Though never a champion he boasted of three records: most bouts, 6,383; smallest percentage of losses, 78; and most years in competition, 41.

He played as a featured actor in 38 pictures, including one portrayal as King Henry VIII.

The bearded 270-pound giant pioneered the current gaudy style in wrestling. In his heyday he earned from $500 to $1,500 for individual matches.

Dean never went past the fifth grade in school when a boy.

"I attended five colleges to play football, but never went to class," he once boasted.

In 1919, he beat 19 men in one day to win the king's wrestling tournament in London. "Lotsa times," he said, "I fought 14 bums in one day."

BOBO BRAZIL, above, who meets the fabulous GORGEOUS GEORGE in the main event of next Wednesday's wrestling card at the Brock Arena. Gorgeous George is known the world over not only for his wrestling ability but his extensive collection of gowns, his bobby pins and his valet. The bout itself should be a sizzler with the great Negro star Brazil extending the gorgeous one all the way. The entire card is of main bout calibre with TIMOTHY GEOHAGEN taking on NANJO SINGH in the semi-final. The opener features HOWARD CANTONWINE pitted against PAT FLANAGAN. With this array of stars and the world-famous Gorgeous George the largest crowd of the season is predicted.

Cardinals Plaster Milwaukee 11-7, Dodgers Win 7-4

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

The baseball pennant races pass the first of their three most familiar landmarks today—Memorial Day—with New York Yankees breezing in front in the American League and Milwaukee Braves hanging on stubbornly in the National. The fans usually take a special look at the standings after the Memorial Day, Fourth of July and Labor Day doubleheaders, since these dates split the season into four convenient quarters. Nobody particularly claims the leaders on Memorial Day will be hot pennant contenders, but records of the last five seasons show that any club as much as five games behind after today's twin bills is pretty much out of the running.

Using this arbitrary figure this year you would eliminate Philadelphia, St. Louis and Detroit in the American League and Pittsburgh, Chicago and Cincinnati in the National. Boston and Washington in the American would have to be considered doubtful.

Here's how the races have worked out in recent years:

1952—Brooklyn Dodgers were a half-game behind New York Giants after the Memorial Day games and the Yankees were 3½ behind Cleveland. The Dodgers won the pennant by 4½ games, the Yanks by two games.

GIANTS BEHIND

1951—The Giants were 4½ behind Brooklyn and the Yanks were two back of Cleveland. The Giants won the pennant in a playoff against the Dodgers. The Yanks won by five games.

1950—Philadelphia Phillies were 1½ games behind Brooklyn and the Yankees were three in front of Detroit. The Phils won by two, the Yanks by three.

After Friday's games only two lengths separate the first-place Braves from the fourth-place Phillies in the National League. St. Louis and Brooklyn moved within half a game of the top as the Cardinals trounced Milwaukee 11-7 and the Dodgers defeated Pittsburgh, 7-4. Philadelphia routed the Giants 12-3 and last place Cincinnati finally won its 10th game of the season, a 6-3 verdict over Chicago. Curt Simmons struck out eight, walked two and allowed only four hits to the Giants.

WIN SLUGGING DUEL

The Yankees won a slugging duel from the Athletics, 12-7, and moved four full games in front of the second-place Chicago White Sox, who were beaten 2-1 by Cleveland. St. Louis scored six runs in the 11th inning to whip Detroit 11-5 for the fifth win in five games and Washington defeated Philadelphia 4-2.

The Dodgers' victory over John Lindell and his knuckleball was their sixth in a row and featured the hitting of first baseman Gil Hodges who drove home three runs.

Bob Elliott, who as a free agent convinced St. Louis manager Marty Marion that he was still a big leaguer, connected with his 2,000th hit, a double, during the big 11th inning uprising at Detroit. It was one of two doubles he hit during the game.

Mike Garcia held the White Sox to six hits as the Indians ruined the starting debut of Bob Keegan, one of the Sox' prize rookies. The victory moved Cleveland within two percentage points of the second place Chicagoans.

Paul's Writing About Love World's Greatest Sermon

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

If we omit the sermons in the great parables of Jesus, I think the greatest of all Christian sermons is Saint Paul's discourse Chapter of I Corinthians.

It was itself the theme of a longer and notable sermon, widely circulated in the earlier part of the present century. I am sure that many readers have known, and probably still have among their books, the sermon by the late Henry Drummond, Scottish scientist and Christian leader, published under the title "Love the Supreme Gift: the Greatest Thing in the World."

I Corinthians 13 is a supreme example of brevity, preciseness and simplicity in the presentation of a sublime subpect. The subject undoubtedly inspired in Paul the quality of his utterance but if it were considered only for its style, apart from its theme, that Chapter is remarkable.

I do not know just what it may mean to one thoroughly versed in the original Greek. Foreign writings often suffer in translation. But in its English translation Paul's sermon has a balance and rhythm, a music that one can feel as he reads it aloud.

I suppose that into consideration of that sermon the question of translation does enter. I suppose, also, that almost everywhere it is admitted that for the "charity" of the Authorized King James Version we should substitute the word "love," as in the latest "Revised Standard Version." The same applies to the translations of Weymouth, Ballantine, Moulton and Goodspeed.

Moffatt, in what has probably been the most widely used modern translation of the Bible by an individual scholar, sticks in this instance to the word "charity," though in many passages his translation differs from that of the Authorized Version.

Incidentally I met James Moffatt some years ago and walked with him on Beacon Hill in Boston. His translation was at that time being somewhat freely read in churches instead of the Authorized Version. This had occasioned some controversy. In edi-

WORLD FAITH BAHA'I

"Prejudices of any kind are the destroyers of human happiness and welfare. Until they are dispelled the advancement of the world of humanity is not possible, yet racial, religious and national bias are observed everywhere . . . Therefore if we seek to establish peace we must cast aside these obstacles, for otherwise agreement and composure are not to be attained." Abdu'l-Baha.

TAKING PART IN PARADE

Members of the 93rd Battalion, who are also marching in the Coronation day parade Tuesday, have been asked to muster at 6:15 p.m. Tuesday at the Armoury wearing their berets and medals.

SPECIAL SERVICES

In many of Peterborough churches on Sunday there will be special services marking the coronation of Queen Elizabeth. Special forms of service have been issued by several of the denominations and these will be followed at the morning service.

OSHAWA UNION SUPPORT

Striking production workers are getting strong financial support from other trade unions in Peterborough and outside centres as well. On Friday a group of men and women from Local 293, United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL), went to the General Motors plant in Oshawa for a plant-gate collection They came back with $1,309—all voluntary donations by the Auto Workers. In Peterborough they are getting regular donations from the two other Packinghouse locals (Canada Packers and A. Wander Ltd.); Brewery Workers; Outboard Marine Workers Union (CCL); Local 524, UE; Local 570, IUE (Western Clock Co); and Sunday night the Peterborough Trades and Labor Council (TLC) and the International Association of Machinists (AFL) are co-sponsoring a movie in the PCVS auditorium, the silver collection to go to the strikers.

Not Alone

Peterborough wasn't alone in its shivering through chilly spring weather Friday when the thermometer registered relatively low in most Canadian communities. Here the high for the day was 55 and the low 43. With the exception of Edmonton with a high of 75 and London, Ont., with a high of 70, a national weather report shows all maximums for the day below 65. At Dawson the mercury went as low as 36. Today is still chilly with noon temperature at 52, but predictions for Sunday are better with the high in the area expected to be 75. Some sun is expected with intermittent showers which will end Sunday morning.

SPECTACULAR WIND-UP TO THE COURSE of a firefighting school, held in Peterborough for the past week by experts of the Fire Marshal's department, took place on Friday morning when crews extinguished oil fires by water-fogging methods near the Quaker Oats Company power house, London St. Continuous pillars of towering black smoke had citizens blocking telephone switchboards with calls of inquiry: "Where is the fire?" It was under competent supervision. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Dr. J. S. Pratten Psychiatrist At Civic Hospital

Dr. John S. Pratten, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Pratten, Gilmour St., has been appointed area consultant in psychiatry for Civic Hospital. He will take over his new post next week.

Recently Dr. Pratten has been senior physician of the men's division of the Ontario Hospital in St. Thomas and director of the city's menal health clinic since January, 1950.

A veteran of the medical corps in the Second World War, he served two years overseas in England and much of Europe with the Canadian Army. On his return, he was awarded a fellowship by Queen's University for a year's post graduate study in phychosomatic medicine.

DR. JOHN S. PRATTEN

Dr. Pratten graduated in 1943 from Queen's medical school in a special course speeded up due to the needs of wartime. He had his early education in Peterborough public and secondary schools.

After concluding his work in psychosomatic medicine in Kingston, he spent a year in that work at Sunnybrook Veterans' Hospital, Toronto, then moved to St. Thomas.

10 City Firemen Receive Fire College Certificates

Fifteen firemen—10 of them from Peterborough—received certificates Friday afternoon indicating that they had passed the Ontario Fire College's 40-hour course in basic firefighting. Acting Mayor Douglas Miller and Alderman Harold Rehill, chairman of the city's fire, water and light committee, were both on hand for the graduation ceremony in the gunners' mess at the Armouries.

Altogether 30 regular and volunteer firemen attended the five-day regional fire school sponsored by the Ontario Fire Marshal's office. Workmen who are in charge of fire brigades in Peterborough industries also took the course.

To graduate, the student firefighters could not miss any of the lectures and could not be late more than twice. Other duties prevented many of the men from attending all the lectures, so they could not obtain graduation certificates.

Five members of the Peterborough Fire Department got certificates: Elton (Bud) Bannon, Harold Cain, Clare Bennett, Clifford Perry and Bill Torrance. Bannon and Perry are rookie firemen having joined the department in March when eight new men were taken on strength. The other three are veteran firefighters.

Other Peterborough graduates were Jack Driscoll, Western Clock Co., Allen Lester, Dominion Woollens and Worsteds, Arthur E. Parker, Canadian General Electric, and Edward J. Ferguson and Lorne B. Cunningham, Quaker Oats.

The five graduates from outside the city were Walter Hately of Bowmanville, Walter Lindhurst of Nephton, Arnold Watson of Lindsay, Chief Alex. MacDonald of Campbellford, and Thomas Lyle of Bowmanville.

A staff of six instructors from the Fire Marshal's office gave lectures and practical work on firefighting subjects. The syllabus required the graduates to be proficient in ladder raising, forcible entry, tying of knots, operation of two-way radio, gas mask drill, care of hose, operation of inhalators and resuscitors, use of various types of extinguishers, salvage, and general knowledge on how to cope with different types of fires.

The garage at the rear of the Fire Hall was used as a smoke house so the student firemen could test their efficiency while working in gas masks, at the same time enveloped in smoke.

The final session, Friday afternoon, was a question-and-answer period on problems that had come up during the week-long course. It was presided over by David Low, acting chief of the fire services division. The instructors were also on hand to answer queries on their specialties.

Acting Mayor Miller, himself a city fireman for three years, told the student firemen that no matter how great their experience, there was always something more to be learned.

"My experience of firefighting is that there is something new every day," he said. "You don't know it all even if you've been firefighting for 50 years."

The discovery of new chemicals changes the methods of coping with fires, he said, and the atomic age opens up a new era in firefighting.

He thanked the instructors, and said: "I feel that these classes are of benefit to each and every one of us, particularly those of us who are here from the smaller municipalities.....You should go back now and pass along your knowledge to others."

Instructors included H. J. Mallory of Kingston, George Alexander of Toronto, Lou Carriere of Cornwall, Cy Versteeg of London, Ont., William O'Sullivan of Welland, and John Turnbull of Toronto.

Before coming to Peterborough as fire chief, Ralph Leonard was an instructor in these regional fire schools.

REV. ARNOLD A. MATHEWS, BA, BD, minister of George St. United Church, who has been elected chairman of the Peterborough Presbytery at a meeting of the Presbytery held this week in Simcoe Street United Church, Oshawa. Mr. Mathews has been minister of George St. Church since September, 1950.

Religious Services Start Celebration For Coronation

Religious services in the city Sunday will be dedicated to the Coronation, and Sunday evening a special service will be held in Civic Arena.

These services open the city's three-day celebration of the Coronation, which is to last until Tuesday evening, concluding with a show of fireworks at Little Lake.

Time of the special Coronation service in Civic Arena is 8 p.m.

Monday evening there will be a mammoth Coronation street dance at Aylmer and Charlotte Sts. directed by the Lions Club. The dance will begin at 9 p.m.

TRACK MEET

A COSSA lakeshore district track and field meet will be held Tuesday afternoon — Coronation Day—at Exhibition Park. Originally scheduled for May 18, the meet was cancelled because of a dangerous track.

A number of RCAF aircraft will fly over the city in the evening on Coronation Day. The number of craft that will appear is not known. They will be part of the group of airplanes that will participate the same day in the fly past at Ottawa.

Tuesday evening's celebration will get under way with a parade, leaving the Armoury parade square at 7.30 p.m. and going to Miller Bowl, where a civic ceremony will be held at 8.30 p.m.

Leaders of the major religious denominations will take part, and a mass oath of allegiance will be led by Judge John deN. Kennedy.

Youth, Girl Injured As Train Motorcycle Collide At Aylmer Street Crossing

15-Year-Old Girl Passenger Suffers Serious Head Injuries; Thrown From Seat, Lands 35 Feet Away

Two young people were injured when their motorcycle was in collision with the noon CPR train at the Aylmer St. crossing a block away from the CPR station at noon today. Ed LaFonte, 20, RR 1, Peterborough, South Monaghan, received a cut on the head, but his passenger riding behind, Delcie Clements, 15, 373 Bethune St., suffered serious head injuries. Both were taken to Civic Hospital.

LaFonte, who told police he had the motorcycle only two days, was driving south on Aylmer St. as the noon train was heading for the station crossing the intersection at about 10 miles an hour at 12.47 p.m.

SWERVED

The driver apparently saw the train and put on his brakes. He skidded 111 feet and then swerved east at the last minute to try to go around in front of the train.

He almost made it but the cow catcher on the train just ticked the rear of the motorcycle to send it out of control. It skidded south-east and crashed through the iron pipe railing around the small lawn in front of the Peterborough Fuel and Transfer office. It smashed broadside up against the wall of the office.

LaFonte was thrown off there. His young passenger was tossed down beside the railway tracks and ended up 35 feet from the point of impact with the train on a grassy bank on the south side of the tracks. She was unconscious.

Both were attended by Dr. Donald Whyte.

Conductor F. L. Howard of Fenelon Falls didn't see anything of the accident. Engineer F. Hall of Toronto, said he saw the girl lying on the bank, but he knew no more about it than that. A bit of red paint on the cow catcher was the only sign that the train had hit the red motorcycle.

There are automatic wig-wag signals and a warning bell at the crossing. It is believed LaFonte will be charged with careless driving.

Constables Andre Dalton and Cecil Bowyer investigated.

Harvards, Daks To Fly Overhead

Aircraft flying over the city on Coronation Day will be Harvard trainers and Dakota cargo planes, Trenton RCAF station said today.

The Dakotas, twin-engined craft, will pass over the city sometime between 5:15 and 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, and the Harvards will arrive over the city about 7:30 p.m.

There will be 10 Dakotas and 12 Harvards from Trenton, plus others from Centralia RCAF station in Western Ontario. The aircraft will have taken part in the fly past at Ottawa, and will return from the capital along Highway 7 to Peterborough.

From here the craft will fly south to Port Hope, then east along the lakeshore to Trenton station. The visit of these aircraft was arranged for by the RCAF Association.

Ex-Prisoner Of War Wins Literary Award For Fiction

TORONTO (CP) — A Scottish-Canadian who got "the writing bug" while in a German prison camp today was named winer of Governor-General's Literary Award for fiction for 1952.

Author of "The Pillar," the prize-winning novel, is David Walker, 42-year-old former British Army officer who settled in the quiet resort town of St. Andrews, N.B., five years ago.

Announcement of the fiction prize and four other annual awards was made by Dr. Frank Stiling, chairman of the awards board of the Canadian Authors Association.

OTHER AWARDS

The award for creative non-fic- went to Bruce Hutchison, editor of the Victoria Daily Times, for his biography of the late W.L. Mackenzie King—"The Incredible Canadian." His classic book, "The Unknown Country" won him a similar prize in 1943. A week ago the biography of the former prime minister won for Mr. Hutchison the University of British Columbia medal for a popular Canadian biography.

Donald Creighton, Toronto, won the award for academic non-fiction with his latest book, "John A. Macdonald, the Young Politician." Professor of history at the University of Toronto, Mr. Creighton is a well-known author.

Dr. E. J. Pratt, professor emeritus of English at Victoria College, University of Toronto, was awarded the poetry prize for "Toward the Last Spike." During his long career Dr. Pratt has won many medals for literary achievements.

The award in the juvenile class went to Marie McPhedran, wife of a Toronto doctor, for "Cargoes on the Great Lakes."

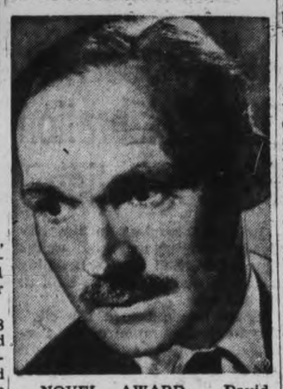
Mr. Walker, winner of the fic- tion award, grew up in Fifeshire, Scotland. He went to military college at Sandhurst and in 1931 joined the Black Watch and later spent five years in India.

He first came to Canada in 1938 as aide-de-camp to the late Lord Tweedsmuir, then governor-general. A year later he married Willa Magee of Montreal and the couple have three sons.

After war broke out he rejoined his regiment, was captured at Dunkerque in 1940 and spent the rest of the war in German prison camps. Subsequently he went to India as comptroller to the late Lord Wavell, then viceroy of India.

In 1947 Mr. and Mrs. Walker returned to Canada. Another novel, "Digby," is scheduled for publication this fall.

Born in Prescott, Ont., 52 years ago, Bruce Hutchison was taken to British Columbia as a small child and his boyhood was spent near Victoria. A newspaper man, he has been a member of the press gallery at Ottawa and prior to joining the Victoria Daily Times was for some years associate editor of the Winnipeg Free Press.



He had several short stories published in leading United States magazines and a novel "The Hollow Men," published in 1944, was chosen by the book-of-the-month club. In 1950 another book, "The Fraser," was published in the Rivers of America series.

NON-FICTION AWARD — The Governor-General's literary award for creative non-fiction for 1952 has been awarded to Bruce Hutchison, editor of the Victoria Times. It was for his biography of the late W. L. Mackenzie King—"The Incredible Canadian." His classic book, "The Unknown Country," won him a similar award in 1943.

JUVENILE AWARD—Marie McPhedran of Toronto has been awarded the Governor-General's literary award in the juvenile class for 1952. She is the author of "Cargoes on the Great Lakes."

NOVEL AWARD — David Walker, 42-year-old British army officer who settled in St. Andrews, N.B., five years ago, has been awarded the Governor-General's literary award for fiction for 1952. The prize-winning novel is "The Pillar."

WELL-KNOWN WRITER

Mr. Creighton, winner of the academic non-fiction award, is already well-known as the author of "Dominion of the North," "A History of Canada," "The Commercial Empire of the St. Lawrence, 1760-1850" and "British North America at Confederation."

Born and educated in Toronto and at Balliol College, Oxford, he returned to his native city to join the department of history at the University of Toronto. In 1951 he was awarded the Royal Society of Canada's Tyrrell Medal for historical writing.

HISTORIAN—Donald Creighton of Toronto has been awarded the Governor-General's literary award for academic non-fiction for 1952. He wrote "John A. Macdonald, the Young Politician." Professor of History at the University of Toronto, Mr. Creighton is a well-known author.

Dr. Pratt, winner of the poetry award, is a native of Newfoundland. After a brief time spent in elementary school teaching he carried on his studies at the University of Toronto. He accepted an academic appointment at Victoria College in 1919. He has remained at the college ever since, the inspiration of thousands of undergraduates.

Before writing "Toward the Last Spike" Professor Pratt produced seven books of verse.

Marie McPhedran, winner of the award for juveniles, was born and educated at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. She specialized in modern history at the University of Toronto and for a period became a history teacher in a vocational school.

Other children's books by Mrs. McPhedran are "Golden North" and "David and the White Cat."

AWARDS JUDGES

Following were the judges for the awards:

The Movie Column

3-D Technique Found Tough On Actors

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The new 3-D techniques may be a boon to the box office, but they can be tough on actors.

So says Ann Miller, who now is tapping her way through "Kiss Me Kate," the first big musical to be done in wide screen and three dimensions. The actors are doing their work under huge banks of bright lights.

"The other day the temperature on the set was 120 degrees," Miss Miller said. "Then I had to step in and do a dance number in front of three mirrors. You can imagine how hot that was!"

The extra lights are needed for two reasons: 1. The camera's range is wider and more of the set must be lighted; 2. The set must be brighter because of the light lost by viewing the picture through tinted glasses.

HAVE SINUS TROUBLE

While the movie set is hot, the rest of the stage is air conditioned to a cool temperature. The change of temperature has been causing sinus trouble and colds for Miss Miller, Kathryn Grayson and other members of the cast and crew.

"And then we're supposed to act gay and carefree in front of the camera!" Ann exclaimed.

New dimensions in movies are readily available in the Los Angeles area, at least. Theatrical pages list ads for eight different attractions, all with some new kind of gimmick. Now if the studios would only get together on one kind of system the rest of the theatres might also be able to do business.

Arch Oboler has never revealed the cost of his pioneering 3-D epic, "Bwana Devil." But from a reliable source I hear that it ran $200,000. The bill came to about $300,000 with the cutting and processing. Not a bad investment for a film that is bringing in millions.

Hotel Caretaker Charged With Murder

HAMILTON (CP) — Police announced early today that Harry La Fortune, 27-year-old hotel caretaker, has been charged with the murder of an unidentified woman who was found strangled in his boarding house room.

Police said the woman, about 40, was found by the operator of the rooming house. They said she was strangled with a blouse she had been wearing.

The operator of the rooming house told police she heard a man and woman arguing late Friday night. She went upstairs and found the partly-dressed woman lying diagonally across the bed. A man was sitting on one side of the bed.

Traffic Accidents Kill 151 In 4 Months

TORONTO (CP)—Traffic accidents in Ontario during the first quarter in 1953 took 151 lives, six less than in the same period in 1952. The total number of accidents however, is 10 per cent higher than for the first three months last year.

Statistics released at Queen's Park show that the number of injured rose from 3,953 in the first quarter of 1952 to 4,552 this year. Property damage increased to $4,933,829 from $3,980,700.

Among the traffic fatalities this year were 25 children between the ages of five and 14, an increase of 25 per cent over the January, February and March figures of last year.

Coronation Naval Review Shows Changes Since 1937

TORONTO (CP)—When the Quee sails through the long lines of upwards of 300 ships assembled for the Coronation naval review she will see a vastly different coucept of seapower to that reviewed by her father, George VI, on the occasion of his coronation in 1937.

Of particular significance, and well in line with the most modern practice, is the growing strength of Commonwealth seapower, says the Navy League of Canada.

Canada's powerful squadron of s ships includes the light fleet carrier HMCS Magnificent, two heavy cruisers, Ontario and Quebec, the fleet class destroyer Sioux and two frigates, La Hulloise and Swansea. Except for the carrier, completed later, all are proud battle-tested veterans of the Second World War.

ONE CAPITAL SHIP

A striking feature of the 1937 review were the 11 great capital ships, not one of which is now afloat. The Queen, accompanied by her sailor husband in his uniform of an admiral of the fleet, in the forthcoming review will see just one capital ship, the mighty HMS Vanguard, but in the other classes of ships on display the new vision of seapower will be predominant.

There will be 10 aircraft carriers, double the number shown in '37 and all modern craft which were not then in existence. Eight of these will be flat-tops of the Royal Navy, including HMS Eagle, the most modern ship of her type in the world, and the squadrons of naval aviation on display will include jet attackers along with new types not yet in general service.

Royal Navy cruiser strength now is at the lowest ebb in this century's history. Only 12 ships of this class will be on display from the Royal Navy and of these a substantial proportion are the "daring," former super-destroyer class now considered to be in the light cruiser category. Presence of two heavy cruisers from Canada will be a heartening sight to most observers who believe in the effectiveness of the heavy, long-range cruiser equipped with aircraft.

Characteristic of the concept of anti-submarine warfare in modern seapower is the new and greatly-enlarged frigate class of ships, a wartime development now carrying out the former anti-submarine duties of destroyers. Forty of these ships will be present at the review and in this class Canada, like the Royal Navy, is well supplied.

In addition, in the current naval building program, 14 of the most modern and powerful ships of this type in the world are now under construction in Canadian yards. Another significant development of modern times is shown in the greatly increased number of minesweepers which will be present.

MODERN SUBS

New submarines, embodying the lessons of the Second World War and post-war development, will be on display, 30 being shown in contrast with 22 at the '37 review.

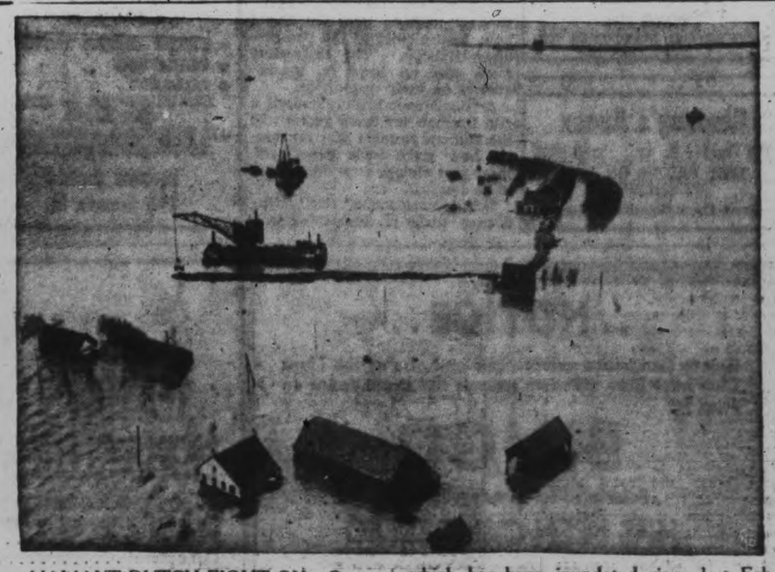
In coastal patrol craft the Royal Navy now is reaping the benefits of well-directed research and experiment. Both gas turbine and diesel engines come in this category and the diesel development, as exemplified by the 2,500 hp. Deltic engine now under sea trial is phenomenal. By improved design and the use of new alloys admiralty builders are claimed to have produced a diesel with a specific weight lower than 5 lb. per shaft horsepower, which compares with more than 80 lb. per shaft horsepower in a standard commercial diesel of similar power. In this class of ship Canada, with her long coastlines to patrol, has a particular interest.

While Her Majesty's modern ships may not present the spectacle of impressive might conveyed by the leviathans of yesterday her seapower, in terms of today's needs, is well able to meet and withstand the type of attack which the experience of two world wars and present-day naval tactics have taught is most likely to be encountered in the foreseeable future. In most classes design, construction and armament compare favorably with anything afloat and in carrier and one or two other classes the fighting ships of the British Commonwealth are pre-eminent.

New Canadian Champ For Flagpole-Sitting

WINNIPEG (CP)—Canada has a new amateur flagpole-sitting champion but man is he wet!

At 8 p.m. CDT (9 p.m. EDT) Friday, Irwin Johnsrude passed the former record of six days and six nights aloft but cold, wet windy weather left his ardor dampened. Irwin is sitting on a pole at one of Winnipeg's drive-in theatres.



The youthful university student will work as a waiter for the summer and to protect his health, plans to come down in two or three days, depending on the weather.

Appointed Editor

MONTREAL (CP)—Appointment of Vernon A. Pope as editor of the Family Herald and Weekly Star was announced Friday by John G. McConnell, president of the Montreal Star Co. Mr. Pope, who succeeds the late Roderick S. Kennedy, has been assistant editor since January, 1949.

$50,000 Bank Holdup

SEATTLE (CP)—A pistol-waving bandit toured a suburban bank with the manager Friday while the bank official collected money from three tellers' cages, then herded 16 persons into a back room and escaped with an estimated $50,000. Federal bureau of investigation officers set the loss after checking bank records.

VALIANT DUTCH FIGHT ON—Operating a crane from a floating barge, workmen erect a new dike from the muddy soil of a farm near Schelphoek, The Netherlands, which has been inundated since last February's disastrous floods. The old dike, severed by the sea, can be seen in the background. Until the new dike is in place, the sea will come and go with the tides.

Bootlegger King Begins Sentence

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Cecil Smith, former king of local bootleggers who has been prominent in court and police commission hearings since he was convicted on a liquor charge March 16, Friday started a two-month sentence in county jail.

After being convicted and sentenced by magistrate A. W. MacMillan, Smith went to the police commission to charge he had been the victim of "a police shakedown."

He said he had paid constable Gilbert Robitaille bribes on various occasions to keep from being convicted on liquor counts. His statement led to the laying of four charges against Robitaille. The police officer was later cleared and promoted to sergeant.

Appeal against the conviction for keeping liquor for sale was dismissed Friday by Judge J. A. Legris.

Yugoslavs Enthusiastic People

Big Plans For Education, Medicine

(This is the eleventh of a series of articles by I. Norman Smith of Ottawa, newspaperman, who is touring Europe. He is spending several weeks in Belgrade.)

By I. NORMAN SMITH

SPLIT, Yugoslavia, May 19.—It is so hard to resist Yugoslav enthusiasm. Whether they be offering a third helping of fish or recounting tales of the partisan resistance.

It was the same way talking with Rodoljub Colakovic, a pleasant and quiet mannered man who didn't look as though he had served 12 years in jail for participation in an attempt to assassinate a Minister of the Interior in the old regime.

Mr. Colakovic presides over more than education. His is a ministry of all the arts and cultures except radio, and I congratulated him on his discernment.

He was frank, and when he spread out his large hands with a gesture to say that there were a million and a half illiterates in his country I thought the plum brandy and coffee cups—inevitable office equipment—would be whisked off the little table.

The country was backward anyway, and war damage wrecked most of the schools. But they are starting afresh, and many city schools are working three shifts a day. In the country the peasants have become aware of their ignorance and are building their own schoolhouses at their own expense. The army, too, is using education as never before, day and night classes, and the radio provides foreign language lessons.

UNIVERSITY VERY BUSY

I looked around the University of Belgrade, which now has 32,000 students, and it was teeming with activity. Before the war there were 17,000 university students in Yugoslavia, today there are 61,000.

All education in Yugoslavia is free, right through to the end of university. Enrolment at university is kept down only by the elimination tests of examinations. Any student with good marks and aptitude will find the doors open to him, not only without cost but while he is still a student his child bonus, coming to him from birth, of 3,000 dinars a month, continues. About 3,000 dinars a month is about one-third of the average salary in Yugoslavia.

Mr. Colakovic, who speaks English very comfortably, stressed that, as in Canada, the provinces (they call them republics here) are autonomous in education matters. Schools are conducted in the mother tongue of the district. He said he knew all about provincial sensitivities in education when I told him of our troubles, and that he kept a careful course to avoid interference or trespass. But he said it had been found nevertheless most useful to have a so-called Minister of Education to act as a clearing office for the six republics for all education matters, to avoid duplications of effort and expense and to help make the whole nation greater than the sum of its parts.

SOUNDS GOOD IDEA

I said that all sounded like a good recommendation of the system for Canada, and he replied with a twinkle that maybe it would help us but that if his ministry forbade him from directing the republics of Yugoslavia it certainly forbade him from directing other countries what to do.

Mr. Colakovic in effect heads a subcommittee of cabinet which concerns itself with education and culture. It seems that the state has not gone much further than Canada in helping the pursuit of culture. But it has laid down minimum salaries for painters and sculptors and musicians, and when an artist of outstanding promise comes along they try to find him a post as teacher or instructor somewhere without too much work attached. This in effect pays him his living and lets him work at his gifts.

NOT ALL COMMUNISTS

I asked flatly whether a non-Communist might get such aid. Mr. Colakovic grinned widely and said Yugoslavia was full of sculptors who were not Communists. He reminded me that the Communist party itself was very small. He said non-Communists could and did get assistance to write or paint or get works published. But he added that such assistance would be given only provided they were not writing attacks upon the Communist system or, say, arguments in behalf of return to the monarchy.

As a matter of fact a few days later in Zagreb when I enquired about buying some Yugoslav paintings I was referred to the president of the Zagreb Association of Painters and he recommended that I call on one man in particular. On going to his studio it turned out that he was a non-Communist. He wasn't shouting about it, but he made no secret of it. Yet he was the painter whose work the association president recommended I buy.

CHANGE TACTICS

"If it is a question of art, or of science, or of building, or of getting the right man in a government job," said Mr. Colakovic, "we no longer demand the man be a Communist. Perhaps before, yes. But not now. We just ask that a man be not actively anti-Communist." I must add that I have got confirmation of this from a number of foreign observers who say that the last year or two has brought great liberalization in this way.

However, as I said at the beginning, this is an outfit of enthusiasts and it isn't easy to resist their persuasiveness. It could be that Mr. Colakovic was selling me a bill of goods, or that his plum brandy held a magic spell. I can say only that it is several weeks since I saw him and everything or most everything and everyone I have seen since then, including non-Communists, has maintained the spell.

It was the same day that I saw Gustav Vlahov, the son of an old Macedonian revolutionary who died about a month or six weeks ago. Vlahov the younger is now in charge of social welfare in Yugoslavia and sends his regards to Canada's Mrs. Adelaide Sinclair, of our Health and Welfare Department, whose work he knows well and respects highly.

Mr. Vlahov is this kind of a man: for half an hour he strung me off in details what Yugoslav is doing for its people from the cradle to the grave. When it was all over I asked whether Yugoslavia could afford it he shook his head frankly and said "No, and we must reduce it here and there, but you must understand we started off with a desperately unhealthy, uneducated and uncared-for people and we were revolutionaries and we planned boldly and from our hearts. But we are learning as we go."

MEAN BUSINESS

What can you do but like such a man? And when he said "We must fight" to get our country fit and happy his two fists went up unconsciously in his own zeal and you saw a pair of fists that meant business.

In short, virtually everyone who works or who is the wife of a man who works, is insured in Yugoslavia.

Mr. Vlahov told me 5,000,000 people in Yugoslavia are now insured against illness, work disablement, old age. Insurance works on the basis that a worker genuinely disabled or pensioned gets what he would have got had he been at his job. An expectant mother gets 45 days off with pay which she may take before or after birth and 8,000 dinars (about $27) to defray expenses. And from birth until end of education every child gets 3,000 dinars a month—or about $10. Thus if a man has three children he in effect earns for them the equivalent of the average salary of the Yugoslav skilled worker.. But he can't rest on his oars at that, for his children's bonuses come in so long he is working. Those children's allowances, said Mr. Vlahov, must come down. And a week later I read in a Yugoslav paper that they were coming down, but the details aren't yet settled.

HOSPITAL PROBLEM

Mr. Vlahov got his fists up again telling of the 75 per cent war loss of hospitals and of the lack of physicians and medicines. It reminded me of the Indian Health Minister—Amrit Kaur—who approached her almost hopeless task with a Florence Nightingale temperament but who underneath was probably about as tough a fighter as Mr. Vlahov obviously was.

Tuberculosis—and he sighed! They need more than 30,000 beds. They need to stimulate physicians to go into the danger areas and it isn't easy because physicians are so scarce they can make a good living in the cities.

It is funny how things fit in. Earlier I had met a young medical student in Yugoslavia who was saying he wished he could abandon his medical course for "they" were now sending young doctors to depressed areas to fight venereal disease and other things and that wouldn't give him a broad enough training.

There you see the two sides: the Communist government is determined to get at the trouble areas and is going to order the doctors (who get their training free) to go to those spots. That is a noble concept and will build the nation. But if I hadn't heard Mr. Vlahov himself tell about it I would have gained only the earlier impression from the young man who had no freedom to choose his medical career.

NOT ONE COLOR

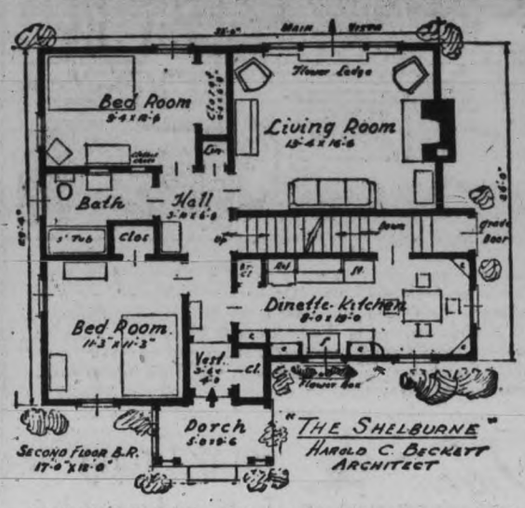
In this as in other things, the observer here finds that things are not all black or all white. There is a great deal of grey and much to be said for it. Our tendency to judge everything as black reminds me of that wonderful observation of Rebecca West in her great work on Yugoslavia, "Black Lamb and Grey Falcon." "But Englishmen have usually been foolish about the Balkan Peninsula, being embued with the imperialist idea that it is good to have and therefore apt to draw the false conclusion that those who have not are not good."

To return to Mr. Vlahov, he told me of his war cripples, of ill or mentally-twisted children born of generations of grief, of a school milk-feeding program of 1,300,000 kids a day with Unicef help, of the difficulty of training a backward country in sanitary matters. He also confirmed what I had gathered from others: the minimum wage for a skilled worker (all but ditch diggers, practically speaking) is 7,500 dinars a month or $25. The experienced scientist or engineer in Yugoslavia gets the top salary of the land, about 22,500 a month, or $75.

BASIC SALARY

These salaries are after taxes for social insurance, etc., have been taken off. High government workers get perhaps $60 a month, and one young man in the foreign office I met who had already served at UN and in Karachi earned 12,000 a month, or $40.

You might say that all salary brackets are fixed by the state, through the workers' councils in industry or whatever the business may be. There is no such thing as private business, unless it is a one-man affair without employees. A barber may be private if he is alone, a hat shop with two or three clerks is state. But it is run so that the salary is fixed according to the general level in that industry and if the worker does a brisk business through his own initiative he gets a share of the profits.



Thus, in short, the social welfare and wage picture in Yugoslavia is that everyone gets a low salary and for two reasons (1) the country has a very low standard of living and the masses are accustomed to poverty in everything except eating for they have, relatively, a good deal of food; (2) before anyone gets his salary his firm or council has taken enough money out of the business to make the necessary contribution from it to social services.

EXPLAINS FINANCING

When you look at the low wages you understand where Mr. Vlahov gets the money for his pensions and bonuses and how Mr. Colakovic can send people to school for nothing. It IS Tito communism and has attached to it a number of principles which we in the West don't care for. But it does seem doubtful whether a wholly free capitalist democracy would be table to take such a country by the scruff of the neck and tell it what was good for it. An alternative would be dictatorship, but that's more to pay for efficiency than these people are paying. Again, this is NOT Russian communism.

Am I a pink? Well, I have not been bought or coaxed. On the contrary, they've told me lots of their griefs and mistakes. If my conclusion is wrong I reach it on my own steam. It is the conclusion that for political reasons, which I will write about later, this country could not now be kept together by a free democracy. I believe that this Tito Communist government, for all its very black marks earlier and some which still linger, is giving this country a bold and fairly humane deal. It may not work, for trying to make one nation out of this mixed and hapless bag is almost impossible at first try, but if we have any brains at all we should hope it will work. For if it doesn't, it won't be the West that will pick up the pieces.

THE SHELBURNE—This attractive bungalow is suitable for a lot approximately 60' wide. Living room is located to the rear with large windows overlooking the garden. If desired, a terrace could be located back of the living room. The area is 965 square feet and the cubical contents 20,000'. This permits a large bedroom on the second floor with plenty of storage space. The exterior as indicated is cedar grain shingles or wide siding. This plan should appeal to many who have properties which permit a nice development in the rear. This is the first in a series of practical and artistic homes by Harold C. Beckett, architect, 52 Chatham St. W., Windsor.

Activity Room Supplements Normal Features Of Home

We hear a lot these days about the "activities room" found in the modern home. Don't think for a moment that this is another of those senseless modern ideas designed to waste your money. No sir the activities room supplements the normal features of the home and has an almost limitless variety of adaptations which make it worth considering when planning a new home.

Besides being downright charming, this room can provide facilities for sewing, music, and the family or party gatherings. The bedlounges and adjacent washroom make it easy to accommodate overnight guests. Book lovers can also make this room their library.

If you plan an activities room which will face the street, it is wise to use a glass area which begins at least above waist height for greater privacy. This becomes a pleasing architectural feature of the exterior. Wherever the activities room is located in your plan, the more light and cheerfulness you have, the more pleased you will be. Lower glass areas are especially recommended if your first floor recreation room will face the privacy of your rear garden. The big windows combined with inside planting facilities of this room enable you to have outdoor living indoors — an idea which is becoming increasingly popular.

INCORPORATE HEATING SYSTEM

In planning this room for a basementless design, consider the possibility of incorporating the heating unit and laundry facilities. Today this can be done without sacrificing appearance. Don't forget storage space, too. Perhaps one wall devoted to compartment type cabinets would be particularly useful.

The glass wall, if facing the rear garden, makes this room an indoor porch, and as a result can be transformed quickly into a bright, all-weather, children's playroom, study, home office, game room, hobby centre or emergency guest room. Because the activities area in a one-storey home takes the place of the porch, the den and the basement recreation room, it is not uncommon to find today's family spending most of its time in this multi-use part of the house.

GENERAL PURPOSE ROOM

In the ten and twelve-room houses of 30 years ago, there was always a room somewhere that was used as a general purpose work room for sewing or ironing or any of the many tasks that leave a room in a messy condition. Women find that they want such a room now more than ever. It is a great advantage in that it provides a place where household jobs can be done without disturbing, cluttering or dirtying other rooms. When the work is done, you need only close the door, no bother or immediate "straightening up" of the house for visitors. It's a great place for small children to play, keeping them where they can't do too much damage and under mother's watchful eye, too.

Big Ornament

LAHAVE, N.S. (CP)—One of the largest ornaments in Nova Scotia is the large-scale model of the RCN corvette Halifax, decorating the lawn of Capt. Archie Publicover's home in this Lunenburg village. The replica was presented by the builders to the well-known skipper, who intends to place it on a permanent concrete base.

INSPIRED BY BIBLE

The anointing of the sovereign in British coronations is believed to have been inspired by the Old Testament.

Trichinosis Continues Spread At Sudbury

SUDBURY (CP)—A trichinosis outbreak continued to spread in this district Friday with reports of 10 new cases issued by Dr. J. B. Cook, city health officer. This brings to 17 the number of cases reported since Monday.

Trichinosis is caused by eating under-cooked, infected pork.

Two of the 17 victims are in hospital and the rest at home under doctors' care.

Dr. Cook said the danger of further cases being reported will continue until the source of the infected pork is found.

Growing City

SASKATOON (CP)—Population of Saskatoon was estimated at 55,563 as of the end of April by the city public health department. The estimate based on vital statistics showed an increase of 1,556 in the last year.

Afraid To Show Coronation Film

DUBLIN (AP)—Dublin movie-goers may never see newsreels of the Coronation because of whispered threats to bomb theatres showing them.

Local newspapers have reported cases of cinema managers cancelling their contracts to show the Coronation films rather than risk demonstrations.

Anti-British feeling has been running high among some Dubliners because the Queen's new title refers to her sovereignty over the six counties of Northern Ireland which are part of Britain.

The Dublin weekly Times Pictorial said Coronation films are out and warned that "a tin of Coronation film is a tin of dynamite."

The Roman Catholic newspaper Weekly Standard carried a report of a theatre manager consulting police about being bombed and later barring any exhibition of the films as too dangerous.

SPECIAL MUSIC

Music for the "te Deum" which closes the religious part of the British coronation is specially written for each crowning.

How To Remedy Damp Basement Walls

You say your basement walls leak? You say you want more for your money? Well, gather 'round, folks, there are some handy-dandy little remedies here for damp walls.

Forewarned being forearmed, hereby stand informed that you are tackling a complicated problem—one that in some cases requires drastic measures. Problem No. 1 is to discover what is making the walls damp, or soaking wet, as the case may be.

If you are lucky, your problem is merely one of condensation, caused by warm, moist air within the basement meeting the cool basement walls. The solution is to ventilate the basement on dry days by opening the windows or using a cellar exhaust fan. A calcium-chloride dehumidifier will also help.

You are somewhat less fortunate if your problem is gradual seepage through blocks and joints, and you may be in a rather bad way if it is leakage—a visible flow of water through the walls.

For slow seepage through pores in the blocks and small openings in the joints between blocks, a cement-base waterproofing compound is one answer.

First remove all old oil paint or calcium from the walls. This is a real chore, whether you use wire brush and paint remover, some other solvent, or rub with a carborundum brick. Professional sand-blasting is the only "easy" way.

Next, fix all the openings you can see with mortar (one part cement, two parts sand, water), before waterproofing. Undercut the openings with hammer and chisel to hold the patching in place, and then pack in the mortar.

Now, mix the waterproofing compound according to the manufacturer's directions and scrub it into the wall with a stiff brush to fill all the pores. Wet down the wall with a hose first.

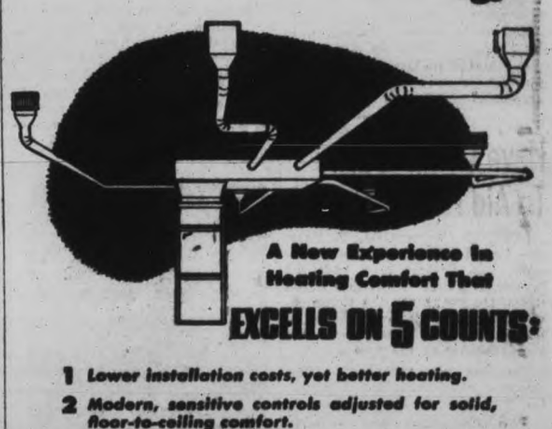
After the surface dries (from two to four hours) spray again. Apply a second coat the following day. Spray the coating twice a day for about a week to cure it slowly.

If damp spots still appear after a week, some of the pores have not been completely filled. Chisel them out as before, fill with mortar and treat them again with the waterproofing.

Now to get back to leakage, a visible flow of water into the basement. There are several causes and remedies for this. Try the simplest first, of course.

Find the leaks. Often they are in corners and at the joint of walls and floors. Chisel away crumbling masonry in the area of the leak and undercut or dovetail the opening. Clean the opening with a brush and pack it with a quick-drying patching cement. Then waterproof the areas.

If these methods still don't keep water out of your basement, the cause may be outside the house. A leaking or clogged gutter may be flooding the ground around the foundation. Poor drainage of land adjacent to the house may be the fault. Regrading might cure it.



If not, drastic steps would seem to be in order. One involves digging a trench around the house so as to apply a felt-and-tar barrier to the outside of the basement walls to seal out water. This may be supplemented with drain tiles placed in the bottom of the trench to carry the water off—down grade.

In the end, it will have been an uphill fight all the way.

SLOW SEEPAGE through basement walls can be stopped with cement-base waterproofing if all visible holes are patched first.

CORONATION ROUTE—This route map shows times at which the Queen, riding in the state coach, will pass familiar London landmarks in the Coronation procession after her coronation in Westminster Abbey which she leaves at 2.50 p.m. (BST). Before reaching Buckingham Palace at 4.30 p.m., the royal coach will pass: Trafalgar Square, 3.04 p.m.; Hyde Park Corner, 3.29 p.m.; Marble Arch, 3.46 p.m.; Oxford Circus, 3.57 p.m.; Piccadilly Circus, 4.08 p.m.; Admiralty Arch, 4.16 p.m. On her way to the Abbey in the morning, the Queen will start from Buckingham Palace at 10.26 a.m., arriving at Westminster at 11.00 a.m. Time differences from Canada are NDT, three and one-half hours; ADT, four hours; EDT, five hours; CDT, six hours; MDT, seven hours; PDT, eight hours.

Smaller Layoff At Ford Than Expected

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—President Rhys M. Sale of Ford of Canada s'd today transfer of final assembly operations to the new plant in Oakville, Ont., will not cause as great a layoff of Windsor employees as predicted several months ago.

However, he said, up to 1,400 men will be laid off following the annual vacation shut-down in August. There would be no further layoffs until the seasonal drop in demand which would require further schedule reductions during October and November.

By February, 1954, the working force is likely to reach a level within a few hundred of where it now stands.

The sprawling Windsor plant now employs almost 14,000 of whom 11,200 are hourly-rated factory employees.

FEARED MUCH WORSE

Earlier, union and some company officials expressed fear thousands of men would be left without jobs by the Oakville transfer.

"It is extremely gratifying to me," Mr. Sale said in a letter to employees, "to be able to tell you that. . . job prospects in Ford of Canada are a good deal better than they were a few months ago."

He said demand for Ford products and a new plan of operation will cut the number of men expected to be laid off permanently and also will shorten the term of temporary layoffs.

Under the revised plan, the Windsor plant will go on making cars and trucks for some months. Production of passenger cars at Oakville will continue on a steadily rising scale while production in Windsor will taper off gradually.

Original plans last fall had called for cessation of passenger car assembly in Windsor during July.

Have Contribution To Aid Peace

LONDON (Reuters)—L. B. Pearson, Canada's external affairs minister, told Britons in a recorded broadcast Friday night that Canadians are convinced the Commonwealth has a major contribution to make to world peace and the strengthening of the free world.

The talk was recorded earlier. Pearson now is making a speaking tour through Western Canada.

"We Canadians are North American people, closely associated with the United States, and fully aware of the extent to which our destiny is linked with theirs," Pearson said.

"At the same time we remain deeply attached to the Commonwealth because we are convinced that it has a major contribution to make to the establishment of en enduring peace, and to the strength and stability of the free world."

Seek Joint Appointment

HAMILTON (CP)—The Ontario Association of Assessing Officers decided Friday to ask the provincial government for legislation to have the appointment of assessors made through joint action of the prvince and municipality. A reslution recommending this was passed by delegates at the association's 12th annual meeting.

Prison Innovation

KINGSTON (CP)—An innovation in Canadian prison privileges was reported from Kingston penitentiary Friday. It was the recent election of seven prisoners to the penitentiary welfare committee. All 940 prisoners were allowed to vote in what officials said was the first election of its kind to be held in a Canadian prison.

XXII

I am reminded of what someone near to the King told me about his feelings at the time of the Abdication.

King Edward VIII had forfeited his crown and thrown the country into a turmoil. Such a thing had not happened to Great Britain for hundreds of years, and it is true to say that there was no precedent to guide the Govenment's actions.

It was assumed that the next eldest son would automatically inherit the Throne. But some in high places questioned this. It was thought that Abdication was such a serious step it changed the course of normal things.

"Why thrust this Crown and its great responsibilities on a man whose every action through life has shown his dislike of publicity and love of the quiet life?" they said. "The Duke of York has no sons; he suffers a speech defect which makes every public appearance an agony to him. Let us take the chance this whirlpool in our midst has given us to appoint the Duke of Kent King. He already has a son; he is a man whose temperament equips him more easily to take the centre place in life. Spare the Duke of York a task which he must consider a burden."

But the King had too strong a sense of the duty he owed the country to take this easy way out. I remember the pain in his eyes, the pallor this new responsibility cast over his features, which seemed suddenly to age.

His main concern, my friend told me, was not for the weight the Crown would place upon his shoulders, but the thought of the weight one day to be transferred to his elder daughter.

He was loath to condemn her to a lifetime of public servitude, where she would have no peace and never be allowed the quiet domestic enjoyment which is every woman's birthright. Few people comprehend the rigorous routine thrust upon Royalty. Every moment of activity is planned far ahead.

Queen Elizabeth loves animals. Here she holds a carrier pigeon.

In spite of the many restrictions put on the personal liberty of Royalty, such as their being unable to choose flat-heeled shoes for public appearance, or hats that would hide their face, the last century has brought to them small freedoms denied to their grandparents.

One of these is the carrying about of handbags and money. The days when a lady-in-waiting used to pay for any small thing that took the Royal fancy is over; both Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret carried bags and two of three pounds in ready cash like any ordinary girl or woman. They cashed their own cheques through their Comptroller, put the notes into neat notecases made to match their handbags, and loose silver into little purses.

From this money they paid direct in the shops for things they wished to buy. Most of their shopping excursions took place in Aberdeen when they were staying at Balmoral.

It is not generally known, I think, that Royalty pays for everything they have. The King was insistent that all goods supplied to the Palace be paid for, and although tradespeople would be pleased to supply the Royal Household free in order to have the honor of serving them, this was something the King would not accept, although he was, in fact, the poorest monarch since William IV.

The Royal Family also pay railway fares. The only time they do not pay to travel is when they are on a battleship or using a Viking of the King's Flight.

The matter of so little personal liberty—taken for granted by all of us—is something that I have thought must be hard to bear if you are a woman.

✧ ✧ ✧

Never for Princess Elizabeth the happy prowlings round the stores comparing the prices, colors and textures of the materials for a new coat or dress; not for her the quest to get calf or suede shoes to match exactly the color of her handbag, and the excitement that lasts through several days when the tricky piece of shopping is satisfactorily accomplished.

All that personal, exciting, challenging side of choosing a wardrobe was taken out of her hands by her dressmaker, shoemaker, and milliner.

I do not say that Queen Elizabeth does not choose her own clothes. Of course she does, but within circumscribed limits. She has to remember, for instance, that however much she might long to wear a certain color, she cannot do so if it is a shade that will get lost among a large crowd and so make it difficult for her to be easily and immediately seen by the loyal crowds who congregate wherever she is to make a public appearance, in the hope of catching a glimpse of her.

gists. Most doctors had a dispensary of their own. Medical students or the doctors themselves looked after the dispensary. Taylor and Macdonald were on the north-east corner of George and Hunter. Taylor was a medical doctor.

Druggists all had large urns in the window filled with coloured liquids. Cigar shops had an Indian on a pedestal in front of their shops. Thos. Rushton, A. W. Kemp and Dr. Esmond were other druggists.

WOOLLEN MILLS

Brodie's had an office on George St. Another mill was in Ashburnham just over the bridge at Hunter St. They employed perhaps a hundred hands. Later on they moved to Hespeler and became internationally known. One town would steal the industries of another by offering a bonus. The law does not permit that now.

The Auburn Mills had an office on Simcoe St. and their mill was at Auburn. Not much is left of Auburn now. It was a good-sized village in the seventies and the mill employ- turned out good tweeds, perhaps as ed in excess of 300 hands. They good as the imported goods.

Ford Stays Open

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Ford of Canada announced Friday that Coronation Day, June 2, will not be a plant holiday as suggested in a telegram received Thursday from regional director George Burt of the United Automobile Workers, (CCL-CIO). Mr. Burt in Port Hope asked Ford, Chrysler Corporation of Canada and General Motors of Canada to declare a holiday. No decision has yet been announced by the other companies.

Forms Group To Combat Communism

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada's first "citizens' committee" to combat communism and promote the Canadian way of life has been started here.

J. Farley Faulkner, 43-year-old Toronto business man who doesn't believe in "letting George do it" started the committee at a meeting here.

Faulkner's idea was born at a meeting in Toronto's Massey Hall, when he was challenged by Communists to "hire a hall" during an address by Dr. Hewlett Johnson, dean of Canterbury.

In an address to some 300 Kiwanians and their guests at an organizational meeting here, he said "communism is today backed by a large group of about 15,000 eager beavers who want to do away with everything we believe in.

LOTS OF HELP

"Helping these 15,000 are some 200,000 fellow travellers," he said.

Mr. Faulkner, who runs a dress shop in Toronto, said "too many people shrug off problems and dangers with an attitude of 'let George do it.' And deep down they know there isn't a George."

He said he intends to tour every major centre in Canada to form committees "to shake the people out of their complacency and realize what a threat communism is to the free world."

Queen's Face Predominates In Decorations

By FORBES RHUDE

LONDON (CP)—All over London one face looks out at you from tens of thousands of places—the face of Elizabeth II.

Sometimes she is shown with the Duke of Edinburgh or her children, but mostly she is shown alone. For this is her occasion and her people's occasion, and the solemn covenant of Coronation is one which only she, and they, before God, can make.

Let's take a walk around the route where her people will see her in her golden coach before and after the ceremony.

Starting from gates of Buckingham Palace we look straight down the wide Mall at decorations which are regal rather than lavish. Graceful arches reach across from either side and from them are suspended equally graceful large crowns.

We pass Clarence House where the Queen Mother lives and Marlborough House where Queen Mary lived. We come out through Admiralty Arch, cross Trafalgar Square, proceed along Northumberland avenue and then along Victor embankment with the Thames to our left.

HARD TO COMPETE

Decoration would find it difficult to compete with the flowing river of history, and so is kept to a minimum. The Queen may receive one of her noisiest welcomes there, however, because the embankment's stands on the river side are reserved for children.

The stands are so thick as one approaches the abbey that it is difficult to get one's bearings. Even the abbey can hardly be seen, either because of the stands or the temporary annex built in front of it for the occasion.

This relatively short part of the route, about a mile-and-a-half along the Mall and embankment, precedes the Coronation. After the Coronation the procession will come out from the abbey starting its five-mile procession along Whitehall with its cenotaph and great government buildings. Two giant royal standards, formed of metal, and rising to the height of five-storey buildings, will greet the newly-crowned Queen as she resumes her procession.

We pass again into Trafalgar Square, along Cockspur street (noting as we pass it the tastefully-decorated green spectator stand of Canada House) and into Pall Mall. The rest of the route is in large part through business and shopping districts and various streets vie with one another to make gay displays.

After Pall Mall, land of clubs, St. James street is next and Piccadilly looks particularly gay as we turn into it. Tree-shaded spectator stands stretch for blocks on Green Park side.

The procession then passes along East Carriage Drive of Hyde Park and through Marble Arch to Oxford street, which has achieved attractive effects with golden-colored metal mesh woven into varied designs.

Then comes Regent street, featured by long-flowered panels on store fronts, and then the Haymarket, distinctive with green-shaded banners. From the Haymarket we again cross Trafalgar Square, pass under Admiralty Arch into the Mall, and so back to Buckingham Palace.

Throughout, the spectator stands are prominent in decoration effects and will be more so when filled with people. Their framework is of strong steel tubing and one wonders where it all comes from.

In general, the handsome buildings or natural settings or the streets are allowed to carry the decorations rather than have the decorations overwhelm them; and the decorations are just what some of the old buildings needed to hide traces of age. There is virtually nothing of a freakish or midway nature.

Smith Garden Club Elects 1953 Officers

The South Smith Garden Club held their first meeting of 1953 at School No. 3, Smith, under the leadership of Mrs. Clarence Mann, assisted by Mrs. Albert Bulmer.

Mrs. Mann supervised the election of officers for the year. They are: president, Myla Bulmer, vice-president, Helen Kimball, secretary-treasurer, Ruth Fowler, and press reporter, Nola Wilson.

Mrs. Bulmer discussed the club requirements with the first and second year members and Mrs. Mann with the third year girls.

There are twelve girls in the club this year, including three third year members, five second year, and four first year members.

The June meeting will be held at the home of the assistant leader Mrs. Bulmer.

First year girls are Nola Wilson, Myla Bulmer and Barbara Mann; 2nd year girls, Ruth Fowler, Betty Gilbert, Reta Parsons, Anna Northey and Beverley Hetherington; 1st year girls, Helen Kimball, Arlene Mann, Carol Hollingsworth and Rachael Hodgson.

DO YOU THINK of your children's tastes when you choose a new picture for your home? What about the pictures in your child's room? Are they hung at his eye level or yours?

Pictures In Your Home Influence On Your Family

By NANCY CLEAVER

"Look here, upon this picture."—Hamlet.

What pictures on your walls does your child look at? What are the ones in his own room? Huxley once said, "Picture frames are doorways to other worlds." What doorways swing open to your child's imagination as he is growing up in your home? No parent can measure the extent of the influence on the child's life of the family environment, including the home pictures.

One excellent way a family can plan to mark Coronation Day as a special day in the family is to have an attractive colored picture of the new Queen or the Royal Family all framed ready to hang up where the children can enjoy it. If mother and father co-operate to make this a memorable day in the lives of their youngsters, this is an occasion they will remember.

Children love certain pictures even as they love favorite toys. As well as affording pleasure, pictures stimulate the child's imagination. Where a child is alone, gazing at a picture, his conversation to himself often reveals that he is miles away! He has passed through the doorway of the picture into the magic land of "Let's Pretend."

PROPER HANGING LEVEL

Parents often forget that their children are "little people" with a much lower eye level than grown-ups. Pictures should be hung correctly for the comfort of those who look at them. Thus, the pictures in a child's room should be hung low. The permanent pictures should be suitably framed. The glass and frame help to keep them clean. But temporary pictures may be mounted on a colored mat and put up for a time with thumb tacks.

Try to discover what types of pictures appeal most to your child. Little yougsters enjoy pictures of babies, of other children at play, or animals, especially kittens, puppies and baby animals with their mother. Bright colors, such as red, attracts a child's attention. They prefer simple outlines without too much detail. Almost every child goes through a stage of liking a special kind of picture such as circus pictures.

Whenever possible children should be given the opportunity to exercise some choice in the pictures for their rooms. If a child has a "say" in their selection, he is bound to be more interested in them. Many firms use lovely colored prints on their calendars which children like and which are worth keeping. Magazines display some attractive colored prints too.

AWARE OF OUR ARTISTS

Canadians should be more aware of their own artists. A good colored print of a Canadian scene is a splendid way to interest boys and girls in the painting of their own countrymen. The National Gallery, Ottawa, the Art Gallery in Toronto and other galleries keep a supply of colored prints of certain pictures, at moderate prices. Pictures such as Horatio Walker's "Maple Sugar Harvest," Paul Kane's "An Indian Encampment of Lake Huron, Cornelius Kreighoff's "The Habitant Farm," Clarence Gagnon's "March in the Birch Woods," Arthur Heming's "A Canadian Trail,' 'or Frank Panbaker's "Winter Woods" are part of our cultural heritage. Small colored prints of these and many other paintings are shown in Albert H. Robson's "Canadian Landscape Painters." This may be found in most public libraries.

Children naturally ask questions about any object, including a picture which fascinates them. Here are some questions which might be asked about a print of any famous picture:

"Who painted it? Why did he choose this subject? What kind of person was he? When did he live? Why do I like this picture? How much of its detail can I remember when I shut my eyes and try to recall it?" Parents can train their children in keen and accurate observation by playing a "picture game" as indicated by the last question.

Pictures should not be left on any wall so long that no one sees them! They should be re-arranged, especially after rooms have been newly papered! Occasionally put a picture away for a time and add a new one to the home's picture collection.

Older boys and girls who study woodwork at school may want to try their hand at making inexpensive frames. They often are eager to put into effect some of their ideas about selecting pictures and hanging pictures.

A love of pictures is one of the best gifts any parent can give to a child. What do you do in your home to encourage it?

30 Suspects Under Arrest

MOASCAR, Egypt (Reuters)—Egyptian police arrested 30 "suspicious characters considered to be a public menace" in a pre-dawn roundup today.

Government officials and former members of the now dissolved Wafd party are believed to be among them.

The roundup may have been intended to eliminate a faction opposed to the regime of Gen. Mohammed Naguib, strong-man premier, or to demonstrate to the British that Egyptian authorities have complete control of the Suez canal zone.

Police raided houses in Ismailia and Suez to make the arrests. Those held were later sent to Cairo by train.

Some of those arrested are believed to be people with homes in villages in the area around Fayid, where British troops in the canal zone have their headquarters.

Memorial Day Observed In U.S.

NEW YORK (AP)—The United States, mindful of prolonged fighting still going on in Korea, honors in Memorial Day ceremonies today those who fought and died in past battles.

Big cities and small towns staged parades and memorial services.

For many citizens the day also signals the start of the summer season. They headed for beaches, golf courses and ball parks.

Texas Oil Heir Reconciled With Wife

CAIRO (AP)—Texas oil heir Abdullah Sheppard King was kissed by his belly dancer wife today as he left by plane on his way back to the United States.

King and Samia Gamal posed for photographers and told reporters they were "definitely reconciled" and would continue to be "man and wife for better and for worse."

King said he was returning to Texas for business reasons while Samia would remain in Egypt another four months to make movies. Afterwards, she said, she would join King.

Minding Own Business Korean Vet Stabbed

MONTREAL (CP)—Norman Harvey, 20-year-old Montreal Korean war veteran, was stabbed below the heart in a downtown nightclub Friday night.

Witnesses said Harvey was minding his own business when another patron began arguing with him and a fight started. While Harvey was subduing the disturber, another man stabbed him with a pocket knife.

Hospital officials said Harvey has a 50-50 chance of surviving. Two men are being held by police.

Rain Fails To Halt Boy Scout Parade

HAMILTON (CP)—Dark skies and teeming rain failed to break the step and swagger of 8,000 Boy Scouts, Guides, Cubs and Brownies who marched in downtown Hamilton today in their annual parade.

Spectators crammed the route. The salute at city hall was taken by Maj.-Gen. D. C. Spry, chief executive commissioner of Scouts in Canada. Mrs. John Alexander Wilson, deputy provincial Guide commissioner, took the Guide salute.

Serious Side

WINNIPEG (CP)—A visitor from France said in an interview here that "France is not all Moulin Rouge and pretty girls; we have industries there too." The visitor, Armand Mayer, a cousin of former Premier Rene Mayer, is an engineer who is surveying Canadian airfields and construction projects.

Started As a Joke

Beefsteak Party Becomes Factor In Italian Election

By JAMES M. LONG

ROME (AP)—The new political party that promises Italians a pound of steak a day has widened its program to pledge: No taxes, triple pay and a 30-hour school year.

There are other embellishments: Free money, a four-hour work day, no jails, no more studying history, Greek or latin.

Chubby Corrado Tedeschi, Florence economics professor, started his "beefsteak party" as a joke, but now is stumping seriously for election to the Chamber of Deputies, heading a list whose symbol is a galloping baby beef.

In Rome he packed the Piazzo del Popolo with one of the biggest, and noisiest, crowds of the campaign for the June 7 elections.

"Bi-Stec-ca," the crowd yelled. "Bring on the veal."

PROGRAM SCIENTIFIC

"Now hold your horses," the professor warned. "All this can't be done overnight. But I'm a professor of finance. My program is scientific.

"Okay professor," somone cried. "We can wait for the pound of beef. We'll settle for half a pound, now."

"Now look," the professor said, "Russia could easily supply the world with grain for bread. . . ."

"Ship it here, we'll eat it," one shouted.

"America," the professor continued unabashed, "could supply the whole world with its beef. . ."

BUILD HOTELS

"What about the money?"

"Just hold on," the beefsteak candidate responded. "What we must do is build hotels, hotels, hotels. Then the whole world will come here to enjoy life, take things easy and eat well. And that's where the money comes in. They'll spend it here. Then we can buy Russian wheat and American beef and. . ."

"And American wives," some added happily.

"Say," said the professor, "aren't some of these interruptions a bit silly? Now, where were we?"

"Eating those American beefsteaks," the crowd roared back.

"Oh, yes," Tedeschi picked up. "Now the rest of the program: I demand absolute abolition of all taxes. . . ."

"Yow-eee," from the crowd.

"I ask that all wages be tripled and the working day be cut to four hours."

"What about the money for all this?"

"Money?" the professor sounded puzzled. "Oh, you mean money. Why, the government still owns the printing presses, doesn't it? It just prints the money."

Kennedy; God Save the Queen, led by the Salvation Army Band.

No Exemptions Allowed On Wife

OTTAWA (CP)—Business men attending conventions with their wives can't claim company income tax exemptions for money spent on the little woman—though they can for themselves.

This was the judgment rendered here by the income tax appeal board hearing the claim of an anonymous company president. He felt that because his wife's presence at conventions was "good business," costs involved should not be taxable. The board thought otherwise.

The wife in question accompanied hubby to conventions in Montreal and Vancouver, "to her great displeasure" it was said at the hearing.

The company president submitted that wives today are accepted as part of conventions, and this avenue is exploited for meeting prospective buyers.

Scientists Spend Summer 400 Miles Within Arctic

EDMONTON (CP)—Two defence research scientists and a university specialist left Edmonton by RCAF Dakota recently for Banks Island, 400 miles inside the Arctic circle, where they will conduct a biological and geological survey.

T. H. Manning of Ottawa and Capt. I. M. Sparrow of the Royal Engineers, England, will spend the summer months on Banks Island in the Beaufort sea, some 1,400 miles north of Edmonton, returning to civilization in September or November.

Dr. E. O. Hohn, associate professor of physiology at the University of Alberta, was also aboard the plane. Dr. John will study wild life and fauna on Banks Island.

The Dakota flew first to Norman Wells, N.W.T., where it awaited suitable weather before attempting to land on a 3,000-foot sandbar near the island, on which Eskimo natives of the inlet were previously instructed to mark out a runway. There are about 25 English-speaking Eskimo families on the island in summer, although it is uninhabited during the winter.

On arrival Mr. Manning and Capt. Sparrow were to transport more than a ton of supplies to Castel Bay, on the north of the island, where supplies and a canoe were cached last year.

They will then return to Sachs Harbor, a round trip of about 400 miles which will take about 20 days.

Mr. Manning expressed concern that an early thaw in the north might cause trouble in the dog-sleigh trip. He said that snow normally disappears about June 10 on the island, but this year spring was expected to be about two weeks early.

Part of the geological work will include a preliminary coastal survey and tide observations.

Mr. Manning said he had made a trip to the island two years ago in an 80-foot yacht but at that time it was impossible to circle the island. Another trip may be made next year, depending on data gathered by the men this year.

Given Trip For Coronation

TORONTO (CP)—Maggie Port, a charwoman, put her mop and pail away for two weeks today and started sprucing up for the Coronation. The tenants of a downtown office building are footing the bill.

Maggie, who has been cleaning the offices for 30 of her 77 years, leaves for Montreal today and will board a London-bound plane Sunday.

She was tipped off about the trip last week. That's when she was called into the office of O. A. Woods of the Fort York Construction Company. Mr. Woods told her:

"Maggie, there have been complaints about your work. You need a rest. All the tenants have clubbed together to send you to the Coronation."

Maggie cried with happiness.

She left her native England 42 years ago and has never been to London.

Heavy Round Of Duties Follows Coronation

LONDON (Reuters)—A heavy round of state duties will keep the

The program, beginning with her crowning on Tuesday, is filled with 35 engagements before July 24, including a week's visit to Scotland, two days in Northern Ireland and two days in Wales. She will review the fleet and the RAF at lengthy displays.

Even on her "off duty" days she will be busy at Buckingham Palace dealing with a daily flood of state papers.

Until her summer vacation in late July, the Queen will have hardly any time to spend with her family.

Supt. In Oshawa J. H. McDiarmid Dies

OSHAWA (CP)—John Howard MacDiarmid, 71, former superintendent of the Oshawa Street Railway, died at his home today.

A native of Avonmore, Ont., he began his railroading career with the Canadian Pacific Railway in 1902 at Winnipeg. He later switched to Canadian National Railways and in 1925 was appointed western regional transport superintendent and in 1928 held the same job in the CNR's central region. He came to Oshawa as superintendent of the street railway, a CNR subsidiary, in 1938.

Norwood Holds Dinner For Minor Hockeyists

NORWOOD (ENS)—A banquet was held in the King's Hotel, Norwood, for the four peewee hockey teams and one bantam team of last winter, Friday night by the Lions Club. Ronnie Scott, captain of the Black Hawk team thanked the Lions Club for the banquet.

The Rev. R. D. Duncanson showed movies.

The boys were promised crests for their season's hockey playing. The four teams were the Red Wings coached by Irwin Warner, the Boston Bruins coached by Don Audas, the Black Hawks (champions) coached by John Auckland and the Maple Leafs coached by Bob Garden. The one Bantam team was also coached by Bob Garden.

Rotary Officers Elected

STIRLING (ENS) — Col. A. O. Dalrymple has been elected president of the Stirling Rotary Club and his executive officers will consist of Dr. Ralph Vanderwort, vice-president; E. D. Kitchen, secretary, and H. C. Bird, treasurer.

Two Killed In Accidents

SUDBURY (CP)—Two Sudbury men were killed in separate accidents early today some 700 yards apart on the Garson road, two miles northeast of here. Five other persons were hurt.

Stanley Kawa was fatally crushed when his car rolled into a ditch and Emile Beauchamp was burned to death when trapped in a car following a collision near the scene just two hours later.

In hospital here are Jean Rinalda of Sudbury with severe burns to the hands, Paul Gagnon of Sudbury with lacerations to the head and hands, Gerald Campeau of Sudbury with burns to his back, Isobel Gurr of the RCAF station at Hanmer with scalp lacerations and Joe Milner of the RCAF with fractured ribs.

Police said Gagnon was driving back to Sudbury after finishing a shift at the Falconbridge nickel mines when his car collided with the one carrying the two air force members. Beauchamp was trapped in the blazing wreckage.

Dept. Store Sales Decline During Week

OTTAWA (CP) — Department store sales in Canada declined 2.2 per cent for the week ended May 23 compared with the corresponding week last year, the bureau of statistics reported today.

Sales were down 14.6 per cent in the Maritimes; 6.7 per cent in Ontario; three per cent in Saskatchewan and 3.5 per cent in British Columbia.

In Quebec, sales increased 6.9 per cent; in Manitoba 3.8 and in Alberta 2.8.

Canada's Celebrations To Be Seen On U.K. TV

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's Coronation Day ceremonies will be seen in Britain by BBC television viewers, the national film board announced today.

Films showing the Canadian celebrations will be made by film board crews and flown to Britain from a number of points throughout Canada.

Scripture was read by Mrs. Howard Harper and Miss Sarah Armstrong led in prayer. Dedication of the offering was made by Mrs. I. G. Pollock. Mrs. N. Corner of Grace United Church favoured with a vocal solo. A highlight of the afternoon was the presentation by Mrs. David Chambers of WMS life memberships to Mrs. George Hanbidge and Mrs. Frank Savigny for their work in the society. Guest speaker was Mrs. F. W. K. Harris who kept her audience highly interested in the story of the antecedents of the Women's Missionary Society and of some of the work being carried out now in the Conference. Appreciation to Mrs. Harris and to Mrs. Corner was expressed by Mrs. Herb Cardwell. A social hour was spent with lunch being served by Mrs. Wm. Chambers and Mrs. Walter Rose and their committee. The hall was decorated with a profusion of white lilacs and tulips in varied shades for this occasion.

THE CORONATION BALL of the Major Bennett Chapter, IODE, on Friday evening was the most gala event in Peterborough's celebration of the Coronation and was "crowned" with success. Four of the young women responsible are pictured with the three-dimensional crown which was the outstanding decoration. Left to right are Mrs. Chris Dominick and Mrs. Douglas Hill, co-conveners of the decorating, Miss Louise Spriggs, general convener of the Ball, and Mrs. Donald Murray, chapter regent.

I.O.D.E. Coronation Ball One To Be Remembered Jewelled Crown Featured

The most gala event that will be held in Peterborough to celebrate the Coronation of beloved Queen Elizabeth II took place Friday evening. The Coronation Ball of the Major Bennett Chapter, IODE, will long be remembered by the guests in connection with the historic pomp and ceremony to take place in London, England, just four dayes later.

It will be remembered particularly by the chapter members who put so much time and effort into making it a success, but it will be remembered by all who attended for the gay and joyous hours of dancing and the gracious fellowship of the occasion.

Eyes were turning throughout the evening toward the magnificent crown in three dimensions with its several hundred "jewels" glittering in the lights on the bandstand, and waving Union Jacks on either side.

This crown has been made with great skill and required the spare time of 13 chapter members the past month to complete. The design was laid out by Mr. Chris Dominick and followed by Mrs. Dominick and Mrs. Douglas Hill with their decorating committee.

There are 145 pearls and 75 diamonds are in the mass of simulated precious stones above the headband which is of white ermine. The arched loops and the mound and cross are covered in gold and the cap of the crown is of rich purple velvet.

Secret of these shining jewels is that they are satin-covered and sprinkled with gold and silver dust. Many thousands of stitches were required to fasten the cloth over cardboard molds and it took many more and numerous hours time to set them on the crown.

Cut-out gold crowns and orbs and the royal initials were used to further decorate the bandstand and were hung on the side curtains of the Brock Ballroom between side curtains covered in gold. Small arched crowns in gold were on each cabaret table.

The gift from the chapter to each couple attending the Ball was a coronation coffee spoon inscribed with the IODE crest and the coronation date. These were presented by Miss June Fraser and Miss Jessie Johnston.

The hand of welcome was extended by Mrs. Donald Murray, regent, and Mr. Murray and by the patrons and patronesses, acting mayor Mr. Douglas Miller and Mrs. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon K. Fraser, and Miss Mary Medd, regent of the Municipal Chapter of IODE.

Miss Louise Spriggs took the tickets and attended the registration of guests.

MUNICIPAL CHAPTER

The regular monthly meeting of the Peterborough Municipal Chapter of the I.O.D.E. was held Wednesday evening in the Green Room of the YWCA with the Regent, Miss Mary Medd, presiding.

A detailed financial report was given by the treasurer, Miss Zetta Jamieson. All chapters were asked to submit their fees.

Secretary, Miss Eleanor Taylor read the list of conveners appointed for 1953.

Miss Medd extended a welcome to Mrs. Harry Northrop who will be convener of Child and Family Welfare as assistant to Mrs. G. Groombridge, who is Services at Home and Abroad Convener.

Mrs. C. N. Geale, convener of Empire and World Affairs gave an interesting talk on the busy and useful life of the printer of the House of Commons Hansard.

Educational Secretary, Mrs. T. D. Miller reported that she had available coronation coloring books for adopted schools.

It was decided to purchase pictures of the Royal Family or the Queen to be presented to city schools when coronation pictures were released.

Permission was given to the Major Bennett Chapter to enter a float in the City Coronation parade, June 2.

It was announced that a television set was presented to the Daughters of the Empire Hospital for Convalescent Children, Toronto, May 28 as a coronation gift from the Primary and COE Chapters under the provincial chapters of Ontario, IODE. The presentation was made by the 1st vice-president, Mrs. A. F. Hollinrake, and the gift was accepted by Mrs. A. E. Gooderham, president of the Board of Management of the hospital.

At the close of the meeting members of the Jeanette Scott Chapter served refreshments.

ADVICE TO CANADIAN WOMEN

Should Spend More Money Necessities, Less Gadgets

SASKATOON (CP)—Until Canadian women become more concerned with what they put in their refrigerators, there will be little chance of national economic stability.

Mrs. H. E. Vautelet, national French vice-president of the Canadian Association of Consumers says housewives should spend more money on necessities and less on gadgets if they want to lower the high cost of living.

Mrs. Vautelet told the Saskatchewan branch of the association that in 1948 Canadians spent more money on jewelry than on education, and had doubled their consumption of hard liquors.

She said Canadians seemed more willing to hand their money to manufacturers for gadgets than to the farmers for food. "We are damaging our own economic system and are becoming a continual challenge to the 'have-nots' by this automatic mode of living," she said.

Mrs. Vautelet stressed that women did 80 per cent of the nation's buying. Women actually governed the country, but they were "piloting a ship without knowing where it was going."

She added that it was high time the buyers in Canada took their places at the council table along with the producers, for the health of Canada depended on consumers and representatives of labor, industry and trade working together as a team.

Loch Lomond Rebekah Ldg. Observes 30th Anniversary

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—The 30th anniversary of the institution of Loch Lomond Rebekah Lodge No. 248 was celebrated in the Masonic Hall on Thursday evening when the local Lodge was hostess to members of Dorcas Rebekah Lodge No. 98, Havelock; Golden Dawn, No. 340, Lakefield; Golden Sheaf, No. 176, Millbrook, and Quinte Queen, No. 135, Trenton.

A large birthday cake graced the head table and was cut by the Noble Grand Sister, Eva Fraser, assisted by District Deputy President Sister Jennie Harris, of District No. 6.

The degree was exemplified by the Quinte Queen Lodge (Trenton) on two candidates of Loch Lomond and two veteran members, Sisters Ada Cole and Ethel Dooher, were presented with 15-year jewels.

The Noble Grand of the lodge, Sister Fraser, welcomed the guests who numbered approximately 100.

Age Level Being Lowered Among Unwed Mothers

TORONTO (CP)—Major Clara Cope of the Salvation Army's Vida Lodge, under whose care have come and gone 1,000 unmarried mothers and their infants, says she has noticed recently a lowering of the age level among unwed mothers.

She says there are more girls of 14, 15, and 16 years who face unmarried parenthood than there were five years ago. She and her fellow workers in this field of social work suggest reasons for this are the instability of youth, greater freedom in the schools and even greater freedom in the homes.

Maj. Cope says there is no substitute for family stability, with frank discussions between mother and daughter, in helping avoid the sort of situation which would lead to unmarried motherhood.

She says that often in the background of such cases are traces of inharmonious family living. Many girls seeking help are from broken homes. In other cases, there has been constant strife between parents, with little feeling for family belonging.

She believes mothers whose daughters become illegitimately pregnant are, on the whole, more understanding of the problem than those of a generation ago but she feels there still is room for improvement for the long-term welfare of all concerned.

In some cases, a psychiatrist is needed to straighten out the emotional mixups of a girl accused by her mother of permanently ruining the reputation of the entire family.

Girls of many nationalities and from many parts of Canada go to Vida Lodge, opened in 1946, for help and medical care. At present the ages of girls there range from 14 to 27 years, with by far the majority in their teens.

Each receives a sound training in infant care, then later is able to assist in the nursery.

Most girls consent, after some weeks of consideration, to place their babies for adoption. A few prefer to struggle on their own, placing their babies in foster homes while they work to maintain them.

Westwood WA Holds Coronation Tea

WESTWOOD (ENS) — A delightful coronation tea was held by the Women's Association of St. Andrew's United Church, Westwood, Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Wilbert Graham.

The guests were received by Mrs. Hugh Neilson and welcomed by the president, Mrs. James Sargent. Mrs. Ronald Warner was treasurer.

The tea table was covered with a white cloth and centred with a beautiful bouquet of white lilacs and silk flags.

The tea room was decorated with bouquets of lilacs, tulips and lily-of-the-valley and pictures of the Queen.

Coronation Tea At All Saints'

The All Saints' Anglican Church Year held their regular monthly meeting Thursday afternoon in the form of a Coronation tea in the parish hall.

A short business meeting was conducted by Mrs. J. Morley, president, in the upper hall. The months presented their collections which totalled $110.

Following the business period the tea was held in the lower hall which was decorated in the coronation theme. Mrs. Morley and Mrs. H. Mouch received.

Mrs. S. Daniel was in charge of the tea table which was covered with a lace cloth and centred with a crown on a gold cushion. Wine tapers in crystal candlesticks surrounded by dwarf wine pansies and lily-of-the-valley completed the table decorations.

Mrs. C. W. Balfour and Mrs. E. C. Wright poured tea.

The tea was convened by Mrs. A. Hall who was assisted by the months of the church year. Mrs. Frank Gray was treasurer for the afternoon.

Teen Y Holds Cotton Capers

More than 60 'teen-agers attended the Cotton Capers Dance in the recreation room of the YWCA Friday night sponsored by the Teen Y Club.

The decorations for the dance were cotton prints. The music was provided by the Four Sharps and a Flat.

Mrs. E. Armstrong Hostess To Group

CAVAN (ENS)—Mrs. Edward Armstrong entertained the north group of the WA of St. Andrew's United Church, Millbrook, on Wednesday evening. She was assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Bert Gardiner.

Each member brought a perennial plant or slips from her garden and a sale was held before the meeting commenced which netted the group $5.75.

The meeting opened with prayer led by Mrs. J. McKnight. Mrs. C. Petterson had charge of the devotional period. Mrs. H. C. Argue gave an account of the Peterborough Presbytery WA convention held in St. James' United Church, Peterborough in April; Mrs. Allen Wood an account of the citizenship group and a synopsis of Mrs. Rose's address and Mrs. D. Lang read a poem on which Mrs. Rose's speech was based.

The lunch committee composed of Mrs Henry Fallis and Mrs. Aubrey Fallis assisted the hostesses in serving refreshments.

Mrs. Allen Wood invited the group to meet at her home in June. The meeting closed with the singing of the theme song.

Choice Of Rings Requires Much Care And Thought

One good stone perfectly cut is better than several of inferior cutting.

Diamonds never dim and so there is a tendency to think that they are not dirty but on the contrary they need to be cleaned regularly to remove hand lotion, dried soap or dust. An inexpensive eyebrow brush soaked in hot water and a soapless detergent are the only materials needed. A jar of cleaner kept within reach in the bedroom or kitchen is also helpful. To dry use a silk handkerchief. One further precaution is to have the jeweller examine your ring once a year. And don't throw your ring in your jewel case along with other stones because diamonds can scratch any stone as well as other diamonds.

Even before you have decided upon the "right man" you have dreamed about the engagement ring that you will receive. You examine the diamonds of your friends and draw some conclusions about the one you would like.

The betrothal ring is not a gift; rather it is a symbol. It is a tradition older than the veil, the bouquet, wedding cake or old shoes. As the ancient customs did not include a religious ceremony with a second ring the diamond represented a pledge of marriage.

The diamond, used as early as the fourth century, A.D., became the accepted stone because it was symbolic of enduring love as well as being the hardest substance in nature. It would last for a lifetime, and could be passed on to future generations if desired.

Although the ring was supposed to be a surprise in earlier days, now most girls prefer to have some influence on the final choice, for they are the ones who are going to wear it.

The first step is to select a jeweller on whom you can depend. Then your fiance can look at a selection of rings in his own particular price range and finally consult you about the final decision.

CAREFUL CHOICE

As the diamond itself is the expensive part of the ring care should be taken in the selection. Four important factors to be taken into account are the carat, the cut, the color and the clarity. The carat refers to the unit of weight for diamonds. One carat contains 100 points and so a twenty point diamond would be a fifth of a carat. The arrangement of facets and final shape of the gem are termed the cut. The quality not the cut itself affects the price. Although the round cut is the most common, the emerald, or the marquise, are popular. The color should be as white as possible. If you look at the ring away from the counter in the clear north light the true color may be perceived. Finally the clarity is important. An experienced eye and a magnifying glass can detect any flaws, carbon spots or cracks when the diamond appears perfect to the ordinary person.

Strange Boy Wants To See Girl Only Once A Week

DEAR MISS DIX: Danny and I have been going together for several months and, although we don't go steady, he takes me out every Saturday night. As long as I keep Saturday night for him, he doesn't care if I see other boys. I feel I could learn to love him in time, but, to be sure, I'd like to date others. On the two or three occasions when I have done so, I've lied to Danny about how I was going to spend those evenings. I feel that, contrary to what he says, he wouln't like it if he knew I went out with someone else.

VICKY S.

CONTINUE OTHER DATES

ANSWER: Why not take Danny at his word and be perfectly frank about your other dates? You're doing the right thing by going out with other boys, since Danny doesn't monopolize your time, and doesn't expect to. If he does have any objections, meet them as they come along, but don't lie.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Our senior prom is coming up and I'm in a dilemma over it. I've been going steady with Steve for the last two years, but hesitate to invite him to the prom since he is careless about his appearance. He never bothers about his appearance when he takes me out—just shows up in his blue jeans. Joel is the other boy I could ask, but he refuses to go unless I give Steve up entirely. Should I make the break with Steve or continue to be embarrassed over his appearance?

M. V.

ANSWER: If you are very much in love with Steve, breaking up with him would only make you miserable, but I gather from your letter that your emotions are not too deeply involved. Any boy who sincerely cares for a girl would have the consideration to dress neatly when he takes her out. He should be the embarrassed one, when he notes that you are attractively clad while he has given no thought to his appearance. His actions belie any declarations of respect or devotion; a change would be good for you.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My cousin's wife has been having an affair for some time. She puts her three children (aged nine, five and two) in the picture show five nights a week while she goes dancing and drinking. Her husband is a fine man and hard worker. We live in a small town, and I'd like to get advice about what I can do about the situation.

C. C.

ANSWER: It seems scarcely possible that three children so young could be disposed of so thoroughly almost every evening without arousing talk. If you have stated the facts correctly, however, some steps should be taken to protect the youngsters. Their father certainly should be told of the situation, though how it has escaped his attention until now is a mystery. Be sure your own motives are sincere, and that your interference is warranted.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: How can one avoid being used as a "good thing"? We live in a nice community and have fixed up our yard as a playground for our three children. All the youngsters in the neighbourhood take advantage of it. Sometimes there are 12 or 13 children here, several of them remaining until dark.

BAFFLED

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Any family providing attractive play equipment for its youngsters shares your problem. A trapeze, playhouse or slide acts like a magnet. Having a community young congregate in your yard has certain advantages; you always know where your own children are, and mixing so thoroughly with other youngsters of about the same ages will help them all. However, even the best of things can be overdone, and, in order to resolve your dilemma, why not set aside a definite period each day when the other children are welcome. You can be firm, but tactful, about this arrangement which I am sure you will find workable.

Readers' Saturday Column by Mary Moore

QUESTION: Will you please reprint Banana Bread? . . .

Daily Reader

ANSWER: Banana Bread appeared May 23rd by request from Marion S Hope you saw it. If not write again and enclose stamped envelope and I will mail it to you.

QUESTION: Please send me copy of your diet. I am 24 years old and I weigh 170 lbs. Please let me know a recipe for Salad dressing also what kind of bread is best to eat when on a diet. I have 2 children and I know I would feel better if I could lose some weight. . .

Mrs. C. Y.

ANSWER: I am mailing you a calorie chart and a release which appeared Dec. 9th for weight-watchers. Please send stamped envelope when you want return mail.

REDUCERS' DRESSING

(This recipe has not appeared on this page before.)

Beat 1 egg well and add to it 2 tablespoons flour, then stir in 1½ cups water, ½ cup vinegar and 10 sucaryl tablets. Stir over heat turned low until thick. Cool and store in covered jar. The herbs make this dressing interesting to the reducers. The sweetener has no calories.

I am working on another dressing for the reducers. I hope to print it next week.

Mrs. C. Y. you should have 3 slices 100% whole wheat bread without butter every day. There are reducer's breads on the market too—but since you need whole wheat as a protective food the whole wheat bread serves a double purpose.

QUESTION: I noticed a few months back you had a recipe. . . for a face pack to clean pores. . . every spring my face looks terrible and I would like to give it some attention. If you have a recipe for hand cream I would be grateful. I have a large family and my hands always look like sandpaper and can't afford expensive creams. Mrs. W. M. (see below)

QUESTION: Would you be so kind as to send me your instructions for homemixed hand lotion. My hands are so unsightly after housecleaning, the hand creams I buy don't seem to help one bit.

Mrs. L. A.

ANSWER: (to both letters above): Hand lotions are not cheap to make, but the simplest and most effectual one I know that can be made at home is this: In double boiler melt together 3 oz. cocoa butter, 3 oz. oil of sweet almond, 3 oz. white beeswax. Stir all together until smoothly blended, then remove from heat and stir cnstantly until cold. Then add (if desired as a perfume) 1 dram each oil of lavender and oil of rosemary. Hand Lotion 2: One oz. white beeswax 3 oz. borax, 1 oz. juice bitter almonds, 3 oz. thick oatmeal water. Blend together in top of double boiler until smooth. Cool stirring. All these ingredients may be bought in your drug store.

These remarks are addressed to Mrs. W. M. M. What I am going to say about skin care is working wonders for a girl who asked me the same question. Wash your face with mild soap and hot water 6 times per day. Drink 10 8-oz. glasses water per day. Eat at least 2 fresh fruits and 1 green salad, and 1 carrot per day. Eat whole wheat bread instead of white bread and do not eat candy or chocolate. Try this routine for 2 weeks and if it does not work in your case write to me again.

QUESTION: Do you ever use lima beans? I'd like a recipe using them that isn't too much trouble. Most recipes call for things I do not have here. . .

Marion H. B.

ANSWER: Thanks for the recipe you enclosed, I have printed 4 recipes for Dandelion Wine, so am filing yours.

LIMA BEAN CASSEROLE

Soak 1 lb. limas overnight. Boil gently in water to cover until tender. Gently fry ¼ lb. salt pork cut fine. Add 1 small diced onion and ½ cup diced carrots, ½ teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper to the beans. Pour all into greased baking dish, having enough of the bean water to show just below surface. Cover with the salt pork. Cover and bake at 300 deg. Fahr. until vegetables are tender and most of the water is evaporated.

NOTE: If desired some catsup or tomatoes and a little mustard may be added to this lima bean dish.

Home and School Association News

COLDSPRINGS (OTONABEE)

Coldsprings (Otonabee) Home and School Association held the last meeting of the current year Wednesday evening.

Mrs. J. McNeill read a compiled report of the various activities of the year arranged by the different conveners Mrs. D. Deyell, retiring president, tendered thanks for the splendid support she received.

Installation of officers for the coming year took place. They are as follows:—

President, Mrs. John Kitney; 1st vice-pres., Mrs. H. Rye; 2nd vice-pres., Mrs T. McNeil; recording secretary, Mrs. B. K. Brown; corresponding secretary, Mrs. M. Sanders; treasurer, Mr. F. McGovarin.

Executive members: Mrs. A. Henwood, Mrs. T. McQuaig, Mrs. K. Rose, Mrs. W. Orde, Mrs. D. Metherel

Mrs. H. Rye presented a gift on behalf of the school to Mrs. Wright who will not resume teaching in the fall.

Mr. Don McKnight gave an interesting demonstration of a film strip machine.

Mr. Morrow, music supervisor, led the school choir, which placed first in the recent Kiwanis Music Festival, in two selections.

Mr. McKnight's room won the attendance trophy. Refreshments were served by Mrs. T. McQuaig and her committee.

Brook-Quinlan

At St. Peter's Rectory on Friday evening, the Rev. R. J. Garvey solemnized the marriage of Margaret Agnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Quinlan, and Gordon Brook, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Brook, all of Peterborough.

The bride was attired in a blue suit and wore white accessories and a corsage of pink roses. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Melville LeGros and the groom's attendant was his brother, William Brook.

The couple have left to honeymoon at Niagara Falls and in Buffalo. They will live in Peterborough.

6—In Memoriam

CROWE—In memory of my mother, Mrs. Lavina Crowe, who passed away May 29, 1951.
A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
—Ever remembered by her son Albert and daughter-in-law Grace, two grandchildren Gary and Gail.

KIERAN—13th anniversary—In loving memory of my beloved husband and dear father, Arthur P. Kieran, who died on May 31st, 1940. "Rest in peace."
Deep in our hearts you are fondly remembered,
Sweet, happy memories cling round your name;
Fond hearts that loved you with deepest affection,
Always will love you in death just the same.

Things have changed many ways,
But one thing changeth never,
The memory of those happy days
When we were all together.
Our Lady of Fatima, pray for him.
—Inserted by his loving wife and daughters Catherine, Marie and son-in-law Frank.

McVETY—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Jennie McVety, who passed away May 30, 1950.
Time speeds on, three years have passed
Since death its gloom, its shadows cast
Within our home, where all seemed bright,
And took from us a shining light.
We miss that light, and ever will;
Her vacant place there's none to fill.
Down here we mourn, but not in vain,
For up in heaven we will meet again.
—Lovingly remembered by family.

REID—In fond memory of my brother, J. Clinton Reid, who was accidentally killed on May 30, 1950.
You are not forgotten brother
Nor ever will you be
As long as life and memory lasts
We will remember thee.
—Sadly missed by brother Basil and family.

REID—In memory of a loving brother, Joseph C. Reid, who passed away three years ago today.
You're not forgotten brother dear,
Nor ever shall you be,
As long as life and memory last
I shall remember thee.
—Always remembered by Marjorie.

REID—Loving memories of a dear son, Joseph C. Reid, who passed away three years ago today.
Today recalls sad memories,
Of my dear son gone to rest,
And the ones who think of him today
Are the ones who loved him best.
—Always remembered by his father.

SKITCH—In loving memory of Mr. and Mrs. W. Fred Skitch, who passed away two years ago, mother May 30, 1951, and Dad June 10, 1951.
Beautiful memories, tenderly kept,
Of a dear mother and dad we loved,
And will never forget.
Deep in our hearts
They will always remain,
Till God in His time unites us again.
—Ever remembered by the family.

7—Card of Thanks

I wish to express my sincere thanks to the many friends who have been so kind and thoughtful at the time of my recent sad bereavement in the loss of my dear wife, especially thanking Rev. Richmond for his consoling words.—Charles Beggs.

We would like to thank friends and the north-end neighbours for flowers and cards of sympathy in the loss of a dear daughter, Vera.—Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Fairbairn.

Cobourg Club Sponsors Trade Fair

COBOURG (ENS)—Cobourg Rotary Club Trade Fair which opened on Thursday night for a two-night run at the recreation centre has been extended another night and will conclude tonight. The attendance at the fair exceeded all expecattions. Although it rained Friday night, the place was packed and the committee decided to run it Saturday afternoon and evening.

Exhibitors came from Toronto, Peterborough, Belleville, Trenton, Roseneath, Baltimore, Newcastle, Cobourg and Port Hope. There were around 75 booths. Outside exhibitors were very enthusiastic over the locale of the fair and the large attendance.

Friday night "Timmy" of this year's Easter Seal Campaign, who is Bruce McGregor of Roseneath, was at the booth of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children and was presented with a gift by Bert L. Baulch, Toronto, general manager of the Canadian Council for Crippled Children, in appreciation of Timmy's co-operation in the Eastel Seal drive.

Fenella Delegates Named To Convention

FENELLA (ENS). — The United Church Women's Association met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. M. Adams. Devotional was led by Mrs. Gordon Jewell, Scripture reading by Mrs. James Curtis. Readings on the theme "Light" were read by Mrs. Thomas Madge, Mrs. Carl McNaught, Mrs. Clifton Rogers, and Mrs. Marcus Lonsberry.

Good Cheer reported on cards sent out, Mrs. Frank George, Mrs. Thomas Madge, and Mrs. Leslie Campbell volunteered as delegates to the WA convention at Roseneath United Church. It was decided to invite the Rev. and Mrs. W. Stegink to the June meeting. Program convener will be Mrs. Donald George, and lunch committee will be Mrs. Eldridge Sherwin, Miss Ruby Adams, Mrs. M. Lonsberry, and Mrs. Clifton Rogers.

Mrs. Eldridge Sherwin introduced the following numbers: Readings by Mrs. Fern Macklin and Mrs. N. C. Leach.

Mrs. Gordon Sandercock moved a vote of thanks to the hostess. A few articles from the sewing and variety table were sold.

Public Speaking Contest At Stirling

STIRLING (ENS) — A public speaking contest was held in Stirling Public School this week under the supervision of Inspector G. Nelson of Centre Hastings. Honors went to Raye David, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira David, a pupil of SS No. 6. Her subject was "The Dowager Queen Mary."

Wendy Warren, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Warren was second chosing as her subject "The Life of Queen Elizabeth."

Judges were Col. R. Vanderwater, Percy Roy and Dr. E. A. Carleton.

Planning Festival For 1954 As Concert Held

The 1954 Peterborough Kiwanis Club Music Festival will be held in mid-March, Wilson Gemmell, club president, announced Friday night at the second final concert of the 1953 festival held in St. Peter's School auditorium.

"The machinery for next year's festival is already in action," the president said.

Festival award, scholarship and trophy winners from nine communities were the guest artists at Friday's concerts. The communities represented were Port Hope, Cobourg, Toronto, Oshawa, Lindsay, Campbellford, Buckhorn, Otonabee and Peterborough.

One of the highlights of the evening was the singing of the Maple Leaf Quartet of Lindsay. A rule in force since the festival's beginning seven years ago was broken for these singers when they were brought back by an enthusiastic audience to sing an encore. Their program selection was Jerome Kern's Old Man River and for an encore they sang a Medley of Sea Chanties.

The concert was officially opened by Stanley Adamson, chairman of the Board of Education.

HELPS TWO WAYS

"We are very fortunate in Peterborough to have an organization such as the Kiwanis Club that sponsors a musical festival," he said. "This festival helps not only to develop musical talent but also to develop personality."

The second final concert brings to a close the 1953 festival which was described as, "the best festival we have had," by the club president, Mr. Gemmell.

This year the most outstanding characteristics of the festival were a noticeably higher standard of performance and also an increased number of entries from outside centres. Of the 754 festival entries, 260 were from Peterborough. Port Hope was the high outside community with 83 entries. The entry scope reached west to Hamilton and east to Kingston.

Rangers Try Dropping Firefighting Equipment

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—Chief fire rangers of the department of lands and forests practised dropping fire fighting equipment by parachute from Beaver aircraft here and in the Black Sturgeon area this week.

"Experiments were successful with shovels, hoses, gas crash cans, etc., landing close to the targets," Richard Boultbee, district forester, said.

"On an inland fire, the fighters can get to the scene a lot quicker and fresher if they are not burdened with equipment," Boultbee said.

QUEEN'S SECRETARY—Sir Allan Lascelles, 65, handles all the correspondence of Queen Elizabeth as her private secretary. He served in the same capacity for the late King George VI for nine years.

OBITUARIES

MITCHELL JACOB HART

Mitchell Jacob Hart, 63, River Road south, died today at his home after a short illness.

Mr. Hart was born in Peterborough, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Hart. He moved to Weldon, Sask., and then returned to Peterborough eight years ago.

An employee of the DeLaval Co., Mr. Hart was a member of Trinity United Church and the Royal Arthur Masonic Lodge.

He is survived by his wife, the former Florence Derry, three sisters, Mrs. Harry Pearse (Ruby), Mrs. Gordon Zoellner (Blanche), Mrs. Peter Petersen (Mary), and a brother Jack R. Hart, all of New Westminster, B.C.

The funeral service will be held Monday at the Comstock funeral home at 3 p.m., the Rev. Gordon S. Maxwell officiating. Burial will be in Little Lake cemetery.

JULES JOSEPH ETHIER

MARMORA (ENS) —Stricken at the dinner table, a well-known resident of Deloro, Jules Joseph Ethier, 65, died Friday afternoon.

He had been employed by the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company Limited as a mason for the past quarter of a century, coming to the village from Belleville. He had returned to work Friday morning following an illness of short duration. He was interested in sports particularly baseball and hockey and in his time had done some training of junior teams. He was a member of Sacred Heart Church and belonged to the Holy Name Society.

Besides his widow, four children survive him: Mrs. R. Henderson (Elizabeth), Grimsby; Mrs. V. Wemyss (Evelyn), Toronto; Mrs. John Keast (Peggy), Sudbury; and William Ethier, Sarnia. Also surviving are two brothers and two sisters: Edward, Belleville; Walter, Montreal; Mrs. J. O'Connor (Ethel) Belleville and Mrs. Romeo Mercier (Anna) Montreal. Funeral arrangements are being announced later.

Burma Y Trying To Build After Long Chaotic History

The work of the World Service Organization in Burma since the Japanese occupation and the greater need for Y service in the field was described to a combined meeting of YMCA directors and Y clubs by H. J. Payne, a veteran American YMCA worker, Friday night at the YMCA.

Burma, about the same size as Ontario, has a population of eighteen million people. Ranging from descendants of the early Mongolians, who brought with them their own culture and racial characteristics to that of the Chinese and Hindus, most of them being Buddhists. Only two per cent of the population are Christians.

The Burmese, a short stocky race like that of the Fillipino, are always smiling.

NATURAL RESOURCES

The country is blessed with an abundance of natural resources, with oil, wood, rice and rubber being their chief industries. The Burmese themselves are an agricultural race. Consequently firms from other countries have moved into Burma and have run the industries. In 1885, Burma became a part of British India and Britain has the greatest capital investment in the country.

Trading is done by Indians who migrated to Burma in the late 1880's, bringing with them lawyers and doctors. The labor force is made up of Hindus and Mohammedans, from the south of India.

Immigrants from China are mostly artisans and labourers and the Burmese slowly saw their country in the early part of the twentieth century being run by foreigners, and were helpless to do anything about it.

GOOD GOVERNMENT

British rule brought to Burma for the first time good government and improved the whole economic structure of the country.

In 1941, the British were forced to evacuate Burma, due to the Japanese onslaught, and set up a government in exile in Simla. Two years after the Japanese took over, Burmese were allowed to set up a local government under Japanese supervision and for the first time in the history of Burma were allowed to rule themselves. They were also permitted to form an army.

In 1944, the Burmese government saw that Japan was fighting a losing battle and changed sides. Their government went underground and pledged their allegiance to Britain and the Allied cause.

Following the defeat of Japan, the British came back to Burma with the government that was in exile in Simla. But they found a change. For after having a taste of ruling themselves under Japanese occupation, they were not content to have Britain come back and take over the complete control of the government.

Officials in London realized the change in attitude of the Burmese people and in 1948 Attlee's government promised them independence if they could bring the various races together and decide on a national flag.

Britain moved out in 1948 and gave Burma complete self-government, taking with her many of the invaluable trained civil servants; and left Burma without any capable officials.

SOCIALIST PATTERN

The government that took over the reins of office patterned itself after that of the Socialist party in Great Britain and since then have advocated a neutral foreign policy, similar to that of India.

One of its main acts after taking office was to break up the large estates and divide the newly acquired land among the people. One person was allowed only 50 acres of land. As yet they have nationalized only oil and wood and some of the larger exporting firms.

The Burmese Y movement was started in 1902, when some of the larger British firms began recreation organizations patterned after the ones in Britain. But in 1940 when the English evacuated Burma the YMCA movement which was just beginning to get on its feet collapsed showing that there wasn't a great deal of participation in it, on the part of the Burmese.

Following the Japanese occupation in 1945 Mr. Payne was one of the first Christian YMCA workers to enter Burma and helped to set up again the YMCA in Rangoon.

PROVINCIAL BOARD

There was set up a provincial board, which did not stress the Christian element. But they sought to promote education, recreation and games for the children of Burma.

The biggest problem that they faced was the lack of leadership. For board members of any YMCA movement must be Christians; and since there are so few Christians in Burma, it was hard to fill the staff. They also had to be Burmese because of the acute racial awareness now in the East.

All that the World Service Organization provides to YMCA's in the field is experienced leadership and organizers; and they must supply the money for salaries, buildings and other expenses.

Scots Giving Island Back To Sea

EDINBURGH (Reuters) — The Scots are giving the island of Soay back to the sea.

The entire population of the tiny Hebridean isle—27 Scotsmen and their wives and children—have given up the fight to make their way on the barren rock after centuries of struggle.

They and their 27 cattle will move en masse to the Isle of Mull June 18 and Soay will be left to the seagulls.

The land is rocky and arid; the lobster catches are becoming smaller every season. The isle, three miles long and two miles wide at its widest point, lies a mile off the southern shore of Skye, in the Inner Hebrides. But the population is moving to Mull, 40 miles south.

FOOTING BILL

The move was announced Friday by the department of agriculture, which is footing the bill.

The department has bought a 218-acre estate in the Craignure district of Mull, and has set up an apartment block there. The estate has arable land for crofts and grazing, with good prospects for forestry and fishing.

The islanders asked to be moved. Their living was precarious; the school had been closed; the nearest doctor was across the water in Skye; and there were only just enough hands to man the ferryboat.

Agencies Quit Welfare Council

NEW YORK (AP)—Roman Catholic charity agencies are quitting New York City's Health and Welfare Council because it admitted planned parenthood groups to membership.

The break marks the end of 30 years' participation by Catholic agencies in the council.

Announcing Friday that their agencies were pulling out of the council as of July 1, the Catholic charities of the archdiocese of New York and of the diocese of Brooklyn said:

"This action has been taken because we are opposed to co-operating in the council with an organization whose principal program involves a practice gravely contrary to the law of Almighty God."

Catholic doctrine condemns artificial birth control. The planned parenthood centres favor birth control to limit family sizes to the means and plans of the parents.

Replying to the Catholic statement, Mrs. Robert Ferguson, president of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America, said "nine out of 10 doctors" endorse contraception for birth control.

As to the contention it is contrary to the laws of God, she added:

"It seems reasonable and right to us that there is more than one dogmatic interpretation of God's law, and that each human being is entitled to freedom in his belief."

Coronation Highlights

LONDON (AP)—The Daily Mirror and Daily Sketch, rival London tabloids, have been using gold ink for their titles these days. Now the Daily Mail says anyone who wants it can have the entire Mail printed in gold June 3. The price will be 18 pence compared to 3½ pence for the same paper in black ink.

Passengers and crew of a British Overseas Airways plane will toast the Queen at noon on Coronation Day. When the Sovereign's well-wishers raise their glasses, the plane, bound from Frankfurt to Rome, will be 19,000 feet over the Alps.

The British Communist party's mouthpiece, Daily Worker, said tartly of Britain's monarchy: "Stuff the kids full of ice cream until they are like to burst, swallow the beer until the barrel runs dry, yawn through the television presentation of the ceremony in the Abbey, but do not fool yourself that the monarchy is a safeguard of freedom, in Britain or anywhere else."

Beyond the gorgeous scenes in which she is the central figure, the Queen won't see much of the Coronation procedure as a whole until Friday night. Then she will see it all on color film at a private presentation in Clarence House where the Royal Family has a tiny private cinema.

Britain's nationalized railways will honor the Queen with a new train called "The Elizabethan" to run from London to Edinburgh non-stop for the 393 miles. The train will make its first run June 29.

Marmora Fair Board To Improve Grounds

MARMORA (ENS). — Directors of Marmora Agricultural Society met on Thursday evening at the home of the president Carl Heath. The president reported on the type of track fence which is to be erected as well as the cement grand stand.

It was mentioned with regret that the project of a calf club had to be abandoned, due to insufficient entries. Since the last directors' meeting the prize list has been revised and placed in the hands of the printer.

The entertainment committee is being asked to arrange for a carnival and dance in the Arena on July 29, with July 31 as an alternative date. This committee will also be taking initial steps for the engagement of [illegible] for the grand stand on fair day.

Keeping Fingers Crossed No Riotous Mishaps At Elizabeth's Coronation

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—The Earl Marshal of England, in charge of Coronation arrangements, probably is keeping his fingers crossed about next Tuesday. Few Coronations have gone off without a hitch.

Victoria, the last queen to be crowned, wrote in her diary that the ring used in the ceremony was too small and hurt her finger and Lord Rolle tripped up the steps while doing homage and she helped him up. At another point she wrote: "The archbishop came in and ought to have delivered the orb to me, but I had already got it, and he, as usual, was so confused and puzzled and knew nothing and went away."

The enthronement of George III was probably the most riotous of all. The deputy earl marshal mislaid the sword of state. The clatter of plates and knives among the hungry nobility nearly drowned out the sermon. By the time the five-hour ceremony was over, it was too dark to see the procession. There had been a strike among workmen at Westminster Hall so that places weren't properly allotted. A fight went on for precedence and there were no chairs for the king or queen.

HORSE AT BANQUET

At the banquet, the horse of the lord high steward backed into the hall to cheers from the guests. Several guests couldn't reach the tables and women in the gallery lowered knotted handkerchiefs to pull up a chicken or bottle of wine. The red-faced deputy earl marshal assured the king the next coronation would be better rehearsed. The king, apparently, instead of being angry, got a bang out of the whole affair.

At early coronations, in the ninth century, the king was carried to church, the bearers expressing their loyalty by tossing him at times into the air.

Eadwig left his banquet guests after his enthronement in 956 to smooch in an ante-chamber with a young widow. The crown had been tossed into a corner. Eadwig was ferreted out and dragged back to his guests.

John of Magna Carta fame, apparently tipsy, took his coronation in 1199 as a huge joke, laughed so hard he dropped the lance and then refused the sacrament.

BARGE GOES AGROUND

At the Charles I coronation, the royal barge ran aground. The crown was too big for James II and sagged over his forehead and a noble fell off his charger while dismounting in front of the banquet hall.

The rings for William and Mary became transposed and when William was to put money in the collection plate it was found his purse had been stolen. Mary had no money.

George IV borrowed horses from a circus for his coronation. Lord Anglesey let the crown fall off the cushion but made a one-handed catch inches from the ground. George refused to let his wife into the abbey. She came anyway but didn't have a ticket and was refused admission.

If the present Earl Marshal, the Duke of Norfolk, has nightmares about June 2, they probably deal with lesser calamities.

NEW FLAG DESIGN—This new flag is attracting attention as it hangs outside the downtown Toronto office of the Canadian Military Journal. It is design for Canadian flag recommended by the Quebec provincial convention of the Canadian Legion. Field is composed of 10 blue and white bars, with fleur-de-lis superimposed on red maple leaf.

Can Convert Coal For Usable Gas

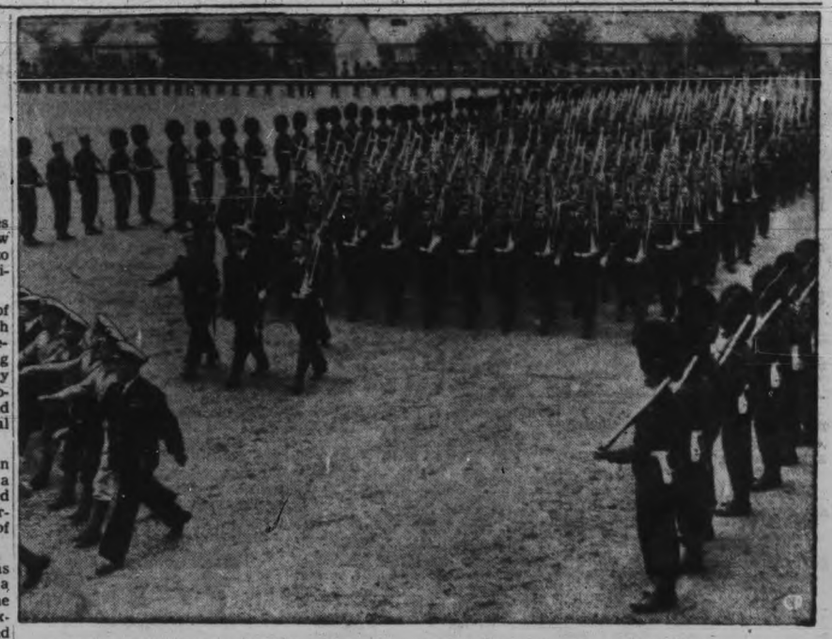
OTTAWA (CP)—A United States government chemist says it now is possible to convert raw coal into a fuel gas commercially competitive with natural gas.

Dr. D. L. Schmidt, director of the U.S. bureau of mines research station at Morganston, W. Va. described the process at a meeting here Friday of the coal policy committee of the conference of provincial ministers of mines and officials of the Dominion coal board.

Dr Schmidt said the process can convert any type of coal into a fuel gas which can also be used to make synthetic ammonia for fertilizers and for the manufacture of gasoline and oils.

Essential part of the process was the burning of pulverized coal in a mixture of oxygen and steam. The burning produced the gas, a mixture of carbon monoxide and hydrogen, and a coal slag, which was a waste product. The process had been perfected at the Morgantown research station.

PROVES COMPETITIVE



"Gas produced in this way is proving in some areas competitive with natural gas," Dr. Schmidt said He predicted further developments in the process will take place shortly.

Dr. Robert D. Howland, Nova Scotia's deputy minister of trade and industry, said his government is working out an arrangement with the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation to ship a number of tons of Nova Scotia coal to the Morgantown research station for testing by the new process.

"Some people are calling this process a revolutionary one," Dr. Howland said. "We don't go that far. However, we think it is worth our very active attention."

Dr. Schmidt said the process could be used with any sort of coal from lignite (very soft coal) through bituminous (soft) to anthracite (hard) coal. Price of the gas varied with cost and type of the coal used. The process extracted all the utilizable energy of the coal.

Most Canadian coal and all Nova Scotia coal is of the bituminous variety. Much Alberta coal is bituminous, but some lignite and some anthracite is found in that province.

REHEARSE FOR BI GDAY—Canadian servicemen in the United Kingdom are keeping busy with rehearsals at their training depot at Pirbright camp near London. They are getting ready fors their part of the Coronation parade. The Canadian contingent, composed of Navy, Army and Air Force service men and women, march 12 abreast. British Guardsmen act as street liners for the rehearsal.

1,000 Exhibitions At Trade Fair

TORONTO (CP)—A thousand exhibitors from 30 countries polished up their goods today preparing for the opening of the sixth Canadian International Trade Fair Monday.

Thousands of Canadian and foreign visitors are expected to see the displays between June 1 and June 12. They will view all types of goods from filmy textiles to heavy construction machinery.

Canadian exhibitions occupy three-eighths of the 258,000 square feet of display space. England is next with about one-sixth of the space and Germany follows with 30,000 square feet.

South Korea last year sent a single business traveller to view the fair. This year she is represented by space equivalent to eight booths, showing nine types of merchandise.

Some 130 German firms have taken space, with the largest regional group representing Berlin.

Tribune Gives Royal Treatment

CHICAGO (CP)—The Chicago Tribune is giving royal treatment to the Coronation.

The newspaper, whose publisher, Col. Robert McCormick, sometimes has been termed anti-British, has been carrying detailed stories of the preparations and historical studies, including a series on other British monarchs and their coronations.

A spokesman for the paper said the Coronation will be covered fully by six reporters and a photographer.

There has been no editorial comment on the event.

But despite the Coronation coverage, the Tribune's critical attitude of things British hasn't changed. Recent editorials have been critical and prominence was given to Senator Joseph McCarthy's charges that British-owned ships carried Communist troops in Asiatic waters.

Present Generation Criticized By Clergy

OSHAWA—The Rev. W. Harold Young, secretary of the board of colleges of the United Church of Canada, said Thursday night that the present generation is "the most careless, material-minded, pleasure-loving and drunken in modern times."

Mr. Young told some 400 delegates to the church's Bay of Quinte conference that the church's standard of morals was absolute. He said "the present trend towards relativity of morals has the mark of the devil in it."

He said that for every five dollars spent in Canada on food, one dollar was spent on liquor and beer.

Stock Markets Edge Lower Investors Hesitate Over Truce

By GORDON MacKINNON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Stock markets edged lower this week as investors hesitated to make commitments in view of the possibility of a truce in the Korean fighting.

Many observers traced the easier trend to Sen. Robert A. Taft's suggestion that the United States "forget the United Nations as far as Korea is concerned," should truce negotiations break down. Even President Eisenhower's rejection of the Republican Senator's proposal failed to revive much buying interest.

However, Canadian markets held up somewhat better than Wall Street, which had five consecutive declines before Friday's moderate advance. Market observers cite the numerous long-range development projects under way in Canada, coupled with assurances from the government of no cuts in arms expenditures, as positive stabilizing influences.

ENLIVENED BY SPURTS

Despite the easier trend, the Canadian stock exchanges were enlivened by spurts in individual mining and oil stocks, particularly mining companies with property in the Bathurst, N.B., area.

Careful picking and choosing among western oil and gas stocks was also apparent. Gridoil, sparked by reports from a well in the Gull Lake area of Saskatchewan, created a mid-week flurry to gain 70 cents and close at $8.35.

Volume for the week at Toronto was 15,065,000 shares—a sizable increase over last week's 8,671,000 share turnover. Montreal moved 255,785 shares of industrials and 1,464,732 mines during the previous week.

A day-by-day analysis, beginning Monday in Toronto, shows base metals leading all sections to lower ground until Thursday, when western oils became the heaviest losers. On Friday, western oils recovered to slow the market's downward trend. In Montreal, the market held firm for the first three days, but weakened near the end of the week when papers and industrials slipped.

FOUR DECLINES

Wall Street took four consecutive declines—each a little worse than the previous one—until railways led the way back to firmer ground on Friday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks of the New York market revealed a decline during the week of $2.30 at $109.10.

From Friday to Friday the Toronto exchange indexes showed industrials down 1.04 at 308.44, golds down .83 at 78.44, base metals down 2.83 at 155.80 and western oils down .90 at 115.79.

In the Montreal averages, banks were up .48 at 33.34, utilities were up 1.0 at 94.7, industrials were up 1.8 at 187.7, combined were up 1.5 at 156.7, papers were off 2.40 at 672.77 and golds were off .24 at 60.30.

Windsor Woman Has Her 103rd Birthday

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Mrs. Eliza Paddon, a neat ribbon in her white hair, sat propped against pillows in her bed Friday to receive relatives and friends who came to extend wishes on her 103rd birthday.

Beside her were messages of congratulations from Queen Elizabeth, Defence Minister Claxton who is acting prime minister in the absence of Prime Minister St. Laurent, and Don F. Brown, Liberal member of Parliament for Essex West.

Now blind and of poor hearing, she can recall events long past but her recollection of more recent things has faded.

Disbarred As Lawyer

TORONTO (CP)—H. R. McGladdery of Windsor has been disbarred from practising as a lawyer the Law Society of Upper Canada announced Friday. The society said McGladdery failed to account for and used for himself certain sums of money while refusing or neglecting to carry out an undertaking to the discipline committee of the society.

Enjoying Warm Sun Finds Fire At Feet

DETROIT (CP) — Victor VanMeerbeech, 48, a telephone company lineman, climbed to the top of a pole Friday to make a minor repair.

The sun felt pleasantly warm. Suddenly he realized the heat also was coming from another direction.

Flames which had spread from a nearby garage fire were licking at his feet. It was too far to jump from the burning pole and there was no help in sight.

Working fast, he tapped a telephone line and called the operator.

The fire department soon came to his rescue. VanMeerbeech escaped with minor burns.

Choose Dr. Putnam For Gold Award

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Dr. D. F. Putnam of the University of Toronto was chosen Friday night to receive a special Coronation gold award presented by Queen Elizabeth. The award is for outstanding work in the field of Canadian geographical science.

The Association of Canadian Geographers, holding its annual meeting at the University of Western Ontario, held a secret ballot to choose the Canadian geographer most worthy to receive the award.

Dr. Putnam, chairman of the department of geography in Toronto, was chosen.

Strike Shuts 2 Plants

PRESTON (CP)—Lawrence Savage, president of Savage Shoe Company Limited, said Friday a strike has closed two of the company's three plants in Preston, near Galt.

A total of 400 employees, members of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL) was idle. Mr. Savage said company plants in Galt, Kitchener and Ferus were not affected.

Gordon Flynn PC President

WARKWORTH (ENS) — The Northumberland Progressive Conservative Association annual meeting was held here in the town hall this week when Gordon Flynn of Trenton was elected president.

Other members officers elected were Rt. Hon. George Drew; Hon. Leslie Frost, Premier of Ontario; Hon. W. A. Goodfellow M.L.A.; Major R. E. Drope, ex-M.P., honorary presidents.

Harvey Brent, Cobourg, 1st vice-president; Mrs. Ralph Locke, Campbellford, 2nd vice president; Nelson Usher, Grafton, 3rd vice president; Douglas Deviney, Vernonville, 4th vice president; Mrs. Gordon Sherwin, Cobourg, 5th vice president; Mrs. W. Tatham, Campbellford, secretary-treasurer

The guest speaker was George Hees, M.P., for Broadview, Toronto. He thought the election would take place in August and declared it would be the first time since Confederation that Canada would have an August election.

Ollie Taylor of Cobourg, Progressive Conservative candidate for Northumberland made his first appearance on a local platform. He paid tribute to George Drew as a great leader and able statesman.

Hon. W. A. Goodfellow spoke of the great contribution Mrs. Meggs, the retiring secretary-treasurer, had made to the party. He said "We have a great leader in George Drew and a fine candidate contesting this riding."

Major R. E. Drope of Harwood introduced the guest speaker Mr. Hees and Roy Wilmot of Cobourg moved the vote of thanks.

Luckiest Man In World Enjoys Breakfast Again

PEMBROKE (CP)—James Russell, the luckiest man in the world, sat up in the Cottage Hospital here Friday and ate breakfast.

For Russell, 47-year-old Ottawa sportsman, lost in the bush and almost given up for dead, it was the first full meal in five days.

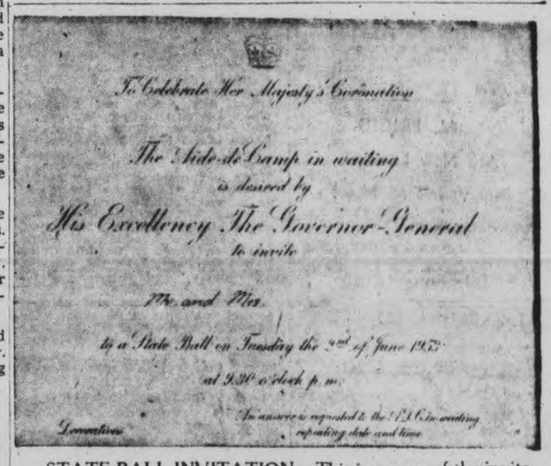
He had orange juice, cereal and bacon. And it was just before he slipped to sleep again that he decided he was the luckiest man in the world.

It all started last Sunday

"The fishing had been great," but he and a friend, Morris Honeywell, took the wrong way back from Big Flat Lake, 25 miles northwest of Rapides des Joachims. Honeywell went on alone to find the trail. When he found it he could not locate Russell again.

Next day the search started. Fifty ground searchers in parties of two went yard by yard through the bush. Two helicopters and planes of the RCAF skimmed over the tree tops.

But they did not find him that day, nor the next day and the next night the rain came.



By dawn Wednesday, Russell, dressed only in shirt, trousers and a light grenfell jacket, was shivering with wet and cold. He was living on water.

At Thursday noon Russell himself began to lose hope.

Help had come near and passed by. "I saw two helicopters and heard other planes, but they couldn't see me. One dropped over the trees right by me. I waved frantically, but it went away."

Two veteran guides from Stonecliffe still believed they could find Russell. Edmond Robitaille, 72, and his partner, Eddie Chamberlain, 51, set out to follow "an instinct."

"We started searching toward Trout lake," Robitaille said. "We came to the end of Little Head lake. I shouted and got an answer. I knew right away it was him."

Massey Revives Tradition Will Hold State Ball

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — A tradition comes to life again here June 2. The first state ball in almost 40 years will be held at Government House to mark the Coronation.

The governor-general has revived this social ceremony of bygone days to climax the Coronation Day celebrations in the capital. About 700 Ottawa residents have been invited to dine and dance at Rideau Hall.

The origins of this formal social function are obscure. So also are records of previous state balls. However, six and possibly seven similar balls were given by previous governors-general to celebrate special events. The last is believed to have been in June, 1914, given by the Duke of Connaught.

State balls are strictly formal affairs with guests invited on the basis of a table of precedence beginning with the governor-general and listing the prime minister, cabinet ministers, lieutenant-governors, senior churchmen, judges, members of Parliament, senators, senior officers of the armed forces and top government officials.

However, this ball will vary the procedure. Many of those who would ordinarily be invited are in England for the Coronation. Accommodation is limited at Rideau Hall so only Ottawa residents will be invited.

About two-thirds of the 700-odd guests are included in the table of precedence. The other guests will be prominent Ottawans in business, social and church life.

Most members of Parliament and senators will not receive an invitation because their permanent residence is in the constituency they represent. This procedure also rules out the lieutenant-governors of the provinces, members of provincial legislatures and judges of provincial courts.

Eviden then Rideau Hall will be crowded. Most of the ground floor rooms and the rolling lawns of the old, grey-stone building will be used by guests. They will dance to fox trots and waltzes played by the band of the Governor-General's Foot Guards, an Ottawa regiment.

Dress is formal, as at previous state balls. Men will wear white tie and tails with miniatures of their decorations, or appropriate uniforms for the three armed services.

The ball begins at 9:45 p. m. EDT with the appearance of the governor-general, and ends about 1 a. m. when he retires.

To relieve the congestion, a marquee will be pitched on the wide lawns in front of the hall. If the weather is fine, guests may stroll about the lawns and take their buffet supper in the marquee.

Excess Moisture Supply In Western Wheat Areas

TORONTO (CP) — Generally heavy precipitation on the Prairies this spring helped to bolster subnormal moisture supplies of the winter.

Statistics prepared by the meteorological division of the federal transport department here show that southern Alberta had an excess of 30 per cent of moisture at the end of April. There was an excess of 15 per cent in southeastern Saskatchewan, and conditions were practically normal in northern and southwestern Saskatchewan, and western Manitoba.

In northern and central Alberta however deficiencies ranged to 10 per cent, and to slightly more than 25 per cent in eastern Manitoba.

GOOD SPRING RAINS

Rains were general throughout the grain belt during May. The month opened with cool, unsettled weather and general light rains. This was followed by a week of dry warm weather. During the second week prairie weather was much cooler and rain with some snow was reported in nearly all districts.

Over an inch of rain fell during the second week in southeastern Manitoba, most of eastern and central Saskatchewan and in the Peace River district of northern Alberta. Freezing temperatures were general throughout the grain region towards the middle of the month.

REGIONAL SHOWINGS

The department reports that in northern Alberta, substantial excesses of 50 and 30 per cent in March and April did much to offset the light precipitation of earlier months. The over-all deficiency for the season at the end of April was only about five per cent.

In central Alberta, the over-all deficiency was reduced to 10 per cent during March and April. Southern Alberta had heavy precipitation during the first four months of 1953, especially in April when the total averaged more than three inches.

For all Alberta, the average increase over normal at the end of April was six per cent.

SASKATCHEWAN GOOD

In northern Saskatchewan there was more precipitation than usual in the first four months, with March decidedly above normal. Southwestern Saskatchewan had normal amounts in January and February, with a heavy fall of three inches in March and April.

Southeastern Saskatchewan after four months of sub-normal amounts had a small excess of precipitation in January, February and April, with twice the normal moisture supply in March.

For all Saskatchewan the average increase over normal was 7 per cent at the end of April.

MANITOBA DRIER

For eastern Manitoba the overall deficiency of moisture supply from August to the end of April amounted to more than 25 per cent. Small excesses were recorded in January and March, but all other months had small to moderate deficiencies.

In western Manitoba total precipitation was practically normal. Deficiencies in other months were offset by large excesses in August and March, and a slightly-above-normal snowfall in January.

For all Manitoba the recrod showed an average decrease below normal of 16 per cent.

Sees Science Building New Vocabulary

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Don't look now but science, with its already large specialized vocabulary, may be on the verge of launching on a new phase of language building.

If it is it will come up with such beauties as mattergy, chenergy, chmattery and spime.

Spark behind these additions to scientific terminology is Professor J. W. T. Spinks, professor of chemistry and dean of graduate studies at the University of Saskatchewan.

As far as Dean Spinks is concerned words that are inexact, or misunderstood, lead to a lot of confusion and trouble.

And as he explained to members of the Humanities Association of Canada Friday these new words will help tomorrow's population understand scientific facts obscured to today's peoples by its concept of word meanings.

In 1968, Dean Spinks predicts, youngsters at recess will be skipping to such dutties as:

"Oh dear what can the mattergy be,
An A-bomb went off in my hair."

He used this example to show that whereas today's average man looks at matter and energy as two separate things, the child of to morrow will be learning that they aren't. The A-bomb proved that matter can be converted into energy.

So up came Dean Spinks with a word to show that the two are convertible—mattergy.

Similarly chnergy means a change in energy. Chmattery means a change in matter and energy.

How about spime?

All Dean Spinks did was hash up the two words space and time—both interwoven in scientific theory—and out came the new word.

New Executive Takes Office

MARMORA (ENS) — The new executive of Marmora Home and School Association were installed in office by past president Mrs. W. G. Chrysler at the annual meeting, held in the Public School on Wednesday evening. The ofifce of first vice-president is as yet unfilled but indications are that before the association closes its sessions for the summer, the full slate will be completed.

The officers for the year are: Acting president, Mrs. Roy Ford; second vice - president, Mrs. Donald Marett; recording secretary, Mrs. James Heath; corresponding secretary, Mr. James Sproul; treasurer, Mrs. Robert Gray; committee, Mrs. Harold Olsen, Mr. James Trombley, Mrs. E. Manchester, Mrs. Granville Meiklejohn, Mrs. Jack Grant, Mrs. C. A. Lorenson and Mrs. A. F. Fraser. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Roy Frost.

The guests, who included teachers from Madoc and also schools in the Marmora-Deloro district, were welcomed.

The president drew attention to the annual school picnic to be held on its grounds on June 26. Plans will be drawn up at a forthcoming executive meeting. Finally she extended thanks to the members for the fine support accorded her during the two years she has been president. Attendance of grandparents and parents was taken by Mr. J. Trombley of the school staff, showing honors for the month going to Mrs. J. Heath's class.

Quirt McKinney, music supervisor of Peterborough Normal School, was guest speaker. He gave an instructive talk on the subject, "Are we making Canada musical?" He sketched the history of music. He pointed out that choral music is at the top of the ladder, because, unlike other music, it emanates from a living thing—the human voice. At the close of his address, he entertained the audience with an enlivening sing-song in which all took delight in participating. Introduced by W. J. Cottrell, he was thanked by Mrs. James Loveless, teacher at Deloro Separate School. The meeting closed with the National Anthem. Refreshments were served and a social half-hour followed.

GLEE CLUB MEETS

The monthly meeting of St. Andrew's Glee Club was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. Annie Lowery.

For the program, each member contributed a reading and later shared reminiscences with fellow members of the Gilmour district where the new United Church was dedicated last Sunday afternoon. Tea was served and the National Anthem sung before adjournment.

24 GIRL GUIDES

Progress has been made with the establishment of Marmora Company of Girl Guides and 24 girls have been enrolled. Twelve were presented recently to Commissioner Mrs. R. D. Arnott, of Belleville, who visited the company

The following week, Mrs. D. Bateman, of Madoc, District Commissioner for Tweed and Madoc, visited the company and enrolled the second group.

Members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Marmora Branch No. 237 Canadian Legion attended the zone rally at Wellington on Wednesday evening.

BITTEN BY HALF A SNAKE — Student nurse Peggy Hood consoles her brother Ted in an Atlanta, Ga., hospital where he is being treated after being bitten by half a snake. Ted and his father had chopped an eight-foot copperhead snake in half. When Ted picked up the business end, it bit him.

Now Bouncing Radio Waves Off Tails Of Shooting Stars

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Bouncing radio waves off the tails of shooting stars may hold the answer to long-distance communication with those waves which normally disappear at the horizon.

In a paper given to the Canadian Association of Physicists the authors described reception of such radio waves in Ottawa, almost 1,000 miles from the transmitting station.

They said they believed transmission over that distance was due almost entirely to reflection from electrical particles trailed behind meteors. This theory was pointed up by sharp increase in signal strength when heavy meteor showers were taking place.

MAY BE AFFECTED

The frequencies which may be affected by this method of long-range communication are those used for frequency modulation and possibly television. These waves are reliable only to the horizon.

The physicists, E. L. Vogan and T. A. Forsyth of the defence research tele-communications establishment in Ottawa, did not commit themselves on the usefulness of this phenomena. They said further studies were necessary.

Dr. C. A. Littlewood of the same research body described "tides" in the electrical atmosphere above the earth similar to those in the ocean.

These stratospheric tides occur every 12 hours and rise and fall distances of more than a mile.

Killed By Auto

WHITBY (CP)—Alfred Lyle, 78, of South Myrtle was killed Friday night when struck by a car near his home as he crossed the street. South Myrtle is 10 miles north of here. Police said the driver was Earl Crisp of Toronto. Whitby is seven miles west of Oshawa.

Find Baby In Train

TORONTO (CP)—A baby boy was found abandoned Friday night in a railway coach of a Canadian National Railways train that had arrived from Buffalo, N.Y., police said. The baby was turned over to the Children's Aid authorities while railroad and city police attempted to find out who placed the baby on the train and where.

Beer Bottle Money Said Split By Police

WHITBY (CP) — Evidence of money received from the disposal of empty beer bottles being split six ways among members of the police force was heard Friday during a hearing held by the three-man Pickering township police commission.

The commission, headed by Judge F. J. MacRae, is investigating the disposition of beer and liquor seized by police. It was adjourned late Friday.

Doug Wilson, former member of the township force and now a constable with the Scarborough department, said he received $36 for empty beer bottles and the money was shared among members of the force, including chief Lockart Trinnell.

REFUSED MONEY

Sgt. Fred White, a member of the force since 1946, said he refused to accept any of the money and after it was left on his desk, he put it in a sealed envelope and gave it to his solicitor.

Constable Gordon Channing, formerly at Pickering and now with the force at Ajax, said 13 cases of beer had been seized in the Ajax Legion Hall in 1950.

Chief Trinnell said there is no complete record of seizures.

Joseph Barlett, Ontario provincial police inspector, said there had been no returns made to the liquor control board since May, 1950. He added that he could find only 32 of the 296 bottles of beer confiscated following a golf club raid.

Indian Gets 10 Years

CALGARY (AP) — A Supreme Court jury Friday night convicted Alex Standing-At-The-Door of manslaughter in the fire deaths of five persons on the Gleichen Indian reserve last April 4.

Mr. Justice E. B. Wilson sentenced him to 10 years in prison on each of five counts of manslaughter, the sentences to run concurrently. Standing-At-The-Door, a reserve Indian, originally was charged with murder.

Paul's Writing

(Contined from Church Page)

torial comment I had mildly regretted such substitution except as it might be made to bring out some specific point.

I was interested to find that Dr. Moffatt agreed with this. He pointed out that his translation had been made in Great Britain where the Authorized Version was used in the schools, and would continue to be, and was never intended as a substitute for that Version.

To go back to the question of "charity," I have recently seen a vigorous and scholarly defense of the Authorized rendering. I cannot remember the name of the writer, but he made much of the various and confusing meanings of the word "love," while "Charity," he contended, has a simple and clear reference.

To all this my comment is that to one who wants sincerely to put Paul's great sermon into his life the choice of words. wont' matter.

Percy WI Votes $25 Recreation Committee

WARKWORTH (ENS) — The Percy Branch of the Women's Institute met on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. A. E. Harwood. Mrs. George Arkils, president, presided. The roll call was, "A good habit my mother taught me."

The following reports of standing conveners were given: Citizenship and education by Mrs. W. J. Honey; historical research by Mrs. George McCubbin, reporting on heredity, the first family being David Kelly, of Percy township; Mrs. Ezra Cornelius reported on current events; Mrs. Oscar Laver on community activities and public relations, giving a three-minute paper on "Every Woman Should Have a Vision."

Mrs. Clayton Young, sunshine convener, and the visiting committee, reported 15 cards sent and nine calls made on the shut-in members.

It was decided to send $10 to the Salvation Army and $25 to the recreational committee for repairs to the playground. The president, Mrs. George Arkils, was named representative from the WI for the recreation committee.

Mrs. W. J. Honey, program convener, presented the following program, opening with community singing. Mrs. S. Blakely gave a reading, "Your Mother and Mine," and Mrs. Oscar Laver gave a reading entitled "Millinery Madness."

The next meeting will be held in Campbellford at the home of Mrs. J. Black.

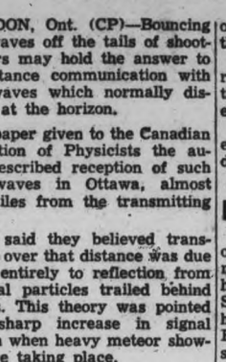
Convict Salesman Of False Pretences

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—A 20-year-old crippled magazine salesman was convicted Friday on a charge of false pretences. The charge arose from complaints of several persons at nearby St. Davids where he was selling magazine subscriptions.

Gordon R. Shifton, who lost part of his right forearm in an accident in a Toronto laundry in 1947, was remanded to June 3 for sentence.

Mrs. Charlotte Irvine, elderly St. Davids housewife, charged that Shifton told her he was "from the war veterans" and was selling subscriptions to a veterans magazine.

She said that Shifton told her he was trying to raise $1,200 to buy an artificial limb and that he needed $80 more.



Shifton said in court he left his artificial limb off to create sympathy and had been using the same sales talk for years.

Plan Big Apartments

TORONTO (CP)—Construction of a 15-storey luxury apartment building overlooking Lake Ontario in suburban Mimico will start in August, it was announced Friday. The building will cost $5,225,000 and take about two years to complete. It will contain 256 suites.

Cheese Price Guaranteed At 30 Cents

Ottawa To Grant Price Support To Producers In '53

OTTAWA (CP)— The federal government today announced it has decided to grant Ontario cheese producers price support for 1953, agreeing to buy all surplus cheddar at 30 cents a pound wholesale.

At the same time it formally reiterated that it is taking 5,500,000 pounds of surplus 1952 cheese off the hands of Ontario producers, paying 30 cents a pound, or a total of $1,650,000.

Ontario producers had been, for months, appealing to the federal government for price help to stabilize 1953 marketing of cheese, hit by the fact that the United Kingdom has stopped buying cheddar from Canada and by tough U. S. restrictions on imports.

Recently the federal government offered to renew its 1952 support plan, guaranteeing producers 24 cents a pound. Last year the Ontario government agreed to add six cents a pound, giving producers virtual support at 30 cents a pound.

OFFER INADEQUATE

However, this year the Ontario government declined to renew the offer and the Ontario producers turned down the federal offer of 24 cents as inadequate.

Now the federal government has apparently decided to provide the entire support of 30 cents a pound, thus establishing a balanced relationship between prices of butter and cheese.

Under the 1953 federal support plan, the Ontario Cheese Producers Marketing Board will continue the marketing of Ontario cheese.

Any surplus remaining unsold next Oct. 31 from production in the period April-September inclusive will be turned over to the federal government at 30 cents a pound.

The federal government supports butter production at 58 cents a pound wholesale. Dairy experts have stated that the price of butter must be just about twice the price of cheese to stabilize the flow of milk to both industries.

AVOID BUTTER SURPLUS

If, for example, the price of cheese should drop below that ratio, more surplus milk would be attracted to butter production, with the danger of big butter surpluses.

The government also announced that the Ontario Cheese Producers Marketing Board "will again enter into an agreement under the Agricultural Products Co - operative Marketing Act which will enable the board to finance marketing and handling operations by way of Guaranteed loans."

"It is expected the details of the agreement between the government and the cheese marketing board will be worked out within a few days, following which the board will make its own announcements for the guidance of cheese factories and others directly concerned," the statement said.

Coronation 2-Way Dedication

Feel Crowning Not Big Show

By L. NORMAN SMITH
(Special to The Examiner)

LONDON, June 1— Only the coronation could cause the fever that has been in this weekend and only the coronation will cure it. It is well that Tuesday is at hand for the anticipation has been high Saturday and Sunday following the long Whitsun weekend holiday. It has been almost overbearing; the great lashings of flags, the hawkers shouting their souvenirs, the bumper to bumper traffic, the unending tide of sightseers, the stirring up by the radio television and press a weary soul may be permitted to groan— all this and the coronation too. But the coronation, the heart of the matter may redeem it when the Queen drives along the Mall in her golden coach. The triumphant row of arches overhead will have some meaning.

Just now they look a bit flimsy, almost silly. The stands which now disfigure London's lovely green parks and hallowed buildings will throb to life with hallelujahs whereas they smack now of artificiality and hoopla. For two long and solid days now hundreds of thousands of people have walked the route gazing at the decorations standing quietly about Parliament Square or before the Abbey.

You might say what can they see in hanging about like this? The answer is that they are not hanging about they have been different people each hour and it is only the professional reporter who has been out a dozen or more times. They have come from suburbia, from Manchester, from Marseilles and Brussels. They have come from Putney Bridge and Oxford, from Margate and Evesham, Belfast and Inverness but mostly from suburbia.

Except those who have come from overseas, the vast bulk of the people who have roamed the path of history in these recent days will not be in the vicinity at all on Tuesday. They will be at their radios or television in their own village squares and pubs. They have come to have a look and it will be their only look. That is why they have wonder in their eyes. They must take it back with them. And they do have wonder in their eyes. It seems to me there is a sort of revival meeting element to this coronation. Things are looking up for England, I have noticed in these last few days in London not only the flags and decorations but the newly painted trains and buses, the new paint on shops and homes all over London.

WILL NEVER FORGET

I will never forget the victory parade in London in 1946 through the still remaining rubble and twisted spires. I don't expect to be moved on Tuesday as I was then when people cried all along the route and specially when the firemen and air raid defence units came by. That was a thanksgiving parade. But the way ahead was not clear. It hasn't been quick in clearing either. In 1948 and 1950 when I was here, London was still at war in rations, unwashed and uncertain. It seems now though that chins are up and this young Queen is a symbol to them of a new beginning, though God knows they loved her father who fought with them.

I was born too late, stormed Elizabeth to her governess one day when she was a child watching her grown up relatives in some ceremony. It is written all all over the face of the people out in the streets these days that they count it a blessing that Elizabeth was born precisely when she was. Never mind the flags and the fanfare and the tinsel and the hawkers making their honest pennies (you can't be robbed at tenpence). Pass too if you will the posh window seats where champagne will be served and where the wealthy will have that even greater boon not enjoyed by those who will be in the Abbey itself—plumbing.

But pause to look at the mother, grandmother, father and three children sitting exhausted on newspapers spread out on the lawn in Hyde Park. They've walked miles. They're eating dry looking sandwiches which must have been made yesterday. The little girl has lost her hat ribbon in the push. They are all in but not cranky or cynical. The pilgrimage has been a success for them. They look satisfied and yet also they look a little awed. I'd like to use that word again. All Canadians don't run to being awed. We're given to restraints and sophistications in these matters. But there is awe and humility when the ordinary British citizen thinks of the Queen or the whole story of the royal family. It isn't a monarchy to them. Monarchs were for the continental people. The essence is the word family and on Tuesday the Queen

Eat, Sleep On Route London Resembles Big Outdoor Camp

LONDON (CP) — Britain's priceless crown jewels were moved secretly into Westminster Abbey today. All along London's glittering Coronation route thousands of excited people undaunted by showery weather staked out claims to standing room, a full 24 hours ahead of Queen Elizabeth's crowning and procession.

A single car of detectives guarded the jewels, which included St. Edward's crown and the rich Imperial state crown, on the journey from the crown jeweler's to the abbey.

The great city bubbled with excitement. The spirit of festivity swept into Buckingham Palace, where Elizabeth's son, young Prince Charles, played peek-a-boo with the crowds gathered outside. The four-year-old kept popping his head up in a palace window, to the crowd's shouted delight

The Queen carried on her official duties. With the Duke of Edinburgh, she received 80 delegates from Commonwealth nations in the white and gold throne room at the palace. She had lunch with Prime Minister Churchill, Prime Minister St. Laurent of Canada and nine other Commonwealth prime ministers. Queen Mother Elizabeth, Princess Margaret and other members of the Royal Family were present.

The 27-year-old queen wore a cream silk dress with a small black dot pattern and a diamond spray brooch on the left shoulder. Her husband was in morning clothes.

GREETS GUESTS

She greeted the guests standing before a dais on which there was a single chair of state of crimson silk damask. The dark crimson canopy above was surmounted with a crown. The only woman presented to Elizabeth was the Begum Liaquat Ali Khan of Pakistan, attired in Eastern dress.

The capital took on the appearance of a great outdoor camp.

Police gave up any hope of keeping sidewalks clear, turning a blind eye to the camp stoves, groceries and bedding sprawled across the flagstones.

Eggs and bacon sizzled beneath scarlet and gold awnings as the overnight campers rose early to

Suggest Queen Live In Canada

LONDON (AP)—The Queen may live for a time in Canada and each of the six self-governing countries of the Commonwealth outside Britain under a plan under official consideration, it was learned Sunday.

Qualified informants said Prime Minister Churchill plans to broach the idea when he meets with Commonwealth prime ministers after the Coronation.

There was no official confirmation of the report. Churchill is expected, however, to make a statement on the subject in response to questions when the House of Commons resumes its sessions June 9.

Nurses Begin Drawing Lucky Sweeps Tickets

DUBLIN (AP) — Pretty Irish nurses today began drawing the lucky tickets of those who'll share in a record sweepstakes fund based on the running of the Derby at Epsom Saturday. Officials of the draw announced the prize money had hit a new high total of £1,597,000 ($4,471,600).

Director Jack O'Sheehan announced there will be 13 prize units —13 firsts of £50,000 ($140,000) each, 13 of £20,000 and 13 of £10,000.

In addition, 403 drawers of unplaced horses will get £548 apiece. Other prizes include 2,600 of £100 each, 900 of £10 and 50 residual prizes of £743 each.

The first horse drawn as the drums started turning was Craftsman, an outsider, and the first winning ticket was held by Mrs. Eva Mullen of Quebec.

HMCS Crusader New Star With Korean Train Busters

UN NAVAL BASE, Japan (CP)—The Canadian destroyer Crusader returned to port recently after destroying one Communist train by gunfire and stopping and damaging two others—all within 18 hours.

The Crusader, commanded by Lt.-Cmdr. John H. G. Bovey of Montreal and Victoria, was on a three-week patrol with a fast United Nations carrier force. CPO Norman Langton of Peterborough is a member of the crew.

The ship was cruising at night off the North Korean coast. An open stretch of railway was visible between two tunnel entrances.

Shortly after 10 p. m., the crew heard faint sounds of an approaching train and the gunnery control officer, Lieut. Fred Copas of Victoria, trained his guns on the open stretch of track.

For 2½ hours the Crusader lay in wait, hidden in the offshore darkness. Then at 12:30, CPO, Alfred Gold of Victoria, a gunnery director, spotted the train. The Crusader's 4.5-inch guns began to speak.

TRAIN HELPLESS

By 2 a. m. the initial action was over and star shells revealed that the 15-car train was helpless between the two tunnels. The Crusader spent the remainder of the night pouring shells at her prize.

The ship's communications officer, Lt.-Cmdr. Eric Jones of Winnipeg and Montreal, asked for air support from the carrier force. Four Corsairs appeared shortly after dawn and effectively continued the smashing of the train.

At mid-day men could be seen at one of the tunnel entrances, apparently attempting to clear the tracks. The Crusader radioed again to the task force and four Panther jets appeared in 10 minutes and attacked with rockets and bombs. When they left tons of rubble covered tracks and entrances.

At this point the Crusader moved off up the coast and at 6 p. m. her lookouts spotted two supply trains at a small inland town eight miles from the scene of the first action. The ship raced after them with her guns blazing. The shells straddled the trains and stopped them.

A few minutes later, however, darkness closed in and the Crusader lost contact with her targets. It was not possible to see how badly they were damaged.

The ship also fired on two more supply trains and scored direct hits on at least one, carried out a bombardment of front-line enemy positions near the coast and distributed relief clothing to refugees

Rhee Proposes Eisenhower Sign 4-Point Pact

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Syngman Rhee has proposed that President Eisenhower sign a four-point agreement pledging a mutual defence pact and future military and financial help to South Korea if the Seoul government is to drop its opposition to the United Nations truce terms, it was learned today.

Rhee's attitude—and what reply would be made to his proposition—presumably was up for discussion at a special meeting of the national security council Eisenhower called at the White House at noon, EDT.

An authoritative informant said the South Korean president submitted his program in a message sent to Eisenhower through U.S. ambassador Ellis Briggs in Seoul.

FOUR POINTS

The four points which Rhee insisted Eisenhower agree upon in advance were reported to be:

1. A pledge to sign a mutual defence pact with Korea guaranteeing the United States will come to Korea's aid in the event the Communists attack again once a truce has been signed. The U.S. was asked to promise prompt aid regardless of what the United Nations might do in the event of such an attack.

2. A promise by the United States to undertake continued large-scale military and economic aid to South Korea.

Expect Jet Bombers Have Good Weather

MONTREAL (CP)—Canberra jet bombers speeding Coronation pictures to Canada should enjoy generally good flying weather, an official of the Dominion public weather office here said today.

A storm centre is developing near Newfoundland and by Tuesday is expected to be 300 miles northeast of the Newfoundland coast, but the storm is such that the jets will be able to fly over it.

Czechs Under 60 Forced To Work Unlimited Hours

VIENNA (AP)—The Czechoslovak Communist parliament has decreed that all men under 60 and women under 50 can be forced to work unlimited hours for the state or community outside of their regular working time.

This became known today as millions of Czechoslovak citizens found their savings cut almost to nothing and their buying power sharply reduced by a drastic new currency reform.

The trade union newspaper Prace disclosed that, under a recent parliamentary action, every Czech worker can be called upon to work extra hours whenever "extraordinary difficulties" develop.

This means that a man who works a 48-hour week can be forced either to work unlimited additional hours in his own factory, or he can be sent to work in another plant, or in the fields or mines.

Excluded from forced labor, besides old people, are women more than three months pregnant and women with children under six years of age.

Throughout Czechoslovakia, most food and clothing stores were closed today for an exchange of currency whereby 50 Czech crowns are exchanged for one new one and pegged more closely to the Russian ruble.

The reform cuts drastically whatever funds were left in the hands of the former upper and middle classes.

Claxton Lauds Royal Influence

KINGSTON (CP)—Acting Prime Minister Claxton said today the Queen focuses the national aspirations of Canadians and personifies the traditions of their history.

In an address prepared for graduation exercises of the Royal Military College here, Mr. Claxton described the Crown as the central focal point in the Canadian system of government and a real factor in that government.

By standing outside of and above political controversies, the Crown provided continuity of government "from one government and one Parliament to another."

he continued:

"The sovereign as head of our state represents the people; focuses the national aspirations, voices the national sentiment.

"The sovereign personifies and renders intelligible and interesting the traditions of the past, the life of the present and the aspirations of the future—of all the people.

"The attributes that derive from the Crown . . . make for decency; they create a spirit of tolerance; they impose and increase a respect for the law. The fact that each one of us is a subject of the Queen makes us members of the family. We are all equal before the Crown."

Radio Tribute To New Queen

LONDON (Reuters) — Tuesday night, a few hours after Queen Elizabeth is crowned, prime ministers and ordinary citizens from all parts of the Commonwealth will join in a 55-minute radio tribute to her.

At the end of the program—"Long Live the Queen!"—Queen Elizabeth will address her subjects, after being introduced by Prime Minister Churchill.

Another queen, Salote of Tonga, nine prime ministers, sultans, chiefs and ministers of state will take part in the tribute.

Other speakers will include a teacher from Scotland, a Welsh farmer, the RAF pilot who will lead the Coronation day fly-past, and a sergeant-major of the Queen's company of the Grenadier Guards who will guard the regalia during the Coronation ceremony in Westminster Abbey.

St. Laurents Attend Coronation Parties

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent of Canada attended a luncheon today for Commonwealth prime ministers at Buckingham Palace. Mrs. St. Laurent also had a luncheon engagement, being chief guest at a Canadian diplomatic function.

This evening the prime minister and his wife, accompanied by their daughter, Mrs. Frank Lafferty, were scheduled to attend high mass in Westminster Cathedral.

The prime minister went to a garden party Sunday at Hatfield House, Hertfordshire, home of the Marquess of Salisbury. Commonwealth prime ministers were among the 1,000 guests. Newspaper accounts said St. Laurent chatted in French with the Queen Mother for some minutes, before she was introduced to other Commonwealth representatives.

St. Laurent will watch the Coronation from a stall in the choir, facing one occupied by Prime Minister Churchill.

The stalls are situated in the central area of Westminster Abbey where much of the action takes place. St. Laurent's stall is the closest to the theatre, being only a few yards from the throne chair where the Queen will receive homage after her crowning.

Memorial Day Toll Climbs To 363

CHICAGO (AP)—The toll of traffic accidents for the U. S. Memorial Day holiday week-end totalled 228 at Sunday midnight. Drownings accounted for 90 more deaths and 45 died in a variety of accidents, raising the total to 363.

The National Safety Council had predicted a death toll of 240 on the highways and streets during the 54-hour period starting at 6 p. m. Friday.

Bloodiest Memorial Day weekend on record was that of 1950 when accidental deaths totalled 571.

Fight With Governor, Guard Pair Flee Halton Jail

MILTON (CP)—A prisoner held a sharpened nail file against a jail governor's throat Saturday night while a companion bludgeoned a guard into submission, police said. Then the prisoners, Vincent Dimario and Jack Chance, both 24, fled into the night with the governors' raincoat and the Halton county jail keys.

They still were at large early today. Police expressed belief the men, who fought a 20-minute battle with governor Glen Ryder and guard John Cooper, waited out the night in this area 21 miles southwest of Toronto and then at dawn Sunday made good their escape.

The two had been awaiting trial on charges of armed robbery.

BELIEVED DESPERATE

All available police officers from detachments in Oakville, Dundas and Kitchener were thrown into a search for the prisoners who they said are believed to be desperate and dangerous.

Roadblocks in the area were torn down Sunday night but 16 cruisers patrolled all roads leading from this town.

Dimario is described as six feet, 170 pounds and dark complexioned. When he escaped he was dressed in a white shirt, red and white striped sweater, brown shoes and blue trousers.

Chance is five foot, eight inches, weighs 155 pounds and is dark complexioned. He was wearing a white shirt, brown shoes, blue trousers and green socks.

Col. Hedley Basher, deputy minister of reform institutions, said the men were in the main jail corridor, when Cooper entered to

Weekend Visit Ends In Death

A pleasant weekend visit to Peterborough ended in tragedy early Sunday night for a Scottish-born family who five months ago moved from here to Detroit. The car in which they were riding as passengers rolled over on the double-lane highway, east of Bowmanville, killing the eight-year-old son and seriously injuring the mother.

Dead is James Ross Jr., a former pupil at King George School.

His mother, Mrs. May Ross, 37, is in Bowmanville Hospital with a broken pelvis, cuts and bruises, and possibly other internal injuries.

Mrs. Alex Elliott, another of the six occupants in the Detroit-bound car, is under medical treatment for shock.

Mr. Elliott and James Ross Sr. and Anne, the dead boy's nine-year-old sister, were all shaken up but otherwise unhurt.

The fatal accident occurred at 6 p.m. Sunday on Highway 401, a mile east of Bowmanville. The four members of the Ross family and their Detroit friends, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott, had driven to Peterborough for the weekend. They Need Blood For Wounded

TOKYO (AP)—Medics in Korea have almost run out of whole blood to give wounded United Nations soldiers and may not have enough supplies if heavy fighting continues, army authorities said Sunday.

The situation was said to be so critical that U.S. Army chaplains in Japan were routed from bed Saturday night and asked to appeal to their congregations for blood donations after Sunday morning services.

The emergency was caused by the sudden increase in fighting on the western and central fronts last week. A laboratory technician who returned from Korea Sunday said Allied hospitals were "almost out" of blood.

Secret Blueprints Discovered In Car

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP)—A set of blueprints for the Savannah river hydrogen bomb plant now under construction at Aiken, S.C., was reported found by police while searching a stolen car Sunday.

Authorities said the prints, described as piping drawings, were marked "restricted and security information." Six young men in the auto were arrested.

The car is owned by Benjamin Tabor, a chemical engineer employed by the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Company which is constructing the plant for the atomic energy commission.

The discovery was confirmed by the federal bureau of investigation.

Tabor was quoted as saying he left the plans in his auto which he parked at a Philadelphia airport before taking a plane home.

The six boys, all of whom denied any knowledge of the presence of the drawings in the glove compartment of the stolen vehicle, were arrested after driving recklessly into a gasoline station.

Truce Signing Means Fight Korea Warns

Will Tackle Reds Alone In War If Deal Goes Through

CHINHAE, Korea (CP) — South Korea's ranking cabinet member said today his country can and will fight the Reds by itself if the Communists sign an armistice based on the latest Allied proposal—and he predicted they will.

As the rift widened between South Korea and her allies, Acting Prime Minister Pyun Yung Tai emerged from a 3½-hour emergency cabinet meeting at President Syngman Rhee's summer villa in Chinhae and told newspapermen:

"Some people think the RoK (Republic of Korea) Army will not be able to go on fighting if United Nations ammunition and other military supplies stop. Just wait and see."

"Personally," he added, "I think the new Allied proposal is very similar to what the Communists are proposing and, therefore, I see no reason why the Communists will not accept—unless the Communists are waiting for world war III."

PLAN FORMAL STATEMENT

Pyun said his government would issue a formal statement but did not say when.

He would not confirm reports that Rhee and President Eisenhower had exchanged messages on the violent South Korean opposition.

However, in Washington, officials obviously were concerned over the "two fronts" facing the Allies —negotiations with the Reds for an armistice and efforts to assuage South Korean anger.

insert chnhae truce after para 7:

Referring to the reported Allied proposal to have Indian troops take custody of Red war prisoners who won't go home, Pyun said the troops would "have to fight their way into the country."

He said he considers India sympathetic to communism and "the Koreans will not permit them to land in Korea."

Pyun said "we are not prepared to take any action" until after Thursday's UN meeting with the Communists. He said any move now would be premature.

Offer Special Mass To Mark Coronation

High mass will be celebrated Tuesday morning in all the Roman Catholic churches of the diocese of Peterborough as announced on Sunday in a letter from Most Rev. Gerald Berry.

Mass is to be offered in honor of the Holy Ghost as the diocesan prayer on the day of the coronation of Queen Elizabeth that God will bestow peace and prosperity on her reign.

On the following Sunday the hymn "Veni Creator Spiritus" will be sung at the high mass of the first Sunday after Trinity.

on Yang-Do Island off the South Korean coast.

A South Korean marine officer from Yang-Do was brought out to the ship for an emergency appendectomy. The medical officer, Lt.-Cmdr. John Simpson of Collingwood, Ont., carried out the operation on the wardroom table. He was assisted by Po. William Pichard of Calgary and Victoria.

The Crusader's 250 officers and men received a shower of congratulations for their successful patrol.

Vice-Admiral R. P. Briscoe, commander of United States naval forces in the Far East, signalled "congratulations to the new champion train stopper"

And Acting Capt. J. C. Reed of Victoria, commanding officer of Canadian destroyers in the Far East and in direct command of the destroyer Athabaskan, signalled "nice work indeed. You are getting hard to beat."

NO MAIL TUESDAY

Tuesday will be a holiday for letter carriers in the city and on the rural mail routes. The post office will be open from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. at the money order and stamps wickets. Two men of the staff will be on duty receiving and despatching outgoing mail.

Floats Enter Parade On Coronation Day

A series of floats depicting themes appropriate to the spirit of Coronation Day will present interesting variety in Peterborough's festive parade Tuesday evening.

Ald. Syd Black, chairman of the general committee in charge of the city's celebration said today that sponsoring float groups were: Red Cross Society, IODE, Junior Chamber of Commerce, Humane Society.

F. H. Preston of the Diamond P Ranch will have sixteen horses probably grouped at the end of the parade. Riders will be in costume, cowboys, Indians and other colorful personalities.

RCAF Association are contributing one decorated truck and also a car of the antiquity of the motor age.

Ald. Black said the muster of the parade should be complete around 7.30 or thereabouts and the march off at 8 p.m. down George Street.

Take Up Vigil

cook their breakfast before the big scramble began. Most families brought raincoats and umbrellas with them.

Hundreds slept in parks and along streets in the chill Sunday night. As dawn broke over the heart of the vast British capital, thousands more swelled the waiting throngs.

Nearly 500,000 squatters were expected to spend tonight, Coronation eve, in the open to await the start of the biggest show in a lifetime.

They brought bed rolls, blankets, and even hammocks to swing between trees.

SLEEP ON RUGS

Whole families slept on rugs. Some brought portable stoves to make tea. Most brought enough food to last out their long vigil.

Between this morning and the small hours of Tuesday, 6,500 trains from the provinces will bring an estimated 2,500,000 more people pouring into London to join the millions already here.

A last-minute rush of visitors from all corners of the earth was under way.

Planes stacked up to land at London's two big airports. Special trains and boats disgorged thousands of others from abroad.

Traffic along the teeming six-mile Coronation route virtually is at a standstill. Solid swarms of pedestrians have all but taken over many main thoroughfares. The crowds are good natured and gay.

For most Britons, the biggest holiday in more than a decade of austerity has begun.

The lucky ones—about 250,000 in all—who have seats in specially built, bright-painted stands along the route will start taking their places early Tuesday.

SEE QUEEN ON WAY

But perhaps, 4,000,000 more will see the Queen on her way to and from her crowning in ancient Westminister Abbey before 7,500 invited guests.

An estimated 30,000,000 other Britons will watch the spectacle on television.

For some it was a particularly joyful occasion. In her last official action before the Coronation, Elizabeth handed out ranks and honors to some 4,000 Britons.

Among those knighted were two of Britain's most popular sports figures—world champion jockey Gordon Richards and Jack Hobbs, veteran cricket star.

The Queen's newest honors list marked Her Majesty's Coronation and also her official birthday June 11. It rewarded Britons in all walks of life for service and seniority.

A sombre note was added, however, in the death Sunday of William Hepburn, 64, the Queen's gardener, while tending 33,000 special blooms he had grown for the Coronation in Hyde Park. He had been awarded the Royal Victorian Order, fifth class, in the honors list.

TO PRAY IN ABBEY

The Queen may go to Westminster Abbey some time tonight to pray on Coronation eve just as did her father, King George VI, before he was crowned 16 years ago.

Sunday, the Queen worshipped in the gold-panelled chapel in the grounds of Marlborough House, where Queen Grandmother Mary lived and died.

There—with her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, and the Queen Mother at her side—she knelt in quiet prayer while millions of her loyal subjects prayed at similar Trinity Sunday services through Britain.

As the Queen returned to Buckingham Palace from her prayers, a crowd estimated at 40,000 surged toward the car crying: "The Queen! the Queen!"

The palace sentries, unable to walk their normal beats outside the gates, were ordered inside the grounds, where they marched protected from the throngs by the iron fences.

BRIEF GLIMPSES

Those waiting outside got brief glimpses of the Queen's two children. Princess Anne, in a white nightgown, was held up at a top floor window by a nurse just before going to bed. An hour earlier, Prince Charles was seen bobbing up and down at another window, but his nurse quickly pulled him out of sight.

Chants of "we want the Queen!" broke out from the crowds until nearly midnight, but the Queen, resting for the coming ordeal, did not appear.

At midnight, some soldiers and their girl friends danced outside the palace gates, but by 1 a.m., the crowds had dispersed, some to wander elsewhere along the Coronation route.

Scotland Yard gave the Coronation route a final security check.

Even the famed clock tower of Big Ben was inspected. So were the 13 miles of sewers running under London's west end.

The police are keeping a special watch against any attempt at a demonstration by Scottish Nationalists, who stole the historic Stone of Scone from the Coronation chair in Westminster Abbey in 1950. The stone later was found and brought back.

WORRIED ABOUT WEATHER

The weather was giving the Coronation officials the most worry. The latest forecast covering Coronation Day is for continuing cool weather with "occasional rain or showers but some sunny intervals."

At least one Coronation squatter refused to be worried about the weather. She is Mrs. Zoe Neame, a 73-year-old widow who took her place under a statue in Trafalgar Square at 8 a.m. Sunday—the first to start the vigil.

Mrs. Neame, who also lined up for the Coronation of King George VI in 1937, said she will "stick it out until Tuesday." She told reporters she had been "toughening up" for the ordeal for six months.

Flagpole Sitter Quits

WINNIPEG (CP)—Canada's new amateur flagpole-sitting champion abandoned his post to the rain Sunday. Irwin Johnsrude, a young university student, clambered down from his pole in front of a Winnipeg drive-in theatre. He was up for seven days and 20 hours, 44 hours more than the previous record.

U.S. Dollar At Discount

MONTREAL (CP)—The U. S. dollar was at a discount of 27-32 per cent in terms of Canadian funds at noon today. Friday's noon rate was 99⅛ cents. Pound sterling $2.78⅞, against $2.78 15-16.

Weather In Britain

LONDON (AP)—Weather forecast for Coronation day:

"Winds northerly, fresh or strong and gusty, some sunny intervals, occasional showers, heavy at times perhaps with hail and thunder here and there, very cool, mid-day temperatures 50-55."

Top Price $680 For Bull At Cattle Sale

Fifth annual eastern Ontario Hereford show and sale brought fair prices for the 48 cattle sold.

Top price of $680 was paid by O. E. Thurston of Bobcaygeon for a two-year-old bull, Mixer Conover, from the herd of J. R. Nokes, Manilla. Best price for a heifer was $460, paid by David Kinloch of Oshawa for Milma Choice Sis, consigned by Milton Cornish, Norwood.

A Lakefield bull, Rivedge Del Zento, owned by Melville Edwards, brought $630 from B. M. Countryman of Tweed.

$410 FOR COW

Second top for female cattle ($410) was paid by Mr. Kinloch for a cow—Atha Belle Mischief —with calf at foot, and by Edmund Reavie of Flinton for a heifer consigned by F. E. Birdsall, of Birdsall.

Other prices ranged from $190 —for a cow—up in the $400-plus level.

Busiest buyers at the Saturday sale were David Kinloch of Oshawa and John Page of Norwood. Mr. Kinloch spent $2,815 on eight purchases, Mr. Page $1,760 on six cattle.

The 48 cattle brought a total of $15,450, with the average price reaching $321. Auctioneer was W. S. O'Neil, Denfield, assisted by Ray Williams & Son of Hoard Station.

is crowned head of the whole family.

SOMETHING PERSONAL

That is to these people not just something that is going to happen to the Queen, it is going to happen to them too. It is an infinitely more personal thing than the election of Churchill, St. Laurent or Eisenhower. It isn't just that there have been preparatory prayers in the churches or that teachers and public men have been expounding the meaning of the crown. It comes from a deeper source, from nearly a thousand years of tradition and from a realization, a proud realization, that this royal family above all royal families have moved with the times and is democracy in the purest sense that the world has found.

Thus the coronation is something these people are themselves doing. It is their royal family, not the royal family. It is their constitution and political system, not one laid down upon them. Perhaps these observations are meandering too far from the sights and sounds of London today which I set out to describe. But I have a feeling that you may have read already too much about the flags and the amount of food being eaten and the numbers of the troops and the colour of the sultan's robe. And if you have read a great quantity of that you may be wondering whether it all isn't a bit overdone and unreal.

It is, or at least the surface part of it is. Some of the decorations, especially the pink flowers on blue bunting in Regent Street, are nightmares. There is a great deal of hoopla and some people are out to make money, including hotels, which have more than doubled their rates. It may be that television and radio and fast printing presses have overpowered the event somewhat. The Americans found last summer their nomination conventions would need trimming and control in the future and I dare say that wise British authorites today are praying that Queen Elizabeth has a very long reign indeed, if only to make it a long time before the next coronation.

WOULD MEET OPPOSITION

But then anyone setting out to reduce the coronation as an event would doubtless run into tremendous opposition from that family I told you about in the park, from the ordinary people of England. It isn't just that they love a parade, God bless them, but they want a chance to stand up and shout at least once in a lifetime about something that is very dear and great to them, but about which normally they observe characteristic British restraint and modesty.

There is in a coronation surely such a mixture of emotions and symbols that it is not to be wondered at that the papers and radio fall back upon the newsier and simpler things: that Don Juan the Spanish pretender has arrived; that a field marshal's Rolls Royce was seen parked outside Moss Bros., the outfitters, in second hand dress clothes and uniforms; that so many silver lions and unicorns on such and such a street have insufficient toes or that the traffic took 45 minutes to circle Eros in Piccadilly circus (and Eros, incidentally is safely ensconced in a great gilded cage), that the Queen danced until 3.15 Friday night at an officers ball. I would rather have written those things too, because they come easily from a city in circus. But they pall after a bit and you'd get the frills without meaning to the point where you'd conclude that anything so full of frills must be meaningless.

IT ISN'T SO

It is most certainly not so. The bands of the marching troops will say it isn't so. For bands mean soldiers and sailors and airmen. And not a soul on this island but has his personal thoughts. When the bands play, the crowded streets and stands will say it isn't so. For they will not have been filled hours and hours before the event out of idle curiosity. The assemblage of statesmen from all over the world, and specially from the Commonwealth, will say it isn't so, for there is strength here as well as sentiment.

It is not meaningless, but rather multitudinously meaningful to each in his own way. But to each a lot. The Coronation decorations and ballyhoo are sausage and small beer. But the Coronation itself is a wedding, a birthday, a thanksgiving celebration of troubles now behind, an oath of allegiance exchanged two ways, a dedication so sacred that it is inserted into the communion service and seems not out of place there.

Report Prices Mixed On Toronto Exchange

Toronto (CP)—Prices mixed in early afternoon stock market trading today.

Industrials firmed after a weak opening. Golds slipped again. Base metals were the only strong section as the New Brunswick issues kept gaining steadily. Western oils began to fade around noon. Volume for the first three hours reached 2,085,000 shares.

In New Brunswick base metals, New Highridge and New Lardar U gained, but Brilund slipped. Uraniums drew modest support.

In industrials, foods and manufacturing companies traded higher but steels were off.

Senior golds weakened while juniors held firm.

In base metals, Consolidated Smelters, Falconbridge and International Nickel were up but Noranda slipped.

Western oil losses included Britalta, Fargo and National Petroleum.

75 New Homes Set Upswing In City Building

Permits for 75 houses were issued from City Engineer Chalmers' office in May, reflecting a new surge of building in Peterborough. That is one of the largest totals of dwelling investments for any month since the city's splurge in subdivisional expansion during and immediately after the war years.

It does not take into account any of the work that is under way or projected in the adjoining townships.

Continuing business in permits this morning has delayed the summarizing of the May issue.

Property enquiries brought more citizens to the City Hall this morning than Miss Jean Rylott of the information has directed in many days. Some of them were asking the way to Mr. Chalmers' office, but the majority were heading for the tax collector's bureau.

"Which way do you go to pay the taxes?" was a recurring question in the main lobby.

Rhee Proposes

3. Simultaneous withdrawal of all foreign forces, including Communist and United Nations troops, once truce arrangements are completed and prisoners exchanged.

4. Agreement by the United States that it and the United Nations will not try to stop South Korea from uniting the country once a truce has been agreed upon.

EFFORT TO COMPROMISE

The informant said this last point did not mean South Korea contemplates use of military force against North Korea once a truce is reached. But apparently it did not rule out the possible use of military force.

The source said Rhee described his proposal as an effort to "compromise" present South Korean objections to the current United Nations truce plan which the United States is supporting.

The announced purpose of the security council was to hear a report from State Secretary John Foster Dulles and Foreign Aid Administrator Harold E. Stassen on their 20-day tour of the Middle East and South Asia.

But it appeared to be a virtual certainty that the truce situation would come up for discussion at the meeting of the government's top foreign-military planning body, headed by the president.

DULLES REPORTS

Dulles reports to the public tonight (9 p. m. EDT) over ABC radio and television and over Dumont television networks.

South Korea's ambassador, You Chan Yang, declared on an NBC television interview Sunday that his country will "go it alone" if a truce is reached which leaves his country divided.

"When a thief comes and kills your wife and family," he asked, "do you punish him, or do you just tell him: 'Stay over there?' "

Noting that the U. S. and the United Nations are on record as favoring a united Korea, Yang said agreement on anything less would mean that the Communists have "definitely won the war."

One prisoner rushed to Cooper and struck him with a bracket wrenched from a sink. The other prisoner turned on Ryder and held one arm, threatening to cut his throat with the nail file if he made a move.

After Cooper had been knocked down, the men slugged Ryder and made their escape. A third prisoner was standing in the corridor at the time.

Col. Basher said he doubts that the two men had outside help. One had been in jail only a few hours and the other a week.

Col. Basher said today Governor Ryder has been suspended as a result of the two-man escape.

Col. Basher and department officials conducted a seven-hour investigation.

10 Men Killed In Crash, Bomber Found

NORTH BEND, Ore. (CP)—A ground party Sunday reached the wreckage of an RCAF Lancaster bomber that crashed on a mountain near here Tuesday. They reported the 10 men aboard apparently were killed outright.

Sqdn. Ldr. J. Drake from the RCAF Comox base, who led the ground party, said that if the plane had been 100 feet higher it would have missed the peak of 4,050-foot Iron Mountain, 42 miles south of here.

A smouldering fire on the mountainside led to the discovery of the wreckage by a United States coast guard plane Saturday.

TRAVEL 80 MILES

The ground party travelled over 80 miles of rough logging roads before reaching the scene.

Bodies of some of the victims were found 600 yards from the point of the crash. Other bodies and some wreckage were on the opposite side of the ridge. Three bodies were in the fuselage.

A member of an RCAF investigating crew which reached the crash scene late Sunday, said the bodies would be taken out today after a bulldozer had cleared a roadway. A memorial service will be held at Comox Tuesday.

The four-engined bomber was on a 1,200-mile flight from Comox, Vancouver Island, to San Diego, Calif.

Expect 20,000 Here For Derry Day Rites

Orangemen 20,000 strong are expected to converge on Peterborough on Saturday, August 8, to commemorate "The Closing of the Gates of Derry," and Royal Black Knights from Ottawa to London, Ont., will be in attendance. A parade will be formed at Confederation Park and proceed to the Exhibition Park where a large program will be held.

The city of Toronto is chartering a special train of 15 coaches and a total of more than 40 special buses will carry the Knights to Peterborough. J. Sidney Brown is chairman of the general committee and Ralph E. Langley secretary.

The last celebration of this nature was held in Guelph in 1951.

CLOSE ECONOMY

Those must have been rented flags draped over the drab front of the Civic Arena for the community's Coronation service Sunday night. They were gone this morning presumably whisked away to the owner to avoid any undue charge for rental. The impression lingered at the reversion to bareness that they might have been left in place at least until Tuesday night.

Victoria College Old Boys Seek Cobourg Cornerstone

COBOURG (ENS)—The long-sought cornerstone of Victoria College, which is now the Ontario Hospital here, apparently has been found as a result of a visit of a group of Toronto men on Saturday afternoon, who brought special equipment with them to detect the metal box that usually holds the contents of a cornerstone.

They tried a sonoscope, a small cobalt bomb and a non-metallic mine detector. The mine detector showed a slight re-action at the southeast corner of the building. This has been thought to be the location for many years but up until now there has been no way of verifying it, as there is no mason's mark that is usually found on the cornerstone of a building.

Professor C. B. Sissons of the University of Toronto, who is the historian of Victoria College, accompanied by Dr. Peter J. Sandford, Magistrate F. C. Gullen, Peter N. S. O'Brien of the U of T physics department, and Frank Cogan of the HEPC, came down here on Saturday and after lunching with Dr. H. C. Moorhouse, superintendent of the Ontario Hospital and Ted Clamp, engineer of the hospital, they started their search for the cornerstone.

A slight reaction with the mine detector was noticed near the main entrance of the building but this was regarded as being due to the presence of pipes near that area. At the southeast corner of the building the detector again showed signs of life and a star drill was driven into the stone.

It appeared to be solid stone all the way through and the search in that area was about to be given up when the drill moved freely, apparently into a cavity.

Professor Sissons said that it certainly looked hopeful although the drill will have to be applied from another direction into the stone to confirm the presence of a cavity. Nothing further was done Saturday but later, work will be continued. Mr. Clamp was of the opinion that the drill apparently had bitten into the lead box in the cornerstone cavity. However the presence of the cornerstone in that spot will have to be more conclusive before steps are taken to open it up.

Magistrate Gullen, who has been an enthusiastic searcher for the missing cornerstone, said that apparently the stone facing later applied to the foundation had covered up the mason's guild mark on the stone.

Ownership of the contents of the cornerstone can revert to the former owner—Victoria College—even although it is now the property of the Department of Health of Ontario, according to statute, Magistrate Gullen believes.

The cornerstone was laid Feb. 7, 1832, and by an act of parliament and Royal Charter, the then Upper Canada Academy became Victoria College in 1841. It flourished here for 50 years and then the site was moved to Toronto and the building became a provincial hospital in 1902. During the centennial celebration of Victoria College, a pilgrimage of old boys of the school was made to Cobourg on June 7, 1932.

3 Youths Hurt Highway Crash

LINDSAY (ENS)—Two Toronto youths and a Hamilton boy are in Ross Memorial Hospital with injuries following an accident on Highway 35, south of Lindsay Saturday night. They were, Gerald Lagere, 21, suffering serious lacerations about the right eye, concussion and severe lacerations to the right arm, Robert Tait, 18, Hamilton, badly bruised thigh and severe shaking up, and Roger Lavoie, 23, suffering concussions and deep lacerations to his forehead.

Another accident near Bobcaygeon, sent Barry Crowe, eight, of Bobcaygeon, to the Ross Memorial Hospital with a broken arm.

Fifth hospitalization of the week-end occurred Saturday afternoon when Joseph Hill, 16, of Little Britain was brought to hospital suffering a bullet wound in his right hand, received when his brother's .22 calibre rifle accidentally discharged when they were hunting groundhogs near Little Britain. Dr. J. C. Arnold removed the bullet and young Hill is reported to be doing well in hospital.

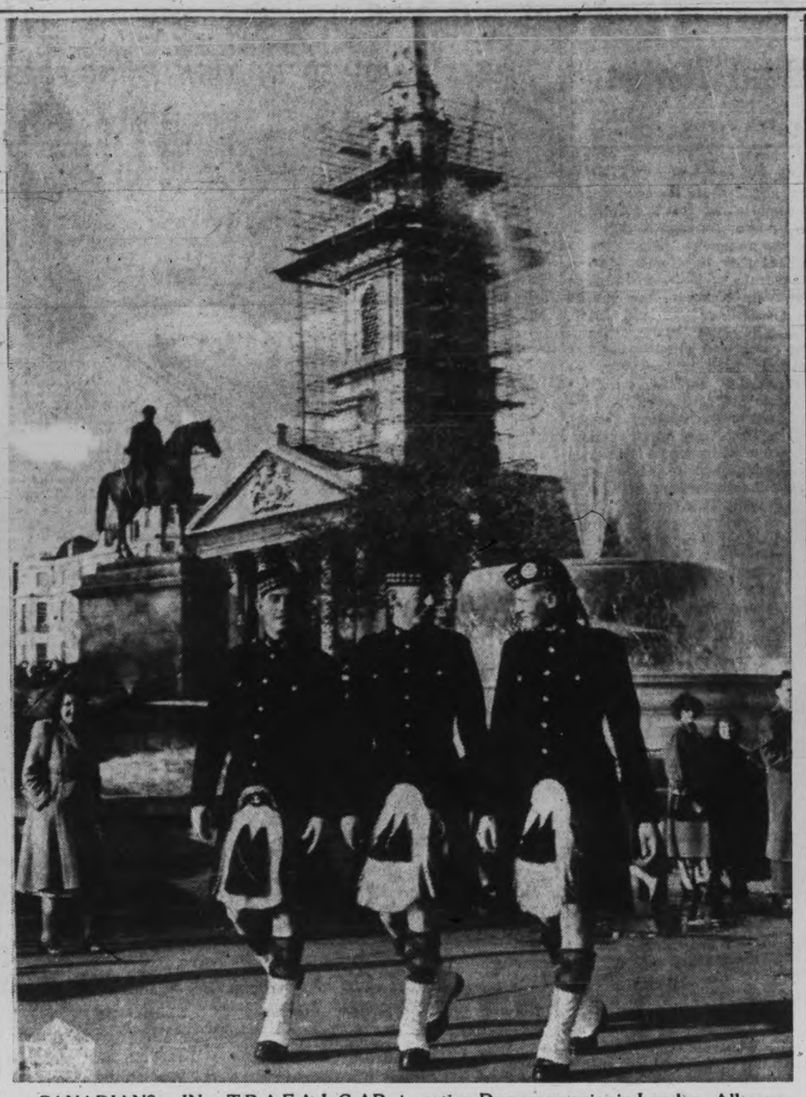
Among other accidents investigated by local police, without injuries being received were a three-car collision early Sunday morning near the Downeyville drive-in theatre, another collision on Highway 35 south of Lindsay, on Sunday morning, a rear-end collision near Oakwood, where a young boy received minor injuries but was not taken to hospital.

Another accident on the Downeyville road Saturday night, and an accidental shooting of a sheep belonging to Percy Webster of Oakwood, on Saturday afternoon by some juveniles who were apparently out hunting groundhogs.

David A. McGregor

The funeral for David Alexander McGregor, of St. Catharines and foremrly of Peterborough, who died May 25, was held Thursday from the Nesbitt funeral home.

The Rev. H. A. Cotton of St. Andrew's United Church conducted the service.



Pallbearers were Art Armstrong, Pat McCarrol, Delbert Hillier, O. Seabrooke, John Copp and Fred Cochrane. Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The final atom blast of the atomic energy commission's spring series has been postponed until before dawn Tuesday because of adverse weather. It had been scheduled for this morning.

8 Officers Made Honorary Physicians

OTTAWA (CP)—Eight high-ranking officers of Canada's three armed services have been appointed honorary physicians, surgeons or dental surgeons to Queen Elizabeth, Defence Minister Claxton announced Sunday night.

Two of the appointments went to the Royal Canadian Navy, four to the army and two to the RCAF. All are for a three-year period.

The honors signify the country's appreciation of valuable service given by these medical men, defence officials said. The titles carry no special duties or privileges.

Suspected Sabotage

LONDON (AP)—An admiralty spokesman said today an investigation of suspected sabotage aboard the Royal Navy's destroyer Barfleur is under way. The Barfleur, a 2,300-ton destroyer-leader completed in 1944, is lying at Devonport on the south coast. The spokesman said damage discovered Saturday was confined to a forward gun mounting. He described the damage as "not serious."

Girl Improved After Accident

Condition of Delcie Clements, 15, of 373 Bethune St., injured Saturday in a motorcycle-train collision on Aylmer St., was described as "a little improved" today by Civic Hospital authorities.

Miss Clements, a passenger on a motorcycle driven by Ed LaFonte of RR 1, South Monaghan, suffered skull and jaw fractures, internal injuries and cuts when she was thrown 35 feet as a CPR train struck the cycle.

Her condition when taken to the hospital, was critical.

LaFonte, the driver, was also treated for cuts and bruises, and released after treatment.

Aberdeen-Angus Sale Slated For Saturday

Peterborough's central location recommended the spring sale of the Ontario Aberdeen-Angus Association which takes place Saturday at the exhibition park. John DeNure of North Monaghan said today he expected 30 head in this first auction of black cattle in the east-central section of the province.

Consignors include: Gordon L. Berry, Glanford Station; Thomas Henderson, Guelph; Colbeck Brothers, Grand Valley; Orton Mitchell, Rothsay; Don Head Farms, Richmond Hill; and nearer home, E. C. McDowell of Cavan and Clifford Hall. Auctioneer will be Duncan Brown of Shedden.

RICHARD LANG HOPE

Richard Lang Hope, 63, of 64 James St., died suddenly at his residence Sunday.

Mr. Hope was born in Otonabee township, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Hope and has lived in Peterborough for the past six years coming here from Otonabee.

He was employed as a stationary engineer at the Peterborough Lumber Co. and was a member of Knox Presbyterian Church, Keene.

Surviving are two sons, Victor Long Hope, Peterborough; and Richard John Hope, Valais, Que.; one sister, Mrs. William Wood (Margaret), East Liverpool, Ohio; two brothers, John Millar Hope, and William James Hope, both of Indian River; and three sisters, Mrs. Donald Hope, Indian River; Mrs. Stewart Graham, RR 3, Hastings, and Mrs. Allan McEwan, Riverhurst, Sask. His wife, the former Edna Bullock, predeceased him in 1946.

The funeral will be held Tuesday at 2 p.m. from the Nisbett funeral home. The Rev. C. G. Boyd of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church will conduct the service. Burial will be in Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. ALBERT B. DORIS

Mrs. Albert B. Doris, the former Margaret Byrne, 489 Bolivar St., died in hospital Sunday following a short illness.

Mrs. Doris was born in Union Creek, Ont., daughter of the late Michael Byrne and Catherine Connelly, and has lived in Peterborough for the past 50 years, coming here from Union Creek.

She was a parishioner of St. Peter's Cathedral, a member of the Catholic Women's League, the Altar Society and the Ladies' Auxiliary of St. Joseph's Hospital.

Surviving are her husband, Albert B. Doris; four daughters, Mrs. Claude Hergott (Alta), Leaside, Mrs. Jules Mercier (Clara), Montreal, Miss Mary Doris, Toronto, and Mrs. Joseph Walsh (Kathleen), Peterborough; three sons, Jack and Michael, both of Peterborough, and Bob, Calgary; four sisters, Mrs. Joseph Quin, Mrs. Robert Curtin, Mrs. Thomas Watson and Mrs. John Quin, all of Toronto; and two brothers, Robert Byrne, Toronto, and Dennis Byrne of Edmonton.

The funeral will be held Wednesday from the Anglesey funeral home to St. Peter's Cathedral for requiem mass at 9 a.m. Burial will be in St. Peter's cemetery.

EARL JOSEPH DOUGHTY

Funeral service was held at 2 p.m. today for Earl Joseph Doughty, 36, of 440 Howden Ave. who died at his home Saturday after a short illness.

Archdeacon W. P. Robertson of St. John's Anglican Church officiated and burial was in Little Lake Cemetery. Pallbearers were Everett Watson, Sidney Craig, David Smyth, Stanley McDermott, Carol Jensen and Harold Dunford.

Born in Galt, Mr. Doughty came to Peterborough while a young man and was educated here. He was until recently an employee of the Peterborough Canoe Co., and was a member of the Prince of Wales Rangers during the Second World War.

Surviving are his parents, Arthur M. Doughty and Cora Augusta Scobell; his widow, the former Rosemary Rumary, and one daughter, Judith. There are four brothers, Harry, Everett, Maxwell and Victor, all of Peterborough.

Mrs. William Watson

HAVELOCK (ENS)—The largely-attended funeral of Mrs. William Watson took place on Saturday afternoon. The service in Knox Presbyterian Church was conducted by the Rev. R. D. Duncanson. The pallbearers were William Hitchins, William Cartwright, William Copp, William Woodbeck, E. J. Leeson, Leonard Edwards.

The many beautiful floral tributes gave evidence of the love and respect felt for Mrs. Watson among which were tributes from Royal Lodge I.O.O.F. No. 286, teacher and pupils of grades 7 and 8 in the public school, the Ladies' Aid and Y.W.A. of Knox Church and the neighbors. The flower bearers were Douglas MacLean, Henry Parcels, Jack Bannon, Fred Masters, George Kennedy, Melville Wight.

Burial was in Maple Grove cemetery.

Merchants Beat Port Hope In Second Game

LINDSAY (ENS)—Junior West settled down after a three-hit two-run first inning and pitched near perfect ball for the final six frames Saturday night, as the Lindsay Merchants won their second game in a row, 4-2, from the Port Hope Ontarios.

West allowed a double and two singles and walked two in the first inning, with two runs scoring after two were out. From then on, he pitched airtight ball, allowing no more hits, walking only two and striking out three in the final six innings.

Only three balls were hit out of the infield over the rest of the route.

Mike Harrison also worked effectively, limiting the Merchants to seven hits, striking out six and walking only two. His mates committed four errors behind him, however, to spell the difference between a win and a loss for the visitors. After the Ontarios scored their runs in the opening frame, the Merchants got one back in the second, one in the third, and the winner in the fifth, when Joe Lowry stole home, after Bing walked and advancing on a stolen base and a single. They added their final tally in the seventh, Stewart scoring on a single, advancing on Truax's hit and coming home on West's groundout.

Joe Stewart led the winners at the plate, garnering two of their seven singles. He aso drove a run, and stole one base, as well as playing fine defensive ball. Fielding play of the game came in the sixth when Art Truax ran miles in right field to take Mann's long foul fly near the fence.

The win was the Merchants' second of the season after having lost their first three starts.

Truck Crashes House

STRATFORD (CP)—Mrs. Elizabeth Jenner, 70, was drinking tea Saturday when a five-ton truck crashed into her dining room. Mrs. Jenner is deaf and didn't know a thing about it until police told her. Truck driver Philip Petrie, 48, said he swerved to miss a car, jumped the curb and hit the house.

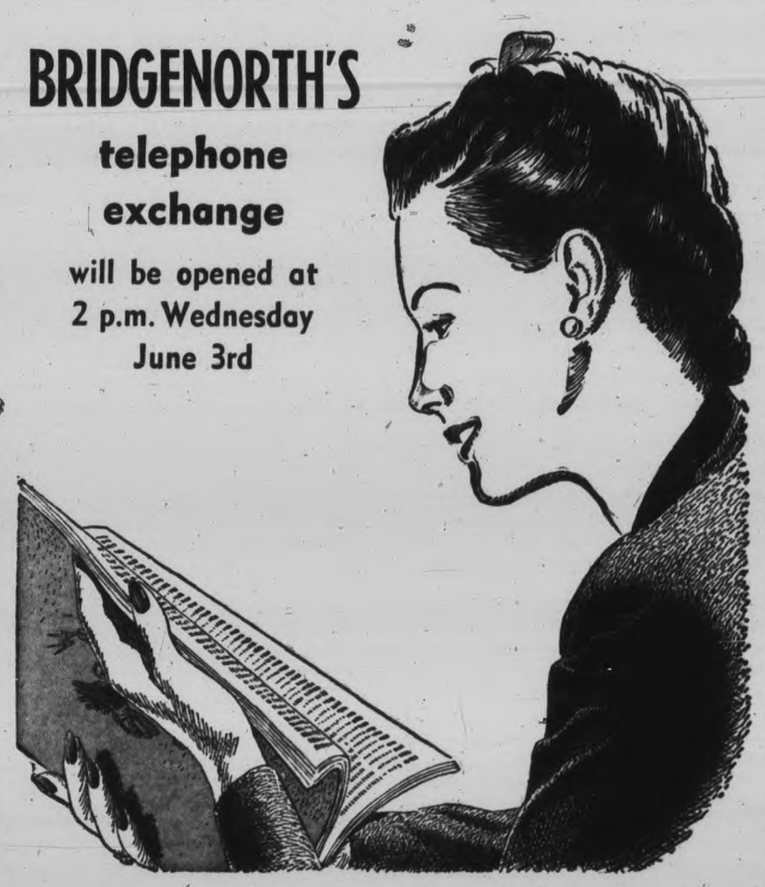
Accident Damage $560, None Hurt

Damage in two accidents in Peterborough Saturday totalled $560. None of the four drivers involved were injured.

A dead stoplight at the intersection of Hunter and George Sts. was responsible for an accident involving Michael Arcand of 694 Little St. and Robert Brown of 430 Donegal St.



Arcand was driving north on George, and Brown east on Hunter when the accident occurred. Brown was crossing George St. on the green light but because the signal at the northeast corner was not working, Arcand failed to stop.

When the two cars collided, damage to the extent of $60 to Arcand's car and $100 to Brown's car was caused.

The second accident occurred Saturday night at the intersection of Edinburgh and Aylmer Sts. Cars driven by Leonard Pulver of 205 O'Carroll Ave. and George D. Philips of 161 Park St. N., collided at the corner, causing damage of $200 to each vehicle.

Pulver was driving north on Aylmer and Philips west on Edinburgh when the accident occurred. There are no stop signs at either corner of the intersection.

On The Eve Of The Coronation

Flags are flying all over the town, buildings are gay with bunting and crests and slogans, streamers and coloured light fleck our business streets, and many homes have modest but cheerful decorations. Patriotic displays in shop windows are not as elaborate as in metropolitan centres, but there are some pleasing shows—among them, a model coach in an electrician's window. The translucent faces of the Post Office clock show by night symbols of the crown. The preparations which have been made for a parade tomorrow and for the civic fireworks are well in hand, and today many more houses have been touched with red, white and blue.

* * *

Today the school children had their songs, pageants and special lessons on patriotic and historic themes. At each school a Canadian maple and an acorn flown last week from England were planted side by side: to become Coronation trees, and twin reminders of our two-fold nationality: Canadian citizens, British subjects. The acorns, seed of the English oak, were secured from the British Forestry Commission plantation at Farnham, Surrey. In more ways than one the tree-planting was especially appropriate: Coronation trees for Queen Elizabeth school, Queen Mary school, Prince of Wales school, King Edward school, King George school, and so the names run: royal trees for royal schools.

* * *

The Examiner is publishing tomorrow, as it did on previous Coronation days. We do so to bring our readers as quickly and fully as telegraph, wireless, teletype, wire-photo, aeroplanes and our own press and distributors can, the veritable news in story and picture of the great events in London. We wish also to give the local news of the royal holiday celebration. For the first time in history a monarch is being crowned specifically as Queen of Canada. The Coronation is a Canadian event as well as British and Commonwealth. It is thus newly important to Canadians.

We hope to be able in tomorrow's edition to present to our readers photographs of the Coronation procession and Abbey scenes—only a few hours after the event. It is something of a wonder still that here in Canada five thousand miles away, the story and images from London can be seen on a page printed in Peterborough within a few hours of the occurrence. Even the newest marvel, television, cannot yet match this speed and actuality.

Canada Raises Its Own Juvenile Delinquents

A juvenile delinquent is a young lawbreaker, but the term has officially been sanctioned by an Act of Parliament called the Juvenile Delinquents Act. The term is here precisely defined; it does not mean any bad boy. It means any boy or girl apparently or actually under the age of sixteen who is adjudged before the court to have committed a delinquency. Juvenile courts generally deal with these offenders brought to law.

Figures on juvenile delinquents are neither comprehensive nor complete. Even with the legal definition the number of child delinquents catalogued may not be accurate. For example, many cases are now handled unofficially. The judge or probation officer makes an adjustment without filing a legal record of the offence. This keeps children's names from court records—a good practice in many instances. Some 5,000 juvenile delinquency cases in Canada were thus disposed of in 1950. Yet the record of children brought to court and undergoing the full processes of law is still jarring. In 1950—the last year for which we have the full Canadian figures—7,304 juveniles were brought before the courts. This is not as bad as in the war years, when more than ten thousand cases a year are in court records. The drop in the figure is not all to the good; as we have remarked, the recent tendency is to deal with many cases unofficially, without setting down a court record.

The court statistics show that Ontario provided nearly half the Canadian total of juvenile delinquents—3,056 of them recorded in 1950. These children were tried for theft (of money, articles, mail and cars), receiving stolen goods and taking motor vehicles without the owners' consent. There were other, more serious crimes like rape and indecent assaults, but in 1950 no Canadian children committed murder.

These law-breakers were not imported gangsters; 95.7 per cent. of them were born in Canada. Thus Canadian homes (or lack of them), Canadian schools and other Canadian institutions produced the juvenile delinquents. Most of the offenders were boys—nine times as many of them as of girls. More than half these boys were fourteen and fifteen years of age, but 121 of the young criminals were seven and eight years old.

Little blame for the delinquency can be put on the schools, although only thirteen per cent. of the boys were no longer attending schools when their misdemeanour occurred.

Over the ten-year period, 1941-50, one in every four children brought before the court failed to heed the first warning and made at least a second appearance. Thus from small offenders big criminals grow.

None of the figures on juvenile delinquency is really alarming. Compared with, say, Italy, juvenile delinquency in this country is a very small problem. Yet it is important, and welfare organizations, governments and the public are rightly concerned about it. The growth of our cities, the relaxation of parental authority and the looseness of the family circle tend increasingly to create conditions out of which youthful misdemeanours arise.

Farm Loans

Of interest to farmers is the recent amendment to the Farm Improvement Loans Act. The most a farmer could borrow under the Act previously was $3,000. This has now been increased by the Federal Government to $4,000.

The Act, originally passed in 1944 to aid Canadian farmers, both owners and tenants, remains unchanged in principle. Funds loaned (through chartered banks as agents under the Act) may be used for a great variety of improvements to farm property and equipment, and even for household appliances not considered luxuries. In most cases the farmer provides a third of the purchase price in cash, and the balance is provided by the Farm Improvement Loan, at a low rate of interest. During 1952 more than ninety-eight million dollars were borrowed by Canadian farmers, under the Farm Improvement Loans Act.

Underground Art

Our readers will have seen last week a news photograph of the Arbat subway station, one of three new stations in the Moscow subway. An ornate station, indeed, as shown by the photograph, with decorative arches and rows of chandeliers reminiscent of Victorian ball rooms. The utilitarian ideals of Russian communist art hanker, it seems, for the opulence and even garish frippery of Imperial days. On the whole, however (we judge only from the photograph), the effect is not displeasing, and certainly much handsomer than any Paris or New York subway station.

A new subway system is being built in Warsaw. Work on this Polish system was begun in December, 1950, and is now sufficiently advanced for Polish Communist publicists to show photographs of designs for some of the stations. Here again art is being showered on commuting masses. Architectural groups took part in a competition for designs of the first Warsaw stations. One of the prize-winning entries shows a station design which looks like the foyer of a flossy opera house, with columns, arches, moulded ceilings, marble and statuary.

Toronto's new subway system will have none of the lush richness of the Communist capitals' undergrounds, none of their gorgeous grandeur. Of course, Toronto is a capitalistic capital, not Communistic. So the simplicity of its subway stations will be effete, their grace accidental, or pretentious sham.

Toronto people will have to go to the movie houses to have their thirst for fancy decoration slaked; on the way, via subway, there will be no gold chandeliers, no posh vaults, no classy ribbing, no frescoes. And probably no patriotic slogans, except 'Keep Right'. Which, like the downtrodden toiling masses of plutocrats the Toronto subway users are, they will probably do, even though by Going Left they might get the grandiloquent display of Communist underground stations.

Bread To Rise, Alas

Wheat-trading nations have agreed that the price of wheat shall rise, about August 1st, to $2.05 a bushel. This is an increase of nineteen cents. The increase will please Canadian wheat farmers. Canadian housewives will of course be pleased to learn that the price of bread is scheduled to rise, too; by a cent a loaf. The simple arithmetic of this is confusing. Hm, only nineteen loaves of bread to be got from a sixty-pound bushel of wheat? Pretty big loaves. But maybe it's the yeast—a very special economic kind—which will cause the bread to rise so fast, so much.

NOTES AND COMMENT

Having had quite a stretch of late winter, which quickly turned into early summer (the whole thing being complicated by a lot of rain) we ask ourself: What happened to Spring this year?

What we should like to know is, if the Bible is being sold and distributed in greater quantities than ever, why are so few people able to recognize a quotation from it?

Musical Notes

By PETER PIPER

TOMORROW'S great event, the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth II, is an unique occasion in this modern world. The ancient kings of France, Spain, Austria, Russia and other countries, were crowned with glittering ceremonial, but they have passed away for ever. The monarchs of Holland, Belgium and the Scandinavian countries are simply installed with a minimum of pageantry. Alone in solitary glory the throne of England retains the pomp and circumstance of a tradition that goes back to the very beginnings of organized society on this planet. We may assume that music has played an important role in the inauguration of princes and kings from the very earliest days. One of the earliest accounts is that of the anointing of Solomon, which provided the material for Handel's famous coronation anthem "Zadok the Priest". This ceremony was conducted with the greatest possible splendour and publicity, and it is expressly stated that the trumpet was blown and the people "piped with pipes". There was a special reason for the display, for it was important that Solomon's right to the throne should be firmly established. Solomon was a younger son, and it was expected that his elder brother Adonijah should succeed to the throne. David was still alive, but he was old and his powers were failing. Urged on by his eldest surviving son's precipitate action he decided to have Solomon anointed king immediately. It is significant that the words of the anthem "Zadok the Priest" have been sung in English Coronations since at least the coronation of Edgar in 973.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE music sung at earlier coronations, the "Antemys i-song by note", were probably all plainsong melodies. The hymn "Come Holy Ghost" (Veni Creator Spiritus), is still sung to the plainsong, which is the oldest music in continual use at coronations. The coronations of Elizabeth I and Charles I saw notable additions to the musical side of this important function of Church and State. With the coronation of George II the music of Handel was first introduced into the service. A Hanoverian subject of the King, Handel had lived some years in England and had just before the coronation taken out his naturalization papers as a British subject, so that whether by design or accident the tradition that the coronation music be "home-made" was maintained. However the praiseworthy custom of today in selecting the music to present a pageant, as it were, of British music from the earliest times to the present day, was not established until 1902. The chief credit for this must go to Sir Frederick Bridge, who was organist of Westminster Abbey from 1882 to 1918. Son of a "lay clerk" (adult male chorister) of Rochester Cathedral and a chorister himself in his boyhood he was steeped in the Cathedral tradition the whole of his life. His younger brother Joseph followed in his footsteps and was organist of Chester Cathedral for the unusually long period of 48 years. They both wrote a good deal of music, mainly for church use, soundly constructed but afflicted by the fatal Victorian stuffiness of their period. Incidentally I came into possession several years ago of two large volumes containing the manuscript of the full score of a cantata written by Dr. Joseph Bridge for the Chester Festival of 1891, which I handed to Mr. Malcolm Boyle (now at Canterbury Cathedral) when he was organist at Chester, to be deposited in the Cathedral Library, which is probably where the composer himself would have wished it to go. It is very unlikely that it will ever be performed again.

✧ ✧ ✧

RETURNING to Sir Frederick, though his own compositions were somewhat stuffy he was himself a most stimulating character. He was one of the first to revive interest in English music of the past, particularly of Gibbons and Purcell. The spark that he thus kindled has since then by the work of Fellowes and others grown into a mighty flame; and it is fitting that we should remember the name of Bridge with special gratitude at the present Coronation. Technically speaking the Archbishop of Canterbury is ultimately responsible for the musical side, but this responsibility is delegated to a committee headed by the organist of the Abbey. It is pleasing to note that the noble idea initiated by Sir Frederick Bridge of making the Coronation music an historical survey of British music has been maintained and extended ever since. Thus the music emphasizes the historical continuity of this ancient rite. The closing Te Deum by Sir William Walton brings it, as it were, right up to date with its restless rhythms and sleek efficiency, like some complicated machine. Sir Frederick would doubtless raise his eyebrows at some of the harmonies to be found in this work and elsewhere, but he would surely approve of the idea of bringing in some of the most noted composers of today, just as he did himself at the Coronations of Edward VII and George V.

✧ ✧ ✧

AMONGST other musical adjuncts to the Coronation one of the most interesting promises to be Benjamin Britten's new opera on the subject of Elizabeth and Essex. This is most definitely a "piece d'occasion". Up to the nineteenth century composers were expected to produce works to order, and these were in great demand for occasions of state such as coronations, royal weddings and the like. With the coming of the Romantic movement in the arts the composer began to take a more high-and-mighty view of his inspiration, and though works were frequently commissioned there was a widespread feeling that the highest outpourings of genius came unbidden. As a corollary to this it was commonly held that specially commissioned works were apt to be mediocre in quality compared with the spontaneous effusions of the "bard". This view does not fit the facts. While it is true that a large amount of commissioned works have been performed once and then promptly consigned to the Library of the British Museum or some other more or less distinguished wastepaper basket this is also true of the majority of all music that has ever been written. Musical literature would be poorer indeed but for the Khedive of Egypt, who commissioned Verdi to write Aida, the Archduke Rudolph, whose installation as Archbishop of Olmutz elicited Beethoven's Missa Solemnis, and many others. In view of his previous record as an operatic composer Britten's new opera stands as good a chance as the rest of being good.

SHOULDN'T BE

"Ladies and gentlemen," shouted the street performer, "in a few moments I will astonish you by eating coal, stones and nails. I will also swallow a sword, then I will come around with a hat, trusting to get enough for a crust of bread."

"What!" came a voice from the crowd, "Still hungry?"

RISKS INVOLVED IN TIGHTENING PURSE STRINGS

Summer Courses For Students

By J. HALCRO FERGUSON

DESPITE the many difficulties placed in the way of the ordinary traveller in these enlightened days, one section of the public does receive encouragement and assistance to go abroad—the student.

UNESCO has just published a Vacation Study supplement to Volume V of its "Study Abroad" giving a list of vacation courses, study tours and seminars, arranged alphabetically by countries and covering most of the world this side of the Iron Curtain.

The courses range from handicrafts to specialized aspects of pure science, and from international relations to domestic training. Some reflect the present preoccupation with the troubled state of the world, and it is hardly surprising that Austria, for instance, should hold, at Kammer Am Attersee, international summer courses on causes of war and conditions of peace, State and citizens, the meaning of life and "Thus we live—how do you live?", or at Schloss St. Martin, near Graz a seminar on the theme "Laying the foundations of understanding, goodwill among peoples." Salzburg has a course on the significance of European Christian art at the present time. The Austrian courses, like most of the others, take place in general in July, August or September, and last from two to four weeks.

For young Americans between sixteen and thirty with 1,140 dollars to spare, there is a ten-week study tour in Brazil and in Canada, Quebec offers at Trois Pistoles agreeably placid-sounding courses in English and French composition and landscape painting. Tiny but highly-cultured Costa Rica, which has no soldiers and more teachers than policemen, offers courses in Spanish, Latin-American literature, history and economics, ethnology and art, in English.

Finland has an eight to ten weeks study tour for young Americans similar to that offered in Brazil, and a number of camps and youth centres.

France has a number of courses, mostly on French cultural subjects, and Strasbourg, as befits a bilingual city which is the home of the Council of Europe, literature and culture. In Germany, itself there is to be in July and August, in beleaguered Berlin, an international seminar under Quaker auspices on the general theme "Laying the foundations of understanding, goodwill and peace among peoples."

Bonn, reminding the world that it was a university town for centuries before it became the federal capital of the West German Republic, has three vacation courses for foreigners. The universities of Freiburg and Heidelberg, which were very popular with British students in pre-Nazi days, both offer summer courses in German, and there is a work camp for the construction of a European Youth Centre on the tiny, battered North Sea island of Helgoland, formerly British Heligoland.

Dublin University offers a resoundingly Irish summer school with lectures on Ireland's geographical setting, the Gaelic tradition, the Anglo-Irish tradition, the Gaelic revival in literature, the theatre in modern Ireland, folk-lore, the novel, folk-life and poetry in modern Ireland, Irish paintings, films, architecture and music, James Joyce and the Irish literary traditions, and, to round it off, Ireland and the Arts.

The Italian University for Foreigners at Perugia oddly brackets Italian Commercial Correspondence and Dante's "Divine Comedy" and the same country has what sounds an idyllic programme for a 12-day course round Italy, starting from Venice and finishing at Genoa.

Mexico City College, an English-speaking institution, gives courses in a number of Latin-American and North American subjects, while the University of Miami, Florida, is holding courses in the attractive Mexican provincial capital of Oaxaca (pronounced, as the American travel folders carefully tell you, WA-HA-KA). The Netherlands has a work camp for reconstruction in flooded areas, and another rather delightful one for boys and girls to help with the cherry harvest.

Somaliland offers a seminar for East African teachers. Spain, announcing courses in Cadiz on ophthalmology and atomic physics, relents a little in adding "an additional course may be taken in Spanish dancing." Stockholm has, inter alia, a course on Swedish design and architecture, and Switzerland, appropriately, course in Italian language and literature for speakers of French, German and Romansch, as well as the inevitable international gatherings for which the country almost seems designed.

In the United Kingdom, the British Council is holding a number of summer courses, as, of course, are the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge. Students who like to imbibe culture at more rural springs can find courses at Downe House School in Berkshire, Beatrice Webb House near Holmbury Saint Mary in Surrey, Burton Manor in the Wirral, Cheshire, and the University College of the South-West at Exeter. Stratford-on-Avon, too, has a summer school—needless to say, on Shakespeare.

United States courses are fewer in number than one might expect, most of them either in specialized subjects or "language and orientation" for non-Americans.

Yugoslavia has a seminar on the general theme "Laying the foundations of understanding, goodwill and peace," and another on "the meeting of East and West," which for once has nothing to do with Washington and the Kremlin but refers to the cultural overlap of two civilizations—both of which have had a not always peaceful impact on what is now Yugoslavia.

This list merely scratches the surface of the facilities mentioned, and any student proposing to travel would do well to buy this useful guide.—OFNS—Copyright.

REFLECTION

"I'm Mr. Brown's wife," said a brunette, introducing herself to a blonde at a party.

"I'm his secretary, said the blonde.

"Oh," said the brunette, arching her eyebrows slightly, "were you?"

How Time Flies

JUNE 1

1923 The wedding takes place of Phyllis Hope Robertson of this city to Robert Abbott, head of the Canadian Raybestos Co.

The finance committee recommends a grant of $500 to the Salvation Army.

Potatoes are plentiful on the local market, selling at one dollar a bag.

1933 Dr. A. T. Emmerson, a former resident of Peterborough, dies in Goderich.

E. A. Peck and George Sherry, local lawyers, are appointed King's Counsel.

A 25-foot launch is added to the equipment of the Rotary Boys Camp at Clear Lake.

1943 Flt. Sgt. Hugh Morrison and Sgt. E. C. White of Peterborough are awarded the British Empire Medal.

Lt. Sam Patte, RCA, who has been overseas a year and a half, is back visiting his parents here.

Bible Message

(From the Autorized Version)

The hope of the righteous shall be gladness: but the expectation of the wicked shall perish. The way of the Lord is strength to the upright: but destruction shall be to the workers of iniquity. (Prov. 10: 28, 29).

✧ ✧ ✧

Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat: because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it.

Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves. Ye shall know them by their fruits. Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles? Even so every good tree bringeth forth good fruit; but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit . . . Every tree that bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire. (Matt. 7: 13-17, 19).

Unconsidered Trifles

"Have you any cream for restoring the complexion?" asked the faded spinster.

"Restoring, miss? You mean preserving?" said the assistant, heartily.

He sold her two dollars' worth.

✧ ✧ ✧

"So your car is out of action for the week-end?"

"Yes; isn't it funny that a woman who can spot a blonde hair on your coat at ten paces can't see a pair of garage doors?"

✧ ✧ ✧

"Tell me: Who was braver than Lancelot, wiser than Solomon, more honest than Lincoln, wittier than Mark Twain, and more handsome than Apollo?" a woman was asked.

"I didn't know you knew my first husband," was her prompt reply.

✧ ✧ ✧

Rastus had just been presented by his wife with his twelfth child. As the proud father was escorting the doctor to the door a duck passed by.

"Whose duck is that?" asked the doctor.

"Dat ain't no duck," said Rastus, with a sigh. "Dat's the stork with its legs worn down."

Jail For Combines

(Edmonton Journal)

John Diefenbaker has made an interesting, if rather drastic, suggestion for enforcing the combines laws. He wants mandatory jail sentences for company directors who "directly contribute or passively acquiesce" in combines in restraint of trade. The usual practice is to impose fines alone, and only on those directors or other officials who actively take part in such conspiracies.

This might have a strong deterrent effect. But is fairness under present-day business conditions is rather doubtful. In many of the larger concerns the directors have little contact with day-to-day operations. They might be quite unaware that the president, the general manager, or perhaps some lesser executive, had entered into some "gentlemen's agreement" to fix prices. To put them all in jail for "passive acquiescene" would seem a little harsh— especially to the directors!

Particularly disastrous would be the effect on some of those giant companies which like to have large and ornamental boards of directors drawn from prominent men in all walks of life, while a few veteran executives do the work. We have a mental picture of communities all across Canada suddenly bereft of their leading citizens, as the Mounties round up the directors of Colossal Corporation Limited— the unfortunate sequel to an attempt by the assistant sales manager to fix the price of, say, popcorn.

"'Enrietta! You know that advert. you put in the local paper—'Coronation visitors catered for'?"

Newfoundland To Get Long Weekends Now

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Henceforth every weekend will be a long wekeend here.

The provincial government Saturday stepped in to settle a dispute between management and labor over a second holiday.

The Importers and Employers Association wanted Monday for downtown department stores and the general retail trade, Saturday for wholesalers. The unions all wanted Saturday.

At a cabinet meeting Saturday, the government decided in favor of the unions.

Queen Accepts 8 Appointments

OTTAWA (CP)—The Queen has accepted appointment as honorary commanding officer of eight units of the Canadian armed forces, it was announced Sunday night. Five of the appointments were held by Queen Elizabeth's father, the late King George VI.

The announcement said royal assent has been given to the eight appointments for the Queen and to three others making the Duke of Edinburgh honorary commander of the three cadet services of Canada.

The posts held by King George and continued by Queen Elizabeth are: captain general of the Royal Canadian Artillery and colonel-in-chief of the Royal Canadian Engineers and of three infantry regiments—the Royal 22nd Regiment of Quebec City, the Governor-General's Foot Guards of Ottawa and the Canadian Grenadier Guards of Montreal.

The Queen will also become air commodore-in-chief of the Royal Canadian Air Force Auxiliary and colonel-in-chief of the King's Own Calgary Regiment and the Carleton and York Regiment of Fredericton.

Bonus Catch

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—A party of fishermen returned to Orere Point with a good catch of ocean fish plus a 90-pound wild pig. They explained they were fishing close to shore when they heard a dog barking wildly. They landed to find the dog had treed a wild pig, which they captured and killed.

Eiffel Tower To Be Given Three-Tone Finish

WASHINGTON — Sixty death-defying painters are giving the Eiffel Tower a "new look" — a three-tone finish. When they are through, in late 1954, the 984-foot steel skeleton will glisten golden brown on top, a shade darker in the middle, and even darker brown at the bottom.

"Cognac brown" is the way paint manufacturers describe it. They claim the slender spire's new color will exactly complement the Paris sky.

The paint job is a regular chore every seven years, says the National Geographic Society, and it requires two years to complete. One half will be painted this spring and fall and the other half during the same periods next year. Work is suspended during the heavy tourist season.

While spray guns would seem more appropriate to the tower's giant size, they cannot be used because of the fineness of the ironwork. Painters will spread on the 70,000 pounds of paint with 1,200 short-handled nylon brushes.

ROYAL VISITOR

Since its first visitor, King Edward VII, then Prince of Wales, signed the guest book in 1889, the tower has been France's leading tourist attraction. Sometime this spring the twenty-five-millionth visitor will ascend the structure by elevator or, if particularly energetic, hike up the 1,710 steps to the glass pavilion near the top.

There, on a clear day, the sightseer can spot Chartres, 50 air miles from Paris. If it's a windy day, he will be well advised to stand fast, for the lacy shaft sways more than four feet.

Exceeded in height by only two other man-made edifices, the Empire State and Chrysler buildings in New York City, the tower spans 2½ acres at its base on the Champ-de-Mars. It was the first large structure, other than bridges, to be built entirely of iron or steel. Some 15,000 steel beams and 2½ million rivets were used in its construction.

SOURCE OF REVENUE

Built by Gustave Eiffel, a brilliant French engineer and bridge builder, for the International Exposition in Paris in 1889, the tower has proved a pillar of profit. Its initial investment was recovered in leess than two years. Gate receipts now total nearly $600,000 annually, including revenue from restauant and bar concessions at the 190-foot and 381-foot levels.

Originally, the structure was considered a "vulgar monstrosity" by many prominent Parisians, but as the years passed residents of the French capital grew fond of the undisputed trademark.

Late in World War II the U.S. Army requisitioned the spire as a radio transmission point, and both the Army and the American Red Cross operated canteens within the structure.

In March 1946, U.S. forces turned it back to the French. Today, besides being No. 1 tourist attraction, it serves the French TV industry and weather bureau, and as a radio station and aircraft beacon.

Long Service

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Postmaster George T. Farrell, being superannuated on June 1, joined the post office staff in 1909 and has been postmaster here since 1949. He will be succeeded by assistant postmaster Reginald Bull, who started in 1920.

36 Canadians To Receive Special Coronation Awards

OTTAWA (CP)—A list of 36 special Coronation awards to Canadians who have distinguished themselves in the Korean war was announced Sunday.

They range from a Gallantry Medal for the son of a Canadian general-ambassador to an MBE for a personable Irish-Canadian who has done much to keep things running smoothly between Commonwealth division headquarters and the headquarters of the American corps which commands it. And they include the first Canadian nursing sister decorated in Korea.

The army awards include one Companion of the Order of the Order of the British Empire, nine members of the same order, one Royal Red Cross Medal, two Military Crosses, two British Empire Medals, two Military Medals, and 18 mentions in dispatches.

A mention in dispatches also was awarded to one navy man—CPO. Frederick Ewald of Esquimalt, B.C.—for his work aboard the destroyer Crusader off Korea.

Most of the recipients now are back in Canada.

The CBE goes to Col. G. L. Morgan Smith of Winnipeg for his outstanding work as senior medical officer at Commonwealth division headquarters, work which went on both at the front and in rear areas.

The nursing sister honored is Capt. (Matron) Elizabeth Barker Pense of Kingston, matron of the Canadian field dressing station. She was awarded the Royal Red Cross (1st class).

She took the first group of nursing sisters to Seoul last October to organize the Commonwealth nursing service in Korea on formation of the British Commonwealth communication zone medical unit.

The citation says that "prior to her arrival there had been a great deal of difficulty in providing the high standard of nursing care required in such a location. . . ."

But Capt. Pense "proved extremely capable" in handling the problems she encountered.

Acting Major William H. Pope, 33, formerly of Quebec City, son of Lt.-Gen. Maurice Pope, Canadian ambassador to Belgium, emulated his father in winning the Military Cross. He did so as a company commander with the 1st battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment.

The Irishman is Maj. J. A. Clancy, 34, of Walkerton, Ont., and Petawawa.

His award came for his "outstanding loyalty and devotion to duty" as liaison officer between Commonwealth division headquarters and the 1st U.S. corps.

The Ontario decorations:

MBE

Maj. J. A. Clancy, 34, MC, headquarters Commonwealth division, Petawawa.

Maj. E. T. Galway, 34, MC, 23 field squadron, RCE, Toronto.

Maj. I. M. McLaughlin, 34, RCEME, Ottawa.

Royal Red Cross (1st Class)

Capt. (Matron) E. B. Pense, RCAMC, Kingston.

MC

Lieut. D. G. Loomis, 24, RCR, Deep River.

Mention in Dispatches

Capt. E. E. Doidge, RCCS, Kingston.

Capt. K. M. Mayes, RCASC, Camp Borden.

Cpl. H. W. Searls, RCCS, Oakville.

Discover Crowning A Queen Means Big Business To UK

By MICHAEL NEWMARCH

LONDON (AP) — Crowning a queen is not a business transaction—but it is big business, running into many millions of dollars.

And Britain as a whole, as well as thousands of individuals servicing the biggest show on earth, look like making a handsome profit when Queen Elizabeth goes to Westminster Abbey for her Coronation Tuesday.

Tourist spending could give Britain her profit, while private individuals already are filling their pockets from big sales of flags, street decorations, catering and other earnings.

Just about the only party out of pocket is the government, which expects a loss of $4,404,000 on thousands of items ranging from smoked salmon and champagne for official guests to acres of gaily-painted stands.

The government has spent $1,500,000 decorating and making temporary alterations to Westminster Abbey for the Coronation service lasting a bit over two hours.

MILLION ON STANDS

Another $1,000,000 has gone on official stands of wood and steel that have turned whole streets into stadiums for watching the procession through London. The government will get back $500,000 on the sale of seats in these enclosures.

To the government's deficit must be added the cost of local celebrations throughout the country, also paid for by taxation.

No overall accounts are available for the street decorations, fireworks, children's parties and other celebrations, though the cost likely will run around $6,000,000.

But the event has brought tourists flocking to Britain from all parts of the world. Dollar-earning tourists alone are expected to spend $134,400,000—$14,000,000 more than in 1952. Nearly all the increase is due to the Coronation.

Britain thus looks like having a lot of free fun and earning something on the side.

Faithful Donor

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — A mother of seven children, Mrs. Lee Wood, was the donor of the 50,000th blood donation collected by the Red Cross blood transfusion service in New Brunswick. She gave her third donation at the clinic in Oromocto.

Say MacMillan May Get Eden's Post

LONDON (Reuters)—Harold MacMillan, Britain's housing and local government minister, is considered the best bet to succeed Anthony Eden if the foreign secretary's illness makes a change necessary.

MacMillan, 50, has quickly risen to the top ranks of the party in the 18 months the Conservatives have been in power. He has handled skillfully each of the jobs handed to him so far and the foreign ministry could be the next assignment.

Prime Minister Churchill will delay a decision until after Eden's third operation, in the United States next week. The 55-year-old foreign secretary will be flown by the RCAF Friday to Boston, where he will enter the Lahey Clinic.

The operation, by Dr. Richard Cattell, will be Eden's third in two months for gall-bladder trouble. If it fails to relieve his condition, the question will arise not only of a new foreign secretary but also of a new deputy leader for the Conservative party and potential prime minister.

In that case, the mantle of Churchill, to which Eden up to now has been heir apparent, is expected eventually to go to Richard Butler, 50, chancellor of the exchequer.

Serves Sentence, Deported To U.S.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—Clyde Arnold Guhr, 37, was deported from Canada Saturday night after completing a four-year term in Kingston penitentiary on conviction of housebreaking and passing bad cheques.

Guhr was arrested by two New York detectives upon crossing the Whirlpool Rapids international bridge.

Detective Arthur Haile of the Nassau county police department said the immediate charge against Guhr was an embezzlement indictment returned in 1947 by a Nassau county grand jury.

Guhr, who listed his home as Vancouver, Wash., also is wanted by the federal bureau of investigation on a warrant charging interstate transportation of a stolen auto.

The FBI said Guhr also was wanted in connection with a number of burglaries in 1946 and 1947 that netted about $100,000 from swank Long Island homes.

Trip To Eiffel Tower Lucky For One Man

PARIS (AP)—All his life, Emile Warin, a mason from the north of France, has wanted to ascend the Eiffel Tower. As he presented his ticket for the trip up the 64-year-old structure, the ticker-taker stopped him.

"You are the 25,000,000th visitor to the Eiffel Tower," he said, "and have won the de luxe automobile which goes with this event."

Warin accepted the machine, in rather stunned fashion, and then said:

"I'd still like to go up to the top of the tower."

So he did.

Northwest Frontier Constabulary Does Superb Job In Pakistan

By DAVID CHIPP

PESHAWAR, Pakistan (Reuters)—The Northwest Frontier Constabulary, one of the world's most famous police forces, is celebrating its 40th anniversary this year with the proud boast that it has never had a deserter.

Recruited from tough, wandering tribes of the mountainous districts of northwest Pakistan, they remain faithful, even when called upon to fight their own people.

The job of the constabulary, the "Borderwalas" as they are called, is to patrol the border between the wild, almost inaccessible tribal territory and the settled districts to prevent raids by tribesmen

They have nothing to do with the prevention of crime or preservation of law and order within the settled districts of the frontier province.

MOUNTED PATROLS

Mounted patrols, which support the infantry, are constantly on the alert for raiders on horseback who strike suddenly and then disappear.

The life of the policeman is hard. Each day, they patrol for miles, stopping only for prayers or to eat their hard rations. Endowed by nature with magnificent physique and powers of endurance, they have sight and hearing so keen that anything unusual is immediately noticed. They are superb marksmen.

Seldom do they venture into the tribal areas and then only when they are following bandits or cattle thieves.

STILL HAS BIG ROLE

When he finally retires, the constable still has a big part to play. The mediations of men who have served in the constabulary settle many tribal disputes and their discipline, education and hygenic living is beginning to be copied by the backward tribesmen.

One of the greatest tributes to them was paid by Rudyard Kipling, who said: "All along the northwest frontier there is spread a force. They move up and down, and down and up from one desolate little post to another; they are ready to take the field at 10 minutes' notice; they are always half in, half out of a difficulty...Their lives are as hard as their own muscles, and the papers never say anything about them."

Athletics Yank Out A Win By 13-12 In Overtime Against The Senior Petes

A goal by Derry Davies at the 2.41 mark of overtime gave St. Catharines Athletics a 13-12 victory over Peterborough Trailermen Saturday night before a crowd of close to 2,000 fans at St. Catharines' Garden City Arena. The win by the rejuvenated Athletics gave them undisputed possession of first place over Petes. Athletics now have five wins and a defeat in six games and Trailermen four and two. The two clubs meet again in Peterborough Friday night.

For the entire 70 minutes of play, the game was bitterly fought and provided spectators with the greatest lacrosse spectacle seen in St. Catharines in many years. Trailermen got away to an early 4-1 lead and held a margin of 4-2 at the close of the first quarter and 5-4 at the half.

START TO ROLL

Athletics started rolling in the third and took a 10-8 lead and with less than four minutes remaining, had a margin of 12-10. Jerry Fitzgerald put Petes back in the game at 11.08, after Athletics had been called for stalling, and slim Roger Smith tied it up while Curly Mason was sitting out a slashing penalty.

Davies, one of the strongest members of the Athletics all night, gave them the victory in overtime with a solo effort, his bounce shot catching the top corner over Moon Wootton's shoulder. With time running out, Trailermen put on the pressure, but both O'Hearn and Hildebrand had their shots blocked when in all alone on Athletic goalie Doug Favell.

Roger Smith and Harry Wipper topped Petes in scoring with three goals each while Jerry Fitzgerald had a pair. Al Frick, John Dewar, Bill Nelson and Skip Teal all scored a pair for Athletics.

Petes: Goal: Wootton; defence, Wipper, O'Hearn; centre, Thorpe; wings, Ashbee, Vitarelli; rover, Hildebrand; alternates, Nickle, Powless, Smith, Fitzgerald, Slater, Groves, Mason.

St. Catharines: Goal, Favell; defence, Nelson, D. Smith; centre, McMahon; wings, Howe, Moore; rover, A. Frick; alternates, Davies, Dewar, J. Bradshaw, B. Bradshaw, Teal, Corcoran, Uhrynuk.

Toronto Athletes Downed By W. Ontario

ORILLIA (CP)—Western Ontario athletes edged their Toronto competitors Saturday by three points to win the team championship at the track and field meet at the Ontario athletic commission camp on Lake Couchiching.

Windsor Kennedy's John Kerr in the middle-distance events and London Central's John Thomas with two sprint wins paced the Western Ontario Secondary School Association athletes to victory with 69 points over the Toronto Secondary School Athletic Association with 66 points.

Toronto, defending champions, were helped by Gordie Brown, the leading individual point-winner of the day, and Jerry Zadiyko.

Windsor's Kerr, a 17-year-old headed for Michigan University, broke the 440- and 880-yard record. He ran the first distance in 52.1 seconds, cutting nine-tenths of a second off the 440 record and the second in 1:58.7 minutes, 4 6-10 of a second better than the previous record. Both were in the intermediate class.

BREAKS RECORD

Norm Williams of North Toronto broke the record for the senior 120-yard high hurdles, covering the distance in 15.4 seconds, three-tenths of a second better than the record he set last year.

In the open events, C. Colville of Sudbury was third in the two-mile run. Roy Ranta of South Porcupine won the broad jump at 20 feet 7¾ inches, and placed third in the 100 yards. Ken Fisher of Oshawa was second in the javelin throw and Howie Triano of Niagara Falls third in the high jump.

In the intermediate division, G. Main of Sudbury Tech. was third in the pole vault.

District standings:

WOSSA, 69; TSSAA, 66; TDIAA, 60; COSSA, 17; NOSSA, 15; Hamilton 11; Niagara district, 6.

Two Canadians Stroke Way To Separate Wins

BUFFALO, N.Y. (CP)—Sons of two of Canada's former Diamond Sculls winners Saturday stroked their way to separate wins in the 19th annual Schoolboy Rowing Association of America regatta.

In the senior double sculls event, Don Guest of Toronto stroked the Etobicoke Collegiate shell to victory, covering the mile course on the choppy Niagara river in 6:08.2.

John Robert Pearce, of Westdale High, Hamilton, pulled across the finish line in 7:14.3 for victory in the junior sculls event.

Both boys' fathers are former Diamond Sculls winners for Canada.

St. Louis Cardinals traded themselves into National League pennant nine years ago today when they sent outfielders Coaker Triplett, Buster Adams and Dain Clay to the Phillies for Danny Litwhiler and Earl Naylor. Litwhiler's timely hitting sparked the Cards to the flag and in the World Series they beat the Browns four games to two.

"A" Cricketers Earn Win Over Parkdale

On Saturday at Nicholls Oval, the Peterborough "A" team played Toronto Parkdale and scored a decisive win, the final score being Peterborough "A" 186. Parkdale "B" 51. On May 16 Parkdale had defeated the Peterborough "B" club.

The Petes batted first and the opening pair G. Smith and B. Roberts took the score to 74 before Roberts was out for 21. Then E. Bedford, a new comer and next in the batting order, scored 31 and E. Cotton, the new captain of the team scored 25 and the score was 135 for 5 wickets. Later, W. Cridland, No. 10 in the batting order, scored 19 including six and two fours. The losers conceded 20 extras and the total was 186. F. Smith opened the batting and again gave a great display scoring 50 of the first 70 and the innings included sound defence and hard hitting and his score included three sixes before he was unfortunately run out. The Parkdale bowlers had a hard time of it as their figures show. G. Hutchinson had 5 wickets for 30 and of these three were lbw.

On Parkdale going to bat, they failed badly against the local bowlers W. Snowball 14 and G. Pickup 13 reaching the double figure and the innings closed for 51.

SIX BOWLERS

The local captain gave six bowlers a chance to show their form and of these W. Wright had 3 wickets to 0 runs. C. Boardman and G. Smith had 2 for 10, E. Cotton 1 for 7 and K. Illingworth 1 for 10.

It was a most encouraging win for the locals and during May the A team has won all the three matches and the B team 2 out of 3.

The District Council match scheduled for Saturday, June 6, between the local A and B teams has been postponed to Saturday, June 13 owing to a picnic being held in the Oval on the former date.

The match scheduled to be played by Peterborough B against Dovercourt B in Toronto on Saturday was not played on account of bad weather conditions.

On Saturday, June 23, the A team play Avro B here and the B team play St. Edmunds B in Toronto.

Kingston Entries Win In Tourney

OTTAWA (CP)—High school entries from Kingston and Carleton Place were winners in the Strathcona Trophy competitions for the smaller schools at the 20th annual Eastern Ontario Secondary Schools' Association track and field meet here Saturday.

Kingston defeated Gananoque and Brockville, and Carleton Place shaded Almonte and Arnprior. Cornwall CVS took the CCL Board Trophy unopposed.

The Queen's University Trophy, for a long time held by Ottawa's Glebe Collegiate, was taken over by the capital's Fisher Park High School.

Kingston's Sam Campbell, an intermediate middle distance star, established two records. He captured the 880 in 2.09.3 and the mile in 4.55.7.

His two firsts tied him with Mark Molot of Fisher for the highest individual points score in his class.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Greatest show on earth is on display tomorrow. The coronation in London, that most impressive ceremony with all the trimmings. A great throng from the four corners of the world has descended upon ancient Londinium, and even the phlegmatic Briton is hard pressed to take it in his stride. The "Pig-and-Whistle," the "Elephant and Castle," the "Load of Hay" and the hundreds of other popular pubs will need rubber walls to accommodate the celebrants with their mugs of mild-and-bitters, 'arf-and-'aff, or lemony coronation specials. The dart boards will take a beating this week by the fun-loving folk there and their many visitors. England is a country of sports and sportsmen and women, from the Queen down.

* * * * * *

Her Majesty liked that pro hockey exhibition they staged for her on her tour of Canada, but felt the players were a bit too polite on the ice. (They were darned well warned to do no scrapping!) She likes soccer, horse races and hunting, being a first-rate horsewoman. She is a typical English person of high rank. Thousand of Canucks —many of them fine athletes— saw much of England during the last war, and all seemed to enjoy what they say, apart from the barrack, of course! It is a great country for athletes, with soccer and horse racing drawing tremendous crowds. Cricket has its large following, too. And even hockey. One feel a touch of envy of those taking in the London "do" this week.

Victors Crowned Here

Coronation Day here is fairly quiet in regards to the sports' setup, apart from softball at night and the high school track and field meet. It is in the afternoon at Morrow Park, and those staying in town might enjoy the competitions staged by the Jaycees and the Recreation Commission. A postponed meet from May 18, drawing entries from various Central Ontario centres, the immediate district and the local high schools. For junior boys and junior, intermediate and senior lasses, the meet commencing at one of the clock. Races, jumps, shot put, discuss, javelin, throws, etc., with trophies for the winners. Hope the weather is okay her and in London.

They quit the pro wrestling shows here a few weeks ago, but have decided to stage another Wednesday eve in the arena on the Rue Brock. On account of 'they obtained Gorgeous George for the main bout with Bobo Brazil. Semi-final has Tim Geohagen against Najo Singh, while the prelim pits Pat Flanagan 'gainst Hangman Howard Cantonwine. Quite a card, especially that top scrap. The Orchid Man is a fabulous mat character complete with long powdered hair done up, elegant robes, insecticide spray about the ring, valet, et all. He's said to earn some $100,000 a year touring from here to Hawaii and back. Yet, 'tis said he's a tough hombre when the veneer is peeled off. His first appearance in Peter's borough.

* * * * * *

It Was Closerthanthis

Rex Stimers is quite a guy, too. Local senior lacrosse fans who listened in on that grand game Saturday in St. Kitts (when the Saints won by a goal in overtime o'er the champion Petes) know why he is rated as good as Foster Hewitt on sportscasts. He even did a quarter for the Trailermen in rare style but had trouble keeping jubilation out of his voice when his beloved "double blues" scored. 'Twas a dandy duel between smart and well-matched clubs (these and Yorks are the cream of the 1953 OLA crop), and their return joust here Friday promises to be a sweet struggle, as well. Moon Wootton, Rog Smith, Jerry Fitzgerald, Harry Wipper and the rest of Bob Thorpe's stalwarts extended the powerful A's to the very limit and weren't disgraced in losing. They'll beat 'em Friday.

* * * * * *

Two games listed for here Saturday were called off due to wet grounds. After phoning around we learned at noon that the Lakeshore League ball tilt betwixt Oshawa and Liflocs for the aft in Riverside had been postponed. Ditto with the evening OLA junior joust at Miller Bowl, though no announcement was made regarding the calling off of this fray. No radio item and indeed an official as late as six p.m. said the game was still on. However, a trip to the bowl showed several mud puddles spotting the playing surface and we learned belatedly that the tussle had been called off around three in the afternoon. The Pats are at Long Branch on Wednesday and have Brampton here Saturday. Local ball club goes to Colborne on the morrow and to Cobourg this weekend.

(2) Any player participating in three regular city league games during current or previous season ineligible to compete in civic league; penalty, game forfeited.

(3) Attack on umpires on field or after game punishable by indefinite suspension by league manager

(4) Profanity or unseemly conduct on field subject to indefinite suspension on report of umpire-in-chief.

(5) Any team failing to field nine men for regular league game suffers forfeit of scheduled contest affected.

(6) Home team furnishes one new ball for game; visiting team one good ball passed by umpire-in-chief.

(7) In event of tie vote of club managers on any league issue, the league manager's ruling is final.

(8) Managers must notify league manager 48 hours in advance in event of failure to field team for regular scheduled game; if legitimate reason not proven, game forfeited automatically.

(9) No revision of schedule except by order of league manager under any circumstances.

(10) Playoffs all played full nine innings, or more if necessary to decision, weather permitting.

Sudbury Man Places 2nd In Discus Final

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (CP)—University of Illinois won its third straight Big Ten outdoor track championship Saturday by rolling up 69½ points.

Michigan, taking three first places and sharing another, was second with 43½ points. Michigan State was third with 25 followed by Iowa with 23.

Roy Pella of Sudbury, Ont., attending University of Michigan, was second in the discus final. Roland Nilsson, also of Michigan, was first with a toss of 164 feet, 5 3-10 inches. Pella's toss was 152 feet, 5 8-10 inches.

John Ross of Oakville, Ont., Michigan's mile champion last year, finished second to James Kepford of Michigan state who ran the distance in 4:18.4.

Boat Upsets, 5 Drown

BELLEVUE, Neb. (AP)—Five persons were drowned Sunday night when a 16-foot fishing boat capsized in the Missouri river, about 2½ miles southeast of here. Two other persons were rescued.

Kingston Ties The UEW In Soccer Tilt

Peterborough UEW and Kingston Concordia drew 3-3 Saturday in soccer league play in the Limestone City. The UE squad were minus several regular players who couldn't make the trip, and consequently were below their usual strength. Re-arranged matches now have the local Merchants vs. UEW playing at King Edward Park this Tuesday afternoon at 2.30, and UE playing Scottish Canadians on Wednesday at seven p.m. in Morrow Park.

Play was fairly even with Hoyle taking Strong's pass after 15 minutes to score. Kingston's centre forward evened it 10 minutes later and Murray was injured and had to retire. Hillier took his place, and then Strong was off for 10 minutes when hurt At half-time it was 1-1.

Murray resumed after the interval and Strong scored on a good cross shot. Then Hoyle lengthened the lead on a pass from Ryan. UE held this eastern loop game lead till 15 minutes before the end when Kingston drove hard, the centre forward finally counting two quick goals to even up the match.

Following is the standing in the city league:

	W.	L.	Pts.
UEW	3	0	6
Scots	2	2	4
Merchants	1	2	2
Port Hope	1	2	2

(Leading scorers: Attard, 7; Hoyle, 4; Croll, 3.)

Excelsiors Whip Hamilton 19-12

Brampton Excelsiors notched their first victory of the season Saturday with a 19-12 win over Hamilton Tigers and Orillia West Yorks edged Fergus Thistles 11-10.

Brampton, playing at home, led 8-7 at the half.

Pete Bradskin paced the winners with four goals and Nick Ferri and Gordie Steele added three each. Jack Sibbald and Chuck Simpson each tallied twice and Bionda, Garbutt, Sutherland, Beatty and McCann scored one each.

Ron Smith, Don Smith, Don Macfarlane and Tony Capulo had two each for Hamilton and Doyle, Rankin, Brown and McLean scored singles.

Bob Dobbie led the Fergus attack scoring three goals. Don Campbell, Bill Lillenbeck and Ron gus while Don Gear contributed a single marker.

Ken Croft, Jim and Joe McNulty each collected two for Orillia and Merv McKenzie, Tony Domico, Gord Hammond, Les Digby and Leo Teatro each scored singletons.

Kitchener Takes Lead In Golf Play

KITCHENER (CP)—The defending trophy holders from Kitchener Westmount took the lead Sunday in Somerville Cup golf play, a four-team event among London Hunt, Westmount, Brantford and Ancaster.

Westmount scored 32½ points to 25 for Brantford, 24½ for London and 16 for Ancaster.

The morning round was a four-ball eightsome event in which the scores were Westmount 15, London 8½, Hamilton 6½ and Brantford 6.

Best individual scores of the day were turned in by Jerry Kesselring of Westmount and Don Varey of Brantford, who had 69.

Return match in the event, which is decided on a total-points basis, will be played at Ancaster Sept. 13.

Plate Entries Close At Woodbine

TORONTO (CP)—Entries for the 94th running of the Queen's Plate on Coronation Day close today at 10 a.m. EDT.

Twenty-two Canadian-bred three year-olds were listed Sunday and are in their stalls at Woodbine Park, but the number of entries for the $20,000 added-stake may drop to 15 or 16 when the big moment arrives.

E. P. Taylor's Canadiana still is the favorite, but a top western contender arrived Sunday. Virginia Fair, winner of six stake races, is owned by J. A. Charlesworth of Edmonton. The dark bay daughter of Fairmond-Branca, made the 2,000-mile trip from Calgary by train.

Virginia Fair won nine of her 11 starts as a two-year-old in Western Canada. Some experts, however, say that Charlesworth has kept the filly in the West too long and that she may not have enough time left to loosen up after the long trip.

Three western horses are entered for the plate. The others are Bonsand, a black colt owned by Charlie Krupp of Winnipeg, and Food For Thot, owned by Dr. L. H. Appleby of Vancouver. Both have been training here for at least two weeks.

Post positions have not yet been decided, but the draw takes place at the close of entries today. Predictions are that the track will be heavy and more rain is forecast before the horses go to the post.

Col. K. R. Marshall, president of the Ontario Jockey Club, will present the Queen's Plate to the winning owner.

LAYNE TO FIGHT WALLS

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Rex Layne has signed to fight a 10-round bout with Earl Walls, Canadian heavyweight champion, at Edmonton June 29. Marv Jenson, Layne's manager, said Saturday Layne has been guaranteed $10,000 with an option on the gate Walls is No. 3 heavyweight in British Commonwealth listings.

Vukovich Wins Indianapolis Championship

By WILL GRIMSLEY

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Bill Vukovich of Fresno, Calif., set a blistering pace through oven-like heat Saturday to win the Indianapolis 500-mile speedway championship, snatched from his hands in the final 25 miles a year ago.

The 200-lap grind over the motor speedway's seared brick and asphalt oval was staged in such sweltering conditions that one veteran driver, Carl Scarborough of Clarkston, Mich., died of heat exhaustion and a heart attack after relinquishing his wheel at 175 miles.

The track temperature was 130 degrees with the reading officially 91 in the shade.

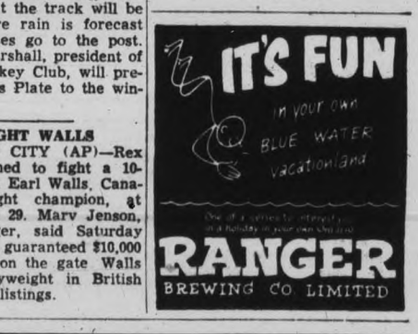
Pat Flaherty of Glendale, Calif., suffered cuts and bruises when he rammed the concrete wall on the north straightaway, but otherwise this neck-risking race was without a serious accident.

The husky 34-year-old Vukovich defied relief, the pole position, and every challenge as he gunned his sleek, mouse-gray machine in front on the mad opening lap and led for 198 of the 200 grinding sweeps around the course.

Vuky covered the 500 miles in three hours, 53 minutes, 1.69 seconds for an average of 128.740 mph.

This was the second fastest winning time in the 37-year history of the race, topped only by the 128.992 set by Troy Ruttman in 1952.

Paul Russo of Hammond, Ind., who relieved Fred Agabashian of Albany, Calif., at the 263-mile point, won second place over Art Cross of Laporte, Ind.



Russo was timed in 3:56:32.25. Cross was third at 3:56:32.54.

Lockhart Re-Elected Hockey President

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP)—Thomas Lockhart was re-elected president of the U. S. Amateur Hockey Association Sunday. He is business manager of the New York Rangers National Hockey League club.

Picked as vice-presidents were Walter Brown of Boston, Fred Huber of Detroit and Robert Ridder of St. Paul.

The association agreed to sponsor a national hockey tournament for juveniles at Troy, O., next spring, but set no definite date. It also authorized Sault Ste. Marie Indians to compete in either the Canadian or U. S. playoffs, whichever they choose.

Schools Accept Rules of CRU

ORILLIA (CP)—Canadian Rugby Union rules were accepted in their entirety by the Ontario Federation of School Athletic Associations at a meeting at the Ontario athletic commission camp at Lake Couchiching during the week-end.

In some sections governed by the OFSAA, blocking had not been permitted on kickoffs and in other parts backfielders were allowed to block the same distance as linesmen.

For what is believed the first time in Canada, a committee was set up to investigate football injuries. It will try to determine whether any one play causes more injuries than others and whether the tackler or the tackled player is the more frequently injured.

Photographing Dancing Nudes Strikes Strip-Tease Industry

TOKYO (AP)—Tokyo's big strip-tease industry, still thriving after numerous ups and downs, has a new come-on.

"Photograph dancing nudes," invite the ads. "You don't even need a camera, we furnish 'em."

The new twist, "nude photo studios," is a mushrooming specialty aimed at Japan's 1,000,000 or more camera fans.

The ads emphasize that art lovers without cameras need not stay away. The studio furnishes both camera and film, to say nothing of the targets.

There are 10 such studios in Tokyo and there's hardly a provincial town in Japan that doesn't have at least one.

The new studios are luring away hundreds, perhaps thousands of customers from the big strip theatres where maybe up to 100 girls are on the runways at one time.

Recently several camera and film makers joined to stage a picture-taking picnic in a suburban a top prize of 30,000 yen about $80, for the best shot and mobilized 95 pretty models, clothed and unclothed, for the event.

The result almost equalled last year's May Day riot. Some 45,000 shutterbugs and art lovers rushed under tripods and raised cain in to the park, climbed trees, crawled general.

Western University Graduates Students

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—With 600 kneeling students the University of Western Ontario graduated its class of '53. It also marked its 159th convocation by paying tribute to three distinguished Canadians.

The honorary degree of doctor of laws was conferred on Ernest Charles Drury, one time Ontario premier and former head of the UFO government. The same degree was conferred on Herve Major, managing editor of La Presse, Montreal.

Dr. Charles Clifford Macklin, retiring head of Western's department of histology, received the honorary degree of doctor of science.

Murdered Woman Identified By Police

HAMILTON (CP) — A woman found dead in a rooming house bedroom was identified during the week-end as Alberta Ann Sipes, 46, of Hamilton.

Her body lay unidentified in the morgue for 18 hours.

Harry Lafortune, 27, is scheduled to appear in court today on a charge of murder. Police said the partly-clothed body was found sprawled across Lafortune's bed Friday night with a pink blouse twisted around her neck.

Officers said the woman appeared to have been beaten up and strangled.

Roen III Wins Tugboat Race

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—The Roen III Saturday won the fourth annual international tugboat race after her big sister, Roen V, was barred from defending the title she won last year.

Atomic, owned by Capt. J. Earl McQueen of nearby Amherstburg, who won the England Trophy in the 1950-51 runnings, placed third, a length behind the Sachem, of Buffalo.

Atomic held the lead for about the first half mile of the 3½-mile race up the Detroit river before the Roen stormed ahead and kept the lead.

Roen III, owned by Capt. John Roen, Sturgeon Bay, Wis., also took the trophy for her class, 900 horsepower and over. The crowd of close to 100,000 which jammed the Canadian and American banks of the river saw Atomic win the trophy for the 301 to 600 horsepower class.

Say Police, Councillor Drank Seized Liquor

WHITBY (CP) — Two former members of the Pickering township police force told the township police commission Friday that some officers and a councillor drank beer and liquor that had been confiscated by the force.

They were testifying at an inquiry by the township police commission into what happened to liquor confiscated in the township in this area four miles west of Oshawa.

Dan Dand, a former township constable, said he and fellow-officer, Sgt. Fred White, drank a bottle of rum while sitting in a police cruiser on a side road. He said Sgt. White had seized the rum from a motorist a little while before.

Dand said that one night while he was on duty, Sgt. White ordered him to bring a case of confiscated beer to his (White's) house.

"He had a party going with prominent township people and Ontario provincial police officers," Dand said. "I took the case from the police station and delivered it to his back door."

Expand Star Plant

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Contracts were awarded during the weekend for a plant addition to the Windsor Star building which will double the size of the present structure and cost almost $1,500,000. It is expected the new plant will be in full production by August, 1954. New presses which can turn out 50,000 64-page papers an hour will be installed. The present press, installed in 1927, prints 30,000 56-page papers an hour.

Queen Joins Mounties

OTTAWA (CP)—Commissioner L. H. Nicholson of the RCMP announced Sunday that Her Majesty has accepted the appointment of honorary commissioner of the force. He said a communication received from the private secretary to the Queen states that "Her Majesty has great pleasure in accepting this appointment."

Too Much Rain

ST. THOMAS (CP)—Orchardists and farmers in this district are complaining about getting too much rain during the last several days.

G. C. Cookson, manager of the Elgin Fruit Growers Co-Operative, said Sunday considerable stem rotting in cherries has been blamed on excessive moisture since the bloom. A spread of scab in the apple crop is feared due to the dampness.

Two-Alarm Fire

TORONTO (CP)—A two-alarm fire Saturday night gutted the east-end De Grassi street plant of the Biltrite Rubber Company. Officials said the blaze, of unknown origin, destroyed $120,000 worth of material and did $20,000 damage to the building.

The Performance is as Startling as the Savings!

You'll get the surprise of your life when you take a demonstration drive in the newest addition to the AUSTIN line of finely built cars—the AUSTIN A-30 4-door sedan.

This car goes! This car is vibrantly alive. It will whip through traffic or cruise at highway speeds with a driving ease that's a never-ending joy.

It feels as light as a feather to park, and yet is so smoothly sprung that it stays firmly on the roughest of roads. It carries four adults in armchair comfort.

But the most amazing thing about it is its low price and its near-starvation appetite. Nothing else on Canadian highways comes even close to it in downright, almost unbelievable economy. Ask for a demonstration.

ELECTED PRESIDENT

T. A. Sharpe of Port Hope was elected president Saturday of the Ontario Association of the Institute of Accredited Public Accountants at their annual convention in Toronto. Mr. Sharpe was also elected a director of the Dominion Association whose convention was being held in that city at the same time.

HOLD CHURCH PARADE

Peterborough Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry veterans held their annual church parade with the CGE pipe band Sunday to St. Andrew's United Church. About 125 veterans took part in the parade. This coming weekend about 350 veterans will attend the annual reunion in the Peterborough armouries.

MUSEUM TRAIN PASSES THROUGH

The C.N.R Museum Train, six old fashioned cream- colored coaches and an ancient woodburing locomotive on a flat car passed through the city eastbound on Sunday afternoon. It was seen by many citizens who lived near the railway but those who raced in cars to the depot to see more of it were disappointed if it didn't stop. It ran from Toronto to Aurora recently under its own steam.

FOUR PSYCHOLOGISTS

Four young German research psychologists paid their first visit to Peterborough Saturday evening. It was a pleasure jaunt, not a sudden civic demand for their special psychiatric services. They were Drs. H. Wallerstein, A. K. Bartoshuk, W. Kohlmeyer and W. Luthe. They had been attending last week the Canadian Psychology Conference held at Queen's University, Kingston. They came to Peterborough with Alex. Edmison, QC, Assistant to the principal, Queen's University, and attended the spring meeting at Young's Point of the Peterborough Queen's Alumni Association. Three of the psychologists hold temporary teaching and research posts at McGill; the fourth, Dr. Luthe, is at the University of Montreal. They spent the weekend at Lakefield and were delighted with the beauty of the Kawartha Lakes district.

Boy Suffers Severely Burned Legs

Warkworth Lad, 8, Tries To Light Stove With Gasoline

WARKORTH (ENS)— Jimmie Langford, eigh-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Langford, Oak Heights, was severely burned from the hips down Saturday when flames from a stove ignited his clothes. The boy's parents were away when the accident occurred.

Jimmie was trying to light a fire in the kitchen stove of his home about 9:30 a.m. Saturday with the help of tractor gas when flames shot out and ignited his clothes. After successfully extinguishing the flames himself, Jimmie rushed to his cousin, Jack Russell, 19, who was staying there for the weekend. Russell went for help to a neighbor, Charlie Killingbeck.

The two returned to the Langford home and Killingbeck rushed the boy to Dr. F. B. Brintnell of Warkworth where he was treated.

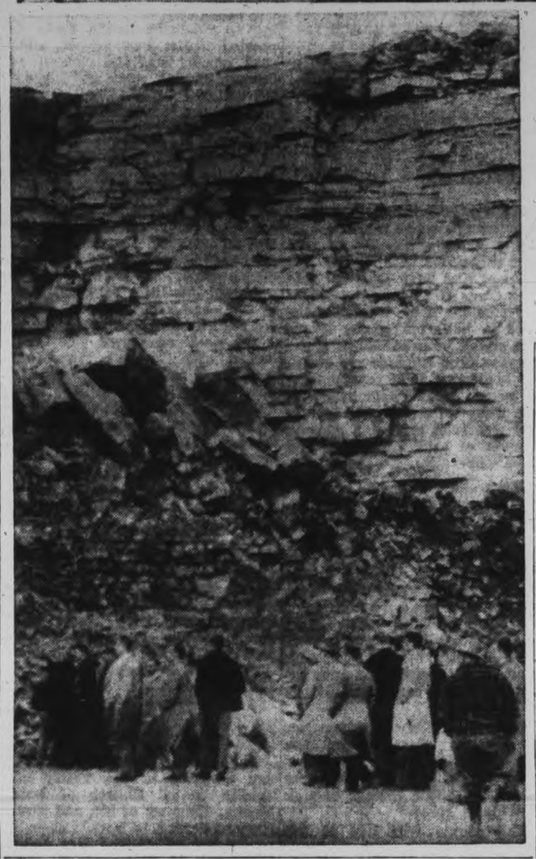
Mr. and Mrs. Killingbeck took care of Jimmie until his parents could be located.

PARENTS RETURN

Mr. and Mrs. Langford were spending a week's holiday with Mrs. Langford's mother and other relatives at Matachewan and other points in Northern Ontario about 600 miles away, when the accident occurred. They drove home Sunday.

Four sons, Douglas, 12; Gordon, 11; Jimmie, and Gerald, 5, had been left at home with their cousin, Russell.

The Langford home is about five and one-half miles west of Warkworth.



Anson House Plans Coronation Planting

Residents of Anson House are not likely to count many anniversaries of the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth, but they are planting for the future rememberance of the event a commemorative tree.

The members of their board, of which James Hamilton is chairman, will be with them Tuesday at 4 p.m. when Miss Agnes Lumsden will turn the sod for this ceremonial tree.

"That is if the tree arrives, and of course we expect that it will," Miss A. Robinson, superintendant, remarked today. "We understand that Mr. Butcher of the parks department is getting us one."

THE BETHLEHEM MINE at Marmora was visited Saturday by 45 members of the Peterborough branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada. There they saw how far the company has cleared away limestone on the first level, which varies from nothing to 80 feet down.. The Peterborough engineers (lower photo) walk along the foot of the first level of limestone. They also saw workmen beginning the second step down (top photo). There huge trucks and diesel shovels scoop away the limestone which covers the iron ore. The trucks, shovels, bulldozers and men all appear like toys from ground level. Before the iron ore is reached, the company must clear away 20,000,000 tons of limestone. They are doing this in three steps, all averaging about 45 feet deep. By next year the company plans to reach the iron ore and begin mining it.

Should Reach Marmora Ore By 1954, Officials Expect

On a tour throughout the Bethlehem Mines at Marmora Saturday about 45 Peterborough members of the Engineering Institute of Canada saw mine workers drilling, blasting and trucking away thousands of tons of limestone from the iron ore. The field trip took most of the morning to visit throughout the mine and buildings.

Beginning a year ago, the Bethlehem Mines began stripping an area 2,600 feet long and 1,200 feet wide just east of Marmora. Before the iron ore is reached the company must clear away about 20,000,000 tons of limestone. So far about one-third has been stripped.

This stripping process is being done in three steps. The Peterborough group saw trucks and large diesel shovels ripping into the limestone on the first step or level. In places the workmen were down as much as 80 feet. At the same time they saw other workers starting on the second step which will dig down another 45 feet. The third step will also be 45 feet deep.

ORE IN 1954

By the middle of 1954 the company expects to have the limestone, at an average depth of 100 feet, cleared away from the iron ore. Then the actual mining will begin and during the next 20 years the company will work down 400 feet through the ore.

Two of the more interesting aspects of the tour were the joy rotary drills, the giant diesel shovels and the trucks. The drills are used to bore a seven-inch 53-foot hoe in the limestone, spaced about 15 feet apart, for the dynamite. An average blast usually requires about 10 tons of dynamite.

After the blast the shovels, bulldozers and trucks move in to haul the limestone away to huge waste dumps, a few are about the size of Armour Hill already). The shovels with each lift carry about eight tons of limestone and fill the trucks with three lifts, meaning each truck load is 20 tons.

It took two months to train enough men to work three eight-hour shifts at the mine. The company now employs about 225 Marmora district men, some of whom work the night shifts under floodlights, by flashlights and truck lights.

KEEP TRUCKS RUNNING

The Peterborough group was taken through the new company offices and workshops. There welders, truck mechanics, machinists and other specialized tradesmen continually repair the company's machinery. Keeping the trucks in top working order is one of their main tasks.

During next year the company will set up machinery to concentrate the ore) which is low grade, (37 per cent to 40 per cent) to as high as 65 per cent.

The iron ore will be ground up, the sand and slime taken out, then put back into lump form, pellets averaging from a half-inch to an inch in size. At that size the iron ore is suitable for the blast furnaces.

The machinery for the grinding separating and furnace processing will be set up close to the open pit. These buildings will be started this summer.

Once the ore is back in pellet form, it will be shipped by train to Picton and then shipped over Lake Ontario to company blast furnaces located near Buffalo.

Mass Community Service First Event Of Coronation

More than 1,500 Peterborough citizens congregated in the Civic Arena Sunday evening for a mass community religious service in observance of the Coronation.

Massed choirs under the direction of Stanley Northrop with Christopher Gledhill at the organ and the Citizens' Band under the direction of W. H. Parnell provided the music for this first event in the city's three-day period of Coronation observances.

"We must not forget that the Coronation is a religious service, ordained and inspired by God," the Rev. H. G. Douglas, president of the Ministerial Association, said in his sermon.

"It is a service of dedication. The Queen dedicates herself to serve her people in the name of Jesus Christ."

DEEPER MEANING

Mr. Douglas explained that if the Coronation were considered merely pageantry it had lost its real meaning. It actually has a deeper meaning for the people of the British Commonwealth of Nations. Through it the Queen pledges her service to her people and her responsibility to God to carry out this service.

Following her Coronation, the Queen becomes a living symbol of the spiritual union which binds together the people of the Commonwealth—the sole symbol of their united but free association.

"Let us never forget the deeper meaning of kingship. And let us dedicate ourselves, as the Queen is, to God and our fellow men," Mr. Douglas concluded.

CHOIRS SING

The massed choirs sang two anthems, "Te Deum Laudamus," by Sanford, and "All Hail the Queen," by Healey Willan. The Citizens' Band played during the service and also provided a musical prelude before the service started.

Ministers taking part in the service were the Rev. C. G. Boyd of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church; the Rev. F. J. Sauve, of Park St. Alliance Church; the Rev. Ivan Morgan, of Murray St. Baptist Church; Mr. Douglas, and Archdeacon C. W. Balfour, of All Saints' Anglican Church.

Girl Guides, Boy Scouts and members of the CGIT also took part in the service.

The service was arranged by the Peterborough Ministerial Association at the request of the Peterborough Coronation Committee.

GE Workers Vote To Accept New Contract; Shorter Hours, More Pay

Fringe Benefits Improve Hospitalization For Employees' Dependents; Day Rate Guaranteed to Men, Women

Production workers at the Canadian General Electric Co. plant here in Peterborough voted Sunday to accept the recommendations of their negotiating committee for a 1953-54 agreement with the company. Settlement of the contract dispute was reached Sunday morning after an exhausting session at Queen's Park that lasted nearly 23 hours. Some 3,100 Peterborough production workers are affected by the master agreement. Seven thousand are included altogether in the Toronto and Peterborough plants under contract to the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America (Indep.)

Following is a list of the contract changes:

Six cents an hour increase for men, seven cents for women, retroactive to April 27. The cost-of-living bonus of nine cents an hour incorporated into all day rates and will be incorporated for all pieceworkers at a later date.

A 40-hour work week instead of the present 43 hours in Peterborough and a five-per-cent wage increase to maintain present take-home pay. This will come into force Jan. 1, 1954.

The contract will run from March 27, 1953 to March 27, 1954

Classification wage increases to some 1,000 workers in Peterborough and hundreds more in Toronto, the increase retroactive to March 27, 1954.

Guaranteed day rate for men and women workers on each job ticket when on piecework. Boys will be paid a male rate when they reach 18 years, regardless of whether or not they are transferred immediately to a male job.

A plan for dependents of employees, granting them the same hospitalization, surgical care and extras as are offered the employees. Extra cost will be 88 cents a week. Benefits are now $9 a day for hospital with a ceiling of $630; $175 allowed for surgical expenses; $90 extras; $100 for maternity; and the present ambulatory coverage.

CHANGE VACATION

Three weeks' paid vacation after 15 years, instead of 20 years.

Improved seniority: if laid off because of lack of work the worker has the right to return to his occupational classification within a year, before anybody with less seniority is given the job; by request he can return to his department or any job he can perform in accordance with seniority.

The previous contract ran for two years and ended March 27.

Changes now bring the male labor rate up to $1.35 an hour as of April 27; and $1.42 as of Jan. 1, 1954; female rates $1.16 and $1.22 respectively.

Mr. Wallace pointed out that this year the union got a general increase of seven cents an hour for the women; the men got six cents.

Representing the UE at final talks were C. S. Jackson, Canadian UE president; Ralph Sullivan and Peter Hunter, area representatives; Mr. Wallace; and Lawrence Thornington, chairman of the grievance panel.

Heading the CGE negotiators were R. G. Flood, manager of union relations; Michael O'Brien, manager of wage and salary administration; and I. H. McGowan union relations department.

Signing of the contract is now little more than a formality.

Hurt In Accident, Still "Serious"

Three members of a Toronto family, injured Friday night in a single car accident near Bewdley, were still in serious condition today, Civic hospital authorities said.

William Olson, Mina Olson and their infant daughter Judy, were all hospitalized after their car was forced off the highway.

Olson suffered head injuries and a broken leg, Mrs. Olson, a broken rib and head cuts, and the baby a broken leg and bruises.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT JOHN HARWOOD, who will live in Toronto, were married Saturday at St. Paul's Church. She is the former Miss Ruth Sine of Peterborough.
—(W. H. Staffen Photo)

Ruth Sine Becomes Bride Of R. J. Harwood Of Toronto

A double ring wedding ceremony at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church Saturday afternoon united Ruth Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. K. M. Sine of Peterborough, and Robert John Harwood of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Harwood of Port Hope.

The Rev. C. G. Boyd performed the ceremony. The "Lord's Prayer" was played preceding the service by organist Mr. Christopher Gledhill, and during the signing of the register he played "Because."

Lilacs, in white, mauve and purple, were used in quantity to decorate the church.

The bride's gown was fashioned from white bridal satin and taffeta which billowed from beneath layers of Chantilly lace. The bouffant skirt widened to a scalloped hem and the bodice was finished with a scalloped neckline with nylon inset. Long lace sleeves ended in points at her wrists. Her fingertip veil was of nylon tulle and caught to a pearl and rhinestone studded crown. She carried a prayer book with white sweet peas and white roses.

Given in marriage by her father, she was attended by Mrs. Ronald Davis of Peterborough as matron of honor, Miss Florence Harwood of Port Hope and Miss Mary McCabe of Toronto, as bridesmaids.

The attendants wore identical dresses of net over taffeta with ruffled net bodices topped with taffeta boleros having stand-up collars. Mrs. Davis wore blue and the bridesmaids wore yellow. Their headbands were studded with rhinestones and pearls and they carried white baskets with multi-colored sweet peas in them.

James Anderson of Port Hope attended the groom and ushers were Cameron Jacob of Toronto and Ronald Davis.

The reception was held in the IOOF hall. The bride's mother was receiving, gowned in light blue lace and crepe with black and pink accessories and wearing a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother chose dusty rose shade lace and crepe for her gown and her corsage was pale yellow roses.

The bride and groom later left for Buffalo, the bride travelling in a turquoise suit and wearing white and brown accessories.

They will live at 68 Haig St. in Toronto.

Otonabee Chapter Holds Coronation Tea

The Otonabee Chapter of the IODE held a very successful Coronation Tea Saturday afternoon in the Green Room of the YWCA.

Flags and coronation symbols as well as beautiful bouquets of purple and white lilacs decorated the tea room. The tea table was appropriately centred with a coronation bouquet of red carnations, white snapdragons and lilacs, and blue cornflowers. Red, white and blue tapers completed the arrangement.

The guests were received by Mrs. Frank Merrett, regent of the chapter and Miss Mary Medd, regent of the Municpal Chapter.

Mrs. F. J. A. Hall and Mrs. F. Mowry were in charge of the tea arrangements and the hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. W. Comstock, Mrs. W. G. McLaren, Mrs. B. Jackson and Mrs. F. D. Kerr.

Pouring tea were Mrs. M. E. Clarke of the 57th Regiment, Mrs. F. Jobbitt of the Peter Robinson Chapter, Mrs. Donald Murray of the Major Bennett Chapter, and Mrs. A. Rutter of the Jeanette Scott Chapter.

During the afternoon, two draw prizes were held. The flower centrepiece was won by Miss Louise Spriggs and Mrs. E. B. McWilliams won the coronation table cloth.

Mrs. W. A. Greenslade was pianist during the tea. Mrs. L. Davis, dressed in Victorian costume, sold flowers to the guests.

Servers were Mrs. W. C. Durant of the Colonel Agnes Neil Chapter, Mrs. Graham Donaldson of the Edith Carleton Chapter, Miss Adele Miller of the Mary K. Birdsall Chapter, and Mrs. H. Wilson, Mrs. M. Archibald, Mrs. I. Rattenbury, Mrs. J. H. Jamison, Mrs. D. W. Clark, Mrs. H. C. Sherwood, all of the Otonabee Chapter.

Mrs. R. Pollard was in charge of replenishing tea pots and Mrs. B. MacLean in charge of replenishing plates.

Treasurer for the tea was Mrs. W. A. Davern and the secretary, Mrs. D. Bell. Mrs. A. McWilliams sold tickets on the tablecloth and Mrs. H. Lowes sold tickets in the flower centrepiece.

Havelock Friends Shower Bride

HAVELOCK (ENS)—Miss Shirley Bennett of Havelock and Mrs. A. Brooks of Norwood were hostesses for a miscellaneous shower at the home of the former on Wednesday evening in honor of Mrs. A. Wells (nee Eleanor Forsyth) a recent bride.

Bouquets of tulips and lilacs, pink and white streamers and white bells made a beautiful setting for the event.

The guest of honor was the recipient of many beautiful gifts which were presented by Mrs. Brooks with Miss Shirley Bennett reading the address. A very enjoyable evening was spent in games, the prizes being won by Mrs. A. Russell, Mrs. R. Melville, Mrs. C. Steenburgh, Mrs. Frank Voyer and Mrs. R. G. Newman. The lucky door prize was won by Mrs. Jack Bannon.

Mrs. H. Pollock was the accompanist for a sing-song and a piano solo was played by Mrs. Russell Williams. Lunch was served by the hostesses.

WarsawWA Meets

WARSAW— (ENS) — The Woman's Association of the United Church met in the Sunday School room with a good attendance. Mrs. Gordon Sharpe, first vice president presided. The roll call was answered by the word "light." Mrs. Sherman Nelson was programme convener. The devotional topic was "Witness." The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Sherwood Payne.

Jesus said, "Let your light shine and you are my witnesses." This topic was taken in four parts, the light of cheer, the light of serenity, the light of an unexpected kindness and the light of hope and courage. Mrs. Stanley Payne gave a humorous reading and Mrs. George Taylor favored with two instrumentals.

Lunch was served by Mrs. George Taylor, Mrs. William Darling and Mrs. Parcells taking Mrs. Cooper's place.

3 Attend Lucille Brooks Bride Of Ted Chenier

A lovely wedding took place Saturday morning at Sacred Heart Church when Edith Lucille, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brooks, became the bride of Oscar Edward (Ted) Chenier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Chenier, all of Peterborough.

The church was decorated with baskets and vases of white and pink snapdragon and roses. The Rev. F. M. Grant officated. Wedding music was played by Mr. H. Michel and during the ceremony Mr. Anthony DeNoble sang four selections including "Ave Marie" and "On This Day."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a gown of chantilly type lace and nylon net. The bodice was fashioned with a softly draped front, and halter neckline. This was topped with a fitted jacket with tight cuffed sleeves, and buttons to the neckline. The skirt of gathered lace was cut away below the waistline, revealing a wide panel of accordion-pleated nylon net. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion fell from a curved Juliet cap of nylon net trimmed with pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of orchids and lily-of-the-valley.

Mrs. John Kirschner as matron of honor, wore a ballerina length gown of pink net and lace styled with a full skirt of net and strapless bodice of lace. This was topped with a lace jacket. She wore a matching picture hat and carried a cascade bouquet of pale pink carnations with lily of the valley. Miss Joan O'Brien and Miss Clara Gillespie attended as bridesmaids. They were frocked alike in ballerine gowns of ice blue styled with pannelled skirts of nylon tulle and lace and strapless bodices of lace, complimented by net jackets trimmed with lace. They wore matching picture hats and each carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnations and lily-of-the-valley.

The groom's attendant was Mr. John Kirschner. Don Heffernan and Loy Brooks were ushers.

A reception was held at the Empress Hotel where the bride's mother received, wearing a suit of navy linen and white with white acceessories and a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother who also received wore a gown of rosewood silk shantung with wheat and navy accessories and a corsage of Johanna Hill roses.

Later the bride and groom left for a motor trip to points east. For travelling the bride chose a powder blue suit with white accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

The couple will live at 658 Simcoe St. North, Apt. 8, Oshawa.

Miss Patricia Peel was the guest of honor at four pre-nuptial entertainments and Mr. Tony Katowski was feted on two occasions prior to their marriage which took place Saturday. Miss Peel received miscellaneous gifts when her sister-in-law Mrs. Paul Peel entertained, personal gifts when Miss Marie Sullivan was the hostess, cups and saucers at a shower given by Mrs. Stanley McBride and miscellaneous gifts from her associates at the Western Clock Company who also presented her with a set of dishes. Orfuns Rugby team gave Mr. Katowski a sum of money at a dinner given by Mr. D. A. McGillis and the UE baseball team presented a pair of rugs when the members held a stag party.

Couple Exchange Vows, Rings At St. Peter's

Miss Patricia Kathleen Peel, of Peterborough, became the bride of Mr. Anthony Richard Katowski, 1952 coach of Peterborough Orfuns' football team, when they exchanged rings and marriage vows and the nuptial mass was said at St. Peter's Cathedral on Saturday morning.

The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Peel, Edinburgh St. The groom is son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Katowski, of New Kensington, Pennsylvania.

The wedding ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. J. Garvey. Mrs. D. Campanaro sang hymns during the nuptial mass, "Bring Flowers of the Rarest," and Roswig's "Ave Maria," and at the communion, "Jesus, Jesus Come To Me." During the signing of the register, she sang "Oh Sacred Heart, O Love Divine." Mrs. R. G. Aman was at the organ and played traditional wedding music as well.

The lovely bride was in a gown of ice blue nylon net over satin, fashioned in sweetheart neckline edged with lace flower applique. The fitted bodice was buttoned down the back to the waist and the long sleeves were fastened at the wrists with four covered buttons. Lace flower applique was sprinkled on the skirt. Her veil was of ice blue tulle illusion, falling to fingertip length from a pleated Juliet cap edged with seed pearls, and she carried a cascade of pink roses and lily of the valley.

She was given in marriage by her father and her only attendant was Miss Marie Sullivan. The ballerina length gown Miss Sullivan wore was of hyacinth blue net and lace in strapless style with a lace jacket with short sleeves and a matching pleated headdress and mittens. She carried a bouquet of white carnations with lily of the valley.

Gerald McGillis attended the groom and the ushers were Gerard Peel and Robert Howe.

The wedding guests were received afterward at the Club Aragon. Mrs. Peel assisted, dressed in skipper blue linen and a white hat with white accessories and was wearing a corsage of red roses. Mrs. D. A. McGillis received in the place of the groom's mother. She was wearing grey crepe and lace and black accessories and also had a corsage of red roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Kotowski are motoring to New Kensington to visit his parents on their honeymoon. The bride is travelling in a grey suit and when going away wore red and navy accessories, and a corsage of red roses, and carried a matching grey topcoat.

They will make their home at 560 Hamilton St. in Peterborough.

Lynch-Scrace

The marriage took place Saturday morning in the vestry of Trinity United Church of Lois Norma, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Scrace, to Donald Joseph Lynch, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lynch, all of Peterborough. The Rev. G. S. Maxwell officiated.

The bride wore a beige suit and beige shoes with a feather bandeau in pink and pink gloves and corsage of pink rosebuds. Miss Gail Baragar, dressed in navy with white accessories and a gardenia corsage, was her bridesmaid. The groomsman was Paul Strano.

The couple will live in Peterborough.

MR. AND MRS. A. R. (TONY) KATOWSKI were a popular bridal couple of Saturday. Mrs. Katowski is the former Patricia Peel of Peterborough. The groom is familiar to rugby fans as coach of the Orfuns Rugby team last season.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Coronation Meal Will Include Barbecue

Tomorrow is Coronation Day and if and when you can tear yourselves away from your radio and television sets you have to eat.

We do not own a television set because I'm one of those old so-and sos who do not choose to listen to movies for a pastime (to put it mildly) but for this super special occasion we have neighbors . . . when the Coronation is over and our lovely Elizabeth is crowned Queen, this family will move out to the garden and nonregally eat kabobs cooked over the barbecue fire; Neapolitan Freeze frozen in the refrigerator (a new skim milk powder dessert) and Coronation Cake baked in the oven. Sort of an active program isn't it?

In all we had fourteen last week to a barbecue supper and the kabobs were so good I have to pass them on to you, for you just may have the supplies on hand for such a feed.

MOORE KABOBS

My sister had the exacting chore of lining these up. She had 18 24-inch steel kabob spears at her right hand, and at her left cubes of steak, baby beef liver, thick slices of bacon, pieces of onion and 1 lb. of clean mushrooms. She impaled these alternately on the spears but started each with a whole mushroom, so that it would be at the top, farthest from the fire. She finished each kabob with a cube of steak, because these were about 1½-inch pieces and required the most cooking. Everybody was given one of these to roast for himself. The rear view of them ringed around the fire would have been a gleeful subject for a photographer lurking in the shrubbery.

Do you think you would like to try them for tomorrow? Any open fire will cook them. You don't need a barbecue in your garden, but I would advise using charcoal, because you need a steady heat.

NEAPOLITAN FREEZE

(a skim milk powder frozen dessert)

Two cups water, 1½ cups skim milk powder, ½ cup cream, 1 tablespoon gelatin, ¼ cup cold water, ½ cup sugar, 2 eggs, 2 teaspoons vanilla, 1 square chocolate melted, 4 cups corn flakes, ¼ cup melted shortening, 1-3 cup brown sugar, pinch salt, ½ cup chopped nuts. Soak the gelatin in the ¼ cup cold water for 5 minutes, then dissolve it by stirring over hot water. Melt the chocolate. Place the 2 cups water in a bowl, sprinkle the skim milk powder over top and whip both with rotary beater until it is entirely dissolved. Add cream, beaten eggs, sugar, dissolved gelatin and vanilla and beat until well mixed. Freeze in trays at lowest temperature. When partially frozen turn back into a cold bowl and beat until thick and fluffy. Divide mixture in half. To one half add melted chocolate, mixing in thoroughly. Now melt together the fat, sugar and salt. Add corn flakes and nuts. Sprinkle half of these crumbs on bottom of freezing tray. Top with half of the partially frozen mixture and freeze until set. Now pour over it the other half flavored with chocolate and top with remaining crumbs and freeze firm. To serve slice as brick ice cream.

CORONATION CAKE

This is a 2-layer cake with frosting decked out to look as much like a crown as possible, with red and green maraschino cherries parading as rubies and emeralds!

Two and one-half cups sifted cake flour, 4½ teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup shortening (part butter), 1 cup sugar, 2 well-beaten eggs, ¾ cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Sift the sifted flour with the baking powder and salt 3 times. Cream the butter thoroughly, gradually beating the sugar into it until both are light and fluffy. Beat in the eggs. Add the flour mixture, alternately with the milk, beating well between additions. Add vanilla. Bake in 2 buttered 9-inch layer tins at 375 deg. Fahr. for 25 minutes. Cool on cake racks. Spread between layers and frost top with

SNOWY LEMON FROSTING

In top of double boiler mix together 2 unbeaten egg whites, 1½ cups sugar, 3 tablespoons water and 2 tablespoons lemon juice, and beat over boiling water about 7 minutes or until frosting will stand in peaks. Remove from heat and add ¼ teaspoon grated lemon rind. When this is spread between layers and on top and sides of cake, decorate top of cake in form of crown, using alternate pieces of quartered red and green cherries, and for the centre "ruby" in the "star" 1 whole red maraschino. I'm not much of an artist but the children loved this. I'm sure there are clever artists in this audience that will turn out masterpieces.

Of Interest to Women

PART WITH TRADITION—A modern, two-piece soft grey uniform and a white blouse has replaced the black serge dress and black cotton stockings which long have been part of the tradition for school girls in Quebec city. The Roman Catholic school commission has decided the lighter, cheaper garb will be the official dress of girls entering school next September. Nuns and parents designed the new outfit.

Heavy Austere School Garb Replaced By Soft Grey

QUEBEC (CP)—The new look has come for Quebec city schoolgirls whose black serge dresses and black cotton stockings were part of the Quebec tradition.

The Quebec Roman Catholic school commission has decided to replace the heavy, austere garb with a modern, two-piece soft grey uniform and a white blouse.

The suggestion came from the Quebec school of parents who have been studying the question for months.

They came up with a more hygienic, lighter and prettier uniform that combines usefulness with economy. The new outfits will cost $7.01 for teen-aged students and $6.37 for pupils of grades one to seven.

START IN FALL

Roland Nadeau, director of studies for the commission, said the new uniform will be worn starting September next. He said the change will affect 13,000 schoolgirls and probably a few thousand more if independent schools fall in step.

The current outfit, with tight-fitting starched neck collars and wrist bands, cost anywhere from $12.00 to $25, depending on the quality of the cloth. To cut down costs parents recently resorted to using white plastic for the neck and wrist bands, instead of linen.

The new costume for young girls will consist of white short-sleeved blouse and a grey jumper with a short ballerina skirt. Long beige cotton stockings will be worn with the outfit.

Teen-aged girls will wear a similar costume but the skirt will cover the knees and stand at about 14 inches from the floor.

The traditional black costume required dry cleaning but these outfits will be made of washable material.

"We wanted a uniform which would give our students an up-to-date look," Mr. Nadeau said. "In the past parents moving from one parish to another were forced to purchase new uniforms for their children although the difference in dress was very slight."

"The new uniform does away with all that," he said.

Mr. Nadeau said that to avoid waste parents were to be allowed to dress their girls in the old uniforms until they were "used up."

The black costume currently worn by Quebec City girls had been in use, with little or no change, since the 18th century.

Nuns on the mixed dress committee expressed approval of the change.

DOROTHY DIX:

Taking Back Erring Mate Is Question

DEAR MISS DIX: Why do you always advise wives to forgive erring husbands? I don't think any wife should be expected to take back a man who has been cheating, and I certainly don't think she should forgive him, or forget his sin. No wonder so many husbands take advantage of their wives when they know they'll be forgiven. If husbands were given different treatment, perhaps there wouldn't be so many faithless men. Please print this, and in future be more strict with wives. If my husband had an affair with another woman, I'd sure not forgive him, but make him get out.

M. F. G.

ANSWER: It doesn't always pay to indulge in rash judgments. Women who have no reason to doubt their husbands' loyalty can afford to be smug, but when the tragedy of a faithless mate strikes a home, it isn't easy to abide by the dictates of hurt pride. No one can go through life being adamant in not forgiving. The few who try it end by being embittered, lonely creatures.

WEIGH CHOICES

I certainly never condone infidelity, and I strongly advise separation when it is repeated. However, the fact must be faced that if every perfidious husband were turned out by an indignant wife, the number of broken homes would be increased appallingly—and there are too many of them already. The wife who discovers her mate is disloyal has to weigh her own immediate impulse to free herself from her husband against the welfare of her children and the chance of possible future happiness in the marriage. Most infidelities are not repeated; patience and forbearance will hold a home together through a crisis, while righteous indignation would have torn it asunder. Remember, too, "To err is human, to forgive, divine."

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am married to a man who was divorced from his first wife. We had no trouble between us until his first wife came to see him. We quarreled over the visit and he has been quite cool to me since. We've only been married six months. B.B.

ANSWER: You probably made too much over the ex-wife's visit. It would have been better to pass off the incident casually. Also, I gather that you've done considerable nagging over it, and there's no quicker way to cool a man's ardor than through nagging. Drop the whole subject, resume your pleasant habits, and he'll forget his moodiness.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Our Freshman class is planning a dance to end the school year, but we're afraid it won't be successful. The boys and girls evidently don't wish to attend the dances. We have ballroom dancing lessons in school, so everyone can dance, but they just aren't interested in supporting our activities.

LORNA

ANSWER: You young people need some good supervision and

6—In Memoriam

BOYLE—In loving memory of John Boyle, died June 1st, 1952.
There is a link, death cannot sever,
Love and remembrance live forever.
—Ever remembered by his wife and family.

OLIVER—Precious memories of my dear mother, Eleanor Oliver, who passed away June 1, 1952, age 88.
Oh, what would I give to clasp your hand,
Your dear, kind face to see;
Your loving smile, your welcome voice
That meant so much to me.
No one knows the silent heartache,
Only those who such can tell
Of the grief that is borne in silence
For the one I loved so well.
—Sadly missed by daughter and son-in-law, Ethel and William Griffin.

ROSEBOROUGH—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Mrs. Walter Roseborough, who passed away June 1, 1949.
The depth of sorrow we cannot tell,
Of the loss of one we loved so well;
And while she sleeps a peaceful sleep
Her memory we shall always keep.
—Ever remembered by her loving husband and family.

7—Card of Thanks

We would like to thank our neighbors and friends and all who showed so much kindness to us by word and deed and for the sympathy and flowers sent during the sickness and sad bereavement of a loving husband and dear brother.—Mrs. Clayton Brackenridge, Mr. and Mrs. Max Brackenridge, Mr. and Mrs. Russell De Coe.

I wish to thank Rev. Rowland, many friends and relatives for their many acts of kindness and expressions of sympathy during my recent bereavement.—Harry Brook.

Remand Duguid To June 15

WELLAND (CP)—Harry Duguid, 38-year-old convicted bank robber, was remanded to June 15 for trial when he appeared in court today on a charge of breaking out of Welland county jail in 1947. He elected trial by judge.

Duguid, a former Toronto plastics manufacturer and once on the RCMP's list of 10 most-wanted criminals, was charged with sawing his way out of the jail while awaiting trial in connection with the $19,900 robbery of a Stamford bank six years ago.

Duguid was sentenced May 12 to eight years for the $14,500 armed holdup of a Toronto branch of the Dominion Bank of Canada in 1943. He still faces a charge of robbing the Imperial Bank branch at Stamford.

He was brought back from Vancouver April 27 where he was arrested for breaking and entering.

Detroit Banker's Wife Commits Suicide

DETROIT (AP)—Mrs. Katharine Ford, wife of the wealthy Detroit industrialist and banker, John B. Ford, jr., hanged herself in her home yesterday, Wayne County coroner's office said today.

Mrs. Ford, 53, was a Detroit social leader. Her husband was president of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

Police said Mrs. Ford left no note. Members of her family said she had not been despondent.

The Fords are no relations to the Henry Ford family. The John Fords' wealth has come largely from the chemical industry.

Austin Walsh

Requiem mass was said at 10 a.m. today for Austin Walsh of Young's Point, who died Saturday. Celebrant was the Rev. J. V. Masterson; the Rev. C. J. Carroll was in the sanctuary of St. Mary's Church, Young's Point.

Pallbearers were: William Newcombs, Judson Hull, Stan Mepham, Arthur Morris, Bernard Johnston, and Jack Young. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, where Father Carrol said graveside prayers.

Dorothy Dix

direction from a leader who will help you organize these affairs. Isn't there a teacher in your school with sufficient interest to assist you? If not, perhaps you can enlist the co-operation of some parents. Do try, as affairs such as you plan are very important in the social life of young people.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: After fifteen years of childless marriage we adopted a six-months-old boy. We both love him, but it is my life that is being changed by him, not my husband's. My husband has been vacationing by himself and plans a trip in the near future. He feels I should leave the baby and accompany him, but I can't shrug responsibility off so easily.

MRS. J. N.

ANSWER: An adopted child is a mutual responsibility, and since your husband undertook the obligation as much as you did, he is certainly morally bound to stick to the bargain. Naturally, you can't always run off at a moment's notice leaving a small child, even if you have a trustworthy person to care for him. Your husband is being unfair and selfish in his attitude. You must be warned, however, not to let your devotion to the baby detract from the attention due your husband.

Youth Remanded

OSHAWA (CP)—Donald Harding, 16, today was remanded to June 8 on a charge of arson. He is accused of setting fire to a downtown apartment building in which his mother was burned to death May 29.

City Man Receives Yale Theology Degree

HAROLD KITNEY

Word has been received from Yale University, New Haven, Conn., that Harold Kitney, 39, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kitney of 21 Crescent St., will receive the degree of Master of Sacred Theology at commencement exercises June 8. Eighteen other Canadians are among the 1,900 candidates for degrees.

Mr. Kitney was a former member of St. James United church and has been organist at St. Stephens Church, Calgary, and St. James Cathedral, Kingston, both Anglican, and at Leonia, N. J. Latterly he has been in charge of religious education at Trinity Episcopal Church in Hartford, Conn.

18 Canadians On Bisley Team

OTTAWA (CP) —Eighteen sharpshooters, among the best in Canada, will seek Commonwealth shooting honors at rolling Bisley ranges in England next month.

The team will leave New York aboard the Caronia June 13. The rifle meet will be held July 6-18, inclusive. The team includes 12 veteran Bisley shots who have kept Canada's name high in shooting competition.

Maj. A.B. Coulter, 55-year-old member of the Governor-General's Foot Guards, Ottawa, a member of the Canadian Bisley team in 1935 and chairman of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association, is commandant. Adjutant is Maj. C.A. Vickery, 62-year-old former officer of the cadet services of Canada. For a number of years he has been chief range officer at Long Branch near Toronto and Connaught Ranges, near Ottawa.

FAMOUS SHOT

Among the marksmen is Lt.-Col. Desmond T. Durke, 49-year-old radiologist at Toronto's Sunnybrook Hospital and rated as Canada's top shooter.

A former King's Prize winner, he is no stranger to Bisley. He was a member of the team 10 times and qualified on eight other occasions when he was unable to make the trip because of business. In 1924 he brought the coveted King's Prize to Canada. He has been among the final 100 six times and has finished second three times.

In Canada, Burke is seven times winner of the King's Medal at Connaught ranges and last year won the Governor-General's Prize.

Oldest member of the team is 60-year-old Sgt. A.S. Emery of Saint John, N.B., a member of the Princess Louise Hussars who served with the Royal Flying Corps during the First World War. A furniture maker, he was a member of the 1927 Bisley team and qualified again two years later but was unable to go.

AUTHOR-MARKSMAN

Lt.-Col. Steve Johnson, 48, of the King's Own Calgary Regiment, author of "Shoot to Live," a shooting namual now used in the Canadian Army, also is at home at Bisley. He has been a shooting member four times and qualified two other times.

Johnson, a member of the 1952 international Dewar team, won the Governor-General's Prize at Connaught ranges in 1949 and the Queen's Prize last year.

Officer Cadet E.L. Warner of member of the Sherbrooke, Que., Regiment, who is as much at home with a pistol as with a .303 rifle, also is making the trip.

He was a member of the Canadian free rifle and pistol team which competed at Helsinki, Finland, last year, and also was on the Canadian free rifle and pistol team which competed in the 35th world championships at Oslo last year. It is his first trip to Bisley.

Other veteran Bisley shots making the trip are: St. G.H. Emperingham, 36, Montreal,; Maj. R. W. Hampton, 39, Ottawa and Camp Borden, Ont.; Sgt. E. R. Jamieson, 49, Vancouver; S.Sgt. G. B. Kay, 41, Hamilton, Ont.; Maj. G.A. MacDonald, 51, Charlottetown; Capt. M. Morgan, 43, Kingston, Ont.; Maj. A. M. T. Spittal, 53, Victoria; Sgt. C. C. Wilson, 50, Ottawa, and Sgt. T. Woods, 40. Montreal.

New members, in addition to Officer Cadet Warner, are: Special Constable J. F. R. Doucet, 23, Montreal; Sgt. W. E. Hicks, 37, Edmonton; Sgt. W. Kayne, 36, Montreal; Capt. W. J. Newell, 44, Winnipeg; and Bdr. S. H. Thompson, 48, Parkhill, Ont.

Foreign Trade Deficit Continues To Grow

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's deficit in foreign trade continues to mount, climbing to $172,700,000 in the first four months of 1953, the bureau of statistics reported today.

This sharp reversal from a surplus of $113,900,000 in the first four months of 1952 resulted from a lag in exports and a big advance in imports, which reached near-record levels in April.

Barred From Preaching

BERLIN (Reuters)—The East German government refused Bishop Otto Dibelius, head of the All-German Evangelical Church, an entry permit to preach Sunday in the Soviet zone. It was the second time in two weeks the Communists had barred Dibelius, presumably because of his criticism of government attacks on the Church.

To Remain In Hospital

BOSTON (AP)—Entertainer Arthur Godfrey will remain in the Massachusetts General Hospital several more weeks, the hospital reported Sunday night. Godfrey's leg is in balance suspension traction following a hip operation May 15 to correct injuries which he suffered in an auto accident 22 years ago.

Revelry Rivals Britain's For 500-Mi. Race

By TED CLIFFORD

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (Staff)—An event rivalling the revelry of Great Britain's Coronation turned the capital of Indiana into a bursting hive of celebrating humanity Saturday as 175,000 people jammed the Motor Speedway for the world-famous 500-mile auto race.

Hotels, motels and tourist homes were booked for weeks in advance. Spectators lined up for choice places in the infield for days and for the honor of being "first in," one man lined up two months prior to the race.

Indianapolis is a veteran of staging the 500 after 37 years' experience. It was prepared, therefore, for the invasion of an army of cars and people which stampeded the highways and city streets on and before Saturday.

In the city itself, routes to the race track for buses and taxis were banned for other traffic, and police—city, county and state, were stationed at main intersections to facilitate movement. A helicopter was used to spot bottlenecks.

The stands started to fill at six o'clock and by seven all the cars were in the pit area directly across from the main grandstand.

Finally came the time-honored voice over the loudspeaker system: "Gentlemen, start your engines!" The crowd roared as engines started and seconds later the pace car, a new convertible which would be given to the winner after the race, started down the track.

Thirty-three gleaming, spitting racers followed it to circle the track for the starting flag. A short two minutes later, as the roar from the stands gained in pitch, the pace car emerged from the last turn and sped down the stretch at 95 miles per hour. The pack of racers strained behind it and as it passed the stand it pulled into the pit area and the race was on!

The blazing sun cut tire life to a minimum. Each car went through at least three sets as a result of the heat and one driver, weakened by the furious pace and 130 - degree temperature track, later died of exposure in the track hospital.

For close to four hours the cars circled the oval and when the winner crossed the finishing line, there were less than 10 left out of the original field. Mechanical troubles and accidents narrowed it down.

But for 175,000 spectators it was a thrilling experience. And for the eventual winner, Bill Vukovich, it meant close to $90,000 and a new car!

Liquor Counts Bring Court $340 In Fines

Fines totalling $340 were levied in Magistrate's Court this morning on 10 liquor convictions.

Among those convicted were William Crough, of 223 Perry St., who pleaded guilty to an impaired driving charge and was fined $75 and $2.50 costs. Ed Bamhour, of Keene, who pleaded not guilty to drunk driving, was found guilty on a count of impaired driving and fined $75 and $2.50.

Cecil Clarke, of Port Hope, pleading guilty to charges of impaired driving and having liquor in a place other than a residence, was fined a total of $70.

In court on a second offence drunk charge, Emmett Kearney, of 160 Rubidge, was fined $50 and $2.50.

Pleading guilty to drunk charges and each fined $10 and $2.50, were Alvin Aldred, of Keene, Percy Hartley, of 44 Rogers St., Louis Taylor, of 589 Harvey, Don Halliday, of 588 Wolfe St., and Oscar Schweirs, of 356 Armstrong Dr.

Clarke was charged May 30 after PC Gordon Gray of the OPP followed him on Highway 7 and saw his car veer across the centre line and onto the road shoulder twice. The accused, Constable Gray told the court, smelled strongly of alcohol and had two bottles of whiskey, one partially filled, in his car.

PC Gray also investigated the accident in which Crough was involved and from which the charge of impaired arose. The Crough car had run into the back of a second vehicle on the Chemong Road. The accused, the officer testified, smelled strongly of liquor.

Bamhour was found guilty on an impaired charge as the result of an accident May 21 at the intersection of King and Water Sts. Police testified his breath smelled of alcohol, he appeared unsteady, sounded incoherent and had bloodshot eyes.

City Girl Wins CWL Essay Prize

The annual Catholic Women's League essay contest for pupils in grades 8 and 9 in schools in the Peterborough diocese was won by Patricia McDougall of Grade 8, Sacred Heart School.

This year the contest met with good response. The judges, Mrs. S. Walsh, Mrs. Vincent O'Toole and Mrs. Joseph Collins after carefully reading the 45 essays entered selected Miss McDougall's "The Catholic Home" as the winner.

Other top essays were Frederick Moher's "The Coronation" which placed second and Suzanne Martyn's "The History of the Separate Schools in Ontario" which placed third. Moher is a Grade 8 pupils at Immaculate Conception school and Miss Martyn a student in Grade 8 at Sacred Heart school.

The winning essays will be read at the Catholic Women's League convention in the Sacred Heart parish, June 10. The pupils will then receive their awards.

Encouraging Shift In Hog Cholera

OTTAWA (CP)—Dr. Thomas Childs, veterinary director-general, today announced a "decidedly encouraging" shift in the hog cholera situation in southwestern Ontario and said he is considering a reduction in the quarantine area.

The quarantine, which bans the export of live hogs from Canada's biggest hog-producing area, covers some 50,000 square miles, ringing 29 southwestern Ontario counties and the district of Muskoka.

Only one new case was reported during the week-end and this involved only eight hogs.

The new outbreak brought to 27 the number of infected farms and to 1,549 the number of hogs fatally stricken or slaughtered in the eradication program which started May 16.

Middle Classes Made Hitler, War Possible

A vivid glimpse of the other side of the western world was given 60 Queen's University graduates and their friends of Peterborough by Dr. H. H. Weil, lecturer in German at Queen's. Dr. Weil spoke at the annual spring outing of the Queen's Alumni Association of this district, held at Young's Point Saturday evening.

Dr. Weil emphasized that his experiences which he related were not unusual in Europe during the last fifteen years, except that the unusual and abnormal became the normal for most Europeans, other than Swedes and Swiss. Dr. Weil, son of a prominent member of the old Weimar Republic, was expelled from his school in 1933, and a year later had to flee Germany because of his liberalism and opposition to the Nazis.

VIVID EXPERIENCES

Thereafter, Dr. Weil served in the French Foreign Legion, spent two years as a prisoner at the Buchenwald concentration camp and served in the Royal Navy 1943-45, taking part in the Sicily landings and on the Murmansk run to Russia. A student of philosophy, he completed studies for his Ph.D. at Cambridge a year ago, and came to Canada last summer.

Dr. Weil spoke with disciplined emotion of the condition of European society during the last twenty years, and somewhat from a Jean-Paul Sartre point of view. He told of the disintegration of liberty in Germany from 1933 onward, of the discipline, honour and barbarity of the French Foreign Legion in which he served, and of the need for enlightened people to guard against any tendencies in their own country which lead to dictatorship of either the right or the left.

What had happened to Europe, he felt, could happen to this continent, unless people were alert to prevent it. The German collapse into Nazism was permitted, even condoned, by the middle classes, and it was the middle classes, not the hordes nor the aristocracy, which made Hitler and the war possible.

Dr. Weil was introduced by Alex. Edmison, QC, assistant to the principal, Queen's University. C. M. Krug, president of the Peterborough Alumni Association, was chairman. J. S. Mark headed the committee responsible for arranging the meeting. A lakeside camp fire was held before the speech-making, and a buffet supper was served at 11 p.m.

Annual Convention Of Knights Of Pythias

HAMILTON (CP)—The annual convention of the Grand Lodge of the Knights of Pythias and Grand Temple of Pythian Sisters of Ontario was officially opened today by the grand chancellor, J. P. Bartlett of Sarnia.

Over 200 delegates from many parts of the province are attending the two-day convention.

Gets 10 Days In Jail For Cafe Disturbance

Found guilty on a charge of causing a disturbance, Ray Brown of 219 King St., was sentenced to 10 days in jail by Magistrate J. R. Philp today.

According to police testimony, Brown was ejected from a George St. restaurant once on May 23 and returned a short time later in spite of warnings by police and the management. He was arrested the second time.

Honorary Degree

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (CP)—Dr. William A. Mackintosh, principal of Queen's University, Kingston, was awarded an honorary degree of doctor of laws today at the annual commencement of Brown University.

List Glossary For Regalia At Coronation

LONDON (AP)—A glossary for the regalia and other articles to be used in the Coronation tomorrow:

Amice—A square piece of linen which will be placed on the Queen's head after she is anointed with oil.

Ampulla — Golden receptable shaped like an eagle in which the oil for anointing the Queen will be held.

Armill—Golden bracelets, "tokens of the Lord's protection," to be placed on the Queen's wrists.

Canopy—A rich pall of silk which will be held over the Queen by four knights as she sits on the Coronation chair to be anointed.

Coronation chair, or King Edward's chair—Occupied by the Queen during her anointing and crowning. It was made during the reign of Edward I (1239-1307) to receive the Stone of Scone which the King captured from the Scots.

Chair of Estate—Occupied by the Queen before she takes her place on the Coronation chair.

Colombium sindonis—The first of the garments the Queen dons after she has been anointed. This "muslin undergarment" resembles the white surplice worn by a choir boy. It is made of white cambric, bordered with fine Flanders lace.

CROWNS USED

Crowns—St. Edward's crown—bears the name of Edward the Confessor. It was made for the Coronation of Charles II (1630-1685) has been altered from time to time. The circlet of gold is studded with diamonds, rubies, emeralds, sapphires and pearls. At its apex is an orb of gold surmounted by a cross. The Queen is crowned with this, but because of its weight, almost five pounds, it is taken from her head before she leaves the abbey and replaced by the imperial state crown, made of silver for Queen Victoria, and with more in money value than St. Edward's crown. Its jewels include the third largest diamond is existence.

Orb—An emblem of sovereign power placed in the Queen's hand by the Archbishop of Canterbury. It is a golden ball, six inches in diameter, jewel encrusted, with a cross of gold rising from an amethyst.

Patina—A gold dish, used to hold the bread during the communion service.

WEDDING RING

Ring—The sovereign's ring, called the wedding ring of England, is placed on the fourth finger of the Queen's right hand during her Coronation. A symbol of union between sovereign and people, it contains a ruby set by Richard II, diamonds added by Charles I, and a sapphire set by William IV.

Sceptre with Cross—An emblem of power and justice, it is a golden rod about three feet long with a rickly jewelled handle.

Sceptre with dove—Signifies equity and mercy. Three feet seven inches long, it is topped with an orb of gold. Above the orb is a golden cross on which sits a white enamelled dove with outstretched wings.

Spurs—Known as St. George's spurs, they are the symbol of knightly chivalry.

Swords—Five are used in the Coronation service. The sword of state is 32 inches long with a gold hilt and crosspiece. The jewelled state sword was made for the Coronation of eGorge IV. The hilt is inset with diamonds, rubies and emeralds. Also used are the sword spiritual, sword of mercy and sword temporal.

Young Wife 15 Taken Off Ledge

MIAMI, Fla. (CP)—The pretty, 15-year-old wife of an army deserter was rescued from a narrow ledge on the 25th floor of Miami's skyscraper jail today after threatening to jump unless her husband was brought to her.

Mrs. Sheila Mosso tumbled into the arms of Sheriff Thomas Kelly after she spent four hours sobbing and swaying in the wind on the one-foot-wide ledge.

The girl crawled out on the ledge this morning from the jail in which she is being held on a charge of harboring a deserter. Police say she helped her husband, James Mosso, 24, escape from an air force stockade here May 12. He was being held at the time on a previous desertion charge.

Mosso and his wife were picked up last Wednesday. He was taken to Tampa and she was brought to the jail here.

Mrs. Mosso threatened to jump from the ledge today unless her husband was brought to her. Police said Mosso had been planning to divorce her and thought this was the reason for Mrs. Mosso's action today.

CGE Pipe Band Wins Trophy At Tattoo

KINGSTON (CP)—The CGE pipe band from Peterborough Saturday won the senior pipe band trophy at the Kingston Military Band tattoo here.

The trumpet band award went to the 33rd Medium Regiment, RCA, from Cobourg.

Truck Fired On

TEL AVIV (AP)—One boy was killed, another was seriously injured and two girls were slightly wounded when a truck on which they were riding was fired on near Meron in Upper Galilee, police announced today. Israeli newspapers said the attack was carried out by Arab infiltrators into Israel territory.

Expect 3 Events In June Important In World History

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

History may well mark June, 1953, as the month of great joy, celebration—and decision.

It is the month in which a new Queen is crowned, the beginning of the new Elizabethan era, and the time in which world statesmen will make decisions that will have a deep impact on the reign of the young Queen and the economic life of the free world.

Seen through Canadian eyes, the two major world events that likely will follow the Coronation are the conference of the Big Three powers in Bermuda and decisions of the United States—the world's major economic force—on future trade policy.

Government experts will place no bets on possible courses of these two events. The Big Three conference—Britain, the U. S. and France—has been reported as a possible prelude to a bigger conference, a meeting of the Western powers with Russia in pursuit of that evasive shadow—peace.

A long-term peace pact with Russia—if such a thing is possible—would, of course, leave Canada and other countries free to rechannel their industrial efforts, produce more for world trade, and thus enhance the possibility of an enriched cultural life under the new Queen.

MUST WIDEN CHANNELS

But to sell more goods abroad will require a deepening and widening of the channels of free trade. Canada and the other countries of the free world have emphasized they rely on the U. S. to provide economic leadership in this field.

A test of what course the U. S. will follow will take place within a few weeks. A committee of the U. S. Congress now is drawing up its report on the so-called Simpson bill which would ring the U. S. Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act with new import restrictions.

The act itself must be renewed this month or it will expire. President Eisenhower has asked Congress for a one-year renewal.

Canada's deputy external affairs minister, L. Dana Wilgress, has emphasized the importance of this renewal. He believes that without it, the great monument to expanding free trade—the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, affecting 34 countries—may collapse.

That, indeed, would be a gloomy beginning of the new Elizabethan era.

France To Abandon Indo-China

By PRESTON GROVER

PARIS (AP)—The bid of Pierre Mendes-France to head a new French cabinet pushed the wasting war in Indo-China today into the foreground of new and perhaps more serious efforts of this country to get out of a mess.

Mendes-France, at 46 has repeatedly demanded that France get out of Indo-China by negotiation the best way she can and concentrate her strength on building up in Europe.

He will outline his position Wednesday before the Assembly.

France, now 10 days without a government, is faced with a three-decker crisis and for the first time in many a day Frenchmen have begun to see their country in the same light as foreigners have long seen her.

SELF-SCOLDING

Since the Assembly voted Rene Mayer out of office May 21 because he insisted on making serious financial reforms by a speed-up decree method, the country has treated itself to an orgy of self-scolding.

France's three-ply crisis is this:

1. The treasury is nearly empty, and the balance of trade is getting ever worse while the franc is getting ever weaker.

2. A three-power conference, and possibly four, is in the offing and France's prolonged governmental instability is wearing out the patience of both Britain and the U.S.

3. The Indo-China war and a resurgent Germany threaten France's ability to maintain leadership in Europe.

Mendes-France seems certain to point out, as he has often in the past, that a retirement from Indo-China would save France the nearly $1,500,000,000 yearly the war is costing.

Storm Hits Harbor

GODERICH (CP)—High winds, accompanied by thunder and lightning, left a trail of destruction in the harbor Saturday night and early Sunday. The waters of Lake Huron, boiling over the shore, lifted two 28-foot cruisers and several small fishing boats on to the pier.

19 Of 28 Deaths Over Weekend Traffic Mishaps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Highway accidents accounted for 19 of the 28 violent deaths reported in Eastern Canada during the week-end. There were 16 in Ontario and three in Quebec.

A Canadian Press compilation showed Ontario with the highest total of 21, including two drownings and a slaying. Quebec had five and New Brunswick two. New Brunswick's deaths and two of Quebec's were children who lost their lives in fires.

There were three multiple fatalities in Ontario.

The slaying was reported at Hamilton early Saturday when police found Alberta Ann Sipes, 46, of Hamilton dead in a boarding house room. Officers said she had been beaten and strangled. They arrested Harry Lafortune, 27.

OTHER ONTARIO DEATHS

Other Ontario deaths: Mrs. Arthur Burey, 42, of Timmins, in a two-car crash south of Bracebridge; Arthur McGregor, 25, and William Stauffer, 25, both of Owen Sound, when their car left the highway; Monty Ranney of Scarborough and Eric Harwood of Highland Creek, when a train struck their car at a level-crossing; Jack McGinty, 20, of North Bay, when his truck skidded and overturned; Stanley Kawa of Sudbury, crushed to death when his car rolled into a ditch; Emile Beauchamp of Sudbury, burned to death when trapped in a car after a collision; Ronald Jackson of Detroit and Martin Banski of Harrow, in a two-car crash near Kingsville; Robert Snelling, 25, of Montreal, hit by a car in Toronto; Marilyn Hay, 25, of North Tonawanda, N. Y., when the car in which she was riding went out of control in Fort Erie; James Ross, 8, of Detroit, thrown through the window of his father's auto when it rolled over at Bowmanville; Alfred Fraser, 67, of Brantford, struck by a car; Paul Labelle, 26, of Burford, when his car crashed off the highway; C. R. Morley, 85, of Weston, struck by a car in London.

Barnard Squires, 7, of Holland Landing, when he fell off the Holland river bridge; Charles Dionne, 40, of Hull, Que., when he slipped off a rock while fishing at Galetta, Ont.

Mrs. Rita Prager, 36, of Toronto was asphyxiated by illuminating gas and George Howard Kellam, 40, of Windham township died of injuries suffered when gored by a bull.

U.K. Actress Arrives On Way To Stratford

TORONTO (CP)—Irene Worth, British actress, passed through here Sunday on her way to Stratford, where she will take part in this summer's Shakespearean festival.

The slender brunette product of London's Old Vic and the English repertory theatre is the only woman brought from London to play in the festival.

Film Director Suicides

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Film director Richard Rosson, 60, was found dead Sunday in his auto, and police said he had committed suicide. His wife, Vera, found his body in the garage at the rear of the couple's home in Pacific Palisades after she awoke and discovered he had not been to bed. A vacuum hose led from the exhaust through a window of Rosson's expensive car. The widow told detectives that the director had been in ill health for about a year.

Noted Merchant Dies

VANCOUVER (CP)—Christopher Spencer, pioneer British Columbia merchant who built up the David Spencer Ltd. retail store chain, died here Sunday. He was 86. Mr. Spencer sold his eight stores throughout the province to the T. Eaton Company in 1948 for a reported $14,000,000.

Spend 37 Million

NEW YORK (AP)—The Ford Foundation reported Sunday it spent $37,865,235 last year in its program to advance human welfare. Grants ranged from launching a study aimed at bettering international understanding, to examining juvenile delinquency and the foreign exchange of students.

FIRE STARTED by an overheated motor destroyed this refrigerator Sunday at the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. John Cullis, King and Aylmer Sts. Downstairs tenant in the house, Joseph Docherty, noticed smoke and called the fire department. Fireman Sherman Irwin, above, quenches the last of the fire. Sulphur dioxide and ammonia fumes released by the fire forced Irwin to wear a mask.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Sports Figures Knighted

LONDON (CP)—In her last official action before her Coronation, the Queen today announced she has knighted two of Britain's most popular sports figures and handed ranks and honors to some 4,000 other Britons.

The sporting greats made sirs were world champion jockey Gordon Richards, who may beat the young monarch's horse in the Coronation Derby Saturday, and Jack Hobbs, grand old man of cricket.

The Queen's honors list, one of the longest in British history, marked Her Majesty's Coronation and her official birthday celebration June 11. It rewarded Britons in all walks of life for service and seniority.

Lord Woolton, wartime food minister, was made a viscount. Three barons, five baronets and 75 knights were named.

FIRST TIME IN HISTORY

It was the first time in British history that a jockey or a professional cricket player was knighted, though amateur cricket star Don Bradman, an Australian, was dubbed in 1949.

British newspapers hailed the honors to Richards and Hobbs as a sign of popular goodwill for the new Elizabethan era. "Come on Sir Gordon" headlined the Daily Mirror. It called Richards the man most likely to deprive the Queen of victory in the Derby at Epsom Downs. The Queen's horse Aureole is a joint favorite with the new knight's mount, Pinza.

Richards holds the world's record for winners—about 4,650. But in his brilliant 32-year career he has never won a Derby. Hobbs, now 70, is retired from cricket and runs a sporting goods shop in London.

There were no Canadians on the honors list, although two Britons living in Canada were named. They were James Thomson, deputy high commissioner in Canada since 1950, made a Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George, and Daisy Fenwick, clerk of the United Kingdom trade commissioner's office in Winnipeg, made a member of the Order of the British Empire.

OTHERS HONORED

Others receiving knighthoods included Shakespearan actor John Gielgud, Works Minister David Eccles, who supervised the Coronation buildings and decorations, and aircraft designer T. O. M. Sopwith.

One of Britain's most distinguished honors, membership in the Order of Merit, went to 80-year-old poet Walter de la Mare. A special distinction for eminent men and women without the confirment of knighthood, the order is limited to 24 members.

The Queen named her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, captain general of the Royal Marines a post previously held only by the reigning monarch. But Elizabeth did not elevate him to the rank of prince consort, as many Britons had expected.

Production Up

ROME (AP)—The Bank of Italy reported today that Italian industrial production rose 3.6 per cent in 1952 compared with 1951, a greater increase than in the rest of Europe. Donato Menichella, governor of the bank, said the average increase in other European countries was less than one per cent.

Crowds, Traffic Jams Sign Of Canada's Coronation Spirit

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

So many sightseers turned out to admire Toronto's Coronation decorations during the weekend that they caused one of the worst downtown traffic snarls in the city's history.

Yonge street was jammed solid with pedestrians, street-cars and automobiles for about two miles Friday night, most of Saturday and well into Sunday night.

Police estimated that upwards of 10,000 persons at peak periods converged on the area, many coming from neighboring parts of Ontario. They spilled over the pavements as they strove to catch a glimpse of the elaborate window displays.

A Canadian Press survey Sunday night showed the same kind of Coronation spirit abroad elsewhere across the country.

STORM PEACE TOWER

In Ottawa, huge crowds stormed Parliament Hill Sunday to look at the gaily-bedecked Peace Tower and to watch a preview of Coronation ceremonial drill by a cadet corps. Spectators filled four sides of the wide lawns and more than a dozen of them fainted in the heat.

Gay old Montreal saw thousands of strollers admiring the brilliance of the decorations in the business district stores along St. Catherine street. There were brighter displays, however, in the St. James street financial district, but few of those on foot reached that section.

Winds and rain whipped Coronation decorations in Winnipeg and discouraged Sunday viewing there, as well as in Edmonton and in Windsor, Ont.

The appearance of United States flags among the Union Jacks and Canadian Ensigns brought angry protests in Regina. One business man said that, from his office window, he could see the Stars and Striples flying in six places and he wanted it taken down.

Special floral displays in Vancouver parks and the decorated streets downtown brought out Sunday crowds.

Prayers for the Queen were offered in crowded churches of all faiths across Canada. In Hamilton more than 11,000 Roman Catholics attended a Marian Day ceremony and the Most Rev. J. F. Ryan, bishop of Hamilton, coupled with the prayer for the Queen one for world peace during her reign.

Many Poles Still Worship In RC Churches

By DAN DE LUCE

WARSAW (AP)—Poland's Roman Catholics by the millions still worship in the faith of their fathers in this Communist-ruled land. Churches throughout the country and in Warsaw, some still under repair from war damage, are crowded each Sunday with the devout of all ages.

The deep religious feeling of the Polish people never has been more clearly demonstrated than in recent years. It is estimated 80 per cent of the population of 25,000,000 go to church regularly.

Official attitude of the Polish government and the Polish United Workers party, which follows the "principles of Marx, Engels, Lenin, Stalin," is that absolute freedom of religion is guaranteed by the 1952 constitution which formally revamped the structure of the state as a "people's democracy."

Many party members have been Catholics longer than they have been party members and a considerable number still seek religious consolation.

VAST CONGREGATION

In St. John's Cathedral, shattered by war and now under the work of restoration. I saw a congregation including government employees and officers and men of the armed forces in prayer.

The primate of Poland is Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, archbishop of Gneisen and Warsaw. He usually delivers one sermon a month.

The cardinal is 51, with ascetic features and an impressive, deep-toned voice. His sermon last month dealt with Christian ethics. In effect, he told Catholics they should fulfil their duties as citizens to the state but should never compromise on any question of conscience.

He was elevated to the cardinalate last January at the consistory in Rome, which he did not attend.

XXIII

The year round there is someone, somewhere, who has something that would be helped by Royal patronage. Lengths of tweed, wool, silk, rayon, cotton of new design and texture, millions of lengths, are considered every day as an offering to her, for it is known that her acceptance will create a boom in the particular product.

All that is offered is not accepted. The Queen wants to know all the details of anything that is offered: who made it, and why, and if her acceptance is likely on the one hand to show undue favoritism, or, on the other, to inspire productivity that will materially help this country and the Empire.

In the case of textiles that are accepted, these are not always immediately made up into suits or coats. They are ticketed and stored against the day when she may need them.

But what a temptation it must be if a particularly beautiful length of tweed is offered to her, of which she would like to have a suit, to have to forego it because to have it made up would necessitate a completely new range of accessories, and that is in extravagance upon which she must not embark.

After all, she must set an example, and since early childhood both Princesses were taught by their mother and grandmother that nothing must be wasted.

You and I have a choice in the matter. If it suits us to sell for a mere song the good brown handbag we bought last winter and the shoes that go with it because we've seen a much nicer outfit in blue and want entirely new accessories, we're at liberty to do as we like about it, and no one any the wiser.

And perhaps, every now and again, a piece of seemingly wild extravagance is the birthright of every woman if she enjoys it and feels better and smarter for having thrown her old shoes and bag over the windmill.

But not for the Queen. The particularly heady pleasure, which is never understood by men, but always by other women, will always be denied her.

QUEEN ELIZABETH wears a diamond tiara which belonged to Queen Victoria, her great-great-grandmother.

So, too, are other such temperamental escapes and outbursts. The wilful pleasure of using the whole of one week's egg rations the first week that eggs become less scarce on a mouth-watering cake, and spending the whole of Saturday afternoon singing away in the kitchen as it bakes, is a feminine delight so natural, so normal, that few of us stop for a moment to think about the privacy and the liberty in our own homes, and rejoice that we were not born to a rank that denies its holder so simple a womanly pleasure as this.

As against the more simple pleasures which just do not occur in the life of a Queen, there are, you may think, tremendous compensations. Such as her beautiful jewels which seem to sparkle even more brightly against the warmth and texture of her lovely skin.

Imagine having jewel cases full of the most exquisite diamonds, rubies, emeralds and pearls, so that there is something to suit every dress, every occasion, you might think!

But think again! Can there be much pleasure in having so many? Isn't there infinitely more joy in the small, intimate semi-precious stone, chosen with tremendous care especially for you to match your eyes, to enhance your skin, rather than a load of Crown jewels which you might not care for?

Some women dislike emeralds, others say sapphires do not suit them, and there are women who will never wear diamonds at all, saying they are too hard. In this again the Queen has no personal choice. If a public occasion warrants the sparkle of diamonds on they must go whether she likes them or not, and often a matching tiara which is a heavy, cumbrous, tiresome thing for a young girl to have to wear throughout an evening.

She has one tiara which she especially loves. It is an exquisite thing made of diamonds in the form of delicate marguerites. It can be taken apart and worn as a necklace, two clips, and a bracelet, and when she unpacked it she was delighted. Later, showing it to me, she exclaimed, with eyes as bright as the diamonds she was holding: "Isn't it a lovely thing, Crawfie?"

Britain Builds Commando Forces To Highest Strength

By MICHAEL NEWMARCH

PLYMOUTH, England (AP) — Britain is building up her Royal Marine commando reserves into a toughened force ready to crash the stiffest defense.

And it's literally using the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker to do the job.

It picks much of its commando material from civilian life on a volunteer basis. Clerks, students, almost every occupation is represented.

Working with others, conscripted for two-year duty, the civilians spend their spare time, week-ends and vacations, going through a rough course of scaling cliffs, learning to get through mine fields and to eliminate other obstacles which would hold up ordinary troops.

The commandos are the spearhead of any attack Britain may have to launch. The other day, when trouble flared again in Suez, it was a commando force from Malta that moved out suddenly under secret orders.

Headquarters of commando training is the Royal Marine school at Bickleigh, in a gentle valley near Plymouth. But there is nothing gentle about the course

The trainees climb ropes up and down the Plymouth cliffs; skip from crag to crag like mountain goats; practise hand-to-hand combat; jump from planes in practice for parachute invasions; train for silent seaborne landings; swim beneath the water in frogmen's gear. They also must march nine miles in 90 minutes with full kit.

Their graduation exercise is a 100-yard network of ropes and beams hanging dizzily from treetops. They must get across the fast-flowing Plym river on thin poles and swing from tree to tree on taut ropes. If they miss, the penalty is a ducking in the river below.

"Even the doctors, medical orderlies and padres have to go through this," says Lieut. John Hewitt, an instructor.

Typical is Rene Leroy, a 28-year-old reserve lieutenant, busy planting a demolition charge on a chunk of steel on lonely Dartmoor.

"I am spending my two weeks' vacation from a silk-weaving firm learning more about explosives," says Leroy. "I have already done the basic commando course, and now I want to mug up on this assault engineering.

"So I put my wife and kid in a hotel on the other side of the moor and came down here. They are enjoying their holiday, and I am enjoying this. We meet on week-ends."

Queen Elizabeth 11

Commonweaalth Nations Right Of Self-Government

When the Prime Minister of nine Commonwealth countries gather at No. 10 Downing Street for a conference on such topics as Commonwealth economic policy they are, each and every one, the constitutional advisers of Her Majesty. The essential relationship which holds together the countries of the Commonwealth is that each of its governments is formed in accordance with local custom, to advise a single queen on the conduct of her policy.

It has been said recently that the Commonwealth is the most important and durable alliance in the world—and at the same time it is an alliance without formal obligations or written promises.

Coronation day presents a fitting moment to look closely at the unique structure of loyalty to Her Majesty as "Head of the Commonwealth." Last winter the Prime Ministers of the Commonwealth examined the formulas used in the Coronation Ceremony to see whether they conformed with current usage, and with the sense of the words as they are today construed.

They reached again one of those compromises which have helped to preserve in the Commonwealth's latter-day evolution a quality of unity unique in world history.

The words "Head of the Commonwealth," first used to meet in 1949 the problem of republican India's desire to remain within the Commonwealth, were accepted by the Prime Ministers as the element which should be common to all forms of the royal title used throughout the Commonwealth.

And from that all-embracing standpoint, the Prime Ministers went on to devise the varied forms of the title suitable for use in the individual countries of the Commonwealth; the forms that will be used officially for the first time at the Coronation.

As the law stood at the Accession, the Queen was: "Elizabeth the Second, by the Grace of God, of Great Britain, Ireland and the British Dominions beyond the Seas, Queen, Defender of the Faith." It obviously required amendment. The entry of the Asian states of India, Pakistan and Ceylon made the Commonwealth no longer a British Commonwealth. Nor could the Sovereign of peoples of many creeds be universally designated "Defender of the Faith."

Further, the term "Dominion" had become unacceptable among members of the Commonwealth family hastening along the road of constitutional development. It was decided that designation of member states as "Dominions" should disappear; that the Queen would now rule over diverse member states separately as their own sovereign.

All these reflections of the changed conditions of the Commonwealth are recognized in the forms of title now to be used in each individual country.

VARIED TITLE FORMS

Two examples of the varied forms of title agreed on by the Premiers at their conference in London are as follows:

United Kingdom—Elizabeth the Second, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and of her other Realms and Territories, Queen, Head of the Commonwealth, Defender of the Faith.

Pakistan—Elizabeth the Second, Queen of the United Kingdom and of her other Realms and Territories, Head of the Commonwealth.

The old Dominions — Canada, Australia, New Zealand — adopt the U.K. form with the addition of recognition of the sovereign as Queen of these individual domains. South Africa refers to her as "Queen of South Africa and of her other Realms and Territories," but omits reference to the "United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland."

All the changes were subject, of course, to the concurrence of the Parliaments of the Commonwealth, as laid down by the Statute of Westminster of 1931. The preamble to the Statute is of interest to recall, contained the following:

"Inasmuch as the Crown is the symbol of the free association of the members of the British Commonwealth of Nations, and as they are united by a common allegiance to the Crown, it would be in accord with the established constitutional position of all the members of the Commonwealth in relation to one another that any alteration in the law touching the Succession to the Throne or the Royal Style and Titles shall hereafter require the assent as well of the Parliaments of all the Dominions as of the Parliament of the United Kingdom."

WHEN GEORGE VI CROWNED

When George VI took the Oath at his Coronation, the question put tohim by the Archbishop was in the following form: "Will you to him by the Archbishop was in solemnly promise and swear to govern the peoples of Great Britain, Ireland, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and the Union of South Africa, of your possessions and the other Territories to any of them belonging, or pertaining, and of your Empire of India, according to their respective laws and customs".

To this the King replied: "I will".

The form of the Oath will necessarily be changed at the Coronation of Elizabeth II.

First, there was no more mention of Ireland, which became a Republic (in special relationship with the Commonwealth in respect of citizenship) by an Act of Parliament in 1947. The United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland is now re-defined as the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland.

Other words were changed in the Oath because there are now three great sovereign countries which have the same status and rank as the Union of South Africa, and the old Dominions. They are Ceylon, (which first emerged), Pakistan and India.

These three have not the same history. Immediately after the war "Dominion status" was granted as it was then called. (It is remarkable how quickly, with common usage, the term Empire gave way to Dominions, and now to "Commonwealth"). Pakistan and India were next to emerge—on August 15, 1947, from the body of the "Indian Empire". (Previously, it should be noted, Burma had become a Commonwealth and then, on January 4, 1947, declared herself a Republic and departed from the list of His Majesty's allegiance) "Pakistan" was perhaps the "surprise Commonwealth". The word itself was hardly known outside the narrow limits of Indian politics at the time of the last coronation in 1937. Yet now Pakistan takes its place as one of the most firmly established countries in Asia, a leader of the Moslem world, and a loyal Commonwealth.

India has taken a different course. At first Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten remained in New Delhi as Governor-General after relinquishing the unique honor of Viceroy. Immediately an Act was presented in the British Parliament removing the title "Emperor of India" from the style of the King. Thus the British Empire of India ended. It had been brought into existence at the whim of Disraeli to flatter Queen Victoria and bring her to equal the Imperial rank of Napoleon III, Franz Joseph, and the Czar of all the Russias. And it had reached the height of its glory with the building of New Delhi by Sir Edward Lutyens and the Durbar attended by George V and Queen Mary. But now this era has passed, and the high title "Empress of India" will be deleted from the style of Elizabeth II.

COMPROMISE WORKED OUT

In 1948, India was in the midst of framing her complex constitution under which three hundred million people are governed. A powerful group favored complete rupture from "the British connexion". But others, including Pandit Nehru, were anxious to work out a compromise that would meet Repulblican aspirations and at the same time retain the advantages of the Commonwealth alliance The result was the unique and paradoxical arrangements agreed to by Mr. Attlee and other Commonwealth Ministers at the Conference of 1948. India became a Republic and appointed a President; it renounced allegiance to the Crown. India as a nation, though, maintained a special relationship to the British Crown that it recognized by declaring the King and his heirs to be "Head of the Commonwealth".

Such are the very radical changes that have impressed themselves on the form and style of the Monarchy, and the procedure of the coronation, since the start of the previous reign.

These changes could all be heard expressed in the beautiful and sonorous words read out by the heralds on a clear cold morning in February 1952 at the time of the Accession of Elizabeth II. One of the constitutional oddities that puzzled the few onlookers gathered in the courtyard of St. James's Palace was the presence of a tall, thin, almost ascetic figure—H. E. Krishna Menon, High Commissioner for the Republic of India. It was indeed a mystery why the representative of a Republic should be present for the accession of a new queen. But his presence signalized the close reality of the clumsy phrase—"Head of the Commonwealth."

Some doubters may scoff at "the Commonwealth idea." The concept "Empire" is patently out of tune with the present-day world. And now Commonwealth has to meet the scoffers. They may say that the Commonwealth cannot mitigate disputes between its members. India and Pakistan maintain armies facing one another. Both countries have assailed South Africa at the United Nations; and recently the Queen's Ministers in London and Canberra have not seen eye to eye about the need for United Knigdom representation on the Pacific Defence Council—an important matter. Against these difficulties have to be set the positive Commonwealth achievements. Without making explicit undertakings, it is understood that an attack on one is an attack on all. It is assumed, throughout the Commonwealth, that defence effort is in common —although in the past the greatest share has been borne by Britain. It is also accepted that the Queen's countries are united by a common monetary system. (the exception being serves of the sterling Commonwealth are held as one.

That is material profit and loss account of the Commonwealth relationship. But it leaves out of account the great intangibles. Through the Queen's Justice a uniform system of respect for law, for Parliamentary democracy, for the courts, for the inalienable rights of the individual, won through centuries of history, are extended to the protected peoples of Africa, to the Indian beside the Ganges or the Chinese in Hong Kong. The Queen as "Head of the Commonwealth" brings to over one-quarter of the surface of the earth a concept of personal freedom that can still only be compared with the peace and justice enjoyed by citizens of the ancient Roman Empire.

Mountbattens Trace Link To Battenbergs

By CYNTHIA ROBB

One family in our time can claim a history that ranks beside the romantic tales of princely houses of past ages that have risen to Royal favour and position. It is the family once called the Battenbergs—now the Mountbattens.

Now they are so closely associated with Royalty that their family name is a household word in five continents. But 99 years ago there was born to the younger son of the Grand Duke of a small —though quite rich — German Principality a boy from whom all the great Battenbergs and Mountbattens of today are descended. How did this quite obscure family—in a Europe of younger sons—achieve in three generations so many positions of eminence? Their tale shows that energy and talent can elevate even the family of an obscure aristocrat. This is an adaptable family. Unlike some aristocracies it has adapted itself to the modern world. Prince Philip, who has travelled the world as a naval officer, and gained his promotions on merit, is an example in this generation. But before him it is instructive to read the family's achievements.

IN ROYAL FAMILY

Four Battenbergs and Mountbattens have married members of the British Royal family. Prince Louis of Battenberg married Victoria Alberta a granddaughter of Queen Victoria. Another Battenberg married Alice, a daughter of Queen Victoria. Henry Maurice of Battenberg married the Princess Beatrice. And now the Duke of Edinburgh is the consort of Queen Elizabeth the Second.

The family entered the strange post-war world—after the First World War—with a new name and high reputation. For the following 15 years the closest connection between the Royal Family and the Mountbattens was the firm friendship of Edward, Prince of Wales, (whom "everybody" called David) with Lord Louis Mountbatten, (whom "everybody" called Dickie), the son of the great Admiral of the Fleet. The slings and arrows of outrageous fortune spared the Mountbatten family. Lady Alice, the sister of Lord Louis, married Prince Andrew of Greece, and her fortune was linked with that of the Greek Royal family. They had four daughters before their son was born on June 10, 1921. He was christened Philip. He grew up as Prince Philip of Greece and thought of his career as a serving officer in the Royal Navy. Before his engagement to Princess Elizabeth was announced he took a special oath of allegiance and renounced his Greek titles and claims. For a short while he was Lieutenant Philip Mountbatten, and then the King ennobled him as Duke of Edinburgh—a title several times before held by members of the Royal family.

POST-WAR MARRIAGE

One of the greatest and most surprising marriages of the immediate "back-to-normal" period after the First World War was between Lord Louis Mountbatten, the uncle of Prince Philip, and the Hon. Edwina Cassells, the daughter of Lord Mount Temple. Lord Louis had married one of the greatest heiresses in Britain. Her grandfather was Sir Ernest Cassells, who is always described as "the banker". But he was something more than that. The Rothschilds are always spoken of as the Bankers and financial advisers of governments. Sir Ernest Cassells was the personal banker and adviser to kings. In particular he was close to Edward VII—and that King did much, despite many tales of his extravagances —to put in good order the personal fortunes of the kings of England. Sir Ernest Cassells shared, to some extent, the same family history as the Battenberg family. He was also a foreigner; he also had charm. He could not equal the aristocratic gifts of Prince Louis or Prince Henry of Battenberg. (The latter's portrait shows a remarkable likeness to the clean-shaven present Earl Mountbatten. He was one of the few Edwardian great who never wore a beard.) But Sir Ernest Cassells' fortune is still with us today. The millions he invested in railways and industries in Sweden and Turkey, in Egypt and Iran—and throughout the world, are still bearing fruit. The fate of his fortune was the subject of one of the most remarkable bills ever passed by a Socialist Government. The Bill exempted Edwina—now known as the Countess Mountbatten of Burma—from provisions of a will so that she could spend some of the capital of her fortune—the fortune left by her grandfather. Lord Louis and his wife Edwina built for themselves one of the most remarkable flats in London—what Americans would call a "duplex penthouse" overlooking Hyde Park from Park Lane. There "David" was often guest of "Dickie" and his charming wife.

Lord Louis, like his father, was a brilliant serving naval officer—perhaps a little bit unorthodox for some of his commanders. With the abdication his family fortunes looked less secure than formerly. But war, which ended the career of his father Prince Louis of Battenberg, was the opportunity for Lord Louis Mountbatten. With Winston Churchill in charge, a man like that could not fail to advance. When a "Combined Ops" was formed, "Dickie" took over. When the toughest command of the war came along—and all the traditional commanders had disdained it — he became head of South East Asia Command.

Norfolk Family Supervised Rite 780 Years

Many people think it is odd that the Coronation arrangements in Westminster Abbey should be made by a Roman Catholic—the Duke of Norfolk. But it is not half as odd as some of the things that went on when the Duke's predecessors held the job.

The Dukes and Earls of Norfolk have been in the coronation business for more than 700 years and a more turbulent bunch of barons never crowned a king. Their story is a potted history of England.

An earl called Roger Bigod was the first Norfolk to be marshal, in 1246. He spent half his life quarrelling with Henry III, but never ran a coronation because the king outlived him.

The next earl, also called Roger Bigod, was luckier. He fixed the coronation of Edward I. the man who took the Stone of Scone from Scotland and put it under his throne.

Afterwards Edward posted the earl overseas, but he refused to go. "By God, Bigod, you shall either go or hang," said the king. "By God, O king," said Bigod, "I shall neither go nor hang." And he didn't.

The next king, Edward II, thought he would like a more friendly earl marshal, so he gave the job to his brother. A woman claimed the title at the coronation of Richard II, and in 1386 it went to another Earl of Norfolk, who was given the right to carry a gold rod with rings at each end instead of a plain wooden one.

It didn't do him much good. He had the usual row with the king, was banished, and died of plague in Venice.

The next early marshal was a promising lad, but he got mixed up in a conspiracy and was executed without trial at the age of 19.

The cavalcade of Norfolk earl marshals goes on. The next one missed Agincourt because he was ill, but turned out for the coronation of Henry VI.

He was followed by a duke who distinguished himself by arriving a day late for the Battle of St. Albans in 1455.

There was a second Battle of St. Albans five years later. He was in time for that, but left afterwards and went over to the other side.

This was during the Wars of the Roses, if you remember, and the wily duke switched from red to white in good time to be on the right side when Edward IV proclaimed himself king at Westminster.

After the death of the next earl marshal, who doesn't seem to have committed any outrageous acts of violence or defiance, the dukedom of Norfolk and the earl marshalcy became extinct.

The dukedom was given to one of the Princes in the Tower, but, as you know, the Princes were murdered, and so it became extinct again.

But you can't keep a good title down, and if an extinct fish can come to life after 50,000,000 years what's a generation or two to the Dukes of Norfolk?

SALARY WAS £20

The first of the Howard family—to which the present duke belongs—got the title two days before the coronation of Richard III. The Old Pals Act was operating well at the time. The salary for being earl marshal was fixed in 1483 at £20, and has remained so ever since.

Richard III was killed at the Battle of Bosworth, but Norfolk did not get the chance of running the next coronation because he was killed in the battle too.

After that the title was taken away from the Howards, till one of them gave the Scots such a beating at Flodden Field that he was made a duke again. Unlike so many of the Norfolks and Howards he died a natural death, aged eighty.

He had 11 sons and seven daughters and couldn't stand Cardinal Wolsey.

The next duke, who was earl marshal at the trial of Anne Boleyn, couldn't stand Wolsey either, and helped to get him thrown out.

Katherine Howard, who married Henry VIII, was the duke's niece, and things looked good till he was thrown in the Tower and his title taken away.

He had the nearest escape from the scaffold in the Norfolk record. One evening Henry VIII gave the order for him to be executed next morning, and then died in the night himself.

So the order was never carried out, and Norfolk not only got his life back but his title too.

His son was not so lucky. He had been executed at the Tower ten days before the King died.

The same thing happened to his son, who was earl marshal at the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth I. He made the mistake of wanting to marry Mary Queen of Scots. Elizabeth wasn't going to stand for that, so off came another Norfolk head, and bang went the title again.

There wasn't another Duke of Norfolk for 88 years, when Charles II gave the family a new deal. He made one of the Howards the duke again, and made another the earl marshal.

Charles made both titles hereditary, and the Norfolks never lost their stripes again. But they had some narrow escapes.

The first of the earl marshals under Charles II's new deal was a Catholic, and had to appoint a deputy to do his work. Of the next five three were Catholics, who were not allowed to run coronations, and two were Protestants, who were.

Coronation YEAR

The Coronation of Queen Elizabeth will long remain a significant event in a world preoccupied with international tension. Where some nations control their subjects through force, our Sovereign rules through the hearts of her people.

As a common bond with the Mother Country, this love and respect prevails across Canada and other Commonwealth nations.

Queens Of England Held Power, Fought Factions

By PAMELA HINKSON

There had been the legendary Boadicea, the British warrior-queen who killed herself in preference to surrender. There had been Matilda, daughter of Henry I, who for a brief interlude in the 12th century was queen without a crown. Came the Tudor age, and with it the first real reigns of British queens. No woman had ever held such power in the land as did Mary Tudor when she ascended the throne one summer day in 1553. And five years later, she was succeeded by a half-sister who gave name to England's great Elizabethan age—that fabulous age of Drake and Hawkins, Shakespeare and Spencer.

The sisters lie buried in Westminster Abbey, side by side. They knew no such harmony in life. The conflict of national and, particularly, religious movements of their time drove them apart — despite moments of reconciliation and sisterly affection.

These daughters of the much-married Henry VIII were of utterly different character and appearance.

Mary, 18 years the elder, looked old for her years when, at 38, she became Queen. She was without beauty, except for her striking eyes. Behind her lay tragedy, peril, loneliness. Her father had divorced her mother, Catherine of Aragon, and declared Mary illegitimate. She had been separated since childhood from her mother. But she came to the throne by the will and affection of the people, after the attempt to crown the unhappy Lady Jane Grey had failed.

Elizabeth, at age 25, thrilled the cheering crowds on her coronation in January, 1559. Men, women and children alike succumbed that day to the appeal of her youth, her red-gold hair, her hazel eyes that could dance and smile or darken with anger, her fine olive-tinted skin, beautiful hands and well-posed figure. She made them forget, as Mary could never have done, her own background of blood and anguish. Her mother Anne Boleyn, had gone to the block; she had been declared illegitimate by Parliament. Suspected by her sister, she had been sent a prisoner to the Tower with full knowledge of all that might mean— there was much indeed for the people to forget.

A study of their influence as queens heightens the contrast in the lives of these two women. Mary struggled vainly to put the clock back; Elizabeth swept forward triumphantly with the march of time.

MARY'S REIGN

Look first at Mary's reign. Half Spanish and her mother's daughter in sympathy and loyalty, Mary tried to reverse the great religious changes of her father's and brother's reign. She did so with Tudor courage. But she was no stateswoman. She went straight to her passionate goals: the righting of her mother's divorce, the return of England to the Catholic Church and the restoration of monastic property. She looked to the Pope and the Emperor Charles V, her mothers champions, for advice. It was all useless, though, in an England which already identified Protestantism with patriotism.

Mary's reign is remembered, alas, for the religious persecutions; the torture and burning of Protestants at the stake. The burnings were denounced by the chaplain of her Catholic husband, Philip of Spain, and it is still unknown how much they were Mary's responsibility.

Almost forgotten are other happier traits in the character of Mary Tudor. She had profited by the Renaissance and the education given to women in her age. She spoke Latin, French and Spanish, loved music, and improved that of the Royal Chapel. She founded grammar schools — at Walsall, Clitheroe, Loomister and Ripon —and left money for poor Oxford and Cambridge students.

But Mary failed. Most of her time she was blind to the desires and thoughts of her people, for she saw her Kingdom with half foreign eyes. She died—October, 1558—with all her dreams broken.

QUEEN ELIZABETH I

Elizabeth I of England then ascended the throne. Her first determination was to make it clear to the people that she regarded herself as wholly English—her father's daughter. Like him, she swore; like him, she made merry, boxed a favorite's ears, called her courtiers by nicknames — even though they knew her kindness depended on her mood.

Whereas Mary knew nothing of statesmanship, Elizabeth employed all its arts. She showed, indeed, a strange mixture of the masculine mind in some things and all a woman's emotions in others. Usually—and this was the secret of her success—her head ruled her heart. She revealed this strength in dealing with the ambassadors who for ever crowded her court, seeking her hand in marriage for their masters.

MARY II REIGNS

Mary II, the next queen, reigned jointly with her husband William of Orange, from 1689 to 1694. She was a ruler only in name, for she was but a submissive and adoring wife to a brilliant husband.

Mary, like earlier queens, had known loneliness from childhood, for she had been separated from her father, James II. She had been troubled, too, for her father's safety as well as her husband's during their wars against each other.

Due to the Dutch influence experienced during her early married days and to her Low Church Protestantism, Mary became deeply religious. However, she was not bigoted, and shared William's religious tolerance. What influence she had was used against moral laxity, and she gave her full support to the Church.

A lover of art, she brought her collection of Chinese porcelain to Hampton Court. And she left there traces of the gardening she loved; her three botanical collections are in the British Museum. When she died of smallpox at 32, William who was devoted to her, had Greenwich Hospital for sailors built by Wren in her memory.

To England, Mary II signified that which was devout and good.

REIGN OF QUEEN ANNE

Anne, sister of Mary II, reigned after William from 1702 to 1714. She found refuge from her loneliness in an intense friendship with Sarah Jennings—afterwards Lady Churchill, wife of the great soldier who became Duke of Marlborough. The Duchess ruled the Queen and so Marlborough ruled through his wife, it was said. But Anne married an unpretentious husband, Prince George of Denmark, took an active part in State affairs and Cabinet Councils. She had 17 children; only one survived infancy, to die at 11. (Their little coffins are in Westminster Abbey.)

Pleasant-looking in youth, ugly in sickness and old age, Anne represented the homely virtues to her people. She was a passionate High Churchwoman, much concerned for the welfare of the clergy. She established "Queen Anne's Bounty" to aid poor clergymen.

QUEEN VICTORIA REIGNS

On an early June morning in 1837, Lord Conyngham, the Lord Chamberlain and the Archbishop of Canterbury drove to Kensington Palace. As they arrived— before five o'clock—a girl of 18, newly awakened, came to them in her dressing gown, her hair loose. Lord Conyngham dropped on one knee, saluted her as Queen and kissed her hand.

Thus Victoria took up the tasks of queenship, with girlish enthusiasm and deep sense of duty.

After the reign of three elderly kings, the succession of this young girl with the vision of life before her stirred a wave of romantic chivalry.

Through her long reign, Victoria kept her indentification with her people. Her own intense sense of truth and honesty stamped the age. She insisted on rigid morality in the Court which in this respect had deteriorated under her predecessors.

To her adored Albert, the Prince Consort, she bore nine children. Through life she wrote simply-worded letters, underlining phrases in the Victorian girl's way. She was naturally vivacious, even if Albert made her solemn on occasion.

The most constitutional monarch England has known, Victoria was trained early in life in these spheres. But for all that she had definite ideas of her own and exerted considerable influence on her Ministers during the 63 years of her reign.

In her later years, after her widowhood and unpopular retirement, she emerged as a new symbol. The Empire had developed. And the Crown, and the old queen wearing it, represented a focal point for many millions. She must have understood that even after the Indian Mutiny, for she opposed retaliatory punishment.

The picture of Lord Conyngham announcing to the young Victoria that she was Queen long held a place of honour in countless British homes. One hundred and fifteen years later another picture showed the making of history. It was that of an airliner newly arrived from Africa and of four statesmen headed by Prime Minister, Mr. Winston Churchill, awaiting a slender young figure descending alone down the plane steps.

Thus Queen Elizabeth II received the first homage of her Ministers.

Queen Was Groomed For Role From Her Earliest Childhood

BY ROBERT TEMPLE

As the great golden coach comes in sight, millions waiting at the curb or by a television set may think of the life of our young Queen. They may look back on the life that they have watched develop to be crowned on this day. They may remember that their Queen was born in a London townhouses not half a mile from the route of the procession, very early on a fine spring morning in 1926.

The house was at 17 Bruton street, and was the old-fashioned home in London of the Earl of Strathmore (the Queen's grandfather.) The Duke and Duchess of York converted a room into a nursery on the second floor of this house—which, though numbered in Bruton street, actually faced Berkeley Square. But the Queen cannot go back to look at her birthplace because the old house was sold and demolished some years later and now a great block of modern offices stands on the site. Although the Duke and Duchess modernized the place to some extent, it is strange to recall that even such a little while ago these great town houses were run with many more servants than the Princess had later when she managed her own home at Clarence House. And when 17 Bruton street was acquired for demolition, the contractors found in its basement a curious relic of the Victorian age—a row of 20 copper baths which each morning the servants used to carry to the guests' rooms and fill from hot water cans brought through the winding corridors.

The infant Princess was in London for only the first three months of her life. They were troubled months but she, at least, was not touched by the General Strike which took place then. After her christening in the chapel at Buckingham Palace, she travelled north for the first time to her ancient heritage of Scotland.

Glamis castle is a noble keep, gloomy, lofty and resplendent with barbaric history. There Macbeth received his thanes: there the ancient regalia of Robert Bruce lay hid.

COMFORTABLE HOME

It is, and remains, the home of the Earls of Strathmore and it had been converted by the present Queen's grandfather into a fine and comfortable country residence by the addition of a modern wing. It was there that the Princess spent the first summer of her babyhood.

Even the Queen's young life spans quite a distance in Britain's rapidly changing social history. These were the 1920's which are now a far-off and almost historical era shot with the scarlet and gold of luxury and privilege—although the fabric was wearing threadbare.

The Duke of York, as the King's second son, was perhaps able to lead more nearly the kind of life he liked than ever could the Prince of Wales. The life the Duke of York chose as his ideal was that of a quiet-living country squire; his interests lay in the care of his estates and gardens, and the pursuance of a benevolent, unassuming life as a family man.

He had married Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, descended through an ancient line from the kings of Scotland. And, under the influence of his wife who was later to be Queen, he adopted much of the air and the manner of a Scottish laird. Certainly the family life of the York household was very far from Mayfair's glittering round.

Rather, their life, and so the life of the Princess, was traditional and conducted with a simplicity that must have made the childhood of the Princess happy and well-regulated. The little girl was in the charge of a Scottish nanny—the same who had cared for her mother. Life in the nursery was enlivened with delight at the arrival of "Lilibet"s" first pets—two affectionate Chows.

EMPIRE ERA

The 1920's, as well as being the age of extravagant parties, was the era when the Royal Family became conscious of Britain's overseas interests and needs. Until King George V announced to everyone's consternation after his coronation, that he would go to New Delhi, (just built by Sir Edward Lutyens) for the Durbar, the monarchy had been amazingly insular. But, after the first World War, the world-wide connections of Britain, both within and outside the Empire, (as it was still called) were paid ever-increasing attention by the Royal Family.

The Prince of Wales set out on his travels which were to give him fame as the Wandering Prince of Empire. And when in 1927 the Commonwealth of Australia planned to inaugurate its first parliament in the new capital at Canberra, Australia invited the Duke of York with the Duchess, to attend as his father's representative. Whether the absence of her parents for six months touched the consciousness of the infant Princess is not known. She spent the time of her parents' journey across the world first with her Royal grandparents in Buckingham Palace, and then with her other grandparents, the Strathmores, at their English country home. Perhaps it was then just as she was first sitting up and expressing herself, that there began the very real and clear attachment between the Princess Elizabeth and her grandmother, Queen Mary. Certainly we can see all through her childhood the little Princess being taken out and walking hand in hand with the tall, dignified, cultured Queen.

The Duke and Duchess of York certainly found it a wrench to be parted so soon from their small daughter. When they returned plans had already been made for them to move into another town house which, to Londoners, came to be associated with the two Princesses It was 145 Piccadilly. The house was by no means palatial or in the Royal manner — it was just another old-fashioned solid house in the row at the south of Hyde Park facing Piccadilly. (It was destroyed by a bomb during the last war.) The Duchess of York was at first determined that no particular attention should be paid to the Princess and, like any other child, she was taken in her pram into the park. But the people would not have it. In a few weeks such a large crowd was regularly waiting at the gate into Hyde Park that the Duchess had to decree that the baby should take her airing in the private garden only.

Before the Princess was three she had herself gone on a little journey with the eyes of the country upon her. She travelled with her grandfather, the King, who went to convalesce at Bognor after his attack of pneumonia. There the King and the toddling little girl strolled hand in hand for a few brief weeks in the troubled life of monarchy

SISTER ARRIVES

The greatest events in a child's life are the advent of brothers and sisters. The Princess Elizabeth was soon eager to see the baby sister, Margaret, who was born at Glamis Castle. The Duke of York was now, more than ever, a family man. A problem was discussed in the Royal Family—where should the Duke of York and his family make their home? It may seem to the public that the choice of a residence is never a problem for Royalty. But, in fact, Royalty is very circumscribed. King George V possessed a number of houses and these he offered to his sons. The Prince of Wales made his home at Fort Belvedere. The Duke of York and his Duchess found Royal Lodge at Windsor suited their taste.

The education of a Princess might be a fitting subject for argument between philosophers. Is it learning that makes a just ruler? Or is it better that a ruler should be unversed in scholarly arts in order to come to the task of ruling with a clear judgment? It could be long debated. But, as far as the Princess was concerned, it was soon clear that she was to become one of the best educated and well-versed of little girls.

Until she was 11 her education was normal and quite relaxed. But then, even at that tender age, the cares of responsibility were suddenly thrust on her by the abdication of her uncle, King Edward VIII.

LIFE DIVIDED

If, on her Coronation day, Queen Elizabeth II looks back on her life, she will surely see that it divides with that unhappy day in September 1939 when war broke out. In that she is like so many of her subjects. If we remember that the Princess was only 13 when the war began, and that she was 19 when it ended, we will have a better understanding of her life. What did it mean to other little girls of her generation to have their schooling and their time for fun and laughter cut into by the war?

Quite obviously, it was no better for the Princess.

For the Royal Family were under strains that were even more burdensome than those imposed on their subjects.

The King was terribly overworked with state business; the Queen and her elder daughter, particularly, were worried about his health; the war restricted the Royal Family's movements and hedged them around with precautions and anxieties. The Princess, like any other spirited 'teen-age girl, wanted to join something and "do her bit." Then in the autumn of 1940 not long after the Battle of Britain, it was decided, (mainly for reasons of propaganda in Occupied Europe) that the Young Princess should make her broadcast. She was only 14. The microphone is a forbidding and alarming instrument; many wondered how the young Princess—although a very self-assured child—would come through the ordeal.

But her voice was remarkabl; all those who heard that brief broadcast must remember the clear firm, resonant tone in which she spoke.

The broadcast was more than a revelation of character: it was a uniquely-modern pointer of promise in the life of a future Queen.

VJ Day—the victory celebrations found her at Buckingham Palace. Yet all the excitement and gaiety of the milling crowd outside the Palace—into which the Princess insisted on mingling—did not quite conceal from her the future of increasing responsibilities that loomed ahead.

On her 18th birthday the Princess had officially come of age, and she had, before the war ended, taken her place on a Council of Regency, in the absence of her father.

Peace brought duties. The Princess began to employ a small private secretarial staff of her own to look after her engagements .She continued to live in Buckingham Palace with a special suite of rooms set aside for her. Among the duties of returning peace were many clamorous invitations for the Royal Family to visit each and every one of their Dominions.

The King decided that he would go with the whole family to South Africa. It was more than a year however, and a rather bleak post-war year—before the Royal Party left Portsmouth aboard H.M.S. Vanguard on Feb. 1, 1947. But the year was very happy and auspicious for the Princess. She had met the young Prince Philip of Greece, (as he was known, in her childhood; they were both, as children, at the wedding of Prince George and Princess Marina of Greece. During the war years Philip had been invited to Buckingham Palace for several short leaves from his naval duties. But it was not until he returned from Australia in 1946 that the Princess again met Prince Philip.

Rumour soon decided that the 20-year-old Princess and the 24-year-old naval lieutenant—good-looking and dashing—were ideally matched. The son of Prince Andrew of Greece, Philip's grandfather was Prince Louis of Batenberg who had, himself, a distinguished naval career and had married Princess Alice, a granddaughter of Queen Victoria. So Princess Elizabeth and her husband are both descended from the great Queen.

NO ANNOUNCEMENT

The Royal party left for South Africa without announcing an engagement. But the Princess was unmistakingly radiant and rumor had it rightly that the Royal Family had decided to postpone the announcement until after the Princess's 21st birthday.

The Royal visit to South Africa was overwhelming and strenuous, but a success. The tour itself meant travelling 10,000 miles in two months. The King, despite the already painful disaffection of his leg, was determined to complete the whole program. His Queen and his daughters tried to take some of the burden from him.

In the summer of 1947 the engagement was announced. Parliament gave its official sanction to the proposed marriage of the heiress presumptive, and Prince Philip of Greece abandoned his claims to the Greek throne and his foreign title and became Lt. Philip Mountbatten, RN until he was ennobled by his future father-in-law to take the title the Duke of Edinburgh.

The date of the wedding was fixed for November 20. Immediately the Princess was faced with great domestic responsibilities. As the heiress to the throne she would have to keep an official household in an official residence. She also wanted to maintain a country home.

It had been decided that the Duke should continue his naval career into which he had put so much eagerness and ability. So the Princess faced the prospect of a strangely uncertain future with the heaviest responsibilities. On one thing she was determined—that she would have an entirely new and modernized home of her own, made to her own design to suit herself. It is believed that it was Queen Mary who made the acceptable suggestion that Clarence House, in the Mall, should be modernized for the young couple.

Clarence House had been built for the Duke of Clarence,(then an elderly Admiral, so there is another naval association), who later became King as William IV. The house itself was not excessively large by palace standards. Yet it was sufficient to provide the Princess and her husband with a fine suite of private apartments in addition to the state apartments on the ground floor. The house, however, required a great deal of attention and the Princess devoted much of her time, even before she moved into it in May, 1949, to its design, arrangement and perfection.

Clarence House has only been occupied by four families since it was built not much more than 100 years ago. The first was that of William IV; the second was another Duke of Edinburgh, the son of Queen Victoria; the third was Prince Arthur of Connaught, who lived in the Mall for many years; and the fourth is "the Edinburgh's" of our day.

PLANNED WEDDING

But, before they could start putting their home in order the young couple had to plan their wedding. July was busy with invitations. In August the Royal Family retired to Balmoral and the world was delighted to see the young Duke also going north for a brief stay. The November wedding was a fine affair. It was perhaps the happiest celebration London had seen for a generation. The atmosphere was one of spontaneity and gaiety.

The Princess returned to Sandringham for Christmas with the family. There, plans for putting Clarence House in order were again discussed. The Edinburghs had already inspected the house thoroughly. There was a great deal to be done and the Princess complained as much as any more humble person of the slowness with which her decorations were completed.

DIFFERENT DESIGNS

She and the Duke had different designers prepare plans for their separate sitting-rooms. The final effect was something rather severe and intentionally naval in the Duke's room and a yielding and relaxed effect in pastel colors in the Princess's own sitting-room.

Soon, however, news came that the Princess's engagements had been cancelled. The country hoped for an heir to the throne. That hope was realized on November 14, 1948, six months before the Edinburghs moved into Clarence House. And the bells told Britain that the Princess had a son. The baby Prince was given the name of Charles. There had not been a Royal Charles since the rollicking Stuart who squired Nell Gwynn. For a short time the Princess and her husband were allowed to live the life of any young couple with their first-born. But before long, Philip's naval duties called him to Malta where he was appointed "Jimmy the One," First Lieutenant, of the frigate "Chequers." He was being groomed for the command of his own frigate, the "Magpie," which he took over in May, 1950. That he was shown no preferential treatment was obvious; the Princess had to fly to Malta to spend the Christmas of 1949 with him because he was not due for home leave.

The national joy at the birth of Princess Anne in August, 1950, was short-lived. It had been obvious for some time that the King was far from well. Less than a year after Britons had acclaimed his recovery from a serious leg operation, they were once again anxiously watching the bulletin boards outside Buckingham Palace. A cold the King had caught early in 1951 developed into influenza and a few months later he underwent a lung operation. For a short time he seemed to rally, and he insisted on carrying out a heavy program of public appearances. But it was a wan, tired-looking man who walked on to the runway at London airport in January last year to watch his daughter and her husband take off for a tour of East Africa and Australia.

A few days later Prince Philip took his wife for a walk in the grounds of the house built for them as a wedding present by the people of Kenya.

He told her what a shocked world already knew.

That same evening the girl who had arrived in the colony a few days before, laughing and gay, was flying home bereaved to her mourning family to face her Queenship and to open a new chapter in the history of the Commonwealth.

Single System Of Justice United Empire Nations

The United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, the Queen's Dominions beyond the seas, the Realm of Canada, the Union of South Africa and Commonwealth of Pakistan and Ceylon are drawn together into a single system of justice, equity, government and order that stems directly from the English monarchy. The Queen is the sole source of law throughout these lands. Across the extraordinary diversity of the world's climates the Queen's justice will be administered according to forms and usages handed down from the Middle Ages to the Parliament of Great Britain and, from Westminster, offered to the world. The Constitutional Monarchy to which Queen Elizabeth II is being enthroned is one of the greatest, longest-lined and indeed, one of the most mysterious institutions in the history of mankind.

Indeed our present Constitutional Monarchy is the Constitutional Monarchy of England, married to the ancient Monarchy of Scotland, and then extended by an infinite series of adaptions, loyalties and diplomatic ingenuities to meet the needs of people in every continent.

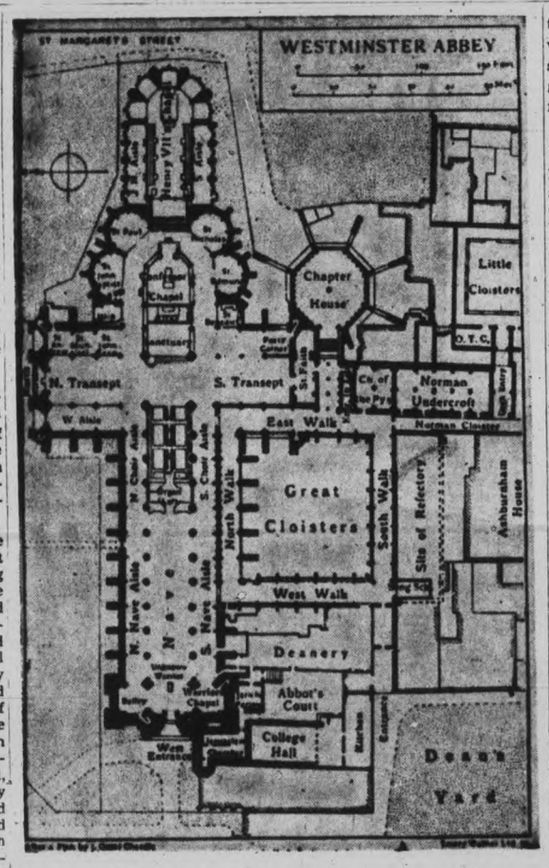
We did not gain our Constitutional Monarchy, as some nations have, by "going constitutional". There is no single written code of Constitutional practice that lays down the powers of our new Queen, or of Parliament, or of the exact pattern of our law. We have arrived at our Constitutional Monarchy by a series of accidents and chances of history—which we may well be excused thinking lucky chances, or well-contrived accidents. At the danger of a little smugness we are entitled, at the coronation of a new queen, to look back on the history of how we came to be as we are—a United Constitutional Monarchy with Dominions across the seas. And we may ask ourselves how Britain has avoided the worst disasters of history that have befallen others—the anarchy of the Middle Ages, and the destructive revolutions of the nearer centuries.

Today the Queen is the source of law in seven sovereign countries, and her writs run through some 51 colonial possessions. Imagine the intricacy of that Government! She has Governor-Generals and Governors, Ambassadors and Residents who represent her abroad; she has seven loyal Parliaments, and many provincial assemblies under them. She has Lieutenant-Governors in Provinces and Puisne Judges who carry her justice to the Polynesians of the Gilbert Islands or the lonely fishermen of the Antarctic. Imagine the fantastic intricacy of all the legislation passed, of all the commissions sent forth and all the judgements handed down in the name of the Queen! Look on her likeness printed on the postage stamps of the world and marvel!

ORIGIN OF RULE

Yet we can discern the dim origins of this complex network of rule in the simple gathering of his Wise Men—the meet—that Egbert the Great called around him 1,000 years ago at the ancient town of Kingston-on-Thames. Perhaps it is peering too far into history to see the origin of our constitution among these rude Saxon princelings who made Kingston their capital for the following 200 years. But certainly we cannot understand our own nation without turning back at least to the great Conquest of England by the Normans. It was that, first, that made us a united monarchy and gave Queen Elizabeth II's heritage its toughness and durability.

King William, the victor of Hastings, won himself the whole kingdom of England. When we see the chaos of feudal wars, the baronial strife that tore Normandy and France for the following hundreds of years we must be thankful for that Conquest which made William the absolute master.



One of the first great assets that went to making of our constitution was several hundreds of years of comparative internal peace at the time when every other country on the Continent was a seething turmoil of uncertain loyalty, allegiance and impermanence.

For that stability on which the King's peace was founded we must thank the tough, campaigning Duke of Normandy, William the Bastard, who conquered England and alloted it among his companions under a law that preserved great rights for the King's will that could not be insisted on by the unlucky kings of France and Germany for many hundreds of years. There was comparative peace in England because William and his conquering Normans insisted that private war was illegal, even between barons; that only the King could strike coins, and that the King's justices would travel the country and sit in "assize" to give the King's judgments (they were soon assisted by a jury to help them with local information).

Thus was established the great medieval balance of power in England—with three elements, King, Baronage and people. Because there was stability, and a fair degree of peace, the great permanent institutions had a chance to grow. The King's Court, instead of wandering with him, started to settle and establish permanent administrative office. The King called his barons together regularly and made them the first House of Lords. Then, later, other kings wanted to tax their subjects and gathered together representatives of the boroughts and the ccunties to make the first Commons. At the same time an agricultural revolution made property law more complicated and, out of the rights of buying and selling land, there grew up the Code of Common Law that is now disseminated across the world.

SECOND STROKE

If the Norman Conquest is the first good fortune Britain had in her history which helped to make the monarchy of Elizabeth II sure and well-loved and constitutional then the second stroke of good fortune, (though it may seem strange), was the stubbornness of King Henry VIII, the annulment of his marry to Catherine of Aragon, the break wtih Rome and the resulting impetus it gave to Britain s greatness and to her Parliaments.

WESTMINSTER ABBEY, where the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II will take place, has a long history tied in with the Royal Family.

The Kingdom of England that Henry VIII ruled with very different from the monarchy we know to-day— and yet very much more complicated indeed than the little circle of the court that was all the Norman kings had for government. The Tudor monarch had many troubles and many weaknesses—besides his wives. We need to be reminded that he had virtually no power to raise taxes, and neither had he that expensive modern addition to monarchy— a royal standing army. The kingdom was dexterously balanced on the pyramid of medieval society— the King, the Lords and the Church.

Then came the crisis of English history. We do not need to tell the story again— the embittered Catherine cast aside, the young and beautiful Anne Boleyn announcing her pregnancy to the King, the desperate hurry to legitimize and provide Henry with an heir— and then the fateful moment when the child was born, a girl. Little was it thought that the unwanted girl-child, Elizabeth would inherit from her fateher a strengthened kingdom and the glory of a long and victorious reign.

The crisis for our monarchy in 1530 turned Henry towards his people. He needed money, and support, and an army. And he could only have these by building the strength of Parliament and gaining the support of his people Because Henry was in a personal crisis the monarchy gained— permanently Elizabeth inherited a Parliamentary system of government— while across the Channel, in France the medieval monarchy evolved towards the mighty despotism of Louis XIV. The British monarchy can indeed be thankful that these extremes were avoided.

Scotland, meanwhile, was still a separate kingdom. It had nurtured its patriotism in a series of wars with the English. But by this time it was clear that the continuance of two warring kingdoms in one island was wasteful —to say the least. By good fortune the two kingdoms were united by inheritance in the person of James VI of Scotland and James I of England. They remained two separate kingdoms under the same king for more than a 100 years before England and Scotland were united (in the reign of Queen Anne) into a single United Kingdom.

In our search for a Constitution for our monarchy, we cannot neglect the part olayed by Cromwell and the Commonwealth— the Republicans of England. And that is strange, again, for we may ask how a movement that executed King Charles I in Whitehall could be said to enhance the monarchy Partly, it worked by opposites. After the experience of the confusion and uncertainties of republican years, the people of England never wanted to be without the certain shee-anchor of a monarch as Head of the State. The English Parliamentary revolution was a very conservative revolution, (although it appeared at the time, violent to strike off a king's head) and it continued for nearly 40 years, from the first protest of Hampden at paying an unjust tax until a king who wanted to dictate his religion to his people was compelled to flee the country.

Names Of Royal Household Have Fairy-Tale Sound

By MOLLIE McGEE

The names and titles of the Royal Household have a fairy-tale sound about them. There are Goldsticks, a Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, a High Almoner, a Poet Laureate, a Bargemaster, a Keeper of the Queen's Swans as well as a Master of the Queen's Music. There are dozens of Chaplains headed by a Clerk of the Closet, more dozens of Physicians and Surgeons, Grooms in Waiting, Gentlemen at Arms, Gentlemen Ushers, Extra Gentlemen Ushers, Equerries and Extra Equerries.

But for all these fine names, only a handful of hard-working officials are actively engaged in managing and directing day to day business connected with the daily life of the Queen. And only they—and those in attendance—have offices or stay in Royal Palaces.

Few of the hundreds of her official "Household" ever see Her Majesty except at big ceremonial affairs, and perhaps not even then. Their appointments are honorary and their titles were bestowed in the days when courts were continuous house parties providing dozens of minor duties; when even the dressing of the sovereign was done by nobles, and gentlemen-in-waiting performed dual service as companions and messengers.

TRAVEL WITH QUEEN

Now, those most permanently close to the young Queen, whether in London or during a short stay out of town, are workaday people. Her dresser or ladies maid, Scottish Margaret Macdonald, was her nursery attendant when she was a baby, and her chauffeur, Chivers, drove her when she was still Princess. Her detective guard, Inspector Clarke, who usually sits beside the chauffeur, acts as a connecting link with Scotland Yard and helps make traffic arrangements. These three travel wherever the Queen goes and under ordinary circumstances might be termed household.

In royal circles they are termed "Staff". The Household is composed of executives and their assistants, who manage the various departments housed in Buckingham Palace and one in residence outside.

Head of this complete Royal Household organization, under the Queen, is the Lord Chamberlain the 11th Earl of Scarborough, who is responsible for all ceremonial and Royal invitations, as well as for all Royal Household appointments. His office is also, by ancient custom, in charge of censorship of books and plays. It is the duty of the Lord Chamberlain to attend the Queen on all great occasions. One of his tasks is to escort her as she moves between lines of Gentlemen at Arms and distinguished guests to take her place on the throne dais at important Buckingham Palace receptions. Carrying his white wand of office, he walks backwards so as to face her. Thus his task, before presenting the guests, is surely not an easy one.

HAD NOTED CAREER

The Lord Chamberlain, who arrived recently in office after a distinguished army carrer, is 56, and soldierly in appearance. His wife has been Lady of the Bedchamber to the Queen Mother since 1947. Heading his own department, though officially under the Lord Chamberlain and, as far as the outside world is concerned, the most important member of the Household, is the Queen's 65-year-old Private Secretary, Sir Alan Lascelles.

Known to the Royal Family as "Tommy", he holds the only duplicate key to government despatch boxes in which official business arrives for Her Majesty. After preparing her papers for her, he sees the Queen every morning to discuss world affairs, political and diplomatic moves, and goes through her official correspondence with her.

Technically he cannot be said to advise her for that is a matter for her Ministers. But Sir Alan Lascelles places a fund of knowledge at the Queen's service. He is a travelled, worldly-wise man, with an immense store of information as a result of his 32 years' Palace experience. He has a dry sense of humor and is a witty whiter. Although in the background, he is always within call. To help him in his duties, he has three assistants.

For every day while she is in London, appointments, dates cussed with the Queen and lists of people she might wish to meet are presented for her approval. These duties fall on the shoulders of the assistant Private Secretaries, Major Ford, Sir Michael Adeane and Lieut. Col. Martin Charteris. The correspondence itself is handled by a clerical staff.

Money matters at the Palace fall under the jurisdiction of the Keeper of the Privy Purse and Treasurer to the Queen. He is Brigadier the Lord Tyron, the tallest member of the Household who recently succeded Sir Ulick Alexander, treasurer for the Queen's father. He had been Sir Ulick's assistant for some time. He pays Her Majesty's bills for her and generally supervises the intricate financial organization of Royal households, as well as the Queen's official and private bank accounts. He also keeps "Petty Cash" for any small emergency or shopping need that might arise.

In charge of domestic arrangements in Royal residences are the Master of the Household, who is responsible for indoor activities, and the Crown Equerry controlling the Royal Mews—horses and cars—and all daily transport provisions. These two officials might be said to control comfort. In the vast historic buildings — Buckingham Palace has almost 1,000 rooms—there are the inevitable labor problems and difficulties to be faced arising from the big distances separating different rooms.

Sir Piers Legh, 61, Master of the Household, has been in Royal service longer than any other Court official. He "hires and fires" and manages all servants, makes decisions on interior repairs and decorations (Palace exteriors come under the Ministry of Works), arranges menus for State occasions and usually sees the Queen once a day to talk over current problems.

Under "Joey" Legh there has been a steady system of modernizing with minimum upset. All residents of the Palace have benefitted. A young Australian who recently became a junior footman at the Palace found he had a modern, comfortable room, with hot and cold water and even indirect lighting over his shaving mirror. Sir Piers Legh has a small expert staff: assistant, two clerks, steward, Groom of the Chambers and housekeepers in charge of domestic affairs at Buckingham Palace, Windsor Castle, Sandringham and Balmoral.

The Crown Equerry, who lives close to the Mews he supervises, is an Irishman with a rare fondness for horses. Sir Dermot McMorrough Kavanagh heads the long list of equerries on the Royal Household list and has most important duties. Not only is he responsible for the safety of the Queen when she is riding or driving, but he arranges all her travel other than that by air. He buys Royal horses and vehicles, and is responsible for all grooms and drivers. There are 17 royal cars but the number of horses is lessening year by year.

BELGRAVE SQUARE HOUSE

One department of the Royal Household which often escapes attention is housed in Belgrave Square and is known as the Chancery of the Orders of Knighthood. Brigadier Ivan de la Bero, his chief clerk and assistants make arrangements for all investitures. They provide the medals and histories of the deeds for which they are awarded. Their records deal with the thousand and one details that go with the award of an honor. The department is particularly busy this Coronation year, and has accumulated a whole series of new decorations bearing the Queen's likeness.

Such are the divisions of the Royal Household on active duty. But, there are also the Queen's constant companions, her ladies in waiting and equerries. When she came to the throne she retained as ladies in waiting those who were already in service with her.

Two are young matrons with children: Lady Margaret Hay, 34, wife of Alan Philip Hay, secretary to the Duchess of Kent, and Lady Palmer, 36, widow of any army officer. The third lady, Lady Alice Egerton, 29, sister of Lady Margaret Colville, is the youngest.

The Mistress of the Robes, who is the senior woman at Court, remained Helen, Duchess of Northumberland, Mistress of Robes to the Queen Mother, until this year when she was succeeded by Mary Duchess of Devonshire. It is her duty to attend the Queen on occasions of solemn ceremony or when she makes a State visit abroad.

Ladies in waiting, whose correct title is Women of the Bedchamber for those below the rank of daughter of Viscounts, and Ladies of the Bedchamber for those of more exalted station, are on duty for two weeks at a time and off for four. On duty, they have their own apartments in the Palace, and in the interim periods, go home. They take their meals in the Household dining-room with the rest of the Household and receive a small allowance from the Privy Purse.

Though they do not usually accompany Her Majesty on private visits or family week-ends, they are always within reach. Their position is that of companions, and which in fact they are, friends of the Queen. They assist in receiving and in entertaining distinguished guests or in dealing with private correspondence or with minor shopping.

ADDRESS to a group of scientists at Edinburgh was bright, informed and evoked much applause.

Court Of Claims Created To Hear Rival Families

By D. T. ROBERT

More than six months ago a Court of Claims was set up at the Privy Council in Downing Street and with all the solemn dignity that the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council brings to great causes, it deliberated the claims of rival families to bear the Queen's Spurs, or to hold a towel for the Queen when she washes her hands at a banquet that will not take place.

Perhaps the world regarded with some amusement the solemnity with which rival families briefed lawyers and contested claims—bringing with them elaborate and often unconvincing genearlogies. But what were these privileges, and how did they arise?

Back in the Middle Ages, (from 1066 for at least 300 years), the only right any man had to claim any land as his own depended on his doing the Sovereign a service. After the Conquest by the Normans the whole of the inhabited land of England was granted to the barons and landed freemen with the obligation of service of some kind. The main service the King wanted was military service. Most of the land in England was split into manors and each manor had the obligation to provide the Sovereign with a given number of fighting men—mounted or on foot—for a period of 100 days in any year. In exchange for that service the landowner had free holding of his land. But there were two other, more exceptional forms of service. One was rendered by the Church. Great estates were held by the Bishops and the Priors of the Abbeys and their obligation was not to fight for the King but to pray for him.

The third group, which is quite small and exceptional, is concerned because it numbered those few privileged landowners who hold their land in exchange for performing some personal service to the Sovereign. At the very earliest stage we can imagine that these "manors" were handed out by early kings as rewards to their actual personal servants—the men who really looked after the king's wardrobe, or poured his wine, or organized the supplies of fish to his table. But since feudal society was hereditary, the manor given as a reward to one butler descended in that man's family and he became a landed gentleman and the service of pouring out the king's wine was carried out by another menial—except on state occasions. So we have a gradual progress down the ages with rewards for personal services quite rapidly becoming ceremonial, honorary and hereditary.

Today there are few opportunities to perform the services that originally gave rights of tenure in various "manors"—some of them quite sizeable estates, others small villages.

Since the reign of William IV there has been no ceremonial procession from Westminster Hall to the Abbey, nor has there been a banquet. And most of the services were prescribed to be performed either in procession or in waiting at table. A "Tenant in Serjeanty" who till recently had a service to perform actually in the Abbey was the Lord of the Manor of Worksop. He had a duty to provide the Queen with a "rich right-hand glove", to support the Queen's right hand, and to carry the sceptre when required. (With orb and sceptre, and the manipulation of robes, it must have been discovered long ago that even a Sovereign had not enough hands to manage the whole regalia).

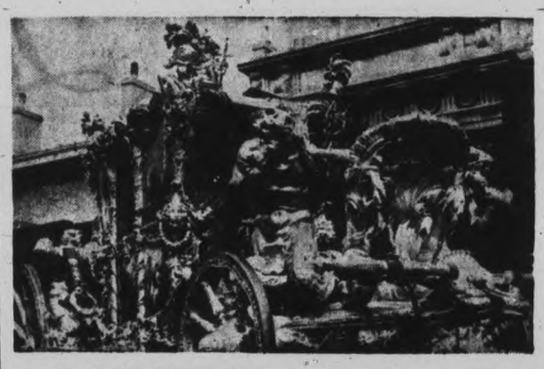
DUKE'S PRIVILEGES

These privileges belonged to the Duke of Newcastle. Much of his property, though, including Worksop Manor, has now been merged into a limited liability company. The company had asked that the privileges be granted to them, but the Court of Claims last December ruled against the company, disassociating them from these privileges.

Another service is often reckoned as a tenure in sergeantry—but probably wrongly. It is the duty of bearing the great golden spurs with which the sovereign is invested with the order of knighthood. Quite logically, the job fell to the Master of the Horse at the early coronation of Norman kings. The family that holds the Mastership of the Horse, the Marshals of Pembroke, soon came to claim that service was an hereditary right in their family. Although there is no "manor" attached to it, seven descendants of the Marshals of Pembroke, (all by various female lines) pressed their claims before the Court of Claims in 1936. The court could not sort out the genealogical tangle and all six were left with equal claims. (Today the Master of the Horse is the Duke of Beaufort, of the Somerset family that built Somerset House.

If the banquet were revived there would be many more disputes. The most glorious claim would once more be from the Norfolk family—to act as Lord Chief Butler. This used to be the fifth Great Office of State—but it is now extinct although it could be claimed as hereditary to the Earldom of Arundel.

The most famous of all the services is that of King's Champion. It has been held, (attached to the Manor of Scrivelsby, in Lincolnshire) by the Dymoke family at least since the reign of Richard II.



The Champion used to ride into Westminster Hall — from the courtyard of the present House of Commons where MPs now park their cars. The Champion rode the king's second best horse and wore his second best armor. He was preceeded by a Herald and accompanied by the Marshal and Constable. Three times, in Westminster Hall he threw down his gage and challenged those who disputed the king's title to make good their claim in combat. After the challenge had been given the King drank his Champion's health from a gold cup that the Champion received as his fee. In recent reigns this tenure in serjeanty, since there is no banquet, has been adapted and the champion has now the right to carry the Standard of England in the Abbey.

Many of the services that became privileges have also a fee attached to them. For instance, the Lord of the Manor of Great Wymondley is to be Chief Cupbearer—and can keep the cup afterwards. The Lord of Bedford is the Almoner—and can keep the silver alms dish. The Lord of the Manor of Ashley is to be Napier—and can keep the napkins. Everything was thought of, in the Royal arrangements of the Middle Ages; the Lord of the Manor of Scoulton was to be Chief Lardiner, and to receive the remains of the feast. There is a long list of these services, including the supply of fish, and some wafers for the king to eat during the second course of the banquet.

There are some other traditional services—which are not serjeanties—that are ancient, and of interest. The Barons of the Cinque ports from the time of Richard I have claimed the right to carry the Sovereign's canopy in the pre-banquet procession.

Since there is no banquet now adays' the Barons attend the Standards of the Empire during the service. The Lord Mayor of London would have the right, were there a banquet, to assist the Duke of Norfolk as a butler—in particular passing the Queen her wine when she takes the wafers in the second course. The Lord Mayor of Oxford would also be serving wine at table.

Perhaps it is regrettable that since the roisterous and pleasurable coronation of King George IV the banquet has been dropped from the ceremonial of the coronation day.

Long live the Queen

On Coronation Day, as Elizabeth II ascends the throne and receives the crown and sceptre of Great Britain, we recall the little Princess Lilibet. From early childhood, she has been the apple of the world's eye—a little girl, growing up graciously, charmingly and beautifully — until now, with the bearing of the true Queen, she becomes sovereign of a great Empire. May this Elizabth, like her predecessor, Good Queen Bess, enjoy a long and happy reign over a prosperous Britain.

Royal Princes Foreign Lands Few In Number

By YORKE HENDERSON

On a spring day in 1937 the heirs to more than a dozen monarchies watched George VI of Great Britain crowned in Westminster Abbey. They made much of the solemn-eyed, 11-year-old heir apparent to the British Throne; a fairy tale child-princess in state robes and tiny coronet. But few of them were to see her ascend the throne herself, for the royal invitations to this year's coronation have mirrored the changed face of Europe.

Many of the heirs who saw the 1937 crowning are now kings themselves and as such were barred from attending. According to Court etiquette they would, if they were present, enjoy as crowned heads precedence over the British sovereign. That, of course, could not be allowed to happen, so tradition has seen to it that they are not invited.

Other monarchies have been toppled by the westward surge of Communism. And now some of the royal guests who went so proudly to the Abbey are exiles not officially recognized by Britain's Royal Household.

Three royal princes will return in their own right to witness the glittering Abbey ceremony. Two are from Western Europe—Crown Prince Olav of Norway and Prince Bernarhard of the Netherlands. The other is Prince Asfa Wossen, eldest son of the Emperor of Abyssinia.
Abyssinia.

Prince Bernhard represents the Netherlands again because as a Consort he is not the head of the State. With his wife, now Queen Juliana, he brought a romantic note into the pageantry of the 1937 celebrations. They had cut short their honeymoon to be in London and grateful Britons [illegible] they appreciated the gesture.

Crown Prince Olav of Norway with his Swedish-born wife, Princess Martau, is able to come again because his father, King Haakon, a sturdy 80, still sits on the throne.

Sweden's King Gustav Adolf, as Crown Prince, represents his country last time. Now he sent his second son, Prince Bertil. His eldest son, Prince Gustav Adolf was lost in 1947 in an air crash.

Denmark's King Frederik has succeeded to the throne since the last coronation. But he has no sons and because Denmark does not recognize female succession he has sent his 65-year-old cousin, Prince Axel.

Belgium is represented by King Leopold's brother, Prince Charles of Flanders. But Leopold has since abdicated and this year the royal house in Brussels sent his 18-year-old son, Prince Albert, who represented his brother King Baudouin at the funeral of King George VI.

Japan has sent 19-year-old Crown Prince Akihito. He was too young to attend in 1937 when Emperor Hirohito dispatched his own brother, Prince Chichibu, a tuberculosis sufferer, who died this year.

Coaches, Uniforms And Robes Required Months To Prepare

By DOROTHY BARKLEY

Out of their glass cases and storage places where they have been preserved from dust and moth since the last Coronation have come the coaches, uniforms and robes used today.

The ceremonial coaches required the most renovation after the ravages of time. The Royal State Coach, completely regilded in 1937, has had its panel paintings cleaned and transferred to new wood, specially proofed against woodworm and weather. And the Lord Mayor's coach, in which dry rot and moth were suspected, has been overhauled and repainted.

Of the three state coaches in the procession — the Royal State Coach, the Lord Mayor's Coach and the Speaker's Coach—the Royal Coach, although almost 200 years old, is the youngest. It was completed in 1762, the Lord Mayor's several years previous to that, and the Speaker's dates from the time of Queen Anne.

The Royal Coach, now used only at coronations, this year makes its seventh appearance in a coronation procession. George III ordered it for his coronation in 1761—but it was not completed until a year later when he drove in it to the State opening of Parliament. After this event, the Royal Stable Clerk wrote in his journal: "His Majesty went to the House of Peers to open the session in the new State Coach. The mob was exceedingly great yet no other accident happened but one of the door glasses and the handle of the door being broken."

Only kings and queens of England may ride in the coach. It has never left London—and superstition has it that it would be unlucky for it to do so. Described as the most superb carriage ever built, it marks the supreme artistic extravagance of an age renowned for its luxury. Money was lavished on it — it cost over £7,000. This was hardly surprising, since it is gilded with 18-carat gold, and has oil panel paintings depicting emblematic subjects designed by Cipriani, the leading Italian artist of the day.

It is constructed in the style of an ancient Roman chariot—and like the chariots built for Roman triumphs, is loaded with trophies to commemorate British victories of war.

On the centre of the roof are the figures of three boys symbolic of England, Scotland and Ireland. They support the emblems of state —the Imperial Crown, the Sceptre, the Sword of State and the Insignias of Knighthood.

HAS RUBBER TIRES

The Queen had the most comfortable Coronation ride in history—rubber tires were fitted for the first time to the coach's iron wheels. Because of the coach's immense weight—over four tons—it is unsafe to draw it at more than walking pace, even though a handbrake has now been fitted. One advantage of this slow pace is that all those en route will have ample opportunity to see the Queen as she passes by.

The interior is decorated in rich scarlet velvet on which are embroidered the rose, thistle, shamrock and State Crown. For Edward VII's coronation, the coachman's box was removed because the king thought that it prevented the crowds from seeing properly. This meant that all horses had to be postilion-ridden—and so they are today.

The coach is drawn by eight Windsor Greys. (Their name arose from the fact that the royal horses were stabled at Windsor until 1937). The state harness, worn only by the horses that draw the State Coach, was made for the Diamond Jubilee celebrations of Queen Victoria in 1897, and cost £15,000 Each set weighs 130 pounds and was originally cut from a single side of red Morocco leather. The saddle cloths are of royal blue cloth edged with gold embroidery. On account of its great value, the harness is always kept slung on dummies at the royal stables.

The postilions' livery was in the royal colors of crimson black and gold. And they wore powdered wigs, velvet jockey caps, embroidered jackets and white buckskin breeches. Their riding boots had gilt spurs, and they carried gold-mounted whale-bone riding whips. Four walking Men, chosen from the staff of the Crown Equerry in the Royal Mews, marched on each side of the team. Their livery was similar to that of the postilions except that they wore knee-length coats. Four Royal footmen walked in pairs on each side of the coach itself. They wore frock coats, knee breeches and buckled shoes

The Sovereign's Escort, which preceded the coach, was made up of three elite corps — the Life Guards, the Blues, and the Yeomen of the Guard—all wearing their centuries-old attire. The Life Guards were formed originally from the Cavaliers who went into exile with Prince Charles Stuart, later Charles II, and returned with him. Today, they wear white-plumed silver helmet, steel breastplate, red tunic, gold lace aiguillettes, white buckskin pantaloons, knee boots, and white buckskin gauntlets. The Blues were part of the Parliamentary Army—fighting against the King— and the order to disband them was never carried out. Their uniform is blue tunic, steel breastplate, white breeches and knee boots. The uniform of the Yeomen of the Guard—formed by Henry VII as a personal protection—has hardly changed since Tudor times. Each wears a ruff, red, gold and black frock, knee breeches and buckled shoes.

Inside the Abbey, the Queen had an escort of Gentlemen-at-arms, who accompanied here from the door through the nave and choir. The guard was formed by Henry VIII in 1509 with the injunction that it should always consist of "Gentlemen extract of noble blood." This has of course been modified since then. Their uniform—which today would cost £500 new and is therefore handed down from generation to generation— was given to them by William IV to replace the former Tudor style.

TWO OTHER COACHES

The two other ceremonial coaches in the procession were those of the Lord Mayor of London and the Speaker of the House of Commons. The Mayor's coach—known as the "Gingerbread Coach"—is almost 200 years old, and weighs just under four tons. It is so nicknamed because of its fantastically carved wooden body and rich gilt rococo ornamentation. Its interior is decorated in crimson velvet and gold upholstery, and it has tasselled seats. Allegorical pictures on the outside—Scales of Justice, Faith, Hope and Charity—were painted by the same Italian artist, Cipriani, who was commissioned to ornament the Royal State Coach. The Lord Mayer's coat-of-arms are painted on the door, and the Lord Mayor himself had an escort of Pikemen of the Honourable Artillery Company.

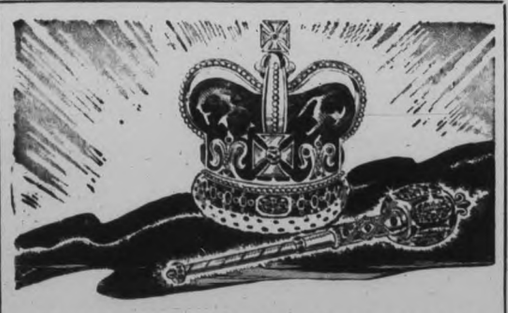
The Speaker's coach was once the State Coach of Queen Anne, and she drove in it to her own coronation. Now it bears the coat-of-arms of the Speaker. Last used at King George VI's coronation, it was pulled by two brewer's horses. Two running footmen, chosen from draymen's assistants, accompanied the coach.

Other carriages, of a smaller, less ornate variety, took members of the Queen's family to the Abbey.

Peers who were in the processions and ceremonies in the Abbey wore robes of state with coronets. But there were relaxations in traditional attire for peers not taking an active part at the Abbey. Instead of the costly state robes, they wore either mantles of any order of knighthood to which they belonged or Parliament robes over evening dress with trousers in place of knee breeches. If below the rank of earl, they could wear a cap of state instead of a coronet. The number of rows of ermine's tails on his robes denoted difference in rank—two rows for a baron, and four for a duke. Their coronets, too, have subtle variations. A duke has eight gold strawberry leaves on his. An earl has eight silver balls raised on points with gold strawberry leaves between the points; a viscount 16 silver balls and a baron six—with no strawberry leaves. They were not allowed to adorn their coronets with jewels or precious stones instead of silver balls.

Peeresses at the Abbey were likewise wearing robes of state and coronets according to their respective ranks. The coronet of a peeress is similar to that of a peer, except it is smaller. In their robes peeresses show their difference in degree by a nice distinction between the number of length of the train. A Duchess, rows of ermine's tails and the for instance, has a two-yard train and four rows of ermine's tails, and a baroness only a three-foot train and two rows of ermine's tails.

But for viscountesses and baronesses who did not possess these robes, the Queen's dressmaker had designed, with the Queen's approval, special "economy" robes costing about a tenth of the price of a traditional robe. The new robe, of crimson velveteen instead of silk velvet, was edged with white coney in place of the customary ermine. And only six yards, compared with 20 for the old style, was required. The white coney collar was powdered in the same way with ermine's tails to donate rank. As an alternative to the coronet, crimson velveteen caps of state were specially designed.



And so the procession, not only in the coaches but in the uniforms and robes worn by those taking part, presented a cameo of English history over past centuries.

Progressive School Shaped Future Of Queen's Consort

By BERT OLIVER

Life in the rugged little ports along Scotland's Moray Firth does not change much through the years. The fishing boats crowd about the harbors when the season is on, and, through the hard winter, lie idle in the sheltered bays and inlets. In the summer, city folk come down to the sea and scramble about the rocky coastline and go walking along the stretches of golden sand and under the northern sun. It is a pleasant life and it has been like that for very long.

From time to time, one or other of the gnarled, weather-beaten old fishermen of the coast dies. But there are always others to take their place. Lads who have grown up there and taken to the sea to become, in time, as salty as their forebears. Some have sought a more ambitious career in the big ocean going vessels.

There was one such lad who spent his schooldays in those parts in the mid-thirties. He was at Gordonstoun School, where the boys were encouraged to taste the life of the sea and the little harbors.

Ever since those carefree days at school on the Moray Firth, the young Prince has borne the unmistakable stamp of the sea. He has built himself a fine naval career, the hard way, and risen to command his own ship. Reluctantly, he has given up the sea for his Royal duties. But if ever he is able to return, he will. For the Duke of Edinburgh is a born sailor.

His early life was not easy for him. He bore the title of a foreign prince, but the Navy saw to it that he was treated no better than the next man. He knew he would have to work hard. He had been told by many, including his schoolmaster in Scotland—Kurt Hahn, an anti-Nazi of remarkable character who "refugeed" his school from Germany—that at his best he was outstanding, but his second best was not good enough. So he tried, and the results speak for themselves.

JOINED THE NAVY

At 18, Philip joined the Royal Navy as a cadet, and trained at the Royal Naval College, Dartmouth. He was awarded the King's Dirk as finest all-round cadet of his term and also the Eardley Howard-Crockett prize for the best cadet.

In January, 1940, he went to sea as a midshipman in the battleship Ramillies, a far cry from the cutters and sailing boats he helped build and sail on the Moray Firth. He was with the Ramillies four months and saw New Zealand for the first time when the ship called at Wellington during the Centennial Exhibition.

After just one year at sea with transfers to the cruisers Kent and Shropshire, the young midshipman was back on a battleship, this time HMS Valiant. And it was with her at the Battle of Cape Matapan that he first saw action. He was in charge of searchlight control, and for his work in illuminating the Italian battlefleet during the night action, was mentioned in despatches and received the Greek War Cross.

During this time, Philip took a sub-lieutenants course, winning four firsts and one second to gain nine months seniority out of a possible 10. After a gunnery course, he was appointed a sub-lieutenant on the old destroyer Wallace in 1942 and soon after was promoted First Lieutenant, to become, at 21, the youngest officer second-in-command of a big destroyer. There was more action along the North African coast and in July 1943 he took part in the Sicily invasion.

About this time, Philip learned some of the harder, hotter facts of seafaring. He was travelling in a troopship from Suez and had to do a stint in the stokehold after the Chinese gang of stokers had "jumped" ship. It was probably the hottest job he had ever done and he still keeps a certificate saying he qualified as a "trimmer"—a stoker's job.

He grew a beard, a full, golden affair, and took it with him into the Japanese theatre of war when he was transferred to the destroyer Whelp, serving with the Eastern Fleet and later the British Pacific Fleet. He was there till the end, and saw the surrender in Tokyo Bay in 1945.

Back in England the Duke took command of Whelp for the last two months before she was paid off into reserve. There he joined the Royal Navy Training Establishment, HMS Glendower, in North Wales, a base where only officers with the best leadership records were appointed. He took over training work and, when the school eventually closed, was given a similar post at HMS Port Arthur at Corsham, near Bath. Here, Philip developed his own powers with the same ability with which he lectured petty officers on sea warfare, morale, current affairs and the self-expression of which the experienced petty officer is so competent a master.

Off-duty, Lieutenant Mountbatten went to local dances and played skittles in his shirt-sleeves with brother officers at the local pub and against the local team. They all knew him as Philip there, and on the cricket and hockey fields as well.

He ran a small sports car, did his own repairs and built up local fame for his driving.

BECAME ENGAGED

It was while he was at Corsham that he became engaged to Princess Elizabeth. And he was at Corsham right up till the wedding. His last night as a bachelor was with his naval friends. After the wedding in November, 1947, the Duke of Edinburgh, as he then became, was appointed to temporary duty in the Admiraly with the Director of Operations—something of a backroom boy. But still clinging to hopes for an active naval career, he was posted to the next staff course at Greenwich from April to mid-September, 1948. At the end of this, he was put on half-pay at his own request.

Prince Charles was born and the Duke had less and less chance to follow the sea. But he was still determined to resume his career as soon as possible. Soon after moving into Clarence House in July, 1949, he flew to Malta and joined the destroyer as First Lieutenant, or "Jimmy the One," as ratings call this officer. He went back to living in a cabin 7 ft. by 9 ft. with one porthole and a ceiling draped with waterpipes—some contrast to the home he had left.

Towards the end of 1950, he was promoted Lieutenant-Commander and took command of the frigate Magpie, a wartime U-boat killer. Life at the Malta station was good. As the Duke says, it was "the best year of my life.'" There were long cruises and exercises with the Home and Mediterranean Fleets, and all the interest of a first command. Princess Elizabeth, like so many other Navy wives, joined him at Malta when she could, and helped to make the round of engagements ashore attractive to him.

But it had to end. On July 16, 1951, he relinquished his command and returned to London to share with his wife the burden of Royal engagements, made heavier by the first illness of King George VI. He went on half pay again and now has indefinite leave from the Navy. What is Lieutenant Commander, the Duke of Edinburgh like as a sailor, as a man? Well, ashore and afloat, they say: "A jolly good chap."

At sea, he was, above all else, a naval officer. In the eyes of the crew he was "Jimmy the One", not a Duke, when he was a first lieutenant. And, as a commander, he was always "the Skipper" or "the Old Man". Ratings did not brag about him ashore. But they were quietly proud. Many stories were heard about Philip before he joined Magpie. There was one about the time he tried to board a companion destroyer early in the morning with the idea of borrowing the cat. The petty officer of the watch saw him, and the Duke collected the full force of a powerful hose. White uniform moulded to his body and blond hair plastered over his face, he had to retreat before another faceful and eventually disappeared into the night in a waterlogged boat.

SCRUPULOUSLY FAIR

Other reports said he was tough and tyrannical but these were really misconceptions of an efficient captain and disciplinarian. He was scrupulously fair.

He was the most junior in rank and command in the flotilla but by the time he left Magpie, she was at the peak of her peacetime reputation.

When the traditional regatta day came at Valetta Harbour, Malta, he saw to it that Magpie men won six of ten events and made their ship Cock Ship of the flotilla. He made the crews practise beforehand till their hands were blistered. He stoked one whaler to victory himself. And when Magpie won, the crew from that time on backed him completey.

He used to go swimming with the men and liked nothing better than to drive the skimmer—a frigate's fast motor launch—leaving the coxswain unceremoniously on board the Magpie or putting him in the back seat. Shrewdness is part of the Duke's naval competence. There are always a few "bad hats" in any big body of men. No ship wants them but some ships have got to have them. It was noticeable he managed to keep them away from the Magpie. In fact, he even posted his own. "Very crafty is the Old Man," the older ratings used to say, "very sly indeed."

However, the Duke of Edinburgh's naval career is ended now, if not permanently, then for unspecified years to come. Ashore, he has turned his mind and energy to the immensity of his role as the husband of a British monarch. And in this, he is showing that he is a man of unusual stature. Recall the time when the young Duke gave his presidential address to the British Association, heart of all British scientific thought.

That night in Edinburgh, August 8, 1951, nearly 2,000 robed and gowned personages rustled to silence as Philip moved to the rostrum, faced microphones and television cameras and began to speak. Forty-five minutes later, the great hall rang with thunderous applause. It was a triumph for the speaker, for that night the Duke revealed for the first time the calibre of a man who had risen from comparative obscurity to the exacting position of a future Prince Consort.

Queens Helped Make Britain Great Nation

QUEEN MARY I was the first queen of England and the daughter of Henry VIII. Half Spanish and Catholic in her religion, she sought to renew Roman ties.

QUEEN ELIZABETH I was another daughter of Henry VIII who succeeded Mary I. The daughter of Anne Boleyn, his second wife, she had long reign (1558-1603).

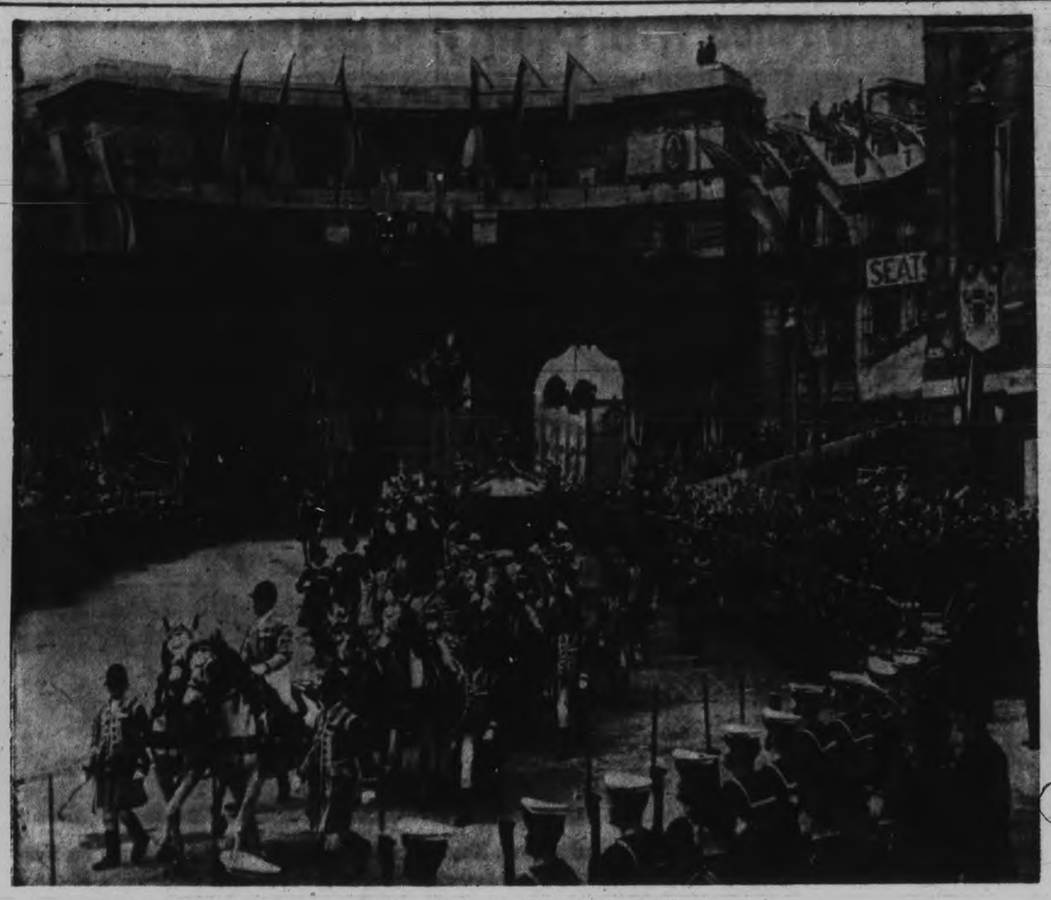
QUEEN MARY II (1688-94) was dual reign of William and Mary, unique in history of Great Britain.

First British Queen Ascended Throne in 16th Century

FOR all their chivalry, medieval men had no high opinion of the virtues of women as rulers, so it was not until the 16th century that a queen was accepted as ruler of England. An attempt to establish a woman on the throne was made in 1135 when Henry I died leaving no son but a daughter, Matilda (or Maud). Although the king had intended that his daughter should succeed him, Matilda's cousin, Stephen, had little difficulty in seising the crown. Throughout almost the whole of Stephen's reign (1135-54) there was civil war between Stephen's supporters and the Mathildine faction and most of England was abandoned to anarchy. This anarchy was remembered for centuries and England was not unnaturally anxious that the experiment of a queen should not be repeated. The desire for a son was largely responsible for Henry VIII's divorce of Catherine of Aragon—the divorce that was the occasion if not the cause of the Reformation in England.

QUEEN ANNE (1702-14) was sister of Mary II, who was married to William of Orange. Anne was married to Prince George of Denmark. Line died.

EARLY PORTRAIT OF VICTORIA now in the National Gallery of London shows her in all her regal splendor. She was the first empress.



QUEEN VICTORIA (1837-1901) had longest reign. During this time Great Britain went through industrial revolution and saw prosperity of nation reach peak.

OF THE QUEENS of England Elizabeth I and Victoria were great rulers; the other three were women who, if they had not carried the burden of the monarchy, might have been remarkable in other spheres. Certainly this is true of Queen Mary I; she might have founded a religious order if fortune had not placed her on the throne, and the fanaticism which brought about her ruin as a monarch could have been transmuted into the zeal of a reformer.

Queen Mary II was remarkable for her beauty, and for the pride and artistic sensibility which were part of her Stuart heritage. She was not happy as a monarch, and her dual reign with William III involved her in political dealings which were not of her seeking; it cannot be said that their marriage was a happy one and she lived only six years after coming to the throne.

Queen Anne has been much abused for her stupdity and supposed lack of interest in her tasks as a monarch. It must be remembered, however, that she was almost always pregnant, and that none of her children survived into adult life. She sought to provide the Crown with an heir, and her life was saddened by her failure to do so. It is significant that in her private hours she insisted that her personal friends call her "Mrs. Morley" and abandon all the etiquette which marked her as their queen; she might have been a happy woman if she had not been compelled to wear a crown.

ELIZABETH I AND Queen Victoria shared several characteristics. Both were proud and imperious women, both commanded respect and fear from those who knew them best, and both reigned during periods of economic and artistic greatness. There, however, the comparison must stop. Elizabeth was deeply learned, witty, broad in her speech and unashamedly vain of her appearance even in her old age. Victoria was none of these things, though she was not so severe in private life as she is popularly painted. She was autocratic in the German tradition of her family, but she had rare charm, and it was this quality which enabled her to triumph over many situations which had been created by her unyielding character. Enjoying the longest reign of any British monarch, she became an institution in the affections of her people, and her death literally marked the end of a great era.

Accession While In Colony Of Kenya Good Omen

By A. J. FORREST

The student of history, myth or precious stones will discern far reaching associations in widely scattered lands with the Queen's Coronation.

It may be cited as an omen of high significance that she acceded to the Throne while a guest on colonial territory. Accompanied by Prince Philip, she had, only a few hours before becoming Queen, sat up in a Kenya hunter's hide, watching elephants drinking by dawn light at their jungle pool.

And in this age of jet airliners—with the prospect of atomic-driven ships just around the corner—it is certain that the Queen will in the future have a better chance of visiting all quarters of her Commonwealth than any previous sovereign imagined possible. Experienced as a wide-roving traveller, with happy associations already forged in Canada and Africa, it is equally certain that she will take advantage of her opportunities.

Those who pause for a moment to survey history must be conscious of the benign influence exerted on colonial development by England's ruling queens. Accidental though this influence may have seemed at the time it emerged largely from their own qualities of character and interpretation of sovereignty.

Queen Victoria was to the world a symbol of enduring greatness, a figure that represented all the graces of the Empier and the best in them. Perhaps Empire building was fortuitous in her great era. Yet, a certain pattern dictated it, inspired first by England's lead over rival European nations in industrialization.

Men gained thereby the impulse to seek new horizons. There was, also, that sudden break up of aristocratic privilege which, under the growing pressure of commercial stringencies, forced the younger sons of many country squires to venture abroad. This they did, not to deserve well of their neighbours on their home-coming, as sentinmentalists pretended, but to carve out a good living for themselves and their families wherever ships could bring them.

The career of James Brooke, first British Rajjah of Sarawak, was characteristic of the finer type of Victorian coloniser. He served in the East India Company, then at the age of 35, set sail for Borneo in a 142 ton schooner. His assets, if he bothered to count them, consisted largely of his own ecurage and self-confidence. He landed in Sarawak. Soon, the sympathy which he developed for its natives, incorrigible head hunters, brought out all his latent administrative talents. He became indispensable to the people. From the Malay Sultan of Borneo, he received the hereditary title of Rajah of Sarawak: His heirs enhanced his prestige.

ONE MAN'S FORCE

Thus, despite the indifference of the Queen's' Ministers in London, Sarawak was added to the Empire —fundamentally through one man's force of character.

As recent warfare in Malaya testifies, the Sea Dyaks of this state, engaged as jungle trackers with the British forces, are not merely invaluable for their skill in pursuing bandit trails to remote fastnesses. They are, to a man, fanatical in their loyalty and devotion to the Queen's service.

Certainly, often blood, strife and agony marked the initial settlement effected by the British in native territories. The newcomers were sometimes hated not unjustifiably. For, let it be fairly admitted, the exploitation of local peoples was sometimes their goal, and not a vestige of Empire vision coloured their outlook. Yet, slowly, by one of the happiest accidents of civilization, misrule always gave way to order. And, in the wake of justice, new and undreamed-of benefits in medicine, education and social betterment followed

There stands, for instance, as an enduring memorial, the English Cathedral at Zanzibar. It is built on the spot where in 1873 John Kirk shut down for ever one of Africa's greatest slave markets. As late as 1903 Frederick Lugard rode into Kano in Northern Nigeria determined to suppress those slave merchants who, armed with chain mail, still scoured surrounding districts for victims. He too, abolished this evil. And, in similar manner, as the venerated Queen Victoria aged, Englishmen were putting an end to torture cannibalism, infanticide, head-hunting and other malpractices in territories scattered over the world. What began often with blood, ended in brotherhood.

The very foundation, though of colonial development can be traced to Elizabeth I, herself the most imperious of queens. Cautious beyond logic, parsimonious in her provisions for her army and navy, and hating war, she refused to embroil England in a struggle on the Continent—despite the fiercest provocation.

Unassailably cool-headed, she kept the peace for more than twenty years while England grew strong and united. Even when in 1580, Spain suddenly annexed Portugal, occupying her harbours colonies in India, Africa and Brazil the Queen still schemed for peace. Finally, when there was no escape from war, a navy, consisting largely of privateers and magnificently manned and gunned, sailed out to drive the Spanish Armada on the rocks with minimum loss.

Victory brought an illimitable harvest. With almost undisputed command of the seas, their blood tingled with adventurous yearnings, English seamen ventured westwards to the farthest horizons. They touched down on new lands, ranging from Newfoundland to Patagonia. And in North Americas and the West Indies were planted the first tiny seeds of settlement from which colonies and later great independent nations sprang.

EMPIRE TAKES SHAPE

Not through acquisitiveness on the part of the Crown but as the outcome of private enterprise, supported by financial syndicates formed in London, the Empire began to gather shape.

A hundred years later, with its size already considerable, not a single Crown-established colony existed. But British traders were settled in Calcutta, Madras, Surat and Bombay; in West African ports on the Gambia, at Cape Coast Castle and Sierra Leone. The Persian Gulf was ringed by their factories.

And westwards—how bright it was! There flags flew over 13 of the future American states, the Hudson Bay, Newfoundland, and Nova Scotia. They occupied, also, either in part or entirely, Bermuda, Honduras, Jamaica, Barbados, Trinidad and other valuable West Indian centres.

So it is that the roots of the Queen's crowning penetrates to earth's four corners. From the roving tribes of Eskimo caribou hunters in Canada's' North to the feasting Nicobar Islanders in the Bay of Bengal, from the rice planters of Swaziland to the forest conservators of Sierra Leone, they will all be stirred by this event, so pregnant in dynastic ritual, spiritual significance and antique splendour, as if some trappings of majesty had descended on the whole wide Commonwealth.

Just as Elizabeth I inspired not solely colonial development, but an upheaval of genius in the minds and tongue of the English speaking peoples, may not the second young Elizabeth promote, also, an economic, social and mental awakening?

The omens already promise well.

Complex Liturgical Ritual Contained Three Elements

The liturgical ritual to be followed at the Coronation is exceedingly complex. After the preliminary and exceedingly solemn Oath in which much of our history is enshrined, the service contained three main elements. The first is the expressly sacramental part which opened with the words of the service for Holy Communion and reaches its liturgical climax with the anointing of the Queen. The second sequence is the stage by stage investiture of the Sovereign in all the trappings and attributes of monarchy. The climax of this is reached with the actual Coronation and the mounting of the throne. The third stage is the paying of homage to the Queen by the orders of the peerage and her acclamation in the shouts of the people.

We shall trace in detail the exact course of the service, from the moment when the Queen, supported by her husband, entered the west door of the Abbey.

The Archbishop, and the Bishop assisting him, vested in their copes, formed a procession just outside the West door and waited for the arrival of the Queen. The procession advanced down the aisle greeted by an anthem sung by Westminster choir. The Queen passed through the choir of the Abbey past the throne, and turned to the Chair of Estate placed to the right of the altar. After her private devotions the Queen took her place on the Chair of Estate.

The Archbishop then, symbolically, passed to the four corners of the Church to introduce the Queen to her assembled people. The Archbishop was accompanied on his brief itinerary by the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Great Chamberlain, the Lord High Constable, and the Earl Marshal preceded by the Garter Herald. The Archbishop turned to the east, then the south, west, and finally the north. And at each point he said:

"Sirs, I here present unto you Queen Elizabeth your undoubted Queen: Wherefore all you who are come this day to do your homage and service. Are you willing to do the same?"

The acclamations from the assembley were in the form of "God Save Queen Elizabeth". And a trumpet sounded.

There was then a short pause while the Lords who had the rights to carry the Regalia brought forward the sceptre, orb, ring and other ornaments and they were passed by the Archbishop to the custody of the Dean of Westminster who placed them on the altar.

Then the Archbishop turned to the Queen to administer the Oath. She held her own small personal bible in her hands. The Oath took the form of three questions and to the first and third the Queen made a solemn affirmation and promise. To the second, she merely affirmed that she will cause "Law and Justice, with Mercy, to be executed in all her judgements."

The first promise was to govern all her peoples "according to their respective laws and customs". This is the cardinal constitutional contract on which British kingship has been based since the time of St. Edward the Confessor. The third part of the Oath concerned the establishment of the Church of England and the Settlement after the Reformation, all of which the Queen swears to preserve inviolably.

The Archbishop proceeded in accordance with the service of Holy Communion, opening with the Introit and followed by prayers, the Epistle, and the Gospel. The Apostles' Creed was then said with the Sovereign standing. She then knelt for the singing of the hymn "Veni Creator Spiritus", which began "Come Holy Ghost, our souls inspire. . ."

The Archbishop then read a prayer of preparation for the anointing, during which he placed his hand on the Golden Ampulla, (fashioned in the shape of an eagle) in which the oil had been placed on the altar. The choir sang verses from the Book of Kings that refer to the anointing of Solomon (I Kings 39.40).

The Queen then rose and made her way to the Chair of King Edward, under whose seat lies the Stone of Scone. After being disrobed of the crimson robe by the Lord Great Chamberlain, and having taken off the Cap of State, the Queen went to sit on the chair of King Edward. Four Knights of the Garter, (including her uncle and her husband) were in attendance with a pall of silk and cloth of gold. The Dean of Westminster took the Ampulla and the ancient spoon and with them he anointed the Queen in the form of the Cross, in three places, on the palms of the hands, on the breast, and the crown of the head. With each anointing the Dean makes a brief declaration.

Then, with the anointing completed, the Dean returned the oil to the altar and the Sovereign knelt while the Archbishop said over her the blessing.

And now, a second time, the service changed its liturgical key. The Queen sat again in King Edward's Chair while the pall was returned by the Knight of the Garter to the Lord Chamberlain. She then rose and was invested in two robes of antiquity which were brought to her by the Dean of Westminster.

The Queen was then ready to receive the trappings of Knighthood. The Lord Great Chamberlain had the duty to touch the Queen's heels with the golden Spurs of Knighthood. The Spurs were brought from the altar. A sword, the replica of the Sword of State, was also brought from the altar, offered to the Queen and blessed by the Archbishop.

The Queen was then invested with the Robe Royal. The ceremonial was quite complex. The robe was delivered by the Officer of the Great Wardrobe to the Dean of Westminster. He put the robe on the Queen, but the Lord Great Chamberlain came forward to affix the clasp. The Queen sat and the Orb and Cross were brought to her by the Dean and put in her hand by the Archbishop, who at the same time pronounced a Blessing that contained a reminder that "the whole world is subject to the power and Empire of Christ."

The keeper of the Jewel House, (who is Constable of the Tower of London) came forward with the Ring. The Archbishop blessed the Ring and placed it on the Queen's fourth finger of her right hand. Then the sceptre was placed in the Queen's right hand. The sceptre surmounted by the dove was placed in the left hand—and was referred to as the Rod of Equity and Mercy.

The Archbishoo then turned to Edward's Crown, which was on the altar; he uttered a short prayer during which, at the reference to her Royal heart, the Queen bowed her head.

Tnen the solemn moment approached The Archbishop, accompanied by his assisting Bishops, came from the altar. The Dean of Westminster brought the Crown and the Archbishop reverently and gently placed it on the Queen's head.

At this point in the ancient rituals it was said "at the sight whereof the people with loud and repiated shouts cried: GOD SAVE THE QUEEN."

This was the moment when the Queen had truly been crowned. The peers and the Kings of Arms (that is the heraldic leaders of the Kingdoms,) put on their coronets. And at this instant the guns of the Tower were fired in salute.

Once again the Coronation service changed note. The Queen was now crowned and in all her Regalia, sitting on the throne of King Edward. And the service returned to the pattern of the Holy Communion The Dean of Westminster proffered to the Queen a Bible, referring to it as "the most valuable thing that the world affords."

The Archbishop then blessed the Sovereign; and afterwards the Queen made her way, supported by her husband the Duke of Edinburgh, towards her Throne. She was helped to it by the Archbishop, Bishop and other Peers. Then the Great Officers of State stood around the Throne and the Archbishop addressed her in a famous acclamation that began: "Stand firm, and hold from henceforth and for evermore, the seat and state of Royal dignity, which is this day delivered unto you."

The Homage was then performed First the Archbishop knelt before the Queen, with other Bishops kneeling in their places. Then the Royal Dukes paid their homage. They each touched the Crown and kissed the Queen's cheek. Then all the other ranks of peerage did their homage. In each case the senior Duke, Marquis, Earl, Viscount and Baron came forward. The Queen meanwhile had divested herself of two sceptres—passing them to the appointed officers.
